Molotov Cocktail Is Thrown at BCI Wall in Pre-dawn Hours

By DONALD MACKENZIE
Staff Reporter

A "Molotov Cocktail" thrown early this morning at Belleville Collegiate Institute sent police and firemen rushing to the scene of the explosion and fire.

Although no charges have yet been laid Chief Douglas Crosbie said this morning "the matter is still under investigation".

It was 3.45 a.m. this morning when the south wall of the collegiate burst into flames as an unknown person threw a "Molotov Cocktail" at the school.

A woman across the street woke up with the explosion and flames and called both the police and fire department. City police were able to extinguish the flames before the department arrived and no real damage was done to the school "However," said Chief Crosbie, "it could have been really serious if the bomb had gone through a window."

"Molotov cocktails" are homemade incendiary bombs, constructed from bottles filled with a volatile substance which ignites as the bottle breaks.

Last night's weapon was constructed from a beer bottle and Chief Crosbie said that the arsonist had most likely used coal oil.

The incendiary "cocktails" were widely used in guerilla warfare during World War II and can cause extensive damage and are highly explosive when built properly.

Drivers Facing Tougher Laws

TORONTO (CP) — Tougher penalties loom for careless drivers in Ontario, where Transport Minister Irwin Haskett says 1,586 persons died last year in traffic accidents and 71,000 persons were injured.

He told the legislature Monday, as he introduced nearly 100 amendments to the Highway Traffic Act, that he was "fed up" with provincial court judges who were too lenient with bad drivers. Most of the amendments come into effect Sept. 1.

He said the changes were aimed at "irresponsible drivers" who invite collisions by their "shocking disrespect for traffic laws."

The amendments, which received first reading, include:

—A sliding scale of fines for speeding convictions with bigger fines for higher speeds.

—A minimum fine of $100 instead of the present $10 for careless driving convictions, with the $500 maximum remaining.

—An increase in the discretionary jail term to six months from the present three months on conviction for careless driving.

—A new requirement that a driver identify himself at the demand of a policeman.

—Addition of two offences for which police may arrest without a warrant: failure to remain at the scene of an accident and failure of a driver to identify himself properly to a policeman.

In the past, the act provided for a minimum fine of $5 and a maximum of $50 for speeding offences.

Under the amendment act the fine for speeding will be increased by $2 a mile up to and including nine miles an hour over the limit.

Between 10 and 19 miles an hour over the limit the fine will increase by $3 for each mile. It goes to $4 a mile for speeds between 20 and 29 miles an hour over the limit and more than that at $5 a mile.

The new legislation specifies that persons convicted of careless driving may be both fined and jailed.

Blast Traps Miners

MONTERREY (AP) — Officials reported 168 miners are believed trapped today in a coal mine ripped by a tremendous methane gas explosion in Mexico's Coahuila state.

The blast blew through the mine Monday afternoon. As of this morning six bodies had been brought out, said officials of the company, Altos Hornos de Mexico. They added that one of the bodies was that of a rescue worker who was overcome by gas fumes.

Gas fumes still lingered in pockets of the two mine shafts where, according to work list data supplied by the company, the 168 men remained trapped.

The lists showed 43 miners trapped in the No. 3 shaft, where the explosion occurred. Officials said the blast was probably caused by a short-circuit.

Another 125 were trapped in the nearby No. 2 shaft, officials said. All were believed to be at a depth of about 1,700 feet.

Troops were rushed in to control victims' families who rioted at the tunnel entrances. The crowds calmed down later.

The mine is at Barroteran, with a population of 8,000 people, about 75 miles southwest of the Texas border town of Eagle Pass.

"It was a tremendous explosion, blowing parts of the mine entrance into the air," said Dr. Emilio Lopez of the Barroteran hospital, who witnessed the blast. "We have no injured. They were either all killed at the entrance or trapped below."

Biafran Unlikely To Meet Wilson

ADDIS ABABA (Reuters) — Biafran leader Lt.-Col. Odumegwu Ojukwu today held out little hope of meeting Prime Minister Wilson of Britain for talks on the Nigerian civil war, it was reliably learned in this Ethiopian capital.

Ojukwu apparently informed Wilson of this in reply to the first of two invitations from the British prime minister to hold talks somewhere outside Biafra, reliable sources said.

Decision Rests With Developer

By Roy Peacock, Staff Reporter

A petition by the city to the provincial cabinet for a reversal of the Ontario Municipal Board decision ruling against the North Front Street plaza will be dependent on Cambridge Leaseholds Ltd. paying the appeal costs.

Mayor J. Russell Scott told council yesterday that word from Cambridge Leaseholds on whether it would pay the $10,000 to $12,000 costs of the appeal would be known late this week.

The city has 28 days from the date of the OMB decision to appeal.

George Elliott of Toronto, company development officer, today said he had no comment on the latest development.

"Company officials in Windsor are discussing the matter now and will make their decision by Friday," Mr. Elliott said.

City Solicitor E. Guss Porter said today that any city appeal of the OMB decision would go to the Lieutenant Governor in Council who may either rescind the OMB decision opposing the plaza or order a new hearing.

Mr. Porter said he knew of no instance where the Lieutenant Governor had rescinded an OMB decision, while only rarely is a new hearing ordered.

He had no comment on the estimate of $10,000 to $12,000 suggested at council as the cost of a new hearing.

"I do not feel that the citizens of Belleville should be asked to pay the costs of the appeal," said Mayor Scott. "Cambridge must agree to pay the cost of the appeal before the petition for reversal of the OMB decision goes to the cabinet."

The proposed $3,000,000 plaza for the North Front Street area was ruled out when the OMB failed to approve the city's application for a change in zoning to allow construction of the plaza.

In its decision the OMB accepted the testimony of Allen Brass, consultant for Procter, Redfern, Bousfield and Bacon, town planning engineers, that in view of the urban renewal study now being made, the plaza would be premature.

Afro-Asian Lands Press For Censure

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Asian and African nations today pressed for a new condemnation of Israel in the United Nations Security Council despite pleas it might sour Big Four efforts to work out an Arab-Israeli peace formula.

The 15-nation council was called into session for another round of debate on the Israeli attack last Wednesday on the Jordanian village of El Hazar near Sak.

Jordan said 18 civilians died in the raid. Israel said the raid was directed against a base of Al Fatah, an Arab guerrilla organization.

A resolution sponsored by Pakistan, Senegal and Zambia called for condemnation of Israel for "recent premeditated air attacks" launched against Jordanian villages and populated areas in "flagrant violation" of the UN Charter and ceasefire resolutions.

The resolution also warns that if Israel continues its attacks the council may consider taking punitive steps outlined in the charter.

Eisenhower Returns To Heart of America

WASHINGTON (CP) — The train bearing the body of Dwight David Eisenhower rumbled across the face of America today, carrying to a modest resting place the man who once led the world's mightiest nation and commanded the most awesome military machine ever assembled.

"I come from the heart of America," he liked to say of his boyhood in Kansas, and it is to that geographic centre of the United States he is returning.

The nation's capital bade farewell at sundown Monday as Eisenhower's coffin was placed on baggage car No. 214 for the 20-hour, 1,379-mile trip home to Abilene.

The funeral procession and service brought together, in the National Cathedral, representatives of more than 120 nations among the 2,107 invited guests.

Prime Minister Trudeau headed the four-man delegation representing the people and government of Canada. He placed a wreath at the bier.

With Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, John Diefenbaker who was Conservative prime minister part of the time Eisenhower was in the White House, and Gen. Jean V. Allard, chief of the defence staff, the prime minister later attended a White House reception for visiting dignitaries.

Community Services Save City $12,000

It won't materially affect the 1969 tax rate but city council would appreciate more local organizations following the lead of Belleville United Community Services.

Yesterday, Rt. Rev. James P. Sullivan, community services president, told council that last year's campaign had exceeded its objective and raised 22 per cent more money than in 1967 and it had been decided not to request continuance of its $12,000 grant.

"This is a gamble, but by taking it we hope to remove a straw from the backs of the people who supported us so well last year and on whom we will continue to rely," said Msgr. Sullivan.

However, the UCS president asked that the door be kept open for further discussion, should plans for additional operating revenues not reach expectations.

Msgr. Sullivan said that the UCS responsibility to member agencies had been, and will be met according to contract terms during the current year.

He said the recently reorganized and expanded indoor sports association had been allocated $9,500 for 1969, an amount $2,400 more than last year.

Msgr. Sullivan said directors of the UCS share growing concern over the increased burden being placed on the taxpayer. At the same time they are also convinced that no tax dollar brings any greater concern than that spent on social planning. He said directors think it might be possible to acquire additional revenues for operating purposes from a variety of sources and were therefore not requesting a grant in aid this year.

Public Relations Necessary

County board of education trustees and administrators were warned last night, not to neglect public relations in their deliberations.

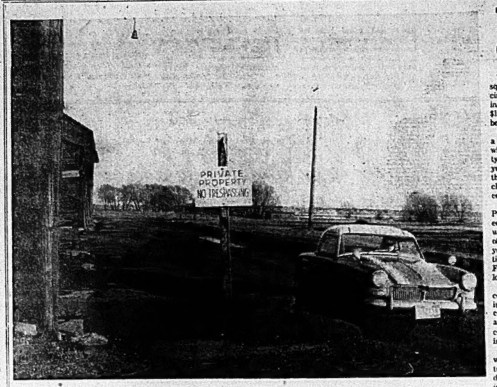
Earl Sager, a member of Bay of Quinte District High School Board before creation of the county board, told a Madoc Kiwanis meeting attended by county educators that "public relations is an important aspect of your job that is too often ignored."

Mr. Sager asked guest speaker Erie Runacres whether or not all board meetings were open to the press and public.

"During my years of service on elected bodies I never went into a closed meeting without feeling a little bit smaller," he remarked.

"We all feel this way," Mr. Runacres replied. "we invite the press to all our meetings except those involving personal comments on staff, union, negotiations and sale or purchase of land."

Mr. Runacres confessed that when he first came to Belleville from Toronto, he did not hold this view.



"I came here with a view of being loathe to open up to the press," he said.

However, he added, that fair press coverage had caused him to alter his opinion.

"Mind you, if we are hurt in the future, we may react a bit," he warned.

Private Property – No Trespassing

Trenton Road Dispute Could Be Costly Issue

TRENTON —A two-year squabble over a stretch of cinder road could end up costing the town of Trenton some $19,000 — and the bill has not been finalized yet.

Cause of the costly dispute is a section of Ontario Street, which runs through the property of B. W. Powers Ltd. Two years ago the town went to the Ontario Supreme Court claiming the road strip belonged to the municipality.

The court ruled in favor of Powers and the town appealed and lost again. Finally they went to the Supreme Court of Canada and a judgement yesterday ruled that the section of Ontario Street — from Foundry to South Street — belonged to Powers.

Not including the supreme court costs, the town estimates it has spent some $8,000 in court. Powers tables its costs at approximately $10,000. The court has not yet made a ruling on court costs.

Also included in the case was a $1,000 suit against the town for damages listed under trespassing costs, according to Vic Hall, manager of the plant. The court ordered the town to pay these.

And yesterday's court decision was all that was needed to allow the Powers property to be sold.

"We've been waiting for this news," said Mr. Ryan, "and now we will be selling as quickly as possible."

Mr. Ryan said the five-and-a-half acre property had been up for sale about a year but added "you can't sell a lawsuit.

"But now that we know we have won we will be selling with full force."

The reason for the sale, according to the plant manager, is that there is not enough demand for coal in this area to allow Powers Ltd. to survive. The plant is one of this town's oldest, situated in Trenton for 87 years.

"We see no point in hanging on," said Mr. Ryan, "we will be selling at a cost of 50 cents a square foot."

Now the town is back where it was years ago, but will not be paying considerably more for this privilege.

The Powers property was previously offered the town for around $100,000 but Trenton refused.

Now, two years later, Mayor James MacDonald said today there is still "a possibility" that the town might purchase the land.

"We think the town should buy the land," said Mr. Ryan, "they have spent enough on it already."

But recollections of the battle still annoy Mr. Ryan.

"The town went too d a m n far," he said when he referred to bulldozers smashing through a fence his company had set up to barricade the road section on the Power's property.

Thus the decision to go to court and the resulting $1,000 suit filed for damages.

Court costs to the town are yet to be finalized, since Mayor MacDonald says he has not yet had a bill for the Supreme Court hearing.

Powers also have not received their Supreme Court costs. If the Supreme Court rules that Trenton pay the court costs for both parties, the two year venture will cost the town some $19,000.

And Supreme Court costs will be added on to this figure.

Big Changes But . . .

Teachers Always Needed -- Despite Computers

In a period of unprecedented change in education, as in other spheres, there will always be a need for teachers, Hastings County Education Board administrator Eric Runacres told Belleville Rotarians yesterday.

Mr. Runacres, while painting a computerized picture of the educational process of tomorrow, said children need people to stand opposite them and help them with the learning process.

However, he visualized principals and teachers having more flexibility and more authority in educational decision-making. There would be grassroots leadership . . . "but only at the concept of the lead," a reference to the increasing say students are demanding in education.

The education administrator envisaged a trained society able to make use of vast new areas of information and technological facilities, people going to work without leaving home and being able to communicate readily by telephone anywhere in the world.

But not all change, he said, was good. "We must be the managers of change . . . we must not lose by default."

Mr. Runacres said when children enter Grade 1 graduate, 50 per cent of the business jobs in our present society will not exist. He envisaged a time when half the labor force will be under 25 and one-third unemployed. Schools would remain open and education and retraining of persons would continue throughout adult life.

The speaker gave a startling illustration of the swiftness of technological change. Nearly per cent of all the scientists who ever lived are living today. By 1986, 35 per cent of all people living will be less than 15 years old. And by the year 2000 there will be 40,000,000 Canadians, 90 per cent of them living in urban areas.

The speaker also looked forward to a day when students would visit the Arctic and go to the Sahara in the course of their education.

Locally, Mr. Runacres said task forces are being created to obtain from area communities an assessment of educational priorities.

In a budget reference, he said: "In two weeks time we will tell you what the cut will be. Every dollar spent will be used to maximum effect."

Nursery Enrolment Up

Enrolment at the city's day nursery is gradually increasing, city council was told yesterday.

Reference to the city's day nursery was made by Ald. E. A. Orr as he presented the 1969 budget of the Hastings County Social Services to council.

The budget, calling for an estimated expenditure of just over $1,093,000 was referred for consideration at the city council budget discussions.

Of the total budget $565,675 would be paid by Belleville, Trenton, and the county of Hastings, with the balance being covered by provincial grants, Belleville's share would be $119,601.

Ald. Orr said the city's share of welfare costs would be up just over $8,000 from the $110,825 figure last year. This was an increase of about seven per cent.

He said the increase resulted from a higher incidence of unemployment in the Belleville area.

Referring to the Belleville day nursery, Ald. Orr said enrolment was now 25 with hopes that this number would soon be increased.

No official report had been received from the adjacent townships regarding possible rural participation in the nursery school, it was stated.

Doggone It Dog, Don't 'Go' There

Belleville's dog bylaw doesn't go far enough.

That is the claim of Alderman Paul Russell who says he has received many complaints from residents who object to pet owners walking their dogs and "clear of their own property" — let them mess up the neighbors' lawns.

Yesterday he told city council that the dog bylaw should require pet owners to always have their dogs on leash when being walked and to make it an offence to allow the dog to "go" on other people's lawns.

"Council has an obligation" to extend provisions of the city dog bylaw, he claimed.

Council Ponders Garbage Salvage

Whether or not salvage rights should be exclusive at the city dump in any new contract for garbage collection is a question being pondered by city administration officials and members of council.

And it appears there is an argument for both sides of the question.

The argument in favor of salvage rights is that as many as 15 men derive their living from the operation.

On the other side is the claim that granting of salvage rights makes for a messy garbage dump with papers and other debris blowing all over the place.

Dump operator Percy Rogers told council it was not his fault that paper blew and was scattered from the dump by the winds.

He claimed there should be a bulldozer on the job for the entire eight hours the dump was open rather than for only two hours as was the case.

Also, he said, the dump should be graded after the last load of garbage was dumped instead of leaving it until the next day.

Marvin Hallman, of the Belleville Metal and Waste Company, which has salvage rights at the dump, said 15 people made their livelihood from his operation. He said salvage rights saw 25 per cent of the total garbage salvaged with the result the dump did not fill up as fast.

He said if his men had half an hour after the load was dumped, the refuse would be covered and paper prevented from blowing about.

However, city engineer Wilbur Purcell felt the salvage operation should be discouraged.

He admitted being unaware that 15 people depended on salvage rights for their livelihood.

He said the paper-blowing problem resulted partly from salvage operations and partly from lack of earth cover.

If no salvage rights existed garbage could be covered immediately.

Request Board Decertify Union

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Labor Relations Board was asked Monday by the employees of the Proctor-Silex Ltd. plant in Picton to decertify a striking union local as their bargaining agent.

The request to decertify the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, Local 585, as their agent was contained in a petition signed by 108 employees at the plant.

O. B. Shime, representing the board, reserved decision on the request.

The union has been on strike for higher wages and fringe benefits since July, 1968.

Obituaries

MRS. FRANK VESTERFELT
(Campbellford)

CAMPBELLFORD — The funeral for Mrs. Margaret Vesterfelt, who died in Peterborough Civic Hospital on Saturday in her 78th year was held from the Weaver Funeral Home, Campbellford, on Monday afternoon. She had been in failing health for the past year.

Lieutenant E. R. Pyne of the Salvation Army conducted the service in the chapel and entombment was in Mount Pleasant cemetery for interment at a later date.

The bearers were Donald and George Vesterfelt, Bruce Nickle, Clifford VanAllen, Arnold Watson and Jack Ellis.

Mrs. Vesterfelt was born in Thurlow township, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James W. Badgley and had been a resident of Campbellford for 13 years. She formerly resided in Warkworth and Norwood.

Fraternally, she was a member of Coronation Lodge No. 195 of the LOBA and Crystal chapter No. 58 both of Warkworth. Memorial services by these two lodges were held in the Funeral Home on Sunday evening.

Surviving are her husband, Frank Vesterfelt, and four sons, William Vesterfelt, Napanee, Robert, Belleville, James, Wanapitei and George at home.

Also surviving are two half sisters, Mrs. Bessie Plumpton, Stockdale, Mrs. May Palmer, Cambellford, five grandchildren and one great grandchild.

MRS. CHARLES CANCILLA

Following an illness of five weeks, Mrs. Antonina (Lena) Cancilla, 110 Victoria Avenue, died in hospital this Tuesday morning in her 82nd year.

She was born in Italy, a daughter of the late Mr. and and Mrs. Samuel Domenico and resided in Belleville for 25 years. She formerly resided in Port Hope.

Mrs. Cancilla was a member of St. Michael's Church and was active, when health permitted, in the Catholic Women's League of the parish.

Surviving is one daughter, Mrs. Leo (Marie) Buckley and two grandchildren Timothy and Denis Buckley also of Belleville.

Also surviving is one sister, Mrs. Leonard (Rose) Fardella, Kingston and one brother, Frank Domenico, Belleville. Her husband, Charles Cancilla, died some years ago.

Mrs. Cancilla is resting at the George O'Brien Funeral Residence. Service will be held in St. Michael's Church on Thursday, April 3 at 10.00 a.m.

Interment will be in St. James' Cemetery.

DOG ACCLAIMED

INNISFAIL, Alta. (CP) — Norman Ostoby's collie, Jack, justified his reputation as the best cattle dog in this district, 60 miles north of Calgary, when a bull attacked his master and knocked him down recently. Jack rushed to the scene, diverting the Holstein's attention long enough to permit Ostoby to scramble to safety. The farmer was treated in hospital for broken ribs.

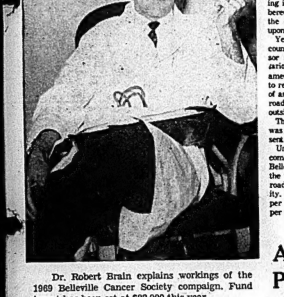
Loyalist president J. K. Bradford, talks with Morden Shapiro, secretary of the Chartered Accountants Institutes special committee on auditing, and local Quinte Ontario Association of Chartered Accountants' president Robert Irvine at yesterday's meeting. They discussed the possibility of Loyalist accounting courses.

Loyalist Officials Meet Accountants

Practical education or local courses for local jobs was the general theme again yesterday afternoon as Loyalist college officials met with representatives of Quinte chartered accountants.

Loyalist president J. K. Bradford along with other members of his staff met with Robert Irvine, president of the Quinte group of the Ontario Association of Charterd Accountants and Morden Shapiro of Toronto, secretary of the Chartered Accountants Institutes special committee on auditing.



The meeting was part of Loyalist policy encouraging two-way communication between communities it serves within the four Quinte-area counties.

Matters of mutual interest, especially the possibility of establishing accounting courses in Loyalist's business section were discussed.

According to the accountants attending yesterday, Loyalist courses might allow local people sufficient knowledge to work in area chartered accountants' offices.

Accountants agreed that it was the ability to do the job satisfactorily that counted not how or where individuals are educated and trained.

Some courses in the accounting line along with other related business administration courses already offered at the college were also discussed by the group.

Dr. Robert Brain explains workings of the 1969 Belleville Cancer Society compaign. Fund target has been set at $22,000 this year.

Cancer Campaign Bids For $22,000

The Belleville and District Cancer Society campaign target has been set at $22,000 and the canvassing officially starts today.

The campaign will last throughout the entire month of April, Cancer Month in Canada.

And in Belleville, the campaign, it is hoped, will continue in the same vein as it has in previous years.

So far, in the history of the society in Belleville the target has always been reached.

Last year the $21,000 mark was eclipsed.

For the seventh year Dr. Robert Brain is campaign chairman.

He said this morning that the $22,000 target would be divided into four sections.

He explained that 65 per cent of the money would leave the city for research for the prevention of the disease.

Five per cent will be allotted for advertising 15 per cent for public education and 15 per cent to service for patients.

The $22,000 figure will be a culmination of memorial donations, an industrial campaign and the door-to-door canvas.

The campaign will involve almost 800 canvassers and Belleville organizers will coordinate canvassing in Bellville, Point Anne, Thurlow, Deseronto, Tweed, Marmora, Madoc and Stirling.

This year's drive is characterized by a change in slogan. Instead of "Fight Cancer with a Check-up and a Cheque" the message is more optimistic: "Cancer Can be Beaten."

Dr. Brain is optimistic about the success of the campaign. "People have been very generous before."

He explained that people were sympathetic to the cause of the cancer society.

"First, we're dealing with a disease that is not as yet a conquered disease. It is a lethal disease. Their sympathies lie with trying to conquer it."

Dr. Brain felt that, in most cases, people had friends or relatives that were suffering from cancer.

"No one can say they don't care about cancer," he said.

Oil Companies Put Pressure On Petition, Says Operator

Belleville gasoline service station operators are lining up for another hassle over closing hours.

Two weeks ago a petition signed by more than 20 of the 44 operators in the city was presented to council asking that there be no change in the present bylaw permitting unlimited hours of operation during summer months.

Yesterday, however, another petition, this one signed by 19 operators was presented to council by Claude Roper asking that the present winter hours of operation (7 a.m. to 7 p.m) be enforced all year round.

* * * * * * *

Mr. Roper said that, originally, more station operators had indicated their willingness to sign his petition but had been discouraged from doing so by the oil companies.

Claiming that some operators had changed their minds about signing as a result of threats of losing their station. Mr. Roper felt the time is ripe for a showdown between operators were allowed to run their stations on their own without duress from the oil companies.

Mr. Roper said being forced to stay open long hours cost the small operator money in additional staff salaries.

"But the big oil companies are interested only in selling their product," he said.

Council was assured by Mr. Roper that year-round seven to seven station operation would cause no hardship to the public.

Under the present bylaw several stations in the city remain open until 11 p.m.

Mr. Roper said operators planned to have cards printed advising motorists which stations were open during the evening hours.

The matter of service station closing hours was tabled for two weeks, at which time the position of the oil companies will be heard.

Mayor Cautions

City Services to Sidney On 'If-and-when' Basis

Any extension of city sewers and water into Sidney township to serve the planned Hastings Park housing development is at least two years away.

This was stated at city council yesterday by Mayor J. Russell Scott following receipt of an application from Sidney council for an agreement for servicing of the first phase of the proposed Hallcraft Developments Ltd., Hastings Park.

Mayor Scott said the city had agreed that extension of services to the townships would be made on an "if-and-when" basis.

This meant, he said, that the extension would be made if and when there was a surplus available.

He said the city would have no surplus water for at least two years while the addition to the city sewage plant was also about two years away.

In the meantime, council voted that the township be invited to meet with the city for the purpose of discussing any proposals Sidney might have for extension of services to the township.

Any such agreement for service must assure that full costs are met by the township, it was emphasized.

Alderman Arthur Keegan and Ald. Douglas Boyle suggested that any agreement for provision of services to the township go further than assurance that city residents would not be penalized.

Their suggestion was that the agreement spell out that the township would not oppose any future amalgamation with the city.

The feeling expressed by Ald. Keegan was that if services were extended to the township, vacant land in the city would remain undeveloped.

The same view was taken by Alderman Boyle who suggested that a committee should be formed to consider amalgamation.

He said the entire area between Trenton and Belleville should be amalgamated.

Mayor Scott moved that the township be invited to submit proposals for extension of services, and this was amended by Ald. Boyle who felt the township should agree not to oppose amalgamation.

Ald. Donald Williams felt this was going a bit too fast and urged the matter be first talked over. Council turned down Ald. Boyle's amendment.

Developer Must Pay For Appeal

Yesterday at city council, Ald. Robin Jeffrey came to the defence of Mr. Brass who, she said, had been made the whipping boy for interests seeking to have the OMB decision reversed.

"Mr. Brass was subpoenaed for the hearing and was under oath," she said. "He was asked if he felt the plaza was premature and had to answer truthfully."

But Ald. Keegan, one of the principal supporters of the proposed planning development, did not altogether agree.

Ald. Keegan claimed that with the urban renewal study not completed, Mr. Brass was in no position to say the plaza development was premature.

"He could have said he didn't know," he said.

City Seeking Relief From Rural Road Cost

The days of suburban roads — under which policy urban municipalities help to pay upkeep costs of rural roads leading into a city—could be numbered if a resolution from the city of Windsor is acted upon.

Yesterday, Belleville city council concurred in the Windsor resolution asking the Ontario government to pass amending legislation designed to relieve urban municipalities of any financial obligations for roads or other public works outside their boundaries.

The resolution claimed there was no justification for the present legislation.

Under the suburban roads commission set-up a city like Belleville pays 25 per cent of the cost of certain collector roads outside the municipality. The county also pays 25 per cent and the province 50 per cent.

Council tabled a resolution from Sarnia requesting the province not to proceed with the government's announced takeover of the municipal assessment function.

Instead, it asked that, if necessary, existing assessment legislation be amended so as to ensure sound and acceptable assessment practices across the province.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said that all details of the government's takeover of assessment functions were still not known but, apparently, at least some present functions of assessment departments would be left with the municipalities.

The Sarnia resolution will again come before council at which time city assessment commissioner Leighton Thompson will state his views on the issue.

Apartment Buildings Pose Parks Problem

The need for more city park area came under discussion at yesterday's city council meeting.

This need was repeatedly emphasized during the meeting as recommendations for rezoning or division of lots came up for decision. The requests were referred to the city parks board.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said he was concerned about high densities of population being created by big apartment buildings without a proportionate increase in park area.

He said if the same number of single family residences were erected the subdivider under provincial law would be required to turn over five per cent land area for park purposes.

In lieu of land for park area some municipalities were demanding as much as $120 per apartment unit, he said.

However, it seems that a local subcommittee has already been set up to go into this matter and a report is promised in the near future.

Council went along with a parks board recommendation calling for all city-owned land designated as park area or having potential park use to be turned over to the parks board for maintenance.

Some lands now being used for parks purposes are still owned by the city.

Art And the Taxpayer

A recent exchange of views between Nicholas Volk Jr., newly-appointed member of the Ontario Council for the Arts, and Globe and Mail reporter Zena Cherry is of interest in relation to the question of just how much public money should be spent in this sphere. Government-supported cultural organizations frequently have demonstrated they have little regard either for economy or the needs of Canadians as a whole.

Mr. Volk, an American who has given up his post of information officer at the U.S. Consulate-General in Toronto, to take up his new position, said that in this technological age, "it is absolutely essential the arts receive support. When machines are doing so much, people should be encouraged to participate in activities which offer them whole new areas of stimulation."

To this writer Cherry replied: "How do you answer the criticism that when there are not even enough hospital beds, the Government shovels out taxpayers' money to all kinds of self-styled artists? For instance, Joachim Folkis, Vancouver's town fool who got a grant. The police didn't think him very funny when he was doing his crazy thing in Yorkville recently — they arrested him for causing a disturbance."

To this Mr. Volk replied: "There is no positive argument to that, because hospital beds are a positive need. But contact with the arts might reduce frustration and there might not be the need for so many hospital beds." Mr. Volk has a point. He might have been thinking also of what George Romney said recently, there should be more public housing . . . that also might reduce tension and frustration among the masses in the United States.

But the truth is that taxpayer's money does get wasted — and all in the name of art and culture.

The tenth annual report of The Canada Council (1966-67) affords some examples. Some of the money went to persons overseas, to enable them to come to Canada. One, Harold Cohen of London, England, received a grant of up to $1,750 to visit artists across Canada. Two Parisians, Anne Hebert and Marcelle Maltais received grants of $462 each, Miss Hebert to attend the opening of her play in Montreal and Miss Maltais to attend the opening of her exhibition in Montreal. Kenneth Lochhead of Winnipeg received $292 for two trips to New York to study the making of banners. David Secter of Toronto got $557 to participate in Critics Week at the Cannes Festival and Bernard Cole Spencer of London, Ontario, received $750 to write a play. Yves Trudeau got $182 to transport a sculpture from Paris to Saguaro. And many more — amounting in all to several thousand dollars.

The Ontario Council for the Arts incidentally has a budget this year of $1.3 million. And Mr. Volk on April 1 becomes its 14th member. Perhaps such grants would look better were it not for the fact that Canada, for all its wealth, has so much to do in other important sectors. Housing for instance. And what about the problem of poverty?

International Touch

Postcards anyone? Postcards (swaying palms, sparkling seas, sandy beaches . . . "wish you were here," and all) are the big business in the most unlikely places. And the trick seems to be to cash in on the scenery not of your own country but somewhere else.

One of the latest scenes of Belleville — an aerial shot looking across the Moira River at Station Street to the Bay of Quinte — is produced by a Peterborough firm.

But what do you make of a postcard of a Florida beauty originating with a firm with Irish republic, and photographed by a gentleman with a German name. Such a card arrived in this office the other day from Miami. There on the bottom was the legend: Produced and Printed by John Hinde Ltd., Cabinteely, County Dublin, Irish republic; Photo by E. Ludwig. But then, this firm is no stranger to this form of art work. It produces calendars of the Irish scene and Mr. Hinde himself is a fellow of the Royal Photographic Society. Now it looks as if Florida's lush terrain is helping to earn dollars for the enterprising Irish firm.

The picture business certainly is international. What about the postcards of Ireland itself? Well we have seen some from that country which were produced in Italy. Then there are those little albums of postcards which you tear out, leaving a miniature as a permanent reminder of the scene. One such album of County Autumn scenes bears two addresses, one of a publisher in Norwich, England, another of a photographic firm in Douglas, Isle of Man (presumably they are the distributors) and to cap it all there is also the legend: "Made in USA." Thus it is not all one way — the Americans are on the postcard manufacturing end too!

PC's 'Deux Nations' Theory Gets Unceremonious Burial

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Nearly two years after Dalton Camp, as president of the party, split the Tories in two and then turned them up side down, the Conservatives have picked up the pieces.

And more impressed, they have put them back together right-side up.

From now on, the Commons Caucus will call the leadership and other shots.

Which means that the MPs and senators, the people who have to get elected, will make the big decisions.

(Yes, some senators, especially Conservatives because they are so few due to the inadequacy of their party being in power, once were MPs and as ordinary mortal politicians, discovered their first priority was to win an election.)

— Dalton Camp never made it to Parliament, although he tried a couple of times.

It was strange then, that, as a loser, he managed to win the Conservative presidency, turn the party upside, strip the MPs and senators of the real power and instead, make the organization supreme, in fact if not exactly in theory.

For when Dalton Camp and his Conservative Party headquarters organization — based both in Ottawa and Toronto — toppled the tottering Diefenbaker from the leadership, he stage-managed it against the expressed will and wish of the overwhelming majority of Tory MPs and senators.

Truth to tell, it took only a slight push to shove the Old Chief from party power — so slight that Dalton Camp needed only a few score of bad management non Tory tweedsqueezers to box and bind him from the convention platform. And the deed was done.

That was just 19 months ago, but it marked a watershed for the party, this unceremonious booting of a former power insider who, through two elections, against all the odds, denied majority power to Lester Pearson and the Liberals.

Dalton Camp did have some support — a splitter of about six MPs and even fewer senators — in the Conservative Caucus.

These were the men who, at the Tory Party's Montmorency "Thinkers' Conference," came up with the disastrous "deux nations" policy that more than anything else ruined the Conservatives at the last election.

These, too, were the men who voiced no protest when the Camp way of doing things stripped the leader — yes, even the new man, Robert Stanfield of some of his previous powers of decision and handed them over to the party organization.

Since then, the Conservative Caucus has been fighting back.

And doing some winning.

The MPs have managed to hang onto their two researchers and speechwriters, standing off demands of party headquarters that they be replaced by academics hired by the organization.

But there have been greater victories.

Quietly ushered out of the party's back door has been the "deux nations" hangup.

Nothing formal, mind you. No ceremony of dissociation.

Just a political orphaning of the "deux nations" brainchild.

The Conservatives have done it neatly and all but completely — formal renunciation will come at the policy conference next fall — at the recent annual meeting.

They did it by never so much as whispering the fatal phrase "deux nations," and coming out instead with bugles blowing and trumpets blaring, drums rolling and flags flying for, what else, but "One Canada."

Doing it, they conveniently forgot that the Old Chief had always told them their "deux nations" thing would become an election nightmare and that the only politically salable campaign commodity must be "One Canada."

But it took Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and the Liberals to prove it to them. Now they buy it.

Final triumph of the Conservative caucus has been that the working politicians — the men who must, before anything else, win at the election polls — get to have the decisive say on party leadership.

The Tory organization, PC headquarters and the few "reformers" in the Conservative Caucus who support them do not like it.

But, as they say on those CBC public affairs programs the "reformers" like so much: "That's The Way It Is, Baby."

Trudeau Raps Bertrand's Criticism of Montreal Airport Site

OTTAWA (CP) — Harsh words have been exchanged by Prime Minister Trudeau and Quebec Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand over the federal choice of a site for Montreal's new jumbo-jet airport, and neither side shows any sign of backing down.

Announcement last Thursday of the selection of a site at Ste. Scholastique, 26 miles northwest of Montreal, brought howls of protest from Quebec politicians who would have preferred a site south or southeast of the city.

Premier Bertrand summed it up Monday when he made public, in Quebec City, the text of a Friday telegram to Mr. Trudeau describing the federal decision as a "power play" (coup de force) and as "unacceptable."

He made a formal request that the decision be revoked and that Ottawa resume negotiations on a site with Quebec representatives.

Mr. Trudeau retorted in a telegram Monday night that the premier's reaction "seems to me scarcely worthy of the relations of confidence and good faith" between Quebec and Ottawa.

He agreed to another meeting between federal and provincial representatives on the airport question, but gave no indication that the decision would be reviewed.

The prime minister said the meeting would "shed some light on many points in your telegram which seem to us to indicate an erroneous interpretation of the facts and figures we submitted to you."

Mr. Bertrand said in his telegram that the federal decision was "aimed at imposing on Quebec a decision that is unacceptable because it is far from being the most favorable to its development.

"I was all the more disappointed because it appears to me that Quebec did everything in its power to communicate frankly with your representatives and that our views were expressed reasonably and clearly. You have known for a long time that the site you chose was unacceptable to us, and you know why."

Mr. Trudeau denied that Quebec's views had been overlooked, and accused the premier of trying to make the public believe that the federal government "listened to your arguments but neglected to take them into consideration in making its decision."

The prime minister described as "particularly odious" Mr. Bertrand's statement that the Ste. Scholastique site would do more for Ottawa and Ontario than it would for Quebec development.

"The area north of Montreal is still part of Quebec as far as I know," Mr. Trudeau said, "and I find it hard to see how an investment of more than $400,000,000 on the part of the federal government and airline companies, as well as the creation of 75,000 to 100,000 new jobs in that region, will not benefit Quebec first."

He said he could not believe that Quebec government policies were so discouraging to private investment as to drive it outside the province hundreds of miles from the airport.

And Mr. Trudeau said he hoped the Quebec government would lend "its most complete co-operation to the realization of a project that will benefit the whole province."

Mr. Trudeau said he was "astonished at the tone" of Mr. Bertrand's telegram, since he had told the premier of the decision before it was announced and had explained "at length the reasons for our decision."

Premier Bertrand had said in the national assembly Friday that the Quebec government was informed of the choice of a site at the same time as Ottawa reporters.

Robichaud Seeks Aid from Ottawa

FREDERICTON (CP) — In the midst of a flurry of protests over increased taxes, Premier Louis J. Robichaud of New Brunswick has appealed to the federal government for help.

The premier announced in the legislature Monday he has asked Ottawa for an "immediate and urgent" federal-provincial conference on finances.

Earlier Monday, the premier met demonstrators from Saint John, N.B., who presented him with a three-page brief asking for a reduction in provincial programs to cut tax increases.

It was the second group to come to the capital to protest the tax raises announced in Finance Minister L. G. Desbrisay's budget for 1969-1970.

The first group, from Moncton, N.B., received a brusque reception from the premier last Thursday.

However, he said Monday's delegation presented a fair brief and represented a definite segment of the public opinion.

Paul Gordon, chairman of the Saint John Save New Brunswick Committee, led the delegation.

The brief he presented asked the premier to either find some means of lowering the recently-announced tax raises or "design and allow the people to decide by an election who is capable of managing the affairs of our province."

Speaker Rejects Move To Probe Announcement

OTTAWA (CP) — The government counter-attacked on two fronts Monday against criticism surrounding the selection of a site for Montreal's new international airport.

While Prime Minister Trudeau set out the government's reasons for its choice in an argument with Quebec Transport Minister Paul Hellyer in the Commons rejected opposition charges of a breach in political ethics in the manner of announcing it.

A Conservative bid for investigation of radio and television announcements recorded by Mr. Hellyer and Rural Development Minister Jean Marchand before the site was revealed was ruled out by Speaker Lucien Lamoureux.

But the Speaker said the issue could still be raised as a non-confidence matter if the opposition wishes.

In the airport debate, Mr. Hellyer and Mr. Marchand conceded that they had made the advance tapes, but only on a tentative basis for use if the cabinet decided on the site they expected would be chosen.

Mr. Hellyer said many people were aware of the sites under consideration, but every possible precaution had been taken to ensure that the final choice was kept secret until the cabinet decision was announced last Thursday.

A private public relations firm, Agence Canadienne de Publicite Limitee, had been hired to make arrangements for the advance taping, but they and other firms involved understood that no final decision had been taken.

The work was "subject to the normal discretion and security which is involved in any professional contract," he said. And the Official Secrets Act said "general application" in the case.

Expropriation papers were filed immediately after the announcement.

Even if there had been a leak, Mr. Hellyer said, there was no chance that a speculator could make a profit from a last-minute purchase. Expropriation prices were not based on isolated transactions just before takeover.

"In general, I am satisfied that all possible security measures were taken and that in no sense has there been a breach of cabinet secrecy," Mr. Hellyer said.

But Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North), who moved for a committee investigation Friday when neither minister was in the House, continued to press his motion.

Despite the government's insistence that no decision had been made at the time, only one tape had apparently been made.

It was contrary to ministers' oaths as privy councillors to make a disclosure on a matter dealing with money and property.

An investigation would determine "whether this breach of political ethics amounted to violation of the privy councillor's oath."

Baby Born on Plane

VANCOUVER (CP) — Flight 240 of British Columbia Airlines took off from Tahsis on the West Coast of Vancouver Island with seven passengers Monday and landed half an hour later at Vancouver International Airport with eight.

The extra passenger, born between Port Alberni and Nanaimo at about 11,000 feet, was a six-pound, 14-ounce baby girl for Doris Savinkoff of Tahsis.

Mother and baby were doing well today in Richmond General Hospital—closest hospital to the airport.

The baby was delivered by Dave Mill, an off-duty B.C. Airlines pilot who was heading for Vancouver on company business.

More Middle Aged Couples Seeking Divorce

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim and Martha had been married for 21 years. They worked together to raise the children and when the youngest set off for college—they set off for the divorce court.

Jim and Martha are part of the swelling "20-year fracture," the couples who stay together through the children's toxaltits, the crises of their first dates and heartaches and long sessions at PTA meetings and then file for divorce when the problems are at last solved.

"It is a fact of life today that more and more couples in their forties and fifties are seeking divorce," Dr. Alfred A. Messer, professor of psychiatry at Emory University writes in the magazine Mental Hygiene. "There used to be a feeling that the longer a marriage endured, the greater the chance it would not end in divorce."

But statistics and clinical evidence show this is no longer true, said Dr. Messer in his article, Dissolution of Long-Standing Marriages.

Nearly a quarter of the persons filing for divorce in 1963 had been married for 15 years or more.

Dr. Messer suggests a number of reasons: affluence, more liberal attitudes and laws regarding divorce, inadequate courtship 20 years earlier. homes that are too child-centered and a vertical family unit where aunts, uncles and grandparents are many miles away and fail to reinforce the concept of family.

"There can be no doubt that some of the long-standing marriages now terminating were begun haphazardly during the bleak days of the Second World War," he said in the article.

Statistics, he said, are unreliable, but estimates indicate that in more than one-third of today's marriages, the bride is pregnant as she walks down the aisle.

Dr. Messer suggests the most significant element in the dissolution of long-standing marriages results from what he calls the "century of the child."

"The children have become a nucleus around which most activities revolve. There are endless car pools for school, for music and art lessons, and for athletic activities; there are spend-the-night parties that parents must oversee; and there are cook-outs and camp-outs."

In this child-oriented society, parents begin to look more and more to their children for gratification and a purpose in life.

"The woman may begin to cook and dress for her children, rather than her husband. The man may begin to feel more comfortable going off somewhere with his youngsters than with his wife.

"What happens, then, when the children grow up and leave the house? A void ensues."

Roger Galivan assists a member of the audience with the ever-popular "fall" hairpiece, at the Wig Show last night, sponsored by College Hill U.C.W. and Carmen's Beauty Salon. University Club Hears Talk on Property Law

The University Women's Club and guests met Thursday to hear H. Allan Leal, chairman of the Ontario Law Reforms Commission, speak on property law.

Guests included husbands of members, the Business and Professional Women's Club and the Children's Aid Society. Mr. Leal was introduced to the club by Mrs. Betsy Boyce.

H. ALLAN LEAL

Mr. Leal spoke on the history of property law as between husband and wife, going back to the source of law, tracing it through its paths of development in commonwealth countries, to concentrate finally on the reforms proposed by the Ontario Law Reforms Commission.

Although English property law was similar to that of the continent following the Norman Conquest, England had, by the late 19th century, departed from it by passing the "Married Women's Property Act." This act enabled a married woman to own and manage her own property, whereas, in France, no separation of property is allowed for the duration of the marriage.

The feeling now, Mr. Leal pointed out, is that laws could be improved by merging the two to get the best of both community and separate property laws. With this in mind, the Law Reform Commission proposes to leave husband and wife free to handle their property separately during marriage, but to allow a division of both estates equally upon divorce or annulment, and to allow one to apply for a division should the other attempt to dissipate the estate or threaten to mortgage or sell the matrimonial estate without the consent of the wife. Discussion recommends, too, that where there is no will, all acknowledged children should share equally in inheritance.

Following a question period, Mrs. D. Burr thanked Mr. Leal.

Mr. Leal will be returning to Belleville in October to be the key speaker at the fall conference.

Communications Topic At Study Guild Meet

"Communications is more than a fad. It is essential to survival for everyone, from the members of the family unit to national and international members in the worldwide community of independent nations." This was the statement by Mrs. George Wishart as she introduced the topic under study and discussion at the March meeting of the Women's Study Guild.

Mrs. N. I. Meldrum opened her home for the occasion, with Mrs. R. C. Ellis and Mrs. R. H. Roulet hostesses for the social hour at the conclusion of the meeting. Mrs. Jerry Cochrane, president, welcomed all who had come out on such a stormy night, including a special welcome for two guests for the evening.

Basing the devotional talk on Harold Innerperen," Mrs. R. C. Ellis quoted from J. B. Nichols "Because Christians are the only witnesses Christ has in this world, we are responsible for the influence we exert in the lives of other people. We are the best audiovisual aids God has."

The topic "Communications" was jointly prepared and presented by Mrs. G. Wishart and Mrs. L. Reid. Mrs. Wishart traced the history of communications from the cave dwellers to the latest methods via press, telephone, television, computers, satellites. A wall chart showed the slow progress of communications media in the early ages, and of how it evolved from the culture and mode of life of the people. This contrasted with the explosive growth of all kinds of communications in this 20th century due to the immense amount of scientific knowledge that has been revealed since the discovery of electricity.

Mrs. Reid based her remarks on the "philosophy" of communication — telling of the great amount of research that is being conducted into the effects of communications on such things as advertising campaigns, adoption of new products or practices, health, family life, delinquency, changing attitudes towards minority groups, politics, relations between nations, etc. "The ability to be heard depends on the capacity to listen," she pointed out. "The importance of dialogue in communications should be stressed — between governments and people, between manager and employee, between parents and children, teacher and students, and, as Pierre Berton suggests, between minister and congregation."

Difficulties and misinterpretations due to different languages, customs and attitudes were mentioned, as were two dangers that must be guarded against, (a) where the state or a few unscrupulous individuals get control of the mass media using it for propaganda purposes, (b) that of treating all receivers of communications as "thinking alike." This last could result in overstimulation of the young, who are given a knowledge of life without sufficient experience to understand it, and a lack of intellectual stimulation for the adult.

On the other hand, participation of TV in marches, elections, conferences — such, means that viewers are becoming involved, and develop a feeling of responsibility for each other. In moral and intellectual spheres, mass communications has an effect on social norms, mode of behavior and attitudes. It is up to the individual to see that these are desirable ones.

Much Interest Shown at Wig Show Sponsored by College Hill UCW

By LINDA GELDART

They were all there — the long, the short and the mini — wigs, of course.

The women of Belleville turned out in large numbers to see what they could see about wigs last night at College Hill United Church Hall.

Attending the Wig Show, sponsored by College Hill U.C.W. and Carmen's Beauty Salon, everyone was treated to a "fun" evening, under the skillful guidance of Peter and Roger Galivan, and their model, Cathy Clarke.

Every possible question about wigs was discussed by the brothers Galivan, and duly demonstrated as each of them took turns fitting, teasing and fussing over the various wigs they placed on Cathy's head.

The audience, which was most attentive, and curious throughout the whole show, asked enough questions to indicate the great degree of interest they had about the ins and outs of wig-buying.

Both Peter and Roger did an excellent job of fielding the questions, while at the same time keeping the whole show moving at a relaxed pace.

"Remember," Peter admonished his audience", when buying a wig, always buy it a shade lighter, never darker. Try always to choose a color that is as close to your own as possible."

The wigs, which were 100 per cent human hair, were both machine and hand made. The prices varied according to the length of hair, and the type of base used.

Mink hair pieces, or postiches, Roger explained, are easy to work with, and require little setting.

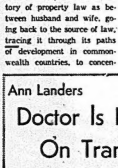
However, both men stressed that the setting and combing of wigs should be left up to the professional, because he knows the most about it, and will do the best job.

Another popular hair piece demonstrated was the "fall"— a shoulder - length of hair.

"With this piece, you can wear almost any style you can think of, and all you have to worry about is 20 to 30 per cent of your own hair," said Roger.

"Any way the uses of a fall are absolutely unlimited. They make great mops, foot warmers and pot scrapers. You can never throw them away — sometimes they even sprout legs", Peter added with tongue in cheek.

What amused the all-female audience most was Peter's stern command: when buying a wig don't ask your husband. "Wear it at home, and give him credit if he notices," he said solemnly.



At the conclusion of the show, a wig draw was held, the winner of which was Elinor Wilson.

The hairdressing team, from Montreal, do an average of three to four wig shows a month, in centres all over the province.

Doctor Is Enlightened On Transvestism

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Can a physician say a word or two about transvestism? I was born and raised in a small town in Maine. I had never heard of homosexuality, let alone transvestism until I has in high school. Even then it seemed unreal and somewhat disgusting.

ANN LANDERS

In college I became vastly enlightened and in medical school I changed some of my concepts completely. But it wasn't until I did my internship that I really had my eyes opened up. Night duty at the hospital was a liberal education. The first year, three prominent men in the community were brought in as emergencies. One had a heart attack, two were in automobile accidents. We discovered they were wearing ladies' underwear when we undressed them for examination. These men were married and had attractive families. There had never been a breath of scandal about any of them. I hope you see a moral in this story and that you will put it into words. — NEW ENGLANDER.

DEAR NEW: I see two morals. First, a person can have an oddball quirk and still function well and keep his nuttiness a deep, dark secret. Second: If any of you fellas out there have a hankering for ladies' underwear, consider the possibility that you might get hit by a truck and wind up in the emergency room.

* * *

DEAR ANN: Once a week six of us guys get together to play poker. The stakes are small and nobody can lose more than five bucks — that's the ceiling. We are all 16 and 17 and our parents approve of the games. (We take turns playing at each other's homes.)

A good friend of mine who wins consistently has been cheating. I've been clocking him for three months and I'm positive he shorts the pot, pulls out too much when he's "making change" or calling back a bet. Sometimes he "forgets" to throw in his bet and needs to be reminded. I don't think anyone else is on to him and I don't want to be a stollie, but I hate to see this guy act so cheap and dishonest. What should I do? — KEEN OBSERVER.

DEAR KEEN: Tell him you suspect a couple of the guys in the game are cheating. Describe the gimmicks and ask if he will keep an eye open along with you.

If he doesn't straighten up and fly right after that ploy, nail him after the next game and tell him if he cheats again you're going to let the whole table know he's kinky.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Claude and I will be married in May. He was classified 4-F and rejected for service. I was a WAC and loved every minute of it. I want to get married in my WAC uniform. Claude is against it. What is your view? — LANSING, MICH.

DEAR MICH: Do you want to be a bride or a drill sergeant? If it's the former, the uniform of the day is a wedding gown or a pastel suit. Shape up, Toots, or Claude may decide, "Hell, no — I won't go!"

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Child: "Why doesn't Daddy live with any more? Did he go away because I was too naughty?"

Mother: "Daddy and I are divorced. He doesn't like us and doesn't want to live with us. We'll get along fine without him."

A child of divorced parents needs to know that both his parents still love him and that he is in no way to blame for the upheaval in his home. It's up to the parent who has custody to provide this security.

Mother: "Daddy still loves you, but we think it is better if he doesn't live here. That's what people do when they're divorced. He will come to see you often, and you can visit him every month and during your school vacation."

Deafness Considered Foremost Handicap

By DORIS CLARK

Our deaf children see and think; they run, jump and play. Yet they are handicapped — crippled far worse than the child in a wheelchair; crippled worse, in Helen Keller's estimate, than the child born blind . . .

One of the great problems is to make the deaf child aware of sound, how to get her to make meaningful sounds she cannot hear, and then to get her to transform these sounds into words which she must try to repeat again and again from memory — not her memory of how they sounded, but her memory of how her throat vibrated and where her tongue was when the teacher indicated by a smile that she had at last uttered a one-syllable word correctly?

It is a formidable task to teach a child who cannot hear the differences in pronunciation which complicate our language. She is asked to say "mother" differently from "mother" and to tell from watching a pair of lips whether the word is "can" or "king."

Your deaf child will learn to speak, but never accept it as commonplace: it's a miracle. — Daniel Griffin, in The Volta Review

Dear Doris: I am 17 and my boy friend is 22. I wrote to you before and you told me to go out with younger boys. I guess I should have taken your advice because now I'm three months pregnant.

My problem is that Brian wants to wait till October to get married and my Mom wants us to get married in April. and I'm not sure about anything. Brian has a good job but he is about a dozen and in the hole because of a car he had.

When I tell him my reasons for not wanting to wait all he says is, "Well, you'll get all the money I save if I don't." I tell him that I want him and not his money and then he doesn't say anything.

He says he loves me and I know he is happy about the baby because he always talks about it and tells me to take care of myself. — Spring Or Fall?

Dear Spring or Fall?: Can you see yourself marching down a church aisle in a maternity-type gown — slightly off-white? I dread the thought.

Just before or after the birth of a baby is hardly the time for a big wedding.

Marry him now, or not at all. And in making your decision remember the odds are against your making a go of marriage, at 17. You really need to talk to an experienced older person about all your uncertainties — preferably a caseworker at your child care agency.

Two Items Suitable For Freezing

By MARY MOORE

A reader, May H. started us off and running to stock Shirley's freezer for emergency supplies during her moving days. Sad to say I am losing Shirley for her husband John has accepted a wonderful position in another city and that's no April Fool joke.

BANANA NUT LOAVES
(For freezing— three 9x5x3")

6¾ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
2 tbsps. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. baking soda
3 cups granulated sugar
6 eggs
4 cups mashed bananas (approx. 8)
1 tsp. vanilla
1½ cups shortening
6 tbsps. milk
1¼ cups chopped walnuts (one 7-oz. pkge.)

Sift all five dry ingredients into very large bowl (or clean dishpan). Combine all five wet ingredients and add to dry ingredients and mix well. stir in walnuts. This batter is heavy and stiff. Turn into three buttered 9 x 5 x 3" loaf pans. (If Pyrex pans, line pans with buttered wax paper; if Teflon-lined, butter only.) Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. 75 min., if in Pyrex pans bake at 350 deg. Fahr. Turn out of pans and cool on racks. Freezer wrap and freeze.

DATE NUT MUFFINS
(For freezer — about 6 doz. medium)

6 cups unsifted whole wheat flour
2 cups all-purpose flour
2 tbsps. baking soda
2 tbsps. salt
4 cups granulated sugar
6 med. eggs
3 cups oil
6 cups LESS 2 tbsps. milk
1 tbsp. maple flavoring OR 1 tsp. cinnamon
One 10-oz. can applesauce
1 cup chopped dates
3 cups walnuts

In clean dishpan sift all five dry ingredients tipping bran from sifter in too. In extra large bowl combine all five wet ingredients and the dates and walnuts then stir into dry ingredients until barely blended. Muffin batter should be lumpy. If desired place floted paper cups in muffin tins, fill with batter OR use buttered muffin pans (preferably Teflon) unlined. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. 20 min. Cool on racks and freezerwrap and freeze.

NOTE: You should set aside two to three hours to make these two items but it is a worthwhile effort for freezer owners with large and hospitable families.

Metro Faces Racial Strife

TORONTO (CP) — Conflict between Negro and white youths plagues a 20-block section of downtown Toronto, says a researcher for the Ontario Human Rights Commission.

George A. Brown said in a report released Monday militant Negro youths have driven away from two youth centres the white youths who are in the majority.

Mr. Brown, a former teacher of social work at the University of Toronto and himself a Negro, said racial troubles in the area —Bathurst Street between Queen and St. Clair—began with an influx of Negro youths from Nova Scotia and the West Indies in 1958 and 1967.

Main causes of conflict, he said, are name-calling, inter-racial dating and competition for status.

He said the majority of the 300 youths who should be attending one youth centre are white, but 80 per cent of participants in the senior youth program are Negro.

The Negroes "have driven out the whites, or so it would seem."

Some youthstwere reported to have used "open vandalism" when exclusive Negro programs were not set up, and "the situation became so serious that at one time the management of the centre contemplated the exclusion of Negroes from membership."

At another centre there were from 150 to 200 Negroes attending the youth program, but the Portuguese, Italians and Anglo-Saxons had withdrawn, he said.

"The only whites—mostly girls—who attend the drop-in dance on Tuesday nights are those who are considered to be 'in' with the Negro peer groups."

Mr. Brown, who works full-time for the human rights commission, said his study, although not scientific "in the conventional sense," was based on more than interviews last summer with agency directors, ethnic group leaders, police, probation officers and youth spokesmen.

Weather Prevents Polar Jump

ALERT, N.W.T. (CP) — Unfavorable weather conditions prevented Ray Munro from making a proposed jump on the North Pole Monday, forcing the 47-year-old commercial aviator from Lancaster, Ont., to make his jump 150 miles from the pole.

Mr. Munro said after he returned to this comunity, 500 miles from the pole, that the decision not to jump over the pole was made because an aircraft would have had trouble landing on the ice to pick him up.

Unfavorable weather conditions also prevented a jump by Mr. Munro over the pole earlier in March. Mr. Munro had been here since Saturday, waiting for good weather conditions.

Postage Rates Up

OTTAWA (CP) — Increases in second-class postage rates affecting publications begin an upward spiral today that will see some rates double in the next 12 months.

The increases received parliamentary approval last year as Postmaster-General Eric Kierans launched his plans to cut his departmental deficit to a manageable level.

The new second-class rates are being applied in three six-month stages. The second step comes Oct. 1 and the final move April 1, 1970.

In the end, mail rates for Canadian daily newspapers will rise to five cents a pound from 2½ on the non-advertising content, and to 15 cents a pound from four on the advertising content.

As of today the rates become four cents a pound on the non-advertising matter and nine cents on advertising; at Oct. 1 they go to 4½ and 12.

Members of the advisory vocational committee of Hastings County board of education spent a busy day Monday becoming acquainted with Centre Hastings Secondary School in Madoc and its technical department. Principal C. M. Griffith (far left) personally conducted director of education Eric Runacres on a tour of the school. Lathe operation was explained to committee member John Forbes, Trenton, by a shop student. At the far right, Ronald Lee, Belleville, and CHSS vice-principal Robert Graham conferred on the occupations program after an inspection guided by student Carol Courtney.

Principal Defends Modern Youth -- Walks Out of Meeting

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

A high school principal walked out of a Madoc Kiwanis Club meeting last night after delivering an impassioned defence of modern youth.

"You're condemning your own flesh and blood," cried C. M. Griffith, principal of Centre Hastings Secondary School Madoc, as he listened to some Kiwanians' complaints about students.

"They're our children and you're treating them like foreigners from a strange land," he said in a shaking voice. Then he left the dinner meeting with the quip that "my doctor told me to watch my blood pressure."

Mr. Griffith's outburst came during a regular Kiwanis meeting devoted to education, presided over by Kiwanis president Douglas Graham, technical director of Centre Hastings Secondary School. Members of the Madoc school staff, the county advisory vocational committee, former trustees on local boards and two superintendents were special guests.

Director of education, Eric Runacres, slated to be guest speaker, threw the meeting open for questions from the floor. The result was what he later termed "a pretty good learning situation".

The exchange resulting in the principal's walk-out began when Earl Sager, a former trustee on the Bay of Quinte District High School Board, said teachers should build up a respect for the more menial jobs as well as for the spectacular ones.

"Your educational system is destroying respect for people who have to do dirty jobs," he charged. "Human relationships are what will ultimately destroy us."

Mr. Runacres replied the schools are creating a place for the child headed for menial jobs, but materialism permeates teenage society as it does adult society.

"Why is the child materialistic?" he asked. "He may have bought our standards. What pleases me, at the same time it irks me, is that a lot of today's youth has stopped buying our standards."

Clifford Greer, a former Madoc trustee commented that adults have put power and money in the hands of students.

This brought Mr. Griffith to the defence of youth.

"Young people of today are far better than we were," he asserted. "There is lots wrong with my sons, but they're not wrong in the way our generation was wrong. I'm delighted when my children disagree with me."

"You should see the kids we (teachers) see every day, not these you watch on TV destroying computers," he charged. "You're listening too much to the young people who make the headlines. Our generation could have made the headlines too, but there weren't the means of communication we have today to carry the headlines.

"This generation is asking the questions our generation didn't have the guts to ask," he declared.

Mr. Griffith held his temper and his chair until some members of the audience questioned the value of large composite schools. They appeared to support creation of small academic schools evolving only select students with high learning aptitudes in the classics, humanities and science.

"There is no place for that kind of narrow, restricted group that doesn't rub shoulders with society," Mr. Runacres said.

Mr. Greer argued that the small private academic schools produce most of the country's leaders.

"Don't we constantly discriminate in society," he asked. "Isn't education the process of learning to discriminate properly? These schools raise the performance level, and isn't that good for society?"

Before Mr. Runacres could reply, Mr. Griffith gave his answer by walking out.

Old Stigma Still Hangs on Vocational Programs

The main problem of vocational teachers is not to educate the child, but to educate his parents.

Since 1910, when vocational programs began in high schools, there has been a stigma attached to those enrolled in technical departments. Parents have to rid themselves of the idea that "use of the hands excludes, use of the mind," Douglas Graham, technical director at Centre Hastings Secondary School said yesterday.

The five-member vocational advisory committee of Hastings County board of education heard of the difficulties of the technical staff during its tour of the Madoc School Monday.

Mr. Graham, and commercial director Mrs. Jean O'Riordan, presented the committee with an outline of the aims and objectives of vocational training in the secondary schools.

"It is a common assumption that technical education seeks to develop a technical competence to the exclusion of mind-training," Mr. Graham said.

"Industry complains that schools are not equipping students with necessary skills," he told the committee. "Too bad. Our purpose is to give students a capacity to acquire skills as he needs them later on the job. We keep in mind that today's student will probably change jobs three or four times during his working life."

Director of education Eric Runacres, who accompanied the committee on its tour of the school, said part of the fault for the stigma could be attributed to "compartmentalized programs that package people into five-year, four-year and two-year courses."

His opinion was shared by C. M. Griffith, principal of Centre Hastings.

"In our new program, I don't want to hear of occupational, vocational or commercial teachers," he said. "I want to have just teachers. When students can make choices of subjects under the subject promotion plan, we will get rid of these atrocious terms."

Mr. Griffith also hit at the "tremendous waste of talent" in education.

"Look at the number of students in school and compare this figure with the number who graduate," he demanded. "It's not because the students can't handle the work. The work is not capable of handling the broad student interest."

"It is ridiculous to assume that because a student is in a five-year program, he will be equally competent in math, English, French, science, history and the rest. Our students should be allowed to weed out the subjects they definitely can't handle and concentrate on the subjects they can.

"When a student can choose his own areas of work and have his diploma list these, we will not have one tenth of our students graduating, we will have 85 per cent graduating."

"This is precisely the aim of the new subject promotion program in secondary schools," Mr. Runacres said.

However, a note of warning was sounded by Mr. Graham.

"All schools will not be able to offer these all-subject options and the new courses of study," he told the committee. "Students will still not be able to choose their subjects freely. They will have to take what is offered."

Both Mr. Graham and Mrs. O'Riordan told the committee considerable flexibility already exists in the secondary school programs.

An Ontario scholar graduated from the business and commerce department of Centre Hastings and is now attending Trent University. One student from the occupations program is now at Loyalist College.

"It wouldn't surprise me if some day a student who entered our school originally in the service course continued on to graduate from university," Mr. Graham said.

Start on Madoc School Project

Construction began yesterday on the long-awaited addition to Centre Hastings Secondary School in Madoc.

Ball Brothers Construction, Kingston, moved their men to the site Monday morning to start the more than $2 million project. When completed in 14 months' time it will accommodate about 600 students.

Centre Hastings Secondary School now accommodates 820 students, over 200 more than the present school was designed for. Until the new addition is completed, the armory opposite the school is being used to house students in temporary classrooms.

Centre Hastings is a composite secondary school, offering full academic, vocational, commercial and occupations programs for grades 9 to 13. The students are drawn from the townships through the centre of the county.

The Two Faces of Spring in the Quinte Area

The two faces of spring are showing throughout the Quinte area. On one hand ice is still prevalent in most of the district; on the other, recent rains and warm weather have caused problems for cottagers who want to keep dry. The Quinte area is expected to lose most of its ice during the spring thaw in the next two or three weeks.

Red Gets Cold Shoulder From Floundering Penguins

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Penguins, trying to create a winner in the National Hockey League, are searching for a new coach.

Red Sullivan was fired as coach Monday, but it was rumored in the newspapers."

In their first season in the NHL, the Penguins finished only six points out of first place, but still missed a playoff spot by finishing fifth in the Western Division.

This season they tied for fifth with Minnesota North Stars and wound up with a 20-45-11 record. They are the only expansion team which has not made the playoffs.

Attendance dipped this season and a club spokesman said the Penguins lost $100,000. Last year they lost $250,000.

"The board of directors just felt a change was necessary," said general manager Jack Riley. "It was a matter of circumstance.

"We didn't beat the new clubs on our own ice. That was our biggest downfall.

The Penguins offered Sullivan a job as head scout, but he said he wants a few days to think about it.

Sullivan, fired from New York Rangers three years ago when he couldn't produce a winner there, said he won't give up hockey.

"I have 20 years in professional hockey and I'm not about to throw it out the window. I'm going to stay in hockey. The scouting job is a very important job."

He said the club wouldn't hire anybody until June, after the amateur and professional drafts.

Bruins' Jinx Silly: Sinden

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

"I don't speak to the players about it," said coach Harry Sinden of Boston Bruins. "But I'm sure they feel the way I do. It won't affect us at all."

Sinden was talking about the Bruins' inability to win National Hockey League games in Maple Leaf Gardens. The Bruins, winless in 22 consecutive games at Toronto since Nov. 27, 1963, open a best-of-seven Stanley Cup quarter-final against the Maple Leafs at Boston Wednesday night.

The second game of the series is at Boston Thursday night and the Bruins will not enter enemy territory until Saturday night.

Playoff action opens on three other fronts Wednesday night as Montreal Canadiens welcome New York Rangers, St. Louis Blues play Philadelphia Flyers and Los Angeles Kings visit Oakland Seals. All are best-of-seven quarter-finals.

Several Boston players agreed with Sinden that the team's jinx at Maple Leaf Gardens was unimportant.

Centre Phil Esposito, who compiled a record 126 points in winning the scoring title this season, also was optimistic.

"I'm talking selfishly but I'd much rather play Toronto than New York," he said. "I scored seven goals against Toronto. I got only one against New York."

In Toronto, president Stafford Smythe of the Maple Leafs watched his team practise for almost two hours. Smythe said last September that the Maple Leafs lost little chance of making the playoffs.

"It's a tribute to the coaching of Punch (Imlach), taking these young Yankowen players and making the playoffs," Smythe said. "It took him all year to get them ready for the big games."

In New York, manager coach Emile Francis of the Rangers, was confident of his team's chances of ousting the Canadiens.

"We're going into the Stanley Cup playoffs with the best team I've ever coached," said Francis. "Physically we're in the best shape we've been in for two years."

Francis took over a fifth-place team from an ailing Bernie Geoffrion Feb. 18 and guided it into third place in the Eastern Division. Montreal finished first, setting NHL records for most points and most wins—103 and 46.

St. Louis, which ran a way with first place in the Western Division, had bad news Monday. Defenceman Ed Harvey suffered a head injury in practice and will miss the first few games of the series against Philadelphia.

April Fool!

Actually, the Chicago Black Hawks and star Bobby Hull got the brunt of the National Hockey League playoff joke long before April, winding up in last place in the NHL's six-team eastern division to watch the Stanley Cup playoffs from the fans' vantage point.

Esposito Led Record-Wrecking

MONTREAL (CP) — Prior to this season 97 points were sufficient to win the National Hockey League's individual scoring race, but not any more.

Phil Esposito, Boston Bruins record wrecker, has put an end to that.

Esposito made scoring history by counting a phenomenal 126 points, a total that included a record 77 assists. He also notched 49 goals, the most ever scored by a centre in league history.

For this epic performance, Esposito earned a total $1,726—$1,000 and the Art Ross Trophy as scoring champion. $500 as second-half scoring leader and $226 as first-half runner-up in Jacques Plante Trophy balloting.

Two seasons ago, Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks won the scoring title with a record-tying 97 points, the same total as team-mate Bobby Hull had collected the previous season. This season Mikita's 97-point total didn't earn him a third. Hull fared better with his 107-point total.

Hull, who led the goal scorers with a record-breaking 58, took second place in the race all scoring and the $250 that goes with it. Hull also earned $500 as first-half scoring leader.

Esposito's linemate, Ken Hodge, a right winger, earned $250 as second-half runner-up in scoring six assists, which boosted his season's total to 50, breaking the former mark for defencemen by four.

Altogether, six league team records were broken, six were tied, 22 individual marks were rewritten and another five were tied. In addition, Howe extended seven of his league marks and a total 37 club records were broken.

Bantam Donnybrook?

Far from being a fracas, this was the scene Saturday night in Leamington, Ont., when Belleville's Kinsmen Bantams mobbed one another after winning the first game of the Ontario bantam "AA" final playdowns. The Kinsmen hope to wrap up the title with a win Sunday afternoon in a 2:30 game at the Belleville arena.

Sports On All Fronts

BOSTON (AP) — Weston W. Adams, who has been associated with Boston Bruins for 45 years, stepped down Monday as president of the National Hockey League club. Adams' son, Weston W. Jr., who has been serving as executive vice-president, was elected president. The elder Adams will remain as board chairman.

MIAMI (AP) — The Miami News says former world heavyweight champion Cassius Clay, who prefers to be known as Muhammad Ali, states he will bow to the wishes of Muslim leaders and give up talk of a boxing comeback. Ali was reprimanded by Elijah Muhammad, head of the Black Muslim sect, after Ali said he wanted to fight again to pay some of his bills. "He's got a right to speak for all of us," Ali is quoted as saying.

TORONTO (CP) — More than 1,000 of Canada's 600,000 retarded children will participate in the first Canadian Special Olympics for the Mentally Retarded here June 12-13, the executive of the games announced Monday. The games will include track and field, swimming and floor hockey. Mr. Ryan described the National Hockey League sponsorship of the international floor hockey tournament as making a "break-through with a tie-up with a major sport played on a worldwide basis."

GALT (CP) — Defenceman Ron Herzott scored three goals Monday as Galt Hornets posted their 10th straight senior hockey playoff victory, defeating Gander Flyers, the Newfoundland champions, 7-4. The Hornets, Ontario champions, now have a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven Allan Cup quarter-finals. The remainder of the series will be played in Gander with the third game scheduled for Thursday. Corby Adams, added to the Galt roster from Barrie Flyers, defenceman Rio Caron, Bob Ertel and Fern Belanger scored for the winners.

CARL BREWER

Wings Enlist Brewer

DETROIT (AP) — Carl Brewer, former National Hockey League all-star defenceman, has ended his retirement to sign a contract with Detroit Red Wings, it was reported Monday by Al Ackerman, sports announcer for WWJ-TV.

Ackerman said Brewer came to terms for next season with general manager Sid Abel of the Red Wings just before a mid-night deadline Monday when his rights would have reverted to Toronto Maple Leafs.

Detroit obtained the rights to negotiate with Brewer in a multi-player trade with Toronto last year. Brewer, who previously quit the NHL, played with Muskegon in the International Hockey League a year ago and last season was a player-coach in Finland.

No details of the agreement were released.

Players 'Goofing Up'...

Bosox' Williams Takes the Platform

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With the opening of the major leagues season a week away, Boston Red Sox and Bo Belinsky are starting from scratch.

Manager Dick Williams, complaining his Red Sox were "goofing up and not playing baseball," yanked his players from the field Monday during an intrasquad game and let them know who is boss.

"We'll start from scratch," he said after a 10-minute lecture in the clubhouse.

Belinsky, the playboy pitcher who has bounced around four major league clubs, found out from general manager Bing Devine of St. Louis Cardinals that he will start from scratch, too.

The Cards asked waivers on the 32-year-old left-hander and said they'll decide today or Wednesday whether to assign Belinsky to the Cards' Tulsa farm club.

Later, Chicago White Sox, helped by two key hits from rookie Bill Melton, defeated the Cards 5-3 in an exhibition game.

The Red Sox confined their action to the practice field at Winter Haven, Fla. Their scheduled game with Washington was one of five cancellations because of the national day of mourning for Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The other games started late because of the Eisenhower funeral. New York Mets blanked Cincinnati Reds 3-0 and San Diego Padres defeated Chicago Cubs 5-3.

The San Francisco Giants-Cleveland Indians game was called because of darkness after eight innings and a 5-5 tie. The Oakland Athletics-California Angels game was also called because of darkness, with Oakland in front 7-1 after six innings.

Jim McAndrew scattered seven hits over the first seven innings and picked up his fourth exhibition victory as the Mets trimmed the Reds.

Four San Diego homers helped the Padres break a five-game losing streak. Ollie Brown tagged two homers, his sixth and seventh of the spring while Clarence Gaston hit a two-run homer and Nate Colbert stroked one with none aboard.

Senators' Williams on Ropes!

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — There is no doubt Ted Williams has brought color and glamor to Washington Senators' training camp.

There also is no doubt that he would have been better off, bringing some hitters and pitchers.

Williams has kept a sharp eye on the material on hand, and he admits privately that too often there are reasons why the guys on the field who look as if they can do the job really can't.

The best of the material centres on a outfield of Frank Howard, Del Unser and Brant Alyea. But after that it's mostly a case of hope.

Howard led the majors in homers with 44 last season and now is a member of the $100,000 class.

If Howard is to get a consistent homer-hitting partner the most likely candidate is Mike Epstein—the younger first baseman who talked so much and hit so little when he first joined the Senators from Baltimore Orioles.

But Epstein, after returning from the minors last year, hit at a .275 clip.

Another big question mark is Paul Casanova, the all star catcher in 1967 who was back in the minors in 1968.

The rest of the infield is composed of veterans, with Bernie Allen at second base, Ed Brinkman at shortstop and Ken McMullen at third. There is room for improvement here but little to improve with.

There are even larger gaps in the pitching department with the big winner last year Camilo Pascual, who posted a 13-12 record.

Among the other potential starters from whom Williams will have to put together his rotation are Frank Bertaina, Joe Coleman, Jim Hannan and Barry Moore. None measured up last year and aren't expected to improve much.

The Senators will finish sixth not 10th this season—but that's still last place.

Rich Scheinblum's first home run of the exhibition season boosted Cleveland into a tie with San Francisco. Willie McCovey's two-run homer, his third of the spring, had given the Giants a 5-4 lead.

Oakland pitcher John (Blue Moon) Odom held the Angels to three hits.

Shriners Pay Dividends

STAFF — An admission of 50 cents for a day's hockey activity at the Belleville Shrine Club's annual peewee sound like much, but it adds up when it's for a worthy cause such as the Shrine Fund.

Last fall the Belleville Shriners contributed $2400 to the Crippled Children's Centre and the greatest portion of that sum came from the Shrine Club's annual peewee hockey tournament, which this year will be held Friday and Saturday, April 4th and 5th, at the Belleville Arena.

The local Shriners hope to increase that sum this year, and to achieve that end they have lined up what they feel will be a fine drawing card. The 16-team tournament will feature a special guest celebrity, in all probability an NHL star of great magnitude, and will coincide with the annual Belleville Sports Day Parade, which last year attracted more than 1000 participants.

The hockey action will pit 16 teams from across the province in the "A" or championship series and the "B" or consolation series for first round bokers.

A list of the entries includes the Belleville Smith Fuels peewees, Cobourg, Oshawa, Richmond Hill, Kingston, Brampton, Orillia, Lindsay, Napanee, Toronto West Hill, Ajax, Rockcliffe, Greenwood, Peterborough, Bowmanville and Whitby.

Mrs. M. Burke, who is organizing the lodgings for the Shrine Club Tournament, reported Monday that lodging is still needed for players from two teams. Anyone interested is asked to contact Mrs. Burke at 962-1116.

Ban Proposed On DDT Sprays From Airplanes

TORONTO (CP) — Strict control in the use of DDT, a pesticide, was recommended in the Ontario legislature Monday.

A report prepared to a special provincial committee studying pollution and tabled in the legislature said all aerial spraying of DDT in insect control should be banned.

The report, tabled by J. R. Simonett, minister of energy and resources management, also recommended limiting the use of DDT where alternative pesticides are available.

The report said the provincial government should have strict control in the use of DDT when not used by aerial spraying and should punish excessive use of the pesticide.

Mr. Simonett said the study failed to disclose any evidence that human health had been affected by the use of DDT in Ontario.

He said there is also no evidence that any fish in Ontario waters have been adversely affected by past use of the chemical.

A report from the health department said DDT had been detected in fish from the Muskoka lakes, 110 miles north of Toronto, but there was "no cause for alarm."

Three Provinces Enter Medicare

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Three more provinces today joined the federal medical care insurance scheme, but only in Newfoundland was the plan launched without a hitch. In Manitoba and Nova Scotia last-minute delays marred the start.

Manitoba's legislature sat until midnight Monday night but failed to ram through a full set of operating regulations for its plan.

And in Nova Scotia's legislature bills creating higher taxes to pay for the plan were stalled by Gerald Regan, Liberal opposition leader, with staged a one-man filibuster.

But both provinces are in the plan despite the problems. They join Saskatchewan and British Columbia. Alberta has announced it will enter July 1. The remaining four provinces—Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick; Quebec and Ontario—have not set entry dates.

Manitoba's entry was approved in legislation passed in 1967, but the government had hoped to push through a series of amendments Monday bringing administrative procedures into line with federal requirements.

With debate Monday mired by a flurry of opposition questions and motions, the house failed to complete third reading of the amendments by the midnight deadline. It was decided to finish the job today and make the amendments retroactive to the start of the plan.

Nova Scotia's medical care plan got under way today but higher provincial taxes, scheduled to begin at the same time, didn't.

The tax legislation, introduced last Thursday by Finance Minister W. S. K. Jones, was designed to raise an extra $42,000,000 to pay for the plan and other government programs.

The bills raised the sales tax to seven from five per cent and raised liquor, tobacco and gasoline taxes.

Mr. Regan's filibuster—a three-hour afternoon speech consisting mainly of charges against Labor Minister T. J. McGrough—prevented the house from adjourning to allow its law amendments committee to convene.

The government had planned to pass the tax bills through the committee in the afternoon so they could be approved in a night sitting of the legislature.

The waiving of Saskatchewan's medical care plan occupied the province's legislature Monday. Speaking on the health department's spending estimates, Walter Smishek, New Democratic Party member for Regina North East, called for a study he said would show many are denied care because they can't afford the utilization fee.

Health Minister Gordon Grant said he did not believe anyone is denied health care.

Ontario Doctors' Fees Rise

TORONTO (CP) — An increase in doctors' fees announced by the Ontario Medical Association last November went into effect today, boosting costs an average of 10 per cent.

The OMA announced that under the new fee schedule, office calls in general practice would have been increased to $5.50 from $5 and house calls by doctors during daytime have been boosted to $8 from $7. Night calls now cost $12 compared with the previous $10.

Accused Says Police Kicked Him

KINGSTON (CP) — A member of the Satan's Choice motorcycle club testified in provincial court Monday he was kicked and beaten by police during a March 2 raid on the group's club house.

Charles Gray of Kingston said about 25 or 30 policemen entered the clubhouse in the downtown area with "their batons and nightsticks swinging."

Grey, Larry McIlroy of Toronto and John G. Cliffe of Oshawa are charged with assaulting police officers.

Grey testified he was taken into a hallway at the clubhouse and then beaten and kicked by several policemen.

Detective Michael Finn of the Kingston police department testified that Gray became hostile when police attempted to search him for liquor.

Czechoslovakia's Oldrich Machac, foreground, lets out with a shout after he scored first Czech goal in their world hockey tournament game with Russia in Stockholm Friday. Russia's Vladimir Vikulov (left) gives an opposite reaction to the goal. The Czechs upset the Soviet Union 4-3, but the Russians went on to win their seventh straight world title by virtue of a goal-spread advantage over the Czechs and Sweden.

Gordie Howe's
HOCKEY

It's illegal to hold a player's stick as you see in the illustration. Interference like this always results in a 2-minute penalty; it's so obvious the referee can't miss it.

Take note, too, the infraction is taking place in the defending player's zone. If the play is stopped altogether because of his action, the faceoff will be in that zone. The opposing team will have an advantage in the faceoff while the defender watches from the penalty box.

Quinte Gymastic Team Make Young Runners-up

STAFF — Inexperience is often costly in the sporting world, but such was not the case Saturday for the Quinte Secondary School boys' gymnastics team at the COSSA Boys' Gymnastics Championships in Peterborough.

Six grade nine students man the nine man Quinte team which captured the Bay of Quinte title Thursday and finished second in the team standings of Saturday's COSSA competition.

Pat Donovan led the way for Quinte with a pair of individual titles — in vaulting and floor exercises — while one of those six grade nine students, David Taylor, captured second place on the still rings, edging out team-mate Bob Winters who tied for third place.

The nine member Quinte gymnastics squad — Pat Donovan, David Taylor, Bob Winters, Mike McMurter, Rick Bartkhouse, Steve Seames, Pete Settle, Norm Jones, Bill Counthan — which is coached by Robert Dunn, captured second place behind Peterborough's Adam Scott Collegiate, and just ahead of third place Napanee.

Merchants Win Series

Picton Merchants had only a slight 33-30 shot-on-goal advantage in last night's International-Intermediate "B" quarter - final playoff encounter with Whitby, but Picton snipers made good use of their opportunities to register a 6-2 win.

The win gives Picton the best of seven series, four games to two, and advances the Merchants into the semi - finals of the Ontario playdowns against Minden.

A hometown crowd of 1,450 saw the Merchants run on the strength of a pair of goals by Gary Gayer and single markers by Moe Hunter, Fred James, Larry Pero and Sam Mulholland.

Picton will travel to Minden Friday night to open their best of seven semi-final series, and the two teams will return to Picton Sunday for a 7.20 p.m. game.

Stinson Crew Hold Edge

Single goals by Bruce Symons and Don Forshe carried Stinson's Construction to a narrow 2-1 win over Aluminum Stars last night in the Quinte Hockey League's championship playoff series.

The win gives the Construction crew a 2-0 lead in games in the best four-out-of-seven series between the two clubs during the regular season.

Ron Urch replied for the Stars, who will get another shot at Stinson's Thursday night at 9.30 p.m. in the third game of the series.

Novice Stars Head North

Tower Food City novices are hoping that Madoc is the barren northland as far as hockey championships are concerned.

The Food City team will meet Madoc Wednesday night in Tweed in the opening game of their best two-out-of-three series for the Zone 4 crown.

Wednesday's encounter will be the first meeting of the two clubs this season, and the series, which resumes in Belleville at 3.30 p.m. Sunday, will terminate the long season for both teams.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

With few exceptions, every patient sits in his doctor's office like a man in the courtroom: will the verdict be guilty or not guilty?

He may try not to show his apprehension by making small talk or pasting on an artificial smile when talking to the nurse, but he's quaking in his boots.

And why not? The man in court may receive a sentence that takes only a few years out of his life; but the patient in the doctor's office may receive a much harsher one.

For example, here sits a middle-aged man who has smoked since he was 15. Having developed a cough and some pain in the chest, he has come for a diagnostic workup.

His doctor has assembled all the data: X-rays, lab tests, etc. The patient sits there and waits.

Do you blame him for being scared? It takes almost inhuman courage to be nonchalant when the diagnosis handed down may be "cancer of the lung." (In so many cases a guilty verdict with no reprieve.)

How about the patient who wonders what her Pap test showed? Does she have cancer of the uterus? Will she need a hysterectomy? How far advanced is her disease? Scared? You bet.

Likewise with the patient who wonders if he has angina or simple indigestion. With the diabetic who hates to think of sticking herself with a needle every day. With the sufferer from migraine who is "sure" the doctor will hand down a verdict of "tumor of the brain."

You may wonder what is the reason for today's observations. I believe the following note is self-explanatory:

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I'm scared, scared, scared! I've had a small lump in my breast for the past two weeks. How can I sit in a doctor's office and have him tell me it's cancer? I'd faint dead away. Why can't I be like most other people who are as calm when they go for an examination?

— Mrs. B.

Comment: Calm? As I said Mrs. B., no normal human being is without apprehension while waiting for the verdict.

Better see your doctor right away, Besides, it is time that more often than not the verdict is "not guilty" rather than "guilty."

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Please tell "Interested Grandmother of 13-year-old grandson not to worry. I had a similar experiences in our family. The younger sister grew much taller than her brother. He made him self-conscious and shy, as the difference was very great.

However, in the last year, when he was over 16, he caught up with her, then outgrew her by two inches. — Mrs. J.

For Mrs. V.: There is a simple way to lose weight. If people followed this formula there would be no need for special diets, reducing clubs, and numerous visits to a doctor's office for pills and "miracle" injections. I have mentioned it here quite often.

All you have to do is list your ordinary food-and-drink intake for one week. That will establish a base of your calorie intake. Then all you have to do is cut it by a third, or by a half, etc.

Two slices of bread a day instead of four; one piece of pie instead of two; one martini instead of three; two pieces of chocolate instead of four, etc.

You see, it doesn't mean a thing to cut practically everything "good" out of your daily ration—just cutting down is the secret.

Patients Are Like People Awaiting Verdict of Court

Bargains For Customers

Getting Lost Means Business For Agent

WINNIPEG (CP) — Travel agency owner Henry H. Mc-Fliker dreams up business by getting lost overseas.

It's intentional. He explains: "I travel extensively, live in international trips in the past two months. For instance, recently I went to Lisbon, rented a car and got lost.

"I drive to resort areas off the beaten track. I run into many really deluxe accommodations. If I like it, I buy up accommodation, say at a resort hotel, for the entire year.

"This way, I get bargain agrees the board prices which I am able to pass on to our customers."

At go getting 25, Mr. McFliker started Thunderbird Travel Ltd., as a one-man operation 2½ years ago and this month went international in a big way with incorporation of Thunderbird International Tours.

On May 1, Thunderbird International will open sales offices in Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Chicago, Dallas, Houston, Seattle, Edmonton, Calgary and Vancouver to complement existing Thunderbird Travel offices in Winnipeg and Saskatoon.

To look after its touring customers, Thunderbird International has operating offices in Amsterdam, Switzerland, Buenos Aires and Rio, Portugal, arrangements with other travel agencies in London, Rome and other overseas centres.

Mr. McFliker said he expects to hit a 1960 gross revenue of $2,000,000 from his U.K. offices alone.

The Polish - born executive came to Canada from Israel nine years ago and, because he ill fluent in seven languages, had hopes of a career in Canada's external affairs department.

But I wasn't a Canadian citizen (he is now) and that was that."

Figuring his multilingualism would come in handy abroad in the travel business, he landed a job with a local agency.

"I was lucky to land with a man I consider one of the most knowledgeable in the business. He was like a father to me and taught me all he knew — which was plenty."

Hitting the Ceiling

This man isn't hopping mad; he's just doing his job fixing trouble in the air conditioning system at the offices of La Presse in downtown Montreal. Working girls carry on apparently unconcerned. (CP Photo)

Obituaries and Funerals

REV. FRED F. DOWNING

DESERONTO — The funeral service for Rev. Frederick Fuller Downing was held Monday afternoon in the church he loved, Christ Church on the Tyendinaga Reserve. He preferred to consider himself the chaplain to the Mohawks, rather than the rector of the Tyendinaga parish.

He was removed from the White and Morris Funeral Home to the church Sunday and lay in state for the full day, with members of the band keeping a constant vigil.

A Masonic service was held on Sunday evening by Craig Lodge No. 401, A. F. and A. M. of Deseronto. He himself was a member of the lodge in Kenora.

On Sunday evening a service was held by trafich 208 of the Royal Canadian Legion, with Legion members from other communities attending. He was the chaplain of branch 208.

For the funeral service Monday the church was filled. Right Reverend K. C. Evans, Bishop of Ontario, conducted the service, with the assistance of Archdeacon A. S. McConnell of St. Thomas' Church, Belleville; Rural Dean D. F. Dunning of Adolphustown; and Rev. A. F. Dowdell of St. Mark's Church, Deseronto. Many other clergymen of the diocese attended and clergymen of other denominations from several communities.

The bearers were officials of Christ Church and of All Saints Church: Alfred A. Marsele, Garnet B. Marsele, and Thomas Tinney and John R. Brant, Stanley J. Brant and Clifford Marsele.

Interment was in Christ Church Cemetery. Rural Dean loved chaplain had got long ago expressed a wish "to rest among my people".

MRS. JOSEPH HENRY SANDFORD
(Reshia — Gilmour)

MADOC — The funeral of Mrs. Elsie Rose Sandford was held on Monday afternoon, March 31st from the Mac-Kenzie Funeral Home at Madoc to St. John the Baptist Anglican Church where service was conducted by Rev. J. H. Thompson and Rev. V. F. Earle.

Bearers were: Fred Pack, Harry Gawley, Glen Davis, Douglas Bailey, Daniel Keene and Wilfred Sandford.

Interment took place in Eldorado Cemetery.

MRS. LEOTA ALECIA STEEVES

The funeral for Mrs. Leota Alecia Steeves was held from the John R. Bush Funeral Home on Monday morning.

Rev. L. C. Mann, assisted by Rev. James McKnight, conducted the service in the chapel and the committal rites at Belleville Cemetery.

The bearers were Robert Pepe, James Walbridge, Rodney Walbridge, James Poole, Burton Thompson and Burton Krogman.

OFF THE RECORD — By Ed Reed

"Now for heaven's sake, Bob—don't say anything that will make him mad."

Author Says Ray Killed King Intending to Aid Geo. Wallace

NEW YORK (CP) — Author William Bradford Huie says James Earl Ray thought that by murdering Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. he would help former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace win the presidency.

Huie says Ray now considers himself a political prisoner and that certain political developments in the United States will lead to his being freed from prison in less than four years.

His comments are contained in the current issue of Look Magazine. He says they are based on information supplied by Ray, his lawyers and members of Ray's family.

Huie also writes that he thought last October that "powerful men probably made the decisions to kill Dr. King," Now, he says, he has found no confirmation of this.

"I believe," Huie says, "that one or two men other than James Earl Ray may have had foreknowledge of this murder, and that makes a little conspiracy. But if there was a conspiracy, I now believe that James Earl Ray was probably its leader, not its tool or its dupe."

At this point in the Huie article, Look prints a lengthy excerpt from Ray's first-person account to Huie of the trip from Montreal to Atlanta to Detroit, by cab to Windsor, Ont., and arrival in Toronto on April 6.

Huie also seeks to demolish other "misconceptions," including the source of Ray's funds for his lengthy travels.

"In Montreal, about Aug. 1, 1967, Ray held up a food store and got $1,450. In reply to my written queries, he first told me that he got this money by holding up a whorehouse, and I published his account of it. Then he told me that it had really been a food store, and then he told me it was a whorehouse because he didn't want a 'hold' waiting for him in Canada when he got out of prison in Tennessee."

Huie says Ray told him many stories about a man named Raoul he met in London.

"There were probably several Raouls, accomplices of Ray in holdups and other money crimes," Huie writes.

Huie says he believes Ray was a white racist.

Judge in Ray Case Dies

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The judge who presided over the James Earl Ray case since last summer died of an apparent heart attack in his chambers Monday.

Judge W. Preston Battle, 60, of the Shelby County Criminal Court, was found slumped over his desk. He was pronounced dead on arrival at a Memphis hospital.

Battle accepted Ray's March 10 plea of guilty to the murder of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., and sentenced Ray to 99 years in the Tennessee state penitentiary in Nashville.

While Ray entered a guilty plea to the King slayer, he later said he was coerced into doing so and would seek a review of his case.

Under Tennessee law, it would have been Battle, as the judge who passed sentence, who would grant such a review.

Skim Milk Holdback Raised, Reducing Return to Farmers

OTTAWA (CP) — Dairy farmers can blame the world surplus of skim milk powder for a drop of about eight cents a hundredweight in their take-home pay for manufacturing milk.

The dairy support policy for the 1969-70 dairy year starting today, announced Monday by the Canadian dairy commission, keeps the support price at $4.85 for a hundred pounds of milk at the factory but increases the holdback deducted by the commission to help finance skim milk powder exports.

Announcing the policy in Ottawa, Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson said the holdback required to support the price of skim milk exported at 29 cents a pound would average 29 cents a hundred pounds on industrial milk in each 21-cent last year.

Cream shippers, who do not contribute to the milk powder surplus, will be docked the same one cent a pound on butterfat as they were last year.

Mr. Olson warned, however, that larger holdbacks would be required if the present trend to words butterfat surpluses continues.

Butter production since last October has been 10 per cent above a year ago, the commission said to purchase 8,000,000 pounds of surplus cheddar cheese to support the market price and "there is a serious surplus of skim milk powder."

He stressed that the dairy policies aims at providing equitable returns to producers for dairy products "for the Canadian market."

Producers fully understand that the real of disposing of surplus products "must be a charge against the industry."

Harry A. Moore (PC-Wetaskiwin) pointed out that because he four-hold dairy farmers greater reason for concern and never had the government demonstrated less concern for them.

Alf Hales (Social Credit-Moose-Biggar) said the dairy industry was going through a period of transition and hardships should be minimized.

The greatest weight of adjustment had been falling on the small operator who was least able to absorb it.

The support price for milk is based on a federal subsidy of $1.25 and $3.60 from the factory. Equivalent rates apply for cream shippers, the dairy commission said in a press release accompanying the minister's statement.

The holdback for milk shippers has been raised to 26 cents a hundred pounds for shipments up to the subsidy quota and 52 cents for each hundred pounds tas will only be issued to those to average out at 29 cents.

Quotas will continue to be available for producers who already have them by the 12,000-pound-a-year level, but new quotas will only be issued to those who purchase a dairy herd from someone going out of business and they will have to ship a minimum of 100,000 pounds a year.

The minimum for cream shippers, now at 450 pounds, will be lowered. An announcement of the new level will be made later, the commission said.

Skim milk powder brings only six cents a pound on the world market, but is supported at 20 cents to the manufacturer. The butter support price for 1969 will continue at 65 cents a pound, the same as last year.

While cheddar cheese manufactured in Canada will continue at 44 cents a pound. The new price, to go into effect May 1, will be announced later.

Some Words Indefinable

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

My columns some weeks ago about "morality" and "justice" taking precedence over laws, brought quite a few brickbats from readers who deplored my use of such loose and subjective words as "morality" and "justice."

Yet there is nothing else we can do. I cited the American Revolution as an example of men who rejected the British laws against the Colonies precisely on these grounds, that they violated justice and morality.

These two words, unfortunately, are like what St. Augustine said about the concept of "time." No philosopher can adequately define "time," but every common man knows what it is, if you don't ask him. Some ideas defy adequate description and definition, yet we all have a fair knowledge of what they mean.

Morality may be "subjective" in some areas, we may disagree about this or that application — but in its widest sense, as "a right relation among people," there is a broad consensus among humanity, and even throughout the ages.

The world gradually agreed that feudalism was not a right relation among people — and so mercantile capitalism arose, which was a great improvement. The world gradually agreed that slavery was not a right relation between people, and eventually it was abolished everywhere.

Even our weak efforts at "international laws of warfare" are movements of morality, because there is no "law" between nations, and can never be. But we recognize that indiscreet civilians should not be killed, that open cities should not be bombed, that prisoners should be exchanged rather than summarily shot, and so on.

The same is true of "justice." We may disagree about specific applications, but all humanity recognizes a "natural law" that goes beyond positive law. What the Nazis set up in Germany was superficially "legal," but the real of the world knew it was hideously unjust. Indeed, man's latent sense of justice (feeble and confused as it sometimes is) has been responsible for every development in self-government and social welfare.

Because an idea is "subjective," it is not necessarily less legitimate then some "objective" law passed by the state. Love is subjective, yet the strongest force I in our lives; faith is subjective, yet without it we would not have formed a new nation against formidable odds.

Law is the instrument, ideally, through which justice and morality become embodied in the common mesh; the laws themselves are legitimate only when they serve this purpose. When a law itself violates the spirit of man's nature, it must be repulsed if it cannot be repealed.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For April 2

Your birthday today: "This coming year is a time for you to make some practical applications of your special skills and aptitudes toward taking a greater role in your community. Advancement in your career should be more readily available soon according to what you have done to earn it. Female natives frequently begin far more prospects than they finish. Many are noted for highly specialized skills in law and medicine.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Excitement is in the air. Many thrilling matters come to sudden conclusions. Reach out to meet all those of goodwill around you, join forces for a new start.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): There is a chance now to get to the bottom of recent tensions. Others may suddenly see things in a new light. Your tendency is to try doing both sides. This leaves the other fellow with the responsibility of formulating his own arguments, and is unfair to both of you.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Diplomacy is the prizewinning approach with society now. You are very familiar with your ways will find nothing much different, but outsiders may be more readily influenced than you anticipate.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): You must move forward to some wider point of view since recent information works to make your earlier positions less tenable. Your real property may have unexpected intangible values.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): New co-operative arrangements are available, but don't scrap old ones which have been working well, be sure your generosity is not something taken for granted.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Your family and close associates are helpful now, but a not a very profitable day for major transactions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Your spirit soars if you accept new ideas and opportunities. If your view is conservative, some of the innovations may seem shocking. Only later do you realize that in following emotional reactions you have unwittingly made decisions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 — Nov. 21): There are adjustments you must make in circumstances beyond your control. Life can be much simpler today once you settle for what really is. (Your chance of mind may be important to other people too.)

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Your lively energy and friendly ideas about life's chance of being hindered or disappointed by friends? Creative ideas and new pastimes are strongly favored. This is a day of curious coincidences.

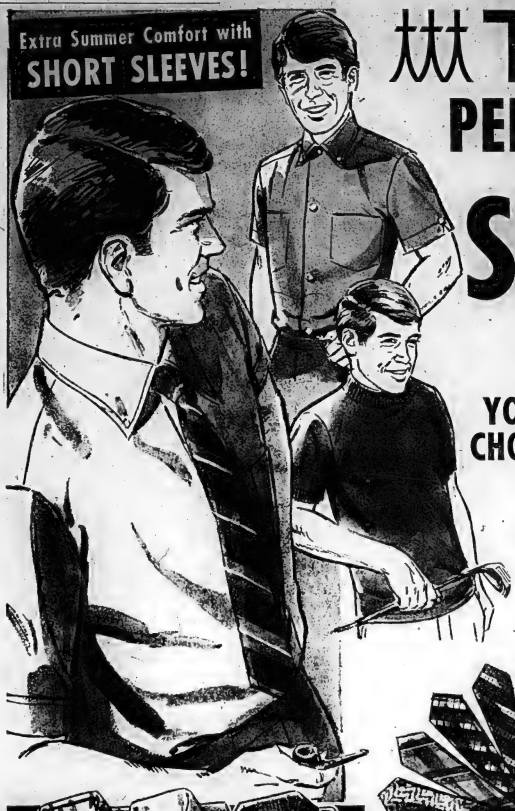
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Personal affairs and your responsibilities at work continue in some conflict. The year ahead for organizing to consolidate both activities for more effective use of the time you have available.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): You can get resistance to any idea you offer today, just by trying to convince. Stay out of differences at this time; the rewards will be apparent later on.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Chance conversation reveals sudden insights into reasons for past events which have puzzled you. With a definite improvement in your will to succeed, your spirit is lighter,

FEED TURF GRASSES NOW

The root development established in April and May stays with your turf all season long. This is the most important single application of plant food for the year.



FARM FERTILIZER OR A SPECIAL TURF FORMULATION?
You get your money's worth either way. Cheaper Commercial fertilizers such as triple 10s (10-10-10) and Aeroprills (32% Nitrogen) may be applied only when the grass is dormant. They will "burn" after the grass starts to green up. These fertilizers provide just as much plant food, but are too soluble and release nitrogen faster than the grass can absorb it, so much nutriment may be wasted and the feeding period is relatively short.

On the other hand proper turf formulations, although more expensive, release their nitrogen from slow-releasing forms (urea), so that the feeding period is for longer and regular. Leaves and blades of grass provide the grass plants, and keeping pace with the rate of growth of the grass plants, and avoiding damage from "burning". Pricewise you are probably further ahead to apply a proper turf fertilizer because it is safer and lasts longer so that a second application will not be needed until much later.

COMBINATION FERTILIZER-WEED KILLERS
If you plan to employ one of these relatively new products for weed control (either broadleafed weeds or crabgrass) you might be well advised to apply a less expensive fertilizer now and then follow it up with a 'booster' application of combination material later on. Remember the Crabgrass Killer goes on in April; the Broadleaf Killer in May or June.

Everyone Kept Guessing About NATO Decision

Even Timing Is Uncertain

OTTAWA (CP) — There was still no firm indication this morning whether Prime Minister Trudeau will announce a government decision on Canada's participation in NATO when the Commons sits at 2 p.m.

The prime minister kept reporters guessing about his intentions Tuesday by first saying he thought he would make a statement today, then saying he didn't know whether he would or not.

His first comment was made in Commons, the second following a night cabinet session at which NATO policy was discussed.

Mr. Trudeau said he was "going to work" after the cabinet session, leading some reporters to conclude he was going to work on a NATO statement.

Most observers expect Canada to maintain a military role in NATO. If this is true, the principal subsidiary questions are the size and nature of the commitment and how long it would be for.

The Toronto Telegram says the cabinet has decided that the country should remain in NATO, but in a much more flexible position.

The newspaper says there is a prospect of a considerably reduced role than at present, but no final decision on the degree of flexibility was taken.

The Telegram defines the flexible position as meaning the government will stay in NATO for some time, but keep its option to negotiate out, "possibly when our military hardware becomes obsolete."

The newspaper says the cabinet established that Canada's position will be farther out of NATO than previously expected and farther out than was recommended by the Commons defence committee last week.

The timing of an announcement on the government's decision is important in view of the fact that a NATO ministerial meeting is scheduled to open in Washington on April 10.

The prime minister previously has said a decision ought to be reached before that date and "necessarily will be announced in the House." With the Easter recess expected this week, time has about run out.

There has been no public evidence of a serious cabinet split on the issue of Canada's NATO commitment, as has been reported elsewhere. Lack of evidence does not mean however that a split is non-existent.

At the very least, there is bound to be a divergence of cabinet opinion on such a touchy subject which is at the very root of Canadian defence policy.

The question of NATO membership is at the core of a continuing foreign policy review, undertaken shortly after Mr. Trudeau took office one year ago.

The pro-NATO position is assumed to have been set out in Cabinet discussions by Defence Minister Leo Cadieux and Ex-

Pope Excoriates Unruly Rebels

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul said today the very existence of the Roman Catholic Church is threatened by the "restless, critical, unruly and demolishing rebellion" of priests and laymen.

The pontiff said the rebellion was against the church's canon rule, its tradition and its authority.

He also assailed prelates who toil and defection in the church have quit the church and said their "scandal" crucified the church.

The Pope's statements on recame during his weekly general audience devoted to the sufferings of Christ during Holy Week.

Many pilgrims and tourists gathering in Rome for Easter Week ceremonies were among the crowd of 8,000 at the audience in St. Peter's Basilica.

"The Church suffers above all," Pope Paul said, "from the restless, critical, unruly and demolishing rebellion of so many of its children—priests, teachers, laymen, those devoted to the service and the testimony of Christ in the living Church — against its intimate and indispensable communion, against its institutional existence, against its canon rule, its tradition, its interior cohesion, against its authority, the unchangeable principles of truth, unity, and charity, against its very requirements of sanctity and sacrifice.

"It suffers from the defection and the scandal of certain priests and religious who today crucify the church."

Terrorist Is Given Life Term

MONTREAL (CP) — Pierre-Paul Geoffroy, 25, has been sentenced to life imprisonment for 21 terrorist bombing episodes that baffled police and kept Montrealers on edge for several recent months.

The stocky, bearded and bespectacled native of Berthier, Que., received life sentences Tuesday on each of 124 charges of making and placing bombs and conspiracy to do so. Four charges were laid in connection with each of the 31 bomb incidents.

Geoffroy, who pleaded guilty at arraignment March 7, stood stolidly in the prisoners' dock as Chief Judge Andre Fabien of Sessions Court read the judgment, which the judge described as a penalty severe enough to serve as an example to other terrorists.

Judge Fabien said chances that Geoffroy could be rehabilitated are dim because he "pursues a political ideal whose objectives can only be achived through acts of terrorism."

The accused had imperilled the lives of fellow citizens "by planning his deadly devices in public places."

Last month Geoffroy told a fire commissioner's inquiry that he had put together "devices" on orders of "a member of the FLQ—the Front de Liberation Quebecois."

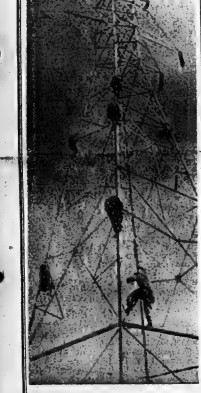
There have been no bombings in the Montreal area since Geoffroy was arrested March 4.

UN Again Condemns Israel

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — An even split in the Big Four over condemnation of Israeli retaliation against Jordan is not expected to affect their talks in a search for a Middle East peace formula.

The UN Security Council's resolution Tuesday — its second condemning Israel since last Dec. 31 was passed by 11 votes with four abstentions.

The United States, Britain, Colombia and Paraguay abstained. Voting for the resolution were the Soviet Union, France, Algeria, Nationalist China, Finland, Hungary, Nepal, Pakistan, Senegal, Spain and Zambia.



NORAD to Hold Two Exercises

NORTH BAY (CP) — Forces of the North American Air Defence Alliance (NORAD) will hold two air exercises over northeastern Canada during April, it was announced Tuesday.

The exercises will take place April 10-11 and 16-18, an announcement from the NORAD headquarters here said. Canadian and U.S. air force planes will simulate enemy bombers attacking major industrial complexes and population centres.

Air defence command crews at NORAD Bomarc missile sites in Ontario and Quebec will also take part in simulated firing-training exercises.

White Jury Frees Brother of Ti-cat

STOCKTON, Calif. (CP—AP) — Clifton H. Watkins, accused of a liquor store robbery here last summer in which his brother-in-law, Canadian pro football star, was killed, was freed of the charge Tuesday.

An all-white jury deliberated only 2½ hours before returning the verdict of innocent for the Negro public health employee.

"This proves one thing," said the quiet-spoken 36-year-old Watkins. "You can get justice out of an all-white jury. I've been given justice today."

"From the evidence on hand, we came to the conclusion that Ted and Clif Watkins went into that store to buy a bottle of wine, period," said jury foreman John Campbell.

Clifton's 27-year-old brother Ted, a star offensive end with Hamilton Tiger-Cats, was killed in the alleged robbery here last June 2, felled by two shots fired by store manager Fred E. Larsen, 36. Larsen charged Ted had tried to hit him over the head with a bottle.

Pepin Plans To Ask Ford About Prices

OTTAWA (CP) — Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin says he will be talking to Ford automobile officials Monday about price differences between cars sold in the United States and in Canada.

Alfred D. Hales (PC—Wellington) opened the question in the Commons Tuesday by asking why a new model called the Maverick is to sell for about $300 less in the United States than it is in Canada, even though it will be made in Canadian Ford plants.

Mr. Hales noted that the Canada-U.S. auto pact was supposed to achieve free trade in automobiles and parts.

Vacuum Cleaner Needed in Space

TORONTO (CP) — So much garbage has accumulated in outer space that one day a rocket may have to be launched to retrieve it, a Toronto technician working with the United States space program said Tuesday.

Oksana Borecky told a Junior board of trade meeting that occasionally astronauts dump garbage in space or permit space craft contents to leave the cabin, although this is against the rules.

Mrs. Morecky said she has heard that National Aeronautics and Space Administration in the U.S. has discussed scooping up some kind of vehicle with a vacuum cleaner to pick up the garbage.

Boston Judge Declares U.S. Draft Law Illegal

BOSTON (Reuters) — A federal court judge ruled Tuesday that the U.S. Selective Service Act of 1967 is unconstitutional because it grants no military draft exemption to those who are conscientious objectors on other than religious grounds.

Chief U.S. District Court Judge Charles E. Wyzanski Jr. made the ruling which is certain to have national implications. He granted a motion for arrest of judgment to John H. Sisson, 22, of Lincoln, Mass., a wealthy Boston suburb.

Sisson was convicted two weeks ago for refusing to submit to induction in the armed forces, claiming he was a conscientious objector to the war in Vietnam because it was illegal and immoral.

Wyzanski said the draft act is unconstitutional because it discriminates against atheists, agnostics and men such as Sisson, who "whether they be religious or not, are motivated in their objections to the draft by profound moral belief, which constitute the central conviction of their beings."

Immediately after reading his decision, Wyzanski gave leave to the U.S. attorney's office to bring the case directly before the U.S. Supreme Court for final determination.

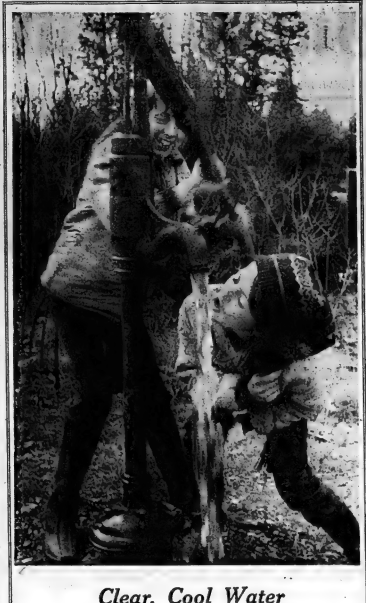
Plaza Issue

Appeal Decision Expected Soon

The next move in the North Front Street plaza controversy was still being awaited today.

A definite answer is expected later today or Thursday from Cambridge Leaseholds Ltd., on whether or not the developer will appeal the Ontario Municipal Board decision against the proposed shopping centre.

Two weeks ago city council voted to appeal the decision against the plaza. This week Mayor J. Russell Scott told council that this would depend on whether Cambridge Leaseholds were prepared to pay costs estimated at from $10,000 to $12,000.



Late yesterday there was rumor to the effect that the development firm had decided to go along with the city's request to pay appeal costs but city solicitor E. Guss Porter today said this was still indefinite.

"I expect to hear definitely from the Cambridge Leaseholds lawyer either today or tomorrow," he said.

In the meantime Mr. Porter is preparing the city's brief and Mayor Scott said it would be forwarded to the Ontario cabinet as soon as word was received from Cambridge Leaseholds.

Leading possible support to the city's appeal — should it go ahead — is a citizens' petition carrying several thousand names, asking that the OMB decision against the proposed plaza be rescinded. Close to six thousand names are expected to be on the petition [illegible]ing is ended.

Heading the petition is Donat Clement of the Park Dale area, who with several members of his committee will personally take it to Toronto.

Clear, Cool Water

Spring thaw must have arrived since these two youngsters were able to take advantage of a hand pump at the Outlet Park usually frozen throughout the winter. It takes a little work to get a drink but the water is clear and cold.

Purchasing Agents Told of Pitfalls

"Pitfalls of professional development" was the topic of an address heard by Eastern Ontario Purchasing Agents at their March meeting held in Kingston, and attended by members from Brockville to Trenton.

Guest speaker for the meeting was Dr. C. S. Calder, president of Malockrodt Chemical Company of Montreal who said that today's purchasing agents were trying too hard to attain professional status.

"Purchasing is new to the business world and will take time to be recognized," he said.

He doubted that purchasing agents would be protected in the same manner as doctors and lawyers, this being due, to the fact that companies can set up a purchasing group on their own.

Dr. Calder said that proper human relations must be used by purchasing at all times and people must be handled with proper business etiquette.

"It must be remembered that when salesmen call on purchasing agents they are representing their company, but when they return to their own company, they in turn are representing a costumer — particularly the purchasing agent."

Dr. Calder said it was not necessary for a purchasing agent to tell management every detail, but he must relate what he has bought and how it saved the company in price and inventory costs.

New County School Group

Kenneth Gillies, principal of Marmora Intermediate Public School, has been named president of a newly formed Hastings County principals' association.

Association meetings are held on the fourth Wednesday of each school month with all meetings to date being held at the Madoc public school.

The highlight of meetings thus far was in February when Eric Runacres, director of education for Hastings, addressed the group and outlined his approach to education and his expectations of the principal in the school and in the community.

The association constitution calls for it to work toward the improvement of education; 2. to work jointly with the Hastings County board of education and its duly appointed officials to formulate and implement educational policy; 3. to promote good public relations, and 4. to improve members' professional status.

Other association officers are:

1st vice-president, Mr. Bert Frisk, principal, Queen Elizabeth School, Belleville; 2nd vice-president, Mr. Murray Werkman, vice-principal, Queen Victoria School, Belleville; secretary - treasurer, Mr. Gary Stevenson, principal, Bancroft Public School.

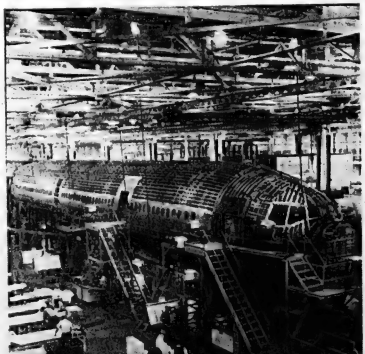
Publicity committee chairman is Burle Summers, RR 7, Belleville.

Starving Animals Found

Ontario Humane Society officials are finding more starved animals in the Renfrew area.

Yesterday, Harry Brown of the Smiths Falls Humane Society reported 13 goats, eight of them dead, had been found on an abandoned farm in the Eganville area.

The five half starved animals still living are being cared for at a neighboring farm.



Last week 56 starving cattle, all from one farm in the Renfrew district, were brought to Belleville and impounded at the Humane Society barns just west of Belleville.

And a few days earlier 13 undefed cattle from the Bath area were impounded at Belleville. Another four cattle were found dead.

Since, then an autopsy has been performed on one of the animals by a Belleville veterinarian who reported the cattle were nothing but skin, muscle and bones.

RECEIVES GRANT

REGINA (CP) — The University of Saskatchewan has received a $21,940 National Research Council grant for a machine language translation project. The study, primarily of the statistical occurrence of sequences of parts of speech, is expected to facilitate computer translation between English and French.

Jetliner For the Seventies

Full-size development mockup of the 300-passenger DC-10 trijetliner is nearing completion at McDonnell Douglas Corp's Douglas Aircraft Company, Long Beach, Calif. The model is a precise prototype of the first production aircraft, on which assembly will begin later this year, and serves as a test bed for installation of every part and system that goes into the actual aircraft. The mockup, 180 feet long with a 2-foot diameter fuselage, dwarfs draftsmen working at tables at lower left and assemblers atop the fuselage near the tail. The DC-10 is due to enter airline service late in 1971. (CP Photo)

This Beer Bottle No Bomb, But . . .

It was a beer bottle that exploded on the south side of Belleville Collegiate Institute early yesterday morning but it was not a "Molotov Cocktail" and it was not thrown.

After further investigation by city police and the testimony of one witness, chief Douglas Crosbie said this morning that the fire was the result of an experiment made by "two chemically inclined youths."

The witness saw the whole incident and testified the boys placed the bottle against the wall.

"There was no intention to damage the school and no charges have been laid," said the chief.

He explained that the boys were trying to discover what would happen when two different types of fuel were mixed together.

"They found out," commented the chief. "But we're not really sure whether the experiment was a success."

"They could have seriously burned themselves," he concluded.

Everyone Guessing

terest Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, both of whom have argued publicly in favor of Canada's continued participation in the 20-year-old Atlantic alliance.

Arguments against continued participation in NATO are assumed to have been presented by Postmaster-General Eric Kierans, who has publicly called for Canada' withdrawal from the alliance it helped found.

Mr. Trudeau himself has refrained from committing himself on the question. In public statements he has set out arguments both favorable and unfavorable to the idea of continued Canadian membership in NATO.

Within the external affairs department, the analysis is that the chief threat to Canada's security lies in a nuclear conflict between the United States and Russia. And the area where the greatest danger of such a conflict exists is Europe.

The inference is that Canada contributes to its own security by helping maintain the power equilibrium in Europe.

The Liberal caucus is further said to be in favor of maintaining the present NATO commitment. The caucus at a recent meeting gave overwhelming approval to the report of the Commons committee on defence and external affair.

The report, tabled in Parliament last Wednesday, adopted a stand-pat approach to the question of NATO membership.

Among advocates of a continuing NATO link there is fairly widespread acceptance of the idea that Canada's role in the alliance is not necessarily unchangeable.

In particular there is some support for a switch to a popular role for Canada.

Canada's contribution to the alliance at present include a six-squadron air division and a mechanized brigade group, both stationed in Germany and both with tactical nuclear capability.

Thi commitment is effective to the end of this year. At the same time, Canada has projected a an additional four years in calculation of forces drawn up by NATO commanders. These long-term projects are subject to confirmation on an annual basis.

Awards for Leadership

Leadership potential and community services provided by young people will again be spotlighted this year by the Ontario Federation of Home and School Associations.

Nominations are now being submitted for the Olive E. Glaubitz memorial award, presented nine grade 12 students, one from each Home and School area in Ontario. The awards will be given in May.

Winner last year for this district was David Roper of Quinte Secondary School.

Nominees must have maintained steady academic progress, with at least a 65 per cent average in gade 11 and 12 and must have been active in community service.

Apartments For City

Total value of building permits issued in Belleville during March was $308,143.

Permits for construction of two separate warehouse buildings with offices, at Wilson and Sidney streets, and two 12-unit apartment structures on North Front Street helped swell the city's building total.

Development Assistance of Belleville are the builders of the two one-storey warehouse structures on Sidney street.

Marlatte Rollins Construction is building the two North Front Street apartment units. They are planned for now vacant property just south of CN double tracks.

Drug Display

Const. Barry Titterson of the Belleville city police department, points out some of the characteristics of drugs at yesterday's Kiwanis meeting. Chief Douglas Crosbie was key speaker.

Police Chief Speaks on Drugs

Marijuana: The 'In' Thing of Affluence

By BARRY GRILLS

Modern affluence is a contributing cause to use of marijuana, police chief Douglas Crosbie told Belleville Kiwanis yesterday.

The chief described use of the drug as an "involvement of the affluent society."

"It becomes the 'in' thing," he said.

"There is no definite proof of the lasting dangers of marijuana," he said.

However, "it can lead — under certain circumstances to harder drugs."

Belleville does not have a more difficult drug problem than other cities, he added.

"Our community is no different from any other community," said the chief.

The chief also blamed "the inability of parents to communicate with young people" for some of the drug problem.

"It's pretty hard to stop drugs with people making money" (from trafficking in drugs), he said.

Various drugs and drug problems throughout Canada were described by the chief as he and Const. Barry Titterson spoke to the Kiwanis weekly meeting.

Chief Crosbie explained the various classifications of drugs — narcotics, synthetics, barbiturates, hallucenogenics and amphetamines.

He explained that narcotics generally were those drugs that were opium derivatives.

He said that hallucenogenics such as LSD and STP were very powerful and dangerous drugs.

Chief Crosbie told the Kiwanians that there is good proof of the fact that LSD can cause hereditary problems.

The Kiwanians learned that solvents, such as airplane glue, were extremely dangerous and were usually peculiar to the younger type of person.

Chief Crosbie included alcohol in his list of drugs and said that "many of the problems today stem from alcohol."

Using slides, he showed the various types of drugs and in what forms they are usually found.

Firemen's Titles Are Watered Down But Pay Remains Same at Trenton

TRENTON — The pay's the same, only the name has been changed.

This was the agreement reached by Trenton Fire Department and members of town council last night as they discussed recommendations allowing awards of a recent Arbitration Board hearing to be implemented.

At last Council meeting, Councillor Gerald Weaver listed his recommendations to carry out the board awards. He recommended there be two lieutenants and three acting lieutenants to handle four shifts on a 24-hour basis.

"With this set-up it looks like you have two chiefs and four Indians," said Councillor Stanley Ketcheson after being informed that there were 19 permanent fire-fighters on the force.

Rounding out the lists of officers were the chief and deputy chief.

Councillor Ketcheson said the department had "too many chiefs and not enough Indians."

And Councillor Duncan McDonald thought it was up to council, and not the Arbitration Board, to decide ranks.

As a result, a meeting was called last night to hash out the differences. It was decided that there will be no acting lieutenants. They will be classified as first-class fire-fighters.

"We will pay them the acting lieutenant's salary, but we will keep them as first class fire-fighters," said Fire Chief Cecil Ellis this morning.

Councillor Weaver had pointed out, however, that for bookkeeping purposes, it would have been easier to classify them men as acting lieutenants, rather than calling them one title, and paying them the another.

Council has now settled the 1968 contract, and will enter negotiation for 1969.

The Phones Ring in But Won't Ring Out

Having a telephone can sometimes be a problem — for both company and subscriber.

In Wellington last night and this morning residents have been able to receive calls but unable to make them.

According to Bell Telephone repair service in Belleville, complaints began coming in after 8 a.m. today and a spokesman said that a man was dispatched immediately to seek out the problem.

"We have no idea what the trouble could be," he said. "It could be in the cables or even in the office. We just don't know at this time."

However, officials did not anticipate any real problem in finding the fault quickly and restoring normal service.

City to Hear Builders

A recommendation of Belleville Public Utilities Commission calls on local subdividers to assume street-lighting costs in new subdivisions where electric wiring is underground or in backyards.

City council this week heard the PUC recommendation and decided to ask members of the Quinte Home Builders their views before taking further action.

The recommendation proposing that sub - dividers pay street-lighting costs in the specified instances was passed by the PUC at its March meeting.

The recommendation pointed out that where distribution circuits are on the street, the poles are used for street-lighting purposes.

However, where the wiring is underground or distribution circuits are in backyards special poles and wiring have to be provided on the street for street lighting and must be included in the cost.

Feeling of the PUC is that there should be some provision in the subdividers agreements to look after these additional costs.

'Double Taxation'

Council Warned on Sewer Assessment

Despite a claim that it would be "double taxation" and a warning that it would be thrown out by the court of revision, city council this week decided that costs of a proposed sanitary sewer extension on South Church Street should be assessed against all abutting property owners.

The council action went against the recommendation of city engineer Wilbur Purcell who said that frontage owned by Liquidells Ltd., and the frontage of 33 South Church, should be exempted.

The reason for his recommendation was that the above properties were already assessed for sanitary sewers on another street.

Alderman Keegan and Mayor Russell Scott, felt however, there should be no exemption, and moved an amendment calling for all properties to be assessed.

Mayor Scott said he saw no reason why industry should be exempted from the sewer frontage charge with the additional cost picked up under the general rate.

Assessment commissioner Leighton Thompson told council that the city would have a hard time defending the assessment.

And Alderman Douglas Boyle said assessing of frontage charges against the owners in question looked to him like "double taxation."

Alderman Keegan's amendment was carried by a 5-4 vote.

This week's council meeting also saw contracts for the supply of crushed stone, gravel, emulsified asphalt, paint and petroleum products awarded.

In the case of emulsified asphalt council received a pleasant surprise with the price per gallon coming in at 8.5 cents per gallon less than last year's quotations.

City purchasing agent Gerald B. Hyde said three tenders were received last year — all for the same price of 24.3 cents per gallon.

This year's lower price would save the city about $8,000 for the same amount of asphalt, he said.

Road Rules Set to Song

It's going to be traffic safety with music this week for members of The Belleville Masonic Lodge, No. 123.

At the lodge's annual family night Thursday night, lodge members and their families will be entertained by OPP Constable William Chapman of Whitby, who is making something of a name for himself in promoting the accident prevention story with guitar music.

The main message, however, will be presented by Constable J. R. Cowan, the Ontario Provincial Police Accident Prevention Coordinator.

Church Walkathon Planned

DESERONTO — Enthusiasm for the Deseronto United Church Walkathon on Saturday, April 19, has spread like wildfire. The young folk are all behind it, from the "teen crowd to the Sea Scouts and to the Girl Guides, all 50 of them. In some cases fathers are joining their growing sons, and there are several husband-wife teams. One such team has a husband-wife team of sponsors, guaranteeing $1 per mile for each. At least 100 people are now canvassing for sponsors.

Arrangements are falling into place, Saturday the route was set, covering approximately 20 miles. Beginning at 8.30 at the north end of the Quinte Skyline Bridge, the walkers will cross it and invade Prince Edward County, following the paved road toward Picton as far as Chant's Corners, and returning along the Bay Shore Road to the bridge.

Mrs. Peter Dickenson and Mrs. Jack Spence are making arrangements for setting up rest stations along the line of march, with refreshments, and band aids and fresh hose for the tired feet. There is no time limit. Participants may run or saunter at will, but it is expected that all will be in at least by dusk.

Sponsor forms may be obtained either from Peter Dickenson, who is organizing the project or from Rev. Wilmot Hendry, minister of the church. They will also be placed in a local store. Each participant is responsible for collecting from his sponsors, and for turning in the proceeds which he has earned step by step. The church will give receipts to all sponsors, and these may be used for income tax exemptions.

Proceeds of the walkathon will be used for much needed repairs to the United Church, especially redecorating. It has become a community project, since the church is now in use by the community for all Scout and Cub meetings.

Trustees Inspect School Facilities

Centre Hastings Secondary School in Madoc was the subject of a study by members of the vocational advisory committee of Hastings County board of education Monday.

The three trustees and two appointed members of the committee are undertaking inspections of all schools in the county to determine school needs, and the ways the committee can assist teachers and vocational directors in their work.

The Centre Hastings tour was, in the words of committee chairman Everett Fairman, "student-centred." Student guides from the vocational, commercial and occupational departments escorted the committee members to shops and classrooms, and other students conducted the visitors around the classrooms and answered queries.

As a result of their findings, the committee will draft recommendations for repair and replacement procedures for vocational and commercial equipment.

Trustee F. John Follis, Bancroft, said he found "quite a percentage of equipment not in running order" and asked what steps could be taken to ensure servicing of machines.

John Forbes, Trenton, asked the committee to consider the addition of wheel balancing equipment, larger lathes and electronics equipment in the shops.

Ronald Lee of Belleville commented on his findings of IT-1 bookkeeping machines for 32 students, and only 25 drafting boards for 60 students in the temporary classroom in Madoc Armory.

The Revolutionary Art

Ernesto (Che) Guevara had his admirers — even in the West. The Argentine-born revolutionary and one-time right-hand man of Fidel Castro was a Communist all right, but the Reds have their heroes too and Guevara was one of the heroic figures of our day, a legend in his own time.

Guevara fought with Castro to rid Cuba of the Batista regime and subsequently became the country's Minister of Economics. But Guevara felt he could be of more use to the revolutionary cause elsewhere. He dropped out of sight — there were rumors he had fallen from grace in Cuba and might even be dead — until a year or so ago when he was officially reported killed leading guerrilla forces in Bolivia.

But however much Guevara was respected in the West, his political aspirations were of the kind Canada and its allies must counter with every means in their power. They are the same insidious forces which the United States, supported by Australia, New Zealand and South Korea, are fighting in Vietnam. The latter is open warfare, but what Guevara was engaged in was underground political warfare, backed by an attempted guerrilla insurrection, which carried far enough can lead to the undermining of established order in a country.

There are Guevara adherents in our own midst. The demonstrations in Montreal last week aimed at turning McGill University into a French institution, were evidence of this. Among the placards were large portraits of Guevara, and if this is not indicative of the political affiliations of the standard bearers, what is?

The RCMP undoubtedly took note of the placards — and of those who were carrying them. These are the people who would destroy Canada in this very fashion, by fomenting unrest inside public institutions such as our universities.

Highway Lore

Accidents do not happen — they are caused. We are reminded of this truism by the decision of the Ontario Department of Transport to drop the word "accident" in reference to mishaps on provincial roads.

A high proportion of accidents occur because of speed, inattention, or alcohol. On the other hand, if a driver obeys the speed limit, gives his complete attention to the road ahead and to the principles of "defensive driving," and avoids alcohol, he stands a very good chance of staying alive.

Transport Minister Irwin Haskett told the legislature the word "accident" implies falsely that those involved are not responsible. "Most collisions are caused by human carelessness and irresponsibility," said Mr. Haskett, noting that his department will use the word "collision" in future.

True to his word, the research section of the Department has put out a publication containing statistics relating to Highway Traffic Collisions. And the other night on Night Metro (Toronto) news, an announcer dutifully used the word "collision" in a reference to an auto mishap.

Collision or accident, the statistics in this regard do not make happy reading. In 1968 there were 1,340 fatal collisions resulting in 1,568 deaths. This was 133 fewer than in 1967 — no mean drop — but on the other hand the total of collisions increased by seven per cent to 155,127 and the number of persons injured rose by 6.3 per cent to 71,520.

There's Competition

A letter on this page today from a representative of a Frankford youth group which presented a play in Belleville recently expresses disappointment with public response to the event. Only 33 persons, he says, attended.

Certainly the group might have expected a more enthusiastic response than this number suggests. But the letter condemning Bellevillians as a lot of Philistines it should be remembered there is a good deal of competition locally at weekends.

For one thing there was the final day of the Rotary Club's Science Fair and Hobby Show. Remember, too, that in Belleville at large there are more than 200 community organizations, many of which may hold activities of their own at weekends.

So good luck to the Frankford teens — and don't give up on Belleville altogether.

Canadian Farmers Save Dollars on Imported Machinery

Charles Munro, President of The Ontario Federation of Agriculture, in Farm and Country.

The endless spiral of rising costs must be stopped. Fertilization, and service costs are just some of the major inputs in farming. The economics of input costs are a complicated maze of double standards and unjustified levels which catch the farmer at the wallet no matter which way he turns.

People want to eat. They enjoy it. But they fail to realize that the individual who puts all that food on the table has to live also. They fail to realize that the amount a farmer may save through importing a piece of machinery through the Ontario Federation of Agriculture may equal his entire year's profits.

Last November the federation imported seven tractors from the United Kingdom to illustrate inflated mark-ups in farm machinery.

There was no subsequent action by manufacturers to reduce farm machinery prices in Ontario. There was no attempt to explain why farm machinery prices here are double those in Britain.

The most glaring discrepancies in farm input prices concern farm machinery. Farmers in Europe can buy at half of the cost their Canadian counterparts are forced to pay for the same machinery.

With all this in mind, the OFA executive decided in January to widen the import program to include any farm machinery wanted by Ontario farmers, if available in the United Kingdom.

Still there was no action by the machinery manufacturers to rectify the situation.

Inquiries still haven't stopped arriving at the Toronto office. Two federation officials travelled recently to Britain to further the program.

Inquiries involved about $2.5 million worth of farm machinery. Now the quote prices are being sent out to the individual farmers.

This week certified cheques began arriving for the final purchases. Still the farm machinery manufacturers have chosen to ignore the situation.

Rumors persist. Some would have you think that the tractors have square tires and motors which cannot work on Canadian land.

But machinery is only one input area which demands public scrutiny. The entire situation must be corrected.

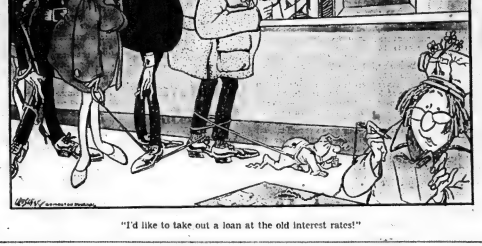
Owen-Sound Sun Times

The recent purchase of farm tractors in Grey-Bruce at prices Canadian manufacturers either cannot, or will not, match by virtue of a deal with British farmers points up a serious problem facing the agricultural community in Canada today.

In a report from the Royal Commission on farm machinery it is pointed out by Dr. Clarence L. Barber, chairman, that no other industry in history has been called upon to make so large an adjustment to technological change in so short a time as Canadian agriculture.



Dr. Barber, using the Dominion Bureau of Statistics as his researcher, says farm population in the last 25 years has been reduced by 1,250,000 due to changes in farm machinery.

These machinery changes have resulted in benefits roughly worth $1 billion annually. Yet the great bulk of these benefits has gone to consumers. This is reflected in lower food costs than would have been possible without the revolutionary changes in farm machinery.

Inversely, the little benefit that has gone to the farmer is largely reflected in the increased value of his land.

Dr. Barber suggests that the same principles of taxation proposed in the Samuel Freedman report for railway workers left jobless by modernization be applied to farmers. Both farmers and displaced railway workers are victims of technological change. If railwaymen are deserving of protection, so are displaced farmers, he says.

It is an issue that should be squarely faced. In both instances the end result of technological advances is of benefit to society. Farmers, no less than other industrial workers, are deserving of some kind of protection.

Youth Group Seeks Support

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

"Don't Darken My Door", a three-act play enacted by the Hi C's from Frankford and sponsored by the Youth Group of Christ Church of Belleville, was received in that city March 28 at 8 p.m. with overwhelming attendance. That is, if you consider 33 people, which comprised the entire audience, "overwhelming".

Needless to say, I would have thought somewhat more could have been mustered from an estimated population of 33,000 individuals.

Is this the way you support your local teen groups?

To those who did attend, the actors and staff extend their thanks, and hope you enjoyed our two-hour presentation. For those who did not attend — well our next showing will be at Stirling on April 18. To avoid disappointment, I suggest you get your tickets early; although small, the little towns have supported local talent, and youth organizations to the fullest.

John Fefchak,
Director.

Ontario and Medicare

Windsor Star

Decision of Alberta to enter the federal medical care program makes inevitable the subsequent entry of Ontario. As each other province joins it makes all the more untenable this province's position outside the plan.

British Columbia and Saskatchewan already are in it. Manitoba, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland join on April 1. These, with Alberta, will comprise the majority of the provinces.

Ontario's position will be untenable for several reasons. Ontario citizens, in their capacity of federal taxpayers, are contributing to the costs of medicare in other provinces but getting no such benefit from their own tax money.

Ontario will be passing up $175,000,000 in annual federal grants until it does join. This province made a poor mouth at the recent conference in Ottawa, wanting more money from the federal exchequer. It is completely contradictory to reject that which has been offered.

Ontario people won't for long forego health benefits available to people of at least six other provinces. They will demand equality. All this makes it mandatory that Ontario enter the program.

PEI Causeway Is Ditched

Trois-Rivieres Le Nouvelliste: The guillotine of austerity has just fallen on the project that would have ended the isolation of . . . Prince Edward Island—the (Northumberland Strait) crossing that would have attached it to New Brunswick. A similar crossing already has been realized on Cape Breton, ending its isolation and permitting it to become a full part of Nova Scotia.

Even if the project connecting Cape Breton Island was slow in coming, was it not a success? So why not try for similar success with Prince Edward Island? . . .

This crossing from Borden, P.E.I., to Cape Tormentine, N.B., would be nine miles long. From an engineering point of view, experts agree the obstacles are not insurmountable. . . .

The first cost estimates for the crossing were $105,000,000, but these were soon revised. Finally, it's estimated the costs could be $300,000,000.

And they could easily surpass that figure.

"Canada's resources are not unlimited," Prime Minister Trudeau has told the Commons, and the crossing project must be ditched for other priorities.

It's a hard blow for P.E.I. But in Ottawa there's a majority government. Electoral promises don't hold as much water as in a minority government. However, Mr. Trudeau did not bind himself during the election campaign.

That leaves him free, and certain avenues, which Mr. Pearson would have also touch, remain open . . . such as austerity moves.

Credibility Gap in U.S.

Public Being 'Brainwashed' Over Priorities—Columnist

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower left the American presidency eight years ago with a warning to "guard against the acquisition of unwarranted influence, whether sought or unsought, by the military-industrial complex."

His death Friday coincided with a mounting concern in the United States that an alliance of men in the defence department, industry and Congress has produced an unstoppable upward sweep in military demands.

"The potential for the disastrous rise of misplaced power persists and will persist," said Eisenhower, former allied supreme commander in Europe and NATO's first chief.

The question being debated with more intensity than at any time since Eisenhower first raised the issue—a debate fuelled by the Vietnam War and the controversial Safeguard counter-missile system boils down to this:

How much a military budget of about $80,000,000,000—more than half what the U.S. spends —will unprecedented domestic demands.

There is no great confidence being indicated that the rising tide of defence demands can be slowed much, let alone halted.

"We no longer believe in rosy promises by the military," Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, Montana Democrat, said last week.

"If we keep on spending for all the things the military wants and do not achieve a solution to our internal problems, what have we profited?"

Newsweek magazine says it: "Troubled by a war that the military seems repeatedly to have misjudged, annoyed by weapons that all too often prove either grossly expensive or defective and sometimes both, preoccupied by social problems at home that will require vast sums to ameliorate, a number of congressmen and senators now regard the Pentagon's influence and affluence with mounting distress."

Carl T. Rowan, a syndicated columnist, says: "It is simply impossible to know whom to believe among our officials. There is "always ample room to suspect that selected data" is used for "concerted brainwashing" of the public.

Saturday, a conference on the military budget and national priorities said military influence has reached such proportions in the U.S. that the country has become a "national security state."

Charles Schultze, who as former President Johnson's head of the budget bureau engineered all U.S. spending, urged a congressional ceiling on the escalating military demands.

Schultze has said that even if the $30,000,000,000 war in Vietnam war ended immediately, little extra money would flow into domestic priorities.

He has pointed at demands for new weaponry ranging from the new anti-missile system to a long-range bomber that Defence Secretary Melvin Laird now says he needs.

The New York Times comments on the fact that most congressmen dealing with armed services have managed to draw billions of dollars worth of job-making military contracts for their areas.

Thus, The Times says, it is likely that the pro-military senators will manage to push through the Safeguard counter-missile system which is seen as just the edge of the wedge in what could become a very new phase in the nuclear arms race.

Festive Throngs Liven Peking Streets As Chinese Communists Stage Congress

PEKING (AFP) — The Chinese Communist party congress, only the second since the Communist regime took over in 1949, ended its second day today without producing any surprises, amid enthusiastic public festivities in the capital.

The 1,511 congress delegates worked through the day in committee discussing the political report delivered Tuesday by Lin Piao, Mao Tse-tung's heir apparent, and the draft of the new party statutes.

All Peking has resounded with chanting and drum and cymbal playing since a firecracker signalled the first celebrations at 9 p.m. Tuesday, with scarcely an interruption in the final hours before dawn. Great festive throngs returned to the streets today.

A communique at 9 p.m. Tuesday said the first sitting began four hours earlier. Allowing for the long opening speech by Chairman Mao and for election of the congress presidium and other procedural matters, it followed that Lin Piao's report was relished brief.

Of the 34-member presidium led by Chairman Mao and Defence Minister Lin Piao, all the first 14 names in the official list remain unchanged since last summer, when the party leadership emerged reshuffled from the cultural revolution.

These 14 presumably will compose the politburo of the new central committee to be elected by the congress. They are, in addition to Chairman Mao:

Forty Vice-Chairman Lin Piao, identified as deputy commander in chief of the proletarian headquarters; Premier Chou En-lai; Chen Po-ta, Mao's former personal secretary and the head of the central committee group which directed the cultural revolution; Kang Sheng, theoretician and member of the cultural revolution group; Chiang Ching (Mme. Mao), another member of the group, who was promoted last August from 19th to sixth place in the hierarchy;

Chang Chung-chiao, chairman of the Shanghai revolutionary committee; Yao Wen-yuan, Mao's son-in-law; Hsieh Fuchih, the public secretary minister and chairman of the Peking revolutionary committee; Huang Yung-chen, chief of general staff;

Wu Pa-hsien, the air force commander; Mme. Yeh Chien-ying, economist; Wang Tung-hsing, commander of the Peking garrison, and Wen Hui-cheng, commander of the Peking military region.

As regards the new statutes, which became known unofficially in a first draft late last year, they are expected to base party ideology on Marxism Leninism plus the thought of Mao, which was not mentioned in the statutes adopted at the last congress, in 1956.

The draft named Lin Piao as Mao's successor designate, and American imperialism and Soviet revisionism as China's enemies. It is not known what changes, if any, have been made in it in recent months.

The congress is expected to be of short duration.

Its location remained somewhat of a mystery tonight. A guard prevented me from approaching Tien An Men Square, the presumed site, after I had made my way through the dense throngs in the city centre this afternoon.

Designer Fits Gas Station Into Living Room Area

TORONTO (CP) — A new kind of portable gas station that could fit into most family living room has started business in the Toronto suburb of Don Mills.

It has four gas pumps and a glass-and-aluminum kiosk and washrooms. It measures 10 feet by 22 feet, and can be used on a 400-square-foot lot—less than 10 per cent of the space usually taken up by a standard-sized service station.

The project is the brainchild of Richard Rohmer, a 45-year-old Toronto lawyer who has formed his own company, MINI Station Corp., to sell the units in North America and Europe.

Mr. Rohmer says he developed the idea of installing gasoline tank vertically underground, instead of horizontally.

He had a Toronto engineering firm, Marshall, Macklin, Monaghan Ltd. design them.

"Vertical installation not only takes up less room, but makes removal much easier," he says.

The key feature of the stations is their portability, since the prefabricated station can be set down on a steel pad or lifted off in less than two days. Regular service stations take several weeks to build.

Mr. Rohmer holds patents on the tanks and building. He says the station is for sale to oil companies for $10,000, plus a royalty on gasoline sales.

The Don Mills station is a prototype, which Shell Canada Ltd. is using for nine month while it build a permanent station nearby.

Mr. Rohmer think his station could be useful as a temporary gas-dispenser while permanent stations are built, and for use on sites where a company wants to test a market area without the expense of a permanent building.

Small-sized sites such as shopping centre or downtown parking lots, places needing a station at only certain times of year—such as marinas—or suburban areas where the gasoline business is marginal should also be good spots for the stations, Mr. Rohmer says.

Mr. Rohmer says he hopes to sell about 50 of the units this year in Canada, the United States and Europe. He sees Europe as a particularly bright potential market, since gasoline service from bars or kiosks is already well-established.

Air Canada Reports Profit

OTTAWA (CP) — Air Canada had a net income of $8,184,000 in 1968, the sixth consecutive year in which it has shown a profit, Transport Minister Paul Hellyer announced Tuesday.

The crown-owned airline will need more than $200,000,000 in outside financing, however, to buy new equipment and property in the next five years, it was stated in the company's annual report tabled by Mr. Hellyer in the Commons.

The 1968 profit was the 15th for the airline in the last 18 years. It signified a return on investment of 6.3 per cent.

Comparable results for 1967, the Centennial Year, were a profit of $3,547,000 and an investment return of 5.2 per cent.

Passenger traffic growth was described as modest in 1968, compared with the sharp increase experienced in 1967.

Operating revenues rose by 12 per cent in 1968 to $387,628,000. Operating expenses were up nine per cent to $359,610,000, an increase attributed to higher wage levels and higher prices of materials and services.

This left Air Canada with operating income of $28,018,000.

Mentioning the purchases of Jumbo jets that Air Canada plans to make in the next three years, and the supersonic craft that are to follow, the report said there will have to be much greater emphasis on long-haul operations if the airline is to remain profitable.

Air Canada will try to add more winter destinations in southern latitudes to compensate for the heavy seasonal drop in transcontinental and transatlantic traffic, the report said.

There have been informal discussions of a possible merger between Air Canada and Canadian Pacific Airlines on international routes. The government is considering making changes in Air Canada's corporate structure, but has not said that these changes may be.

The total number of miles flown by all the company's passengers on scheduled and chartered flights rose to 1,756,000,000, an increase of eight per cent over the previous year.

Michael A. Black, son of Mr. Twomey Black, and the late Mrs. Black was called to the Bar of Ontario at the convocation of the Law Society of Upper Canada in Toronto, March 21. Mr. Black is a graduate of Nicholson College and received his Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Law degrees from the University of Ottawa. He has now joined the law practice of Douglas P. Boyle at 49 Campbell St. in Belleville.

New Major Oil Refinery Proposed

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — The Steuart Refining Co. of Canada applied Tuesday to the U.S. interior department to build a $69,000,000 petroleum processing installation at Piney Point, Md., the Baltimore Sun reports.

The Steuart proposal, as reported in The Sun, calls for processing 100,000 barrels of oil a day to reduce the sulfur content to meet federal air pollution standards.

Leonard Steuart, vice-president, said the facility is planned for 250 acres of land the company now owns in St. Marys County. The project requires no local approval, Steuart said.

Earlier, the company's effort to create a foreign trade zone including a $30,000,000 to $45,000,000 crude oil refinery were defeated because of local opposition based on the threat of water pollution in the Potomac River.

Three applications similar to the one filed by Steuart were approved in the final days of the Johnson administration by Stewart L. Udall, former secretary of the interior.

Steuart officials said they expect approval by the end of the month but added that President Nixon's order to review all oil import issues may delay action by the department.

The company expects the installation to be completed two years after the application is approved.

Regarding the probable local impact, Leonard Steuart said he would be willing to "work something out" with the county commissioners.

Curtis Steuart, president, added: "I believe . . . that since the idea of a refinery was first suggested many more people have come to recognize the fact that modern technology and modern methods of oil transportation have reached a stage of development which makes a pollution and spillage free operation completely possible."

4-H Winners Enjoy Trip To Toronto

TWEED — The 1968 winners of the proficiency award ban trip visited the Planetarium Royal Museum and the Ontario Legislative Building on March 29, 1969. This award is presented to the top member of each 4-H Agricultural Club who has not previously won the award and to each girl in the Homemaking Clubs who has received county honors.

To receive county honors a girl must have completed six 4-H Homemaking projects.

The members toured the Planetarium at the Royal Ontario Museum and viewed the presentation in the Star Theatre in the morning. A noon luncheon was hosted by Clarke T. Rollins, MPP Hastings. In addition, Mr. Rollins had arranged for 4-H members to observe the opening of the afternoon session of Parliament.

In all, a total of 26 members took part, from the Tweed area, was Joan Johnston, Sioco, No. 1.

Pineapple Glazed Ham Tops List for Easter Menu

By MARY MOORE

Pineapple Glazed Ham (see below); Stuffed Baked Potatoes, (see Mon.) Hot Mustard and or Rosy Spiced Crabapples; Zucchini and Mushrooms with Tarer-Fall Hollandaise (see Mon.); Coffee. Sparkling Orange Snow (see below).

PINEAPPLE GLAZED HAM

8-lb. bone-in (or boneless) ready-to-eat ham
One 10-oz. can crushed pineapple, drained, or 1 cup pineapple jam
¼ tsp. ginger
¾ tsp. salt
2 tbsps. sugar
1 tbspn. honey (optional)
¼ cup fine dry breadcrumbs

Cut rind (if any) and excess fat (if any) from ham and place on rack in large shallow pan. Bake uncovered at 300 deg. Fahr. for 2 hrs. Twenty min. before serving time remove ham and pan from oven and tip off and discard excess fat. Mix together drained crushed pineapple or pineapple jam, ginger, salt, sugar and honey and brush top and part of sides with half of glaze. Return to oven on rack and bake 10 min. longer at 400 deg. Fahr. Spoon remaining glaze over ham and sprinkle evenly and sparingly with crumbs and bake until golden and bubbly. Place ham on preheated serving platter and surround with Stuffed Baked Potatoes (see Monday).

SPARKLING ORANGE SNOW WITH CUSTARD SAUCE

(Serves 6)

One 3-oz. pkge orange jelly powder
1¾ cups boiling water
1 tbsp. plain gelatine
½ cup cold water
½ cup sugar
1 cup fresh orange juice
1 tbsp. freshly grated orange rind (orange zest only)
1 tbsp. lemon juice
2 egg whites (reserve yolks in top of double boiler for sauce)

Custard Sauce (see below)

Dissolve jelly powder in boiling water and chill until set in 8 x 8" pan. In medium bowl soak gelatine in cold water 2 or 3 min., add sugar, grated orange rind and stand bowl in larger pan of boiling water and stir to dissolve. Remove from heat. Mix in orange and lemon juices. Chill until it begins to set. Beat whites until stiff but not dry and fold in to blend. Spoon into six stemmed glasses. Cut orange jello into ½" squares (I used ruler as guide) and apportion sparkling squares over orange snow. Pass Custard Sauce made by adding to the 2 egg yolks in double boiler one whole egg, ¼ tsp. salt, ¼ cup sugar and beating. Over boiling water stir in 1½ cups hot milk till mixture coats silver spoon. Remove from heat and add 1 tsp. vanilla. Pour into serving pitcher and chill.

NOTE: May be made well in advance. Attractive, light and popular.

NOTE: Watch for recipes using leftover ham early next week.

Glistening with pineapple glaze this Easter Ham is beautiful and delicious. Mary Moore's Easter dinner menu includes Baked Stuffed Potatoes and Zucchini with Mushrooms and Hollandaise and Sparkling Orange Snow, all given this week.

Assists in Pollution Problem

TORONTO (CP) — "I just can't picture myself sitting in front of a typewriter," says 23-year-old Birgit Nowak, a tall, slim blonde who would improve the looks of any typists chair.

Instead, she designs systems that ease the water pollution problem in industrial plants.

She's the only female in the 11-member engineering department of a Toronto chemical processes firm and she likes it that way.

There's little or no backbiting, bickering or jealousy "like between women," she says, adding, in typically feminine parlance, "It's marvellous."

She says women are "much more careful" than men and that's why they're more adaptable to work requiring attention to detail and precision.

But she can't explain how, with only high school training, she has been able to catch on to drawing detailed plans for tanks, tubes and pipes. Except to say "I learned everything pretty fast," on the job.

Miss Nowak, who came to Canada from West Germany four years ago, says designing takes up her spare time as well.

The difference is, she comes up with a bungalow for her uncle, instead of a water system for the boss.

Telephone Pioneers Display Craft Items

This past weekend, at the Rotary Science and Hobby Show, the Telephone Pioneers of America, Belleville Club, sponsored a booth of hobbies. Included in the display was the model steam engine collection built by the late Percy Gelsthorpe, formerly of Northern Electric and exhibited by his son Bruce.

Marion Gelsthorpe of Northern Electric, exhibited an impressive display of leather craft items including a tooled gun case, bowling bag and many smaller items exquisitely tooled and laced.

In the needlecraft section, Jean Scott of Northern Electric, displayed hooked rugs, quilts, petit point, crochet and cut work. The whole booth was shrouded in royal blue silk with the Telephone Pioneer crest in blue and white which presented a striking appearance. On duty in the booth during the show were the exhibitors and Leo Lemay, vice-president of the Belleville Club Pioneers (Bell Canada). President Vic Allen and Pioneer Dave Nash assisted in setting up the display before the show.

Mrs. Ina Brant Adds Finishing Make-up Touch to Kathy Bunner

Fashion Show Presented by Students Of Sir Mackenzie Bowell Public School

The Grade eight girls at Sir Mackenzie Bowell School ushered in Spring in a most fashionable way Tuesday evening when they presented a fashion show.

The girls, all members of Mrs. Linda Seifred's Home Economics Classes, not only sewed every outfit themselves, but did everything from decorating the stage to selling lemonade at intermission.

The tremendous success of an enjoyable evening for both parents and teachers was a credit to the tireless amount of effort the girls put into the show.

More than 75 outfits were modelled for the audience. They ranged from practical jumpers for the classroom, to kicky elephant pants for those "fun days."

Commentators for the show, Betty Brant, Bev Hitchen, Susan Weaver and Suzanne Campbell did a splendid job.

With only an occasional falter, (which is only natural), the girls kept the show moving at a relaxed, easy pace. They helped set the mood of "getting in the swing of spring" with their professional approach.

Even the audience felt the mood, and seemed to relax right along with them.

In the first half, fall and winter apparel shared the limelight.

Perky and practical jumper and blouse sets for school, and simple shift dresses were proudly paraded before the receptive audience.

Then came those "in" fashion pants for "now" — elephant pants.

Striking pant suit outfits, in colors like canary yellow, and wild wow prints, demonstrated exactly what a fashion take-over can be like.

Some of the models were: Bonnie Partridge; Cheryl Lafferty; Cheryl Strachan; Cindy Whitely; Debbie Chapman; Doris Perry; Elaine Montague and Heather Morris.

All of the girls went through their paces quickly, efficiently, and with a distinct air of professionalism, which projected their "with it" fashions just right.

Other models participating in the show were: Kathy Bunner; Nora Brant; Bonnie Kulbach; Sarai Porritt; Sharon Maracle; Sue Davis; Roxanne Rowe and Wendy Russell.

Doing the make-up for the show was Mrs. Audrey Brant and Mrs. Ina Brant, courtesy of Holiday Magic.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

REDNERSVILLE WI

Mrs. G. Waterhouse was hostess for the March meeting of the Redersville Women's Institute, with president, Mrs. C. Smith in charge.

Mrs. A. Cairns read a letter from the Institute's foster child in Hong Kong. At this time the program for the 4-H girls achievement day in Picton, on April 26 was discussed. Mrs. H. Montgomery gave a report on the District Executive meeting.

The committee for turkey dinner on April 16 in Redersville Church Hall was made. Conveyor for Canadian Industries, Miss Audra Brickman was in charge of the program.

Mrs. D. Redner showed slides of her trip to Africa, and enertained it, much to the enjoyment of the audience. Mrs. A. Cairns thanked the hostess, and the lunch committee for the refreshments.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Johnny gave the baby some of his marbles to play with and she swallowed one of them. We're lucky she didn't choke. I never realized Johnny wouldn't know better."

Babies almost automatically put everything into their mouths, as mothers realize. Be sure the rest of the family realizes it, too.

Don't overlook the possibility of an older child sharing toys that are dangerous for a baby to get her hands on. Check the toy box and warn the older child of this danger.

Congregation Bids Couple Farewell

Centennial Free Methodist Church bade farewell to Rev. and Mrs. Keith Lohnes prior to their leaving for missionary work in Burundi, Africa.

The congregation had already presented more than $200 for the purchase of needed supplies, and also undertook to wrote more than $1200 toward their support for the first year.

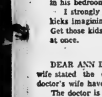
Rev. Edith Mainprize, first pastor of the church, assisted the present pastor, R. Barclay Warren, in the evening service, as she spoke briefly of the church's missionary vision and led in prayer.

Mr. Lohnes presented her with an engraved plaque, honoring her for the ten years of service as pastor, during which the church was erected and paid for, and the parsonage was built.

Relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Lohnes were present from points outside of Belleville, to wish God's blessing upon them, and Ruth, their 11-month-old daughter.

UCW MEETINGS

QUEENSBORO UCW



QUEENSBORO — Mrs. Leslie Holmes was hostess for the March meeting of Unit two of the Queensboro United Church Women.

Mrs. W. Sedgwick had charge of the devotional. Later lunch was served at the close of the meeting and a social time was spent.

Ann Landers

Teeners Should Study In Den or Parlor

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read your column every morning over my second cup of coffee. My husband reads it over his first cup. I'm sure your answer would clear the air in our house.

ANN LANDERS

Is it perfectly all right for a boy, age 15, to bring his 14-year-old girl friend home after school and take her immediately to his bedroom and close the door — not, to be seen or heard from until dinnertime, three hours later?

After dinner they go right back to the bedroom and close the door again. I say if it is studying that keeps them so busily occupied, they can do that in the den or the sun parlor. My husband says to keep quiet and not give them any ideas. What do you say? — ROCHESTER.

* * *

DEAR ROCH: I doubt that anyone could give these two any ideas they don't already have.

And now I'll answer your question by asking one — of your husband. If you had a 14-year-old daughter, Sir, would you approve of her being closeted with a 15-year-old boy — in his bedroom, with the door closed, for three hours?

I strongly suspect somebody is getting a few vicarious kicks imagining what goes on behind that closed door. Get those kids out of the bedroom and into the living room at once.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Several months ago, a preacher's wife stated the case for her hardworking husband. May a doctor's wife have equal time?

The doctor is on call 24 hours a day for emergencies. The dictionary defines an emergency as "sudden need for immediate action." This means the individual needs help at once in order to live.

Some people think one call won't bother him because "it will only take a few minutes to answer a question or order a prescription." They don't realize the doctor may have received ten other such calls during the evening.

So the next time you reach for the phone to call your doctor at home, ask yourself, "is this call necessary?" Remember, too, that we all need him — and this means his wife and children. So let's not kill the goose that laid the golden egg. — A.B.A.

DEAR A.B.A.: It takes a special kind of woman to be married to a doctor and your letter indicates that you qualify.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please see what you can do to make it a law that before people marry they have to sign a sworn statement that they understand their legal rights.

I supported a slob through college. After three children he decided I wasn't intellectual enough for him. Like a fool I gave him a divorce because I thought I had to. He remarried within 13 months and then decided the children needed both a father and a mother. He succeeded in getting the two boys away from me.

All this happened ten years ago because I was ignorant. Is there some way other ignorant women can be protected? — SMART TOO LATE.

DEAR TOO LATE: Yes. An ignorant woman should have a smart lawyer.

Most Adults React With Expressions of Distaste in Eating Baby Food

TORONTO (CP) — Most adults react with vigorous expressions of distaste at any suggestion that they should eat baby foods. It's an attitude baby food processers are currently hard at work trying to change.

They are developing adult recipes that use their products, and are promoting them as convenience foods.

Margaret Slaney, publicist for Gerber, says no one is suggesting a grown-up eat strained prunes. But she says they can be used in a spareribs recipe. She says many of the foods can be used in sauces, glazes, soups, desserts. They are smooth, so they mix easily. They are available in small quantities, so you don't have a lot of extra food to use up when you open a jar.

A case in point is a hollandaise sauce made with strained egg yolks. There are no whites to dispose of.

To make about ¾ of a cup you need: 1 jar strained egg yolks, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1-3 cup melted butter, ¼ cup boiling water, cayenne or dry mustard or hot red-pepper sauce.

Pour egg yolks into top of double boiler and add salt and lemon juice. Gradually stir in the melted butter, then the water. Set pan over hot but not boiling water. Cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and add a few grains of cayenne, mustard or a few drops of pepper sauce.

The sparerib recipe calls for 4 pounds of ribs, one 8-ounce jar of baby food peach cobbler, one 4¾-ounce jar of strained prunes and one of strained applesauce, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 3 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon black pepper.

Mix all the ingredients except the spareribs together and allow them to stand for a couple of hours. Bake ribs uncovered in oven at 325 degrees for 1¼ to 2 hours.

At dinner time put precooked ribs on the grill, heat through, then turn and baste with a little sauce. Watch carefully, then turn again in a few minutes, and when heated through, serve.

The cooked spareribs may also be put into squares of foil with a little sauce. Fold the edges of the foil to seal tightly, then wrap and place on the rack of the barbecue grill. Turn the package after five minutes and in another 10 minutes it should be ready.

Miss Slaney says this method keeps the meat moist, but you lose the smoke flavor and some of the vinegar and spice of the sauce.

She suggests trying some of the baby food meats as sandwich spreads, with garnish or flavoring added. An example is a ham and onion spread.

Ingredients: two 3½ ounce jars of junior ham baby food, 4 teaspoons drained sweet pickle relish, 1 tablespoon dehydrised minced onion, ¼ teaspoon salt.

Mix all the ingredients together, refrigerate for three hours. Use for sandwiches or cracker spread. Makes 3-3 cup.

A fruit pudding calls for: 1 cup cold milk, 3 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, 1 well beaten egg, one 4¾-ounce jar of strained bananas, one 8-ounce jar of junior peach cobbler, one 2¼-ounce envelope of whipped topping mix prepared according to package directions.

Pour milk into top of double boiler. Blend sugar and cornstarch thoroughly. Place over boiling water and cook, stirring, until thickened and smooth.

Add a tablespoon of mixture to egg and blend, then stir egg into mixture in top of double boiler. Cook, stirring, about two minutes. Remove from heat, stir in bananas and peach cobbler. Cool thoroughly.

Fold prepared whipped topping mix into fruit mixture. Spoon into individual serving dishes. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

Smoke Now, Pay Later Is Comment on Bottom of Poster

By DORIS CLARK

A striking poster turned out by the Canadian Cancer Society depicts a hand offering a packet of cigarettes. Outlined on the package are skull and crossbones, and the words: Your Choice? Smoke Now, Pay Later. Comment at the bottom of the poster: The Decision is Yours.

Considering that practically all cases of lung cancer occur in people who are cigarette smokers, this is no idle threat.

Some of you who read this, smoke periodically: "I wish I could stop, but I can't." But you can. Send for my 10-cent leaflet, "Why Smoke?" and find out how.

* * *

Dear Doris: My problem is I go with a boy my friends think is very bad. I know all the things he has done because he confessed them himself. He made a girl pregnant and I can understand why, because she is a very dirty girl.

Since he started going with me I noticed a great change in him. He told me that I was the only girl that has kept him in his place and that he likes me very much for doing so. Now, he never thinks of doing anything bad.

We did try to stop seeing each other (for my good) but three weeks later he wanted me to go with him again. I have been introduced to his parents, who are good Christian people. He also introduced me to his pet cat (he is really a lot of fun). I do not see anything wrong with him (he is also very clean and tidy).

I want to know if I should stop seeing him and just try to forget him (which I will find hard to do). — Mixed-Up

Dear Mixed Up: It seems he has been spreading things I do not go for that "dirty girl friend" excuse — there being two people involved in every pregnancy.

Yet a good girl's influence can bring out the best in a young man. You sound young. Could you keep things on an even keel by spreading your dates around for a while? If your boy friend really means all this virtuous behavior, he will live down that bad reputation and your friends will start liking him again.

But that takes time.

Dear Doris: My husband has returned to evening classes at the university, after being away from school some 20 years. He hopes to obtain his BA.

He wants me to get him your notes on "How to Study." Ten cents enclosed. —Regular Reader.

Dear Regular: More power to him! The notes include simple things like setting oneself up in a good corner, away from distractions; turning off the TV; changing study subjects at regular intervals; taking breaks to do something physical and refreshing.

And a few other ideas. Hope they help. Studying at night after a day's work calls for reliable study habits and rare stick-to-it-iveness.

Try turning your trouble into triumph by getting help help from a trained social worker. Doris can put you on the right track.

No Nuclear Explosion

Spartan Would Destroy Russian Missile Over Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's defence research board says that the American Spartan counter-missile could destroy the Russian SS-9 intercontinental ballistic missile without causing a nuclear explosion by the later.

However, a board spokesman says, the nuclear Spartan would detonate at least 30 miles above Canada but without shock or blast effect on Canadian territory.

Radioactive fallout from the detonated Spartan would eventually settle on Canada—and other countries—after several trips around the earth.

But such fallout, says the board, would be no greater than that experienced in recent years from nuclear testing in the atmosphere.

Canadian authorities say it would be safer for Canada to have Russian rockets intercepted above this country than for them to burst in the U.S.

The SS-9, latest Soviet rocket, can carry a nuclear warhead as big as 25 megatons, the equivalent of 25,000,000 tons of TNT. The 1945 Hiroshima bomb which killed 78,000 Japanese was the equivalent of 20,000 tons of TNT.

A recent United Nations report, which Canada helped prepare, says a 20-megaton bomb would kill 6,000,000 people in New York and another 1,000,000 beyond the city.

A recent U.S. estimate is that 200 Soviet one-megaton bombs dropped on American cities would kill 110,000,000 Americans.

Russia has deployed 200 SS-9 missiles and may have 500 of them ready for action by 1975.

The SS-9 is not to be confused with the Canadian SS-10 and SS-11, both small anti-tank missiles with a maximum range of about two miles.

Prime Minister Trudeau has said he has not yet decided whether to condemn as a step-up in the arms race the U.S. plan to build the Safeguard counter-missile system of which the two-megaton Spartan is the key part.

However, at the Geneva disarmament conference on March 20, Canada called for a quick end to underground nuclear tests.

The nuclear warhead for the Spartan is being developed in underground tests in Nevada and is not expected to be ready until 1973.

The Safeguard system are in North Dakota and Montana.

Already at or near these two sites are 336 Minuteman intercontinental ballistic missiles in underground silos. The Safeguard system is destined to shield them against an SS-9 assault.

All told, the U.S. has 1,048 Minuteman nuclear strike missiles and 656 more missiles in Polaris nuclear submarines.

The first two planned sites of Russia has some 800 intercontinental missiles, including the 200 SS-9s, and about 100 more in submarines.

One all-out nuclear missile exchange between the U.S. and Russia might loose at least 2,700 megatons or 2,700,000,000 tons of TNT.

As External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp told the Commons March 19: "If this system is ever called to bat, he game is over."

Bomb Halt Plea Rejected

Wilson Returns Without Biafra Talks

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Wilson flew home from Africa today without seeing Biafran leader Odumegwu Ojukwu, and with no agreement from the Nigerian government to stop bombing Biafran towns.

Meanwhile, the Nigerians claimed a new offensive had brought their army within 16 miles of Umuahia, Ojukwu's headquarters.

As he was leaving Lagos after a 36-hour visit, Wilson told Prime Minister Tsehafe Habte Wold he was disappointed Ojukwu had not agreed to see him.

The British leader was rebuffed by Ojukwu during the weekend and then waited in vain for a reply to a second request for a meeting in some neutral African city.

One Western diplomat in Addis Ababa speculated that the new Nigerian offensive may have been timed to keep Ojukwu busy so he could not meet with Wilson.

Biafran officials accused Wilson of trying to lure Ojukwu out of Biafra to aid the Nigerian drive. A Biafran broadcast said Ojukwu wanted the meeting inside the 3,000-square-mile rebel enclave, a proposal the British prime minister ruled out during his visit last week to Nigeria.

Nigerian officials felt a visit by Wilson to Biafra would imply British recognition of the secessionist regime.

The head of the Nigerian government, Maj.-Gen. Yakubu Gowon, rejected Wilson's overtures for an end to the bombing of Biafra. Gowon said the civilian bombing casualties which have caused much concern in Britain and North America had been "stage-managed" by the Biafrans. He said the attacks disrupted flights bringing arms to the rebels and disorganized their ground forces.

In Ethiopia, Wilson met with Emperor Haile Selassie, head of the Organization of African Unity, and OAU Secretary General Diallo Telli to discuss his trip to Nigeria and explain Britain's position on the civil war.

The Nigerian army claimed it had captured two towns 16 miles north of Umuahia and said federal forces had "resumed the offensive" on three fronts. But earlier Tuesday the Biafrans claimed they were repelling a massive three-pronged attack north of Umuahia.

The Nigerian army also said it had surrounded Biafran forces which cut off a brigade of marine commandos in the town of Owerri. It was the first official admission that the nearly 2,000 soldiers had been isolated in the central Biafran town.

Dentist Shot by Robbers

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Jack Lindzon, 27, a dentist who was shot in the abdomen when he pursued two men following a bank robbery in the downtown area, was reported in fair condition Tuesday night after emergency surgery.

George Bradley, 21, and John Albert Martin, 30, both of Toronto, were arrested in a nearby rooming house shortly after the robbery.

About $18,000 taken in the holdup from the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce was recovered.

Both Bradley and Martin were charged with robbery. Bradley was also charged with wounding and possession of an offensive weapon. Police seized a 9-millimetre semi-automatic pistol.

Police also charged the men with the robbery of a York Trust Co. branch in north Toronto last June in which $25,000 was taken.

In addition, Bradley was charged with robbery at the same York Trust branch in November, 1967, in which $11,000 was taken and with breaking and entering at a Toronto home in 1968, in which $21,000 was stolen.

Bradley's wife, Linda, 22, was charged with eight counts of possession of stolen goods.

Dr. Lindzon was shot when he chased two men after he left a school next door to the Sherbourne Street Bank. He was walking to his parked car when two men ran by, followed by Alan Dow, a bank employee.

Dr. Lindzon's mother said "it was foolish" of her son to get involved. "He was always honest... maybe too honest."

Police said one of the men turned around and shot the dentist.

HILDA'S COLUMN

There is nothing more satisfying to a Loblaw manager than the feeling he gets when a hard-to-please customer gives him a compliment.

He knows that he does his best to please every customer who shops in his store, but when a shopper takes the time to write me about the excellent service she is getting at Loblaws—that makes the manager, his staff, the president and everyone at Loblaws feel 10 feet tall.

And it happens every day!

Hilda Wilson

P.S. We also feel pretty good when even we get to the bottom of a customers "beef" and correct the situation so it never happens again.

Air Space Autonomy Involved

Bertrand 'Off Rocker' on Airport Issue Claims Trudeau

OTTAWA (CP) — The Quebec-Ottawa airport dispute entered the name-calling stage Tuesday as Prime Minister Trudeau said Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand of Quebec was "off his rocker."

The federal Liberal leader's off-the-cuff comment to reporters got back to Mr. Bertrand, who said it was a "childish" thing for the prime minister to say.

Mr. Trudeau's outburst followed Quebec's rejection of Ottawa's choice for the new international airport to serve Montreal. It is at St. Scholastique, 26 miles northwest of the city's centre.

Despite the Trudeau attack on Mr. Bertrand, the two levels of government still appeared anxious to discuss the airport site.

Quebec's Union Nationale government proposed a cabinet-level meeting Thursday in Montreal to talk it over.

Transport Minister Paul Hellyer would represent the central government and Municipal Affairs Minister Robert Lussier the Quebec government. The federal reaction was not known, although Mr. Trudeau had let it be known earlier that he is still willing to talk.

Mr. Bertrand seemed to indicate in a chat with reporters that the issue will be resolved.

"We will not object provided we have further discussions with them," he said at one point.

Mr. Trudeau said Mr. Bertrand's suggestion that he (Mr. Trudeau) was a cause of Quebec separatism was a "stupid argument."

When Mr. Bertrand says the federal government's choice of airport site is to the "overwhelming disadvantage" of Montreal citizens and rather serves Ontario, "I really think he is off his rocker. Perhaps I shouldn't say that."

For Quebec politicians to suggest that only Quebec looks after Quebec and Ottawa tries to injure the province "is not only fantasy, but even insulting."

Mr. Trudeau said that Quebec talks about the importance of preserving its autonomy, yet wants an airport site south of the St. Lawrence River which would force planes to use U.S. air space.

The Canadian government did not want to use the air space of a foreign power for a Canadian airport. It was not a good idea to put Canadian sovereignty in U.S. hands—in a position where U.S. permission would be required.

Coats For Spring

These two topcoat looks for spring will keep men up-to-date on fashion. At left is a slim-fitting coat of wool diagonal with flap pockets, centre vent back and high English collar. The other is black and white checked wool in a double-breasted fitted coat with highway-man collar and longer length. (CP Photo)

Shop Once A Year

City Girls Adjust to Life in North

KASHECHEWAN, Ont. (CP) — When a girl runs out of sugar in this northern outpost, the nearest corner store is almost 300 miles away in Timmins. So she learns to be careful about making her once-yearly grocery list.

But shopping is only one of the household headaches confronting three city-bred girls who now make their home among the Cree Indians in this tarpaper settlement on the west shore of James Bay.

Donna Ward, a 27-year-old Toronto native whose husband, Grant, is an Anglican minister, was used to the cellophane convenience of meat counters. She didn't know what to do when first presented with a 14-pound slab of caribou meat.

A Cree woman showed her how a northern housewife handles the situation — go to the woodshed for a big saw, plunk the frozen slab onto the sawed-down door of the wood stove and hack the meat into useable chunks.

Storage is a problem too, because the Grants had to order $1,000 worth of groceries from Timmins when they moved here last year with their three young children after three years at Moose Factory, 100 miles south.

"You stick it behind the doors, under the beds, every-where," says Donna.

"And me, I used to forget things when I shopped once a week—but when you have to shop for a year!"

She and the other two "outside women" in the settlement — Evangelical missionaries Wilma Larocque, 26, of Parry Sound, Ont., and Gloria Paterson, 29, of Quebec—have learned another housekeeping rule. Never let the stove go out.

Not only is it a vital part of their homes' heating systems, but it's also tough to rekindle with no daily newspaper. Meals, all cooked on the stove, can't wait for the next mail delivery.

The three women also sport the latest in frigid fashions: Trim a parka with half a fox fur, letting the tail hang loose down the left side. You can tuck it across your face into the parka when the temperature dips to 30 below.

The Wards' daughters, Krista, 5, and Anita, 3, are beginning to pick up the language of their Cree playmates. Son Stephen is just one year old.

The children's games are much the same as those anywhere, except they carry their dolls the same way Mommy carries Stephen—papoose-style.

The two young Evangelical missionaries, who worked in northern Saskatchewan before coming here five years ago, said their superiors had doubts about sending them into the wilds.

"But we're a lot safer here than we would be in any of the cities," says Gloria.

They operate the health clinic and Wilma says: "I sometimes go out in the middle of the night on a sick call and I never even think of there being anything wrong about walking around in the dark."

They also conduct knitting classes for Indian women, using donated yarn or unravelled sweaters.

All three women say the Crees have been good to them, giving them meat and fish.

The Indian wives have also shared their recipes for bannock, a pan-sized baking powder biscuit, and teapalos, tea containing flour and lard to give it body. Teapalos hasn't become one of the outsiders' favorites.

Mine Rescue Workers Brave Cave-ins, Heat and Poison Gas

BARROTERAN, Mexico (AP) —Rescue workers braved cave-ins, 100-degree heat and poison gas as they dug deep today in a soft-coal mine in which officials said between 151 and 155 Mexican miners were buried by an explosion two days ago.

Before dawn 23 bodies had been recovered. Mine officials said another 128 to 132 men were still trapped 450 feet underground.

It is generally believed all are dead.

Seven experts of the U.S. Bureau of Mines are to reach this small mining town later today to advise Mexican authorities on faster removal of the dead and restoration of the shattered mine.

Juan Heitz, managing director of the Altos Hornos de Mexico S.A. mining concern that owns the diggings, said hours of checking assignment sheets still left the whereabouts of four men in doubt. This produced the uncertainty about the number of victims.

Heitz spoke of them all as "bodies" but emphasized:

"We are changing nothing in our efforts. We are not stopping for a minute, even though there is no life, until every man is out."

Five or 10 mules also were believed killed in the disaster, described by Gomez Sada, secretary of mining, as the worst in Mexico's mining history.

When methane gas exploded and set off a two-hour fire in the underground tunnels Monday afternoon, most of Barroteran's 8,000 population converged on the mine entrances. Troops had to hold them back.

By Tuesday grim resignation had set in.

"No one would be able to live through those explosions and gas," said Fortunato Salinas, one of the oldest miners here. "This is the worst of them all."

Asked what might have caused the blast, Heitz said:

"It seems now that the equipment was functioning perfectly. That could mean human error, but this is only a supposition."

There are five interlaced mines at Barroteran, 75 miles south of the Texas border town of Eagle Pass. All are at the foot of Santa Rosa Mountain in the Sierra Madre range. The No. 3 and 4 mines, connected by 2,000-foot tunnels, were worst hit.

Officials said all the bodies recovered so far were badly scorched, bruised and broken, but it had not been determined whether the men died of suffocation or were crushed by cave-ins.

About 150 miners were working around the clock to clear rock and rubble in the No. 2 and 3 mines. Every hour they were rotated in groups of 25.

Initially they had to work with oxygen masks, but by Tuesday night more than 40,000 cubic feet of fresh air was reported circulating in the tunnels. Many miners still entered the sizzling No. 3 ramp holding half an onion under their nose, to overcome the nauseous effect of carbon monoxide fumes that follow any major mine blasts.

A company official who witnessed the blast said it was "like a mushroom cloud of coal dust." Miners in Palau, 17 miles from here, said they felt the earth trembling and rushed from their tunnels in fear. They remembered a 1939 disaster in their mine that killed 70 miners.

But aside from the frantic rescue workers, one can see little evidence of the explosion above ground except a the mine entrance, where foot-thick rail supports are strewn around like match sticks.

Day and night the temperatures are fierce inside the tunnels. Strings of 200-watt light bulbs were put up Tuesday night and the lights on miners' hats looked like fireflies when they descended at a shift change.

A distraught father rushed into the mine in search of his son. Rescue workers pulled him out but he was dead—asphyxiated in a gas-filled tunnel.

Pearson Arrives at New Delhi For Talks About Development

NEW DELHI (AP) — Former prime minister Lester B. Pearson of Canada arrived here by air today at the head of a three-man Commission of International Development for talks here with representatives of India, Ceylon and Nepal.

Set up last August at the urging of World Bank President Robert McNamara, the commission is charged with reviewing the record of development assistance during the last 20 years in order to arrive at recommendations for future development policies both in developed and developing nations.

Pearson told reporters he already had had preliminary discussion "in a general way" with India's deputy prime minister, Morarji Desai, with whom he flew from Karachi, Pakistan.

Desai, returning after representing India at Gen. Eisenhower's funeral, was joined at Karachi by Pearson and his commission, who had just concluded talks with Pakistan officials and businessmen.

Pearson said he is visiting India for the first time after 14 years but "with deep feeling for the measure of economic development difficulties facing this country."

His talks with the three countries here will cover "a wide range of topics not in any way restricted to operations of any one organization," he said.

The commission's report will be ready by September for presentation to the World Bank and he hopes "our recommendations may be useful to everyone involved in the field of economic development, especially the governments both of developed and less developed countries."

Indian Food Minister Jagjivan Ram received the commission, which includes Sir Edward Boyle of Britain and Japan's Saburo Okita.

The commission is scheduled to go on to Singapore, Canberra and Tokyo.

But Pay Is Raised

Soo Policewoman Loses Bid For Equal Status

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Ali Lois Beckst got in her fight for equal status with 100 policemen was more money and a uniform.

Miss Beckett, who has been charging sexual discrimination in a 18-month fight for first-class constable's status in the Sault Ste. Marie police force, was told by an arbitration board Tuesday her claim is invalid.

The three-man board under G. S. Ferguson, formed after a directive from the Ontario Supreme Court, did recommend that she receive a raise to $570 a month from $412.50.

It also granted her service pay from September, 1948, when she joined the force, as well as the right to wear a uniform.

A city official estimated Tuesday Miss Beckett will receive between $5,000 and $6,000 in retroactives and service pay.

But she was denied her bid for first-class constable status, access to other police equipment and the right to membership in the police association.

Miss Beckett, 38, was employed with the neighboring Tarentorus Township police from 1961 to 1965—that period was dropped from her service pay—and returned here when the city and township amalgamated.

The arbitration board was ordered by the Supreme Court of Ontario to make its decision in light of a 1964 judgment that declared Miss Beckett a constable without any qualifications.

Her pay was set then between the pay of a second- and third-class constable. Current rates are $560 a month for a third-class constable and $580 for a second-class constable. Tuesday the arbitration board ruled that her status would remain the same as established in 1964.

Miss Beckett's lawyer, Henry Lang, told the board that Miss Beckett had not received a raise since she was reclassified as a communications clerk-typist from a constable in 1965.

Mr. Lang, who said he will appeal the board's decision, told Mr. Ferguson last fall that Miss Beckett is a first-class constable assigned to other work.

He compared the situation to the police chief being assigned "to sweep the floor in the police building."

Miss Becket had her uniform taken away in 1965. George Priddle, lawyer for the Sault Ste. Marie police commission, told the board she was overpaid at $412.50 for clerk-typist duties.

The board's 10-page report said the police commission could not undermine the decision by reclassification or other action which might affect Miss Beckett's work.

Animals For Research Must Be Disease-free

TORONTO (CP) — The chief veterinarian at the Hospital for Sick Children says animals are necessary for medical research, but not just any animal will do.

In an interview at the hospital's animal research laboratories, Dr. Robert Wilson explained the importance of having disease-free dogs bred under controlled conditions for research work.

A bill before the Ontario legislature would force animal shelters operated by Humane societies to surrender any unclaimed, unsold animals to research institutions.

"People who are anxious to use dogs from random sources (pounds and shelters) for research would never dream of going into the city's sewers to catch rats for the same purpose," said Dr. Wilson.

He said the Hospital for Sick Children stopped using random animals 2½ years ago.

Dr. Wilson said that about 25 per cent of the dogs still had to be killed because they retained some disease.

Today the hospital pays between $100 and $125 for specially-bred dogs from one of the biggest dealers on the continent at North Groves, N.Y.

Dr. Wilson said research programs are so costly because of equipment and surgeons' time that a pound dog is not good enough.

No Relief For Weeklies

Kierans Stands Pat on Postal Rates

OTTAWA (CP) — Under Commons questioning, communications minister Kierans indicated Tuesday the government intends to stand pat on higher mailing rates for weekly newspapers.

Mr. Kierans, also postmaster-general, told John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert) weeklies are among those "embarrassed" least by the increases in second-class rates that went into effect Tuesday.

The minister said the taxpayer was paying 86 to 87 per cent of the cost of mail delivery of weeklies under the old system. That was too high.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Tuesday amounted to execution day for many weeklies because of the increases.

Alfred D. Hales (PC—Wellington) asked what steps the government is taking to alleviate congestion that will build up because of the lack of mail delivery on the Easter weekend.

He noted there is no urban home delivery on Saturdays any more and mail delivery will also be cancelled Good Friday.

Mr. Kierans said the post office has been working out a way to relieve congestion with the postal unions.

Cancer Forum for Women Set for BCI on Thursday

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

A cancer forum Thursday night at Belleville Collegiate auditorium could be a blessing for the woman who is concerned or even frightened of cancer.

"The intention is to provide information freely without embarrassment," today explained Clarence Fuzzen, public relations officer for the Belleville Cancer Society campaign this year.

The forum will feature four doctors specializing in cancer and its effect on women.

To save embarrassment, the women will have the opportunity to fill out slips of paper with their personal problems and in this way the doctors may answer without attracting attention to any particular woman.

In the past, according to Mr. Fuzzen, the people attending these forums have been "impressed by the quality of the people on the panel."

"The attendance has always been great," said Mr. Fuzzen. "They've had great success with the reception of the women."

"Fear of cancer can kill more people than cancer itself", he added.

The forum offered those fearing cancer an opportunity to discover whether or not they have any symptoms.

"The fear that is very often involved is relieved when they know their signs are not cancer."

"There is a large incidence of cancer within the female organs. The incidence is much higher than it should be because of the reluctance of women to go and be examined."

The forum can alleviate much of this reluctance.

"They do secretly worry about these things, but they don't have to keep it a secret at this forum," Mr. Fuzzen said.

"We're bringing in specialists that are very highly qualified. They're not asking some amateur."

"Many of the cases can be cured if they are spotted in time." The forum can assist in early diagnosis.

The event will include two films for the information of the all-woman audience.

The four doctors on hand will be Dr. R. C. Burr, Dr. D. L. C. Bingham, Dr. James Low of Kingston and Dr. K. M. Douglas, Belleville.

Dr. Douglas is chief of the surgical department at Belleville General Hospital. He has been advisor to the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Cancer Society for about ten years.

Dr. Douglas was made a fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons in 1949 and practised surgery in England and Scotland before immigrating to Canada in 1953.

He was made a certified surgeon of the Royal College of Surgeons and Doctors in 1955 and a fellow of the American College of Surgeons in 1963.

Dr. Burr is director of the Ontario Cancer Treatment and Research Foundation in Kingston, a post he has held since 1947.

He is also vice president of the Ontario Division of the Cancer Society.

Dr. Bingham is a specialist in carcinoma of the breast and author of numerous papers on surgical subjects.

He is a fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons in Edinburgh and Canada.

Dr. Bingham is professor of surgery at Queen's University in Kingston.

Dr. Low is professor of obstetrics and gynecology and is head of that department at Queen's University and the Kingston General Hospital.

He became a fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons of Canada in 1955.

Dr. Low has written extensively on foetal and neonatal problems and is active in the treatment of cancer in females.

The cancer forum, the first in Belleville, begins tomorrow night at eight p.m. Admission to any woman is free.

New Treatment Methods Tried

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Scientists are planning to heat up the human body with artificial fevers in hopes of killing cancers. They also plan to use anti-cancer drugs simultaneously for a double punch.

Some 100 years ago, a German doctor noticed that a man with cancer of the jaw recovered after an infection causing high fever.

Much more recent research points to heat as a weapon against cancer. Dr. Charles Heidelberger of the University of Wisconsin said today in a report to an American Cancer Society seminar for science writers.

Co-operative research at Wisconsin and the University of Rome, Italy, showed that heating the blood supply in the arms and legs to about 107 degrees Fahrenheit produced complete disappearance of cancers in eight of 22 patients. They have been well now for at least two years, two of them for more than four years. Normal body temperature is 98.6.

The American-Italian team shared its early heat findings with Dr. John S. Stehlin of the Baylor University College of Medicine in Houston, Tex.

For some 10 years, Dr. Stehlin had been treating cancers of the arms and legs—melanoma or black cancer, and bone cancers—with a technique that concentrated the flow of an anti-cancer drug into the blood supply only of the affected limbs.

The treatment of drug plus heat to 110 to 115 degrees benefited 75 per cent of 85 patients with melanoma, double the rate of good results obtained with the drug alone, Dr. Stehlin said. Amputations have been avoided. Recoveries in a few cases of bone cancer of limbs also are promising, he added.

Dr. Heidelberger spoke for a Wisconsin team which plans first to use heat alone for whole body treatment. Patients will be placed in a cabinet with a diathermy machine heating blood and tissues from the inside rather than through the skin. It is hoped this treatment may kill off cancer cells which have spread from an original site in the body and cannot be tackled by surgery or x-rays.

Later, the whole body heat treatent will be combined with drugs.

Canadian Discovery Used

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A fundamental Canadian discovery —made only 10 days ago—is raising bright, if early, hopes for a blood test to detect bowel cancer almost before it gets started.

It improves prospects for curing cancer of the colon and rectum, second only to skin cancer in incidence, but far more deadly.

The new finding, reported Tuesday by Canadian researchers headed by Dr. Phil Gold, is that a substance, called an anigen, specific for this kind of cancer, circulates in the bloodstream. It can be detected by use of prepared antibodies to it.

Gold is a professor and researcher at McGill University's medical school. His associates include Dr. David Thompson and Dr. Samuel Freedman.

He told an American Cancer Society seminar for science writers there is initial evidence that all the anigen disappears if all the tumor is removed in surgery. If some antigen remains, it apparently means the cancer has spread to other sites. But those likely could again be coaxed by using radioactive antibodies and removed by surgery.

The finding might also lead to new ways of combatting bowel cancer with antibodies or other methods.

An antigen is simply something on the surface structure of a cell. All cells contain numerous antigens.

Out of 150 people with various diseases, the tests picked up 30 known to have bowel cancer, Gold said. In a couple of patients since operated upon, all the antigen have disappeared within 48 hours.

Checking back on blood preserved from other patients who had bowel cancer some years ago, the tests found antigen in blood of persons whose cancers had spread.

Gold cautioned that thousands of tests must be run before it is learned if the technique will be as useful as it first promises to be.

Smoking Causes Damage

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Smoking just one cigarette produces definite effects on the placenta that nourishes a woman's unborn baby, a physician finds from heat measurements of the body.

One effect is to cool the placenta a few degrees from its normal temperature and "we assume there is some restriction of the blood supply" in that organ, says Dr. Joann D. Hasberman, radiologist of Temple University's school of medicine in Philadelphia.

The unborn infant may be affected, she says, reporting studies that found babies born to mothers who smoked cigarettes had a lower than average weight at birth and more were born prematurely.

Nicotine from smoking one cigarette constricts little blood vessels, and the temperature of the skin of the hand may drop from a few to 10 degrees or more, with the cooling effects lasting from 15 to 80 minutes, Dr. Haberman told an American Cancer Society seminar this week.

The 1968-69 regular-season records of the six NHL expansion entries are a collective disaster. And there is little reason to think that things will change now that the battle for Lord Stanley's silver flagon is under way.

Only St. Louis won more games than they lost, and scored more goals than they had scored against them in the league circuit. The Blues, you may recall, clinched the Western Division pennant about a week after the season began.

This year's coast home, and their strong showing against Montreal in last year's first post-expansion Cup final (despite losing out in four straight games) has to make the Blues the only serious white hope for the west in the weeks ahead.

The best goaltending in hockey (Messrs. Hall and Plante flashed a whopping 39 goals ahead of everybody), a reasonably productive offence (284 goals from the likes of Red Berenson (35), Gary Sabourin (25), and Ab McDonald (21), and some bleeding bumpers (a handful of Plagers and Douglas Harvey) are what will help the Blues oust Philadelphia in a maximum five games.

. (Nobody is too sure exactly how the Flyers got into the playoffs in the first place, winning only 26 games in finishing third, while sporting Andre Lacroix (24) as the team's leading light-blinker.)

Meanwhile, Oakland's Seals should take no more than six semi-final swings to dispose of their Los Angeles neighbors for the right to be beaten out by St. Louis.

Besides having possibly the best pound-for-pound coach in hockey in Fred Glover, the Seals can boast the best offence in the west on 219 goals contributed by centre respects like Ted Hampson (36), Billy Hicke (25), Gary Jarrett (22), and Gerry Ehman (21).

A 31-goal service by rookie of Norm Ferguson shouldn't do the Seals any harm, either. And back on the blueline, Oakland interests are best protected by Carol Vadnais, who also found time to collect 13 goals and 42 points the past 76 games.

If only they could find some people to come out and watch them play!

With the best expansionist record against the hard-core eastern NHL-ers (14 wins, 4 ties in 36 games), the Seals have to be the out-of-sight longshots for all the marbles. As for Los Angeles, their defeat will not surprise or disappoint anyone, including coach "Red" Kelly who, people tell me, is in the market for French Imlach's behind-bench chores.

It should take the Blues six games to dispose of Oakland, the only applecart-upsetter possibly being St. Louis apathy after finishing so far ahead of the pack — 19 points over the Seals.

A second consecutive Blues-Canadiens final is a distinct possibility. Even though New York had a 43-1 edge on the Habs this winter, the Rangers' sporadic signs of Rastelle-Gilles-Hadfield brilliance will make it no more than six games of the relentless Montreal slashing game. Even iron-man pipsmaker Ed Giacomin will not be enough to stem the Hab tide.

Like it or not, the Habs play hockey like nobody's business. With a lineup of Beliveau, Cournoyers, Tremblays, and Rousseaus, Montreal could lok good with Grandma Moses — let alone Claude Ruel — behind the bench.

Montreal's supreme challenge of the age will probably come from Boston Bruins — the 303-Goal Kids.

Little need to start cataloguing the reasons the Bruins will knock off the Leafs in six games: a few numbers should suffice: 126 (Esposo's humped-crop); 7 (number of 20-goal men); and 4 (need you ask — Bobby Orr's ice I.D.) In addition, the Bruins have the most underrated goaltending duet in the league in the persons of Gerry Cheevers and Eddie Johnston.

Here, an honorable mention to Toronto; with their Hurricane Punch finish, the Leafs showed how badly they want to win — a key to Stanley Cup success. Keon, Pulford, Boston and Armstrong are among the most tested playoff performers around, and Bruce Gamble can get as hot as a Syrian sidewalk. A lei blogger on the performances of the young defencemen, but if the Leafs ever managed to make the Gardens' Jinx work for them (the Bruins haven't won on Toronto ice in nearly four years) they could get a crack at Montreal.

If that happens, the Leafs will only have a six-game warm-up before playing St. Louis.

But, barring another Leafian miracle a la '67, it looks like the Easterners and Pea-soupers for eastern honors.

It is at this juncture in similar situations that I take leave of all my senses and pick with my heart instead of my head. So it's got to be the Bruins in seven games. Not a clear reason than I want to see the Canadiens see how the other half (i-e. — the losers) live.

Besides, Boston won four and tied two of eight regular-season encounters with the Habs.

Whatever the outcome, the series promises to be one of the greatest in Cup history.

Oh yes, the eastern finalists will yawn their way past the Leafs in five games, six if they need the money. Not even Joe Nalmath could prevent that!

If confidence can win hockey games, New York Rangers should be a shoo-in to win the Stanley Cup.

Both the coach and players of the Rangers have expressed confidence that they will take their quarter-final playoff series against Montreal Canadiens and then go on to win the Stanley Cup. Best-of-seven quarter-finals open in both divisions on the National Hockey League tonight.

'Emile , Francis, New York coach and general manager, said in Montreal Tuesday night:

"I think we have an edge in defence and goaltending. If we can do the forechecking we are capable of, we can take the series. I-know this club is a lot stronger than our last playoff teams."

Francis, convinced the winner of this series will win the Stanley Cup, said before his team left New York for Montreal:

"We're playing the best and whichever team remains will be the best."

"I like our chances because we're rolling as we start the playoffs," said veteran defenceman Harry Howell.

"I'm quite optimistic about these playoffs," said Ron Stewart. "Only a major injury or two might keep us from going all the way."

Claude Ruel, coach of the defending Stanley Cup champion Canadiens, was more restrained in predicting the outcome of the series.

"With these two teams there's no doubt it will be a skating series," he said Tuesday, "But the difference could be in the goalkeeping."

In the other Eastern Division game tonight, Toronto Maple Leafs meet the Bruins in Boston in a series expected to be rough and hard-hitting. In the Western Division, Philadelphia Flyers open in St. Louis against the Blues, division champions and Stanley Cup finalists last year, and Los Angeles Kings meet the second-place Seals in Oakland.

The Montral-New York game will be televised nationally on the CBC.

The Rangers seem to have the edge in goaltending. In Ed Giacomin, they have the top netminder in the Eastern Division. He appeared in 70 games during the season, finished with a 2.55 goals-against average. Gump Worsley, formerly a Ranger, is expected to start for the Canadiens. He appeared in 43 games for a 2.36 mark while Rogatien Vachon worked in 36 games and had a 2.87 average.

The Bruins, who haven't won the Stanley Cup since 1940-41, are out to end their 28-year drought after finishing a close second to Montreal in the regular season and setting an NHL team-scoring record of 303 goals.

The Maple Leafs just made the playoffs with a fourth-place finish, but Boston coach Harry Sinden is not taking the Leafs lightly.

"We expect a close-checking series, typical playoff hockey," Sinden said.

Leaf coach Punch Imlach, known for his positive thinking, says he feels the Bruins have the edge because of their scoring punch, their regular-season finish and home-ice advantage.

"Only once in the last 20 years has a fourth-place team come on to win the Stanley Cup," he said.

The Bruins, the most penalized team this season, and the Maple Leafs play a similar type of game—bruising and aggressive—and players of both teams have been involved in brawls during the season.

Home ice could play a major role in this series. The Maple Leafs have not won a game in Boston all season and the Sinden is not taking the Leafs lightly. Leafs have not won in Toronto since Nov. 27, 1965.

Mudcat Shuts Out Reds In Bid to Start Expos' Opener

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jim (Mudcat) Grant of Montreal Expos staked a claim Tuesday for next week's opening-day assignment against New York Mets.

Grant, who allowed eight hits In eight innings in an exhibition baseball game against Cincinnati Reds, combined with Carroll Sembera to shut out the Reds 5-0 as major league teams moved into their final week of spring training.

The Expos play their opening National League game against the Mets April 8 in New York, and Grant showed mid-season form Tuesday in helping to blank the Reds.

Grant, 33, acquired from Los Angeles Dodgers in the expansion draft last year, is hoping to regain his 1965 form when as a 21-game winner with Minnesota Twins he helped the Twins win the American League pennant.

Montreal won the game Tuesday in the first on a three-run homer behind two walks, two flingles and Cincinnati throwing error.

In other games Tuesday, Seattle Pilots whipped California Angels 14-9, St. Louis Cardinals edged Detroit Tigers 5-4 in 10 innings, Boston Red Sox blanked New York Yankees 2-0, Kansas City Athletics trimmed Baltimore Orioles 3-0, Philadelphia Phillies slugged Minnesota, 11-5, Chicago Cubs whipped San Diego Padres 8-5, New York Mets drubbed Pittsburgh Pirates 7-3, Atlanta Braves topped Chicago White Sox 7-5 and Cleveland Indians repped San Francisco Giants 6-5 and Los Angeles Dodgers downed Houston Astros 7-3 in 10 innings.

Dick Stuart, making a comeback bid with California, pinch hit a grand-slam homer in the top of the sixth inning against Seattle.

The blast sent the Angels ahead 8-7, but Stuart's teammates commutted four errors in the bottom of the sixth, handing the Pilots seven unearned runs.

Detroit's Ron Woods dropped Tim McCarver's fly ball for a two-base error in the 10th and Steve Hunts' two-out single delivered the winning run for the Cardinals.

Ray Culp allowed just two hits for eight innings and Sparky Lyle pitched a hitless ninth, leading the Red Sox past the Yankees.

Roger Nelson stopped his former Baltimore mates on four hits through the sixth and Mike Hedlund mopped up with three perfect innings as the Royals handed the Orioles their fourth setback in 81 spring starts.

Tim Foli-an homers by Mike Ryan and Ricardo Joseph powered the Phillies' past Minnesota.

Billy Williams slammed a three-run homer and Ron Santo connected with one on in the Cubs' triumph over San Diego.

Tommie Agee lashed a homer, double and single for the Mets' who cuffed Pittsburgh starter Bob Veale for five runs in the first two innings.

The Braves rallied for four runs in the ninth to overtake the White Sox.

Richie Scheinlun delivered the Indians winning run with a second double, a two-out shot in the ninth.

Bill Sudakis' sacrifice fly, Wes Parker's two-run single and Paul Popovich's RBI single broke up the Dodgers-Astros duel in the 10th after an error by Doug Rader opened the gates.

People Look For Long White Beard

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Jim (Mudcat) Grant of Montreal Expos claims he doesn't have any hang-ups, but he can't help feeling that when people look at him they see a man with a cane and a long white beard.

"Maybe it's an association with my nickname, maybe it's because I've been around a while," Grant said. "I really don't know why, but everybody seems to think I'm old. Wherever I go, people are calling me 'Ol' Mudcat'

"Heck, I'm no older than Marichal, Drysdale or Gibson.

"But there's little you can do about it. I don't have any mental hang-ups. I'm only as good as I am. The only way to show your age is out there on the mound. I'll meet the challenge —and if I can't, that's it."

The challenge was laid down by manager Gene Mauch as soon as the Expos acquired the 33-year-old right-hander from Los Angeles Dodgers in the expansion draft that stocked the new National League club.

"He told me I'm going to be a starter," Grant said.

"I have to assume I have got to justify their willingness to buy me. I also have to assume if I don't develop as a starter and don't show my ability they'll put somebody in my place."

The challenge is great because Grant was a 21-game winner in 1965 with Minnesota Twins before being traded to the Dodgers and was used sparingly.

"The Dodgers were justified," Grant admitted. "I didn't get the ball that much with them, but they felt the people they were working with were more important to their future. It was unjustified at Minnesota."

Grant didn't elaborate, but the record show he pitched 270 innings for the Twins in 1965, 240 in 1966 when his record dropped to 13-13 and only in 1967, the season before he was traded to Los Angeles.

Grant, of course, feels he can justify Mauch's faith in him and prove both the Twins and Dodgers wrong.

"It's going to be tough," he said. "I mean I have to get used to going long range again. I have to build my stamina and I'm a lot of hard, hard work in camp. But I'm sure I can do it."

The players have asked that a share of the government's profits from soccer be set aside to finance the project. The government gets millions of dollars every year from the game.

The money comes from taxes on ticket sales and a large share of the profits of the weekly nationwide soccer lottery and from disciplinary fines paid by the players for protests and rough play.

The request was aimed at protecting soccer stars who do not put aside enough money during their careers to manage a decent living when they quit soccer. It would also give a financial cushion to three minor league players who never get to the big money.

Give Them a Foot...

ROME (AP) — A delegation of top Italian soccer stars has asked the Italian government to grant old soccer players pensions and medical assistance.

The reques was made to the Italian minister for tourism and sports, by a delegation representing the recently established Soccer Players Association.

FREE COLOR PICTURES OFFERED BY BOOTH RADIO

Free color photographs, developed in 60 seconds with the new Polaroid Colorpack II camera are being offered by Booth Radio and Television Ltd. during a special in-store photographic promotion Thursday, April 3, 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. and Saturday April 5, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The store is highlighting the "fun of instant photography" and the full range of new Polaroid automatic photography and control, even for flash pictures. It has a unique three-element lens unmatched in optical qualities by any less in any other camera in its price range, and is equipped with a built-in flash gun which uses single flashcubes.

The lightweight Colorpack II uses the same drop-in loading film packs as the more expensive Polaroid Color Pack cameras, producing big color prints in 60 seconds and finished black and white pictures in seconds.

The store also has arranged a complete display of all of the new Polaroid instant-picture cameras, including the deluxe Model 300 which features a slip-on electronic flash that eliminates the need for flashbulbs and allows the user to take superb exposures at a speed of 1/1000th of a second.

Customers are invited to visit the store and ask for a demonstration of new and "fun" Polaroid cameras. They will be given the 60-second color picture right on the spot as a personal souvenir of the "fun of instant photography" promotion.

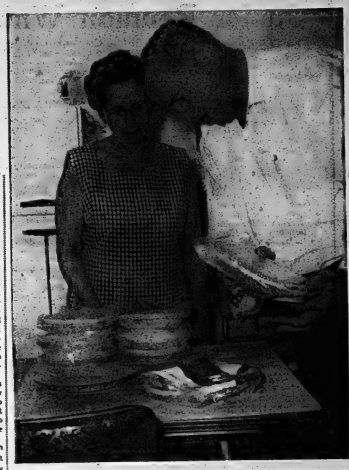
Shrine Tourney Means Full Middleton House

STAFF—Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Middleton of Corbyville will have a real "Family Affair" at their home this weekend.

A hockey "Family Affair" that is, for the Middletons will act as hosts for a dozen peewee-age hockey players who will be representing an out - of - town team in the Belleville Shrine Club's annual peewee hockey tournament.



Elmer "Buster" Middleton, a Shriner who is putting up 12 boys to help ease the lodging shortage confronting the Shrine tournament, said "It'll be a new experience for us; we've never acted as overnight hosts like this before, but we've always had boys around our house."

"I think it's a great thing for the kids," he added "and the tournament's for the benefit of crippled children, so it's a very worthwhile cause."

"We're prepared for any eventualities," said Dorothy Middleton. "I've already made a dozen pies and put them in the freezer for the weekend, and we'll stock up on things like milk, bacon, eggs and cereals for breakfast Saturday morning."

Over 200 players from 12 teams will be lodged in Belleville Thursday and Friday nights for the 16-team tournament which begins Friday at 8 a.m. and runs through until 10 p.m. Saturday evening.

Thus, even though the Middletons will have a fuller house than most this weekend, they will be just one of many Belleville and district families who will open their doors and welcome out-of-town hockey warriors to Belleville and the Shrine Club tournament.

The Invading Horde

Elmer and Dorothy Middleton of Corbyville are in the midst of preparing home-made pies for the freezer — the reason — they will be hosting a dozen players who will compete in the weekend's annual Belleville Shrine Club peewee hockey tournament. The invading horde of young players are quite likely to bring their appetites with them, so the Middletons plan on being well-prepared.

By Gordie Howe

Throwing a leg over the boards to get onto the ice is fast and prepares you for a quick takeoff. Be careful, though, you aren't called for interfering with an opponent skating by.

The stick behind you is out of the way, but be careful to lift it over the boards. Don't just tip it over; the blade end could hit a teammate on the bench.

Wanted: 1800 Hockey Fans To Fill Tweed Rink For Juves

STAFF —Hockey is the name of the game, and the brand that the Tweed Juvenile "D" club has exhibited this season has been both effective and crowd pleasing.

Tweed fans have been very appreciative of their team which has won 26 games this season while losing only one and tying one.

Attendance at home games this season has never been under 400, and reached a high of 1500 during Tweed's recent elimination of Fenlon Falls in the semi-finals of the Ontario playdowns.

The peak capacity of 1800 has yet to be reached, but that milestone will likely come this weekend when the Juveniles play host to Watford Friday and Saturday nights at 8.30 in the third and fourth games of their best of seven series for the Ontario Juvenile "D" title.

Tweed leads the series two games to none on the strength of a pair of 3-1 victories last weekend in Watford, a rural community 20 miles north of London.

Tweed advanced to the Ontario finals by compiling a regular season record of 13 wins and a tie in 14 games, and then eliminating Marmora, Stirling and Fenlon Falls in quick succession to capture both the Eastern and Central Ontario titles.

Coach Terry LeSage's team has limited the opposition to 59 goals in 28 games, and has averaged four goals to each one scored by the opposition.

The Tweed squad has played all season with only three defensemen protecting netminder Bert Keller, but this has been made possible by the play of three well-balanced forward lines.

Tweed has been forced to employ centre Bill Wright and left winger Rick Holmes on defence since rearguard Murray Spencer, the team captain, suffered a broken collarbone in the last game with Fenlon Falls and another member of the defence corps, Doug Geen, came up with a bruised ankle last weekend in Watford.

Geen is expected to play this weekend, when the Tweed crew makes a concerted effort to sweep the series in four straight games, and win the Ontario crown before the loyal home town crowd.

Tweed's winning combination this season is comprised of left wingers Dorion Lessard, Denny Genereaux and Rick Holmes, centres Mike McCormick, Bill Wright and Brian O'Coin, right wingers Paul Farrell, Bill Boyle and Dave McPherson, rearguards Doug Geen, Murray Spencer and Doug Perry, netminders Bert Kellar and Lorne Douglas and reserve forwards Pete Caughy, Doug Lessard and Donnie Lessard.

Trenton Runners Up to Old Tricks

Six records fell by the wayside Saturday at the annual Boys' Bay of Quinte indoor track and field meet at CFB Trenton.

The meet was dominated by the performance of athletes from Trenton High School, who set three new records and won the team title with 108½ points, 24 more than second place Centennial Secondary School of Belleville.

The records belonged to D. Thompson of Trenton with a time of 2 minutes 10.6 seconds in the open mile, D. Bowman of Trenton with a leap of 40' 10" in the midget triple jump, Frank Johnston of Centennial with a junior long jump of 18' 10", Keith Watson of BCI with a 25' 2¾" distance in the bantam long jump, and Doug Desmah of Picton with a 26.8 second clocking in the midget 100 yard hurdles.

Other outstanding performances came from B. Jones of BCI who captured firsts in the bantam triple jump and 160 yard hurdles, Keith Watson who won the bantam 40 yard dash in addition to his record performance in the long jump, Frank Johnston of Centennial who added the junior 440 yard title to his record breaking long jump and R. Vassey of Centennial with victories in the junior high jump and 100 yard high hurdles.

Trenton totalled the most points in the bantam and senior age classes and came second behind Centennial in the junior class and Picton in the midget division, to accumulate their wide margin of victory.

Sinclair Top Skip

George Sinclair's rink of Marion Little, B. Price and L. Wannamaker defeated Joseph Chisholm's rink on the weekend to win the Tweed Curling Club's mixed title with a total of 54 points.

Chisholm's rink finished in a tie for second, at 51 points, with a rink skipped by Keith Harrison, in a series which saw only 11 points separate the top ten rinks.

Meanwhile, the ladies series is just about settled, with Helen Price's rink holding a commanding 12½ point edge over Alice Thompson's second place rink.

But the men's series title won't be decided until this weekend, when the rinks skipped by Bert Dunne and Joseph Chisholm meet head-on to settle the issue of who is number one.

Parade Draws 800

STAFF — The latest word on Saturday's annual Belleville Sports Day Parade came Tuesday evening from Parade Marshal Colonel Angus B. Duffy "Things are coming together now and the parade is shaping up very well."

"There'll be 800 walkers, primarily minor sports teams and groups, plus visiting teams, horses, clowns, floats, three groups of majorettes, four bands and Shriners from Toronto, Brockville, Kingston and Campbellford, added Parade Marshal Duffy.

The parade will form up at 1.30 p.m. on Wallbridge Crescent, start off at 1.45 p.m., proceed to West Moira Street and down it to cross the Upper Bridge and continue along Front Street until City Hall is reached.

There will be a reviewing stand in front of City Hall, from which celebrities and dignitaries will review the parade, which is run in conjunction with the Belleville Shrine Club's annual peewee hockey tournament.

Junior Reunion Wheezes Past

BY GEO H CARVER

They took periscopic peeks over paunches at skate - shod feet that wobbled drunkenly when a suddenly-shot puck threatened their equilibrium.

Most of 'em showed signs of weight, comely ski boasting pates that are ideal skating rinks for the dandruff seniors.

They wheezed and they breezed, and they nearly blew the house down. They hobbled, wobbled, and crobbled but showed surprising condition especially in the post-game celebration.

Sunday the "Toots" Holway junior hockey team of the early fifties observed their 19th reunion setting an all-Canadian record for observances of this nature in Canadian junior or any other hockey records.

But time has taken its toll, physically. What do you expect of a gaggle of guys, age range 40 - 43, give or take.

Nineteen years ago they were kids. They played hockey for the sheer hell of it. First they dipped in their pockets. Later their emolument was 15 cents for a hot dog if they lost — two bits if they won.

Nineteen years ago they were young. Sunday, suddenly, they were young again, rolling back the curtains of nearly two decades.

There was a sense of pride in the reunion. Proud, not through a sense of hooky ability. They couldn't make a junior "A" team in their day but I think they'd give even at today's age, the club that is representing Canada a run for the money.

But they created, aided and abetted by their beloved manager and coach, the late Toots Holway, and Jack Doran now in hospital undergoing surgery, a bond of friendship, a sense of camaraderie that has remained intact for nearly two decades.

This gang, this lovable gaggle of guys rolled back the years on Sunday — and were "kids" again.

And up there in the misty sidelines of sports Valhalla their late coach "Toots" Holway, and buddies Jerry Mosher, Rance Bush, and Bill Grestric looked down and waved ghostly approval.

Twenty - three of 'em, counting official "crocks" like the writer, "Musty" Reid, Doc Bob Allore (the cancers sharpshooter) and Don Lee the official whistle - tooter, were there.

From afar came the famous or infamous, the great "Nobber" Day who always matches tonsils with his buddy Johnny Semark. From St. Mary's came Jim Markle a walking imitation of a cue-ball. (He brings curling brooms to complete his hair-do).

There were the three fine brother acts, Al and Bernie Meagher, Jackie (the Number one star) and brother Harry Wardhaugh, and the famous Greens, Doug and Bobby.

There was Bruce Bishop, Cal "Porky" Yorke, Moe Rollins, Huck Reeves, Don (Hi-Ho Silver) Barrett, slimmer than usual Bill Holway, Doug Bone (half ton) and others.

"Nobber" Day presented host Don Barrett with the famous "Horse-End Trophy" at the post-game coffee and cake reception held in the Barrett recreation room.

Another standout of the game itself was the appearance of "Great White Hunter" Armand Duffy who appeared in uniform on skates, but was forced to go where the skates led him. At one time he was headed one way — the skates another. Last time seen he was headed out the door chanting "Okay Moscow here I come. I accept the offer."

The post-game reminiscence coffee-and-cakes period was hosted by Don (Junior) Barrett in his lovely recreation room on Montgomery Boulevard.

Doug Green, the master of all the oldtimers surveys, did another excellent job in arranging the 19th reunion of the Belleville Juniors of the early fifties.

Increased Grant Helps New Sports

STAFF — Fostering plans to enlarge their scope from the present four to eight city sporting activities, Belleville's Minor Sports Association has received a financial assist in the form of a $2,400 increase in their annual United Community Services fund grant.

BMSA president Cy Coulson said this year's $9,500 budgetary share of the UCS kitty "will enable us to expand the minor soccer, lacrosse, track, and girls' softball programs which previously relied on a limited number of sponsors and contributions by interested parties."

The four new activities, when added to the existing minor hockey, softball, baseball, and weightlifting programs, will mean the inclusion of some 3,000 city participants and 450 volunteer workers under the BMSA umbrella.

QUESTION: This spring and summer, I am going to be spending some time in Newport, Rhode Island. Can you give me any information on interesting features of the city and how best to get there from Belleville?

ANSWER: Newport, in prerevolution days, was a noted seaport and rivalled Boston and New York. As early as 1646 it was a shipbuilding centre and from its yards came many a slave trader and privateer. It still retains the appearance of a colonial seaport. But its best known feature is the opulent resort section with many magnificent estates. Among them are Marble House, a French palace built by William K. Vanderbilt in 1892; The Breakers, built in 1895 for Cornelius Vanderbilt, in the design of a 16th-century Italian palace, and considered Newport's most magnificent summer residence; The Elms, modelled after an 18th-century French chateau and featuring formal, illuminated French gardens; and Belcourt Castle, built in 1891 as the summer residence for Oliver Belmont, and styled after King Louis XIII's palace in France.

Of its five beaches, Easton's commonly called "The Beach", is considered to be one of the finest public beach developments in the U. S. Bailey's Beach is the private beach of the society elite. Others are Hazard's Beach and Gooseberry Beach in Newport and Sachuest Beach in Middletown. The Cliff Walk, skirting the bluffs for three miles between Easton's and Bailey's Beaches, affords some beautiful vistas.

Newport's annual events include the well-known yacht race in mid-June, with Annapolis the goal in odd-numbered years. Bermuda in even-numbered years. Tennis week, usually the second week in August, is the "warm-up" for the world's best tennis players over to U.S. national tournament at Forest Hills. The Newport Jazz Festival occurs the four days of the July 4 weekend; the Folk Festival usually takes place after the third week of July.

The best way to drive there from Belleville is by Route #1 from the Thousand Islands Bridge to the New York Thruway at Syracuse, then east on the Thruway and Massachusetts Turnpike to Auburn, Mass., (exit No. 11), then south on Route 146 to Providence, R. I., and 114 to Newport, a total distance of 580 miles.

Czech Leaders Criticize Actions of Reformer

PRAGUE (Reuters) — The Czechoslovak party leadership today publicly criticized leading reformer Joseph Smrkovsky for failing to follow party policy.

Smrkovsky, deputy chairman of the Federal Assembly came under attack during the weekend in the Soviet press, which claimed he took part in an anti-Russian demonstration in Prague last week.

An announcement by the presidium of the party said it was necessary to criticize several comrades in the central committee whose views were not in keeping with recent party decisions.

"For example, comrade Joseph Smrkovsky," it added, but gave no other names.

The presidium statement followed urgent consultations by its eight-man executive committee Tuesday on new tensions in Czechoslovak-Soviet relations following demonstrations celebrating two world hockey tournament victories by Czechoslovakia over Russia in Stockholm.

The presidium today also announced the weekly party magazine Politika would be temporarily suspended because of "serious mistakes," and added three other weekly magazines, the writers' union journal Listy, the journalists' association magazine Reporter and the liberal weekly Zitrek could only appear if they could guarantee their articles would correspond with the goals of socialism.

The presidium statement, read on Prague radio, said that during the wild hockey victory celebrations Friday night—during which the Soviet airline office was destroyed—agitators tried to stir up anti-Soviet and anti-Socialist feeling.

The announcement follows a bitter Soviet attack over the demonstration, which blamed the party leadership and in particular Smrkovsky for the anti-Russian outburst.

In Moscow, the defence ministry paper Red Star said today Soviet Defence Minister Andrei Grechko had discussed questions of mutual interest with Czechoslovak Defence Minister Martin Dzur.

The paper said that Grechko, who arrived in Czechoslovakia Monday, visited Soviet military units Tuesday and talked with officers and soldiers on the progress of their training.

"The marshal expressed his conviction that the units of troops were always ready to carry out their duty before the motherland," Red Star said.

The Czechoslovak presidium also denounced vandalism during the demonstrations against Soviet premises and command posts and said even monuments in Czechoslovakia commemorating the Soviet army's liberation of the country in the Second World War were disgraced.

The statement comes with the visit of Deputy Foreign Minister Vladimir Semyonov of Russia, reported to have been sent by the Kremlin to demand tougher measures against Czechoslovak liberals in the light of the demonstrations.

The statement was sharply critical of the press "which stirred up these passions and feelings."

Party leaders also heard a report from interior and defence ministry official over the series of incidents.

The statement said a special study was made of the party press and the main party newspaper Rude Pravo which "has not in a satisfactory way fought against foreign views and has not interpreted the November resolution of the central committee and further resolutions."

VIENNA (AP) — Czechoslovakia's government radio said in a special broadcast today that the country is "on the verge of disaster."

The broadcast said "reactionary anti - Soviet and anti-Socialist elements supported by the mass media have caused a crisis situation that may lead to a new national disaster."

It appealed to all Communists to find a way out of the situation carried "by the recently organized anti-Socialist and anti-Soviet demonstrations."

Queensboro

QUEENSBORO — Randy Delclair of Madoc returned home after spending a week with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Declair.

Eisenhower's Funeral Train Is Hours Behind Schedule

ABILENE, Kan. (Reuters) — Hours behind schedule on its mournful journey, the funeral train bearing the body of Dwight D. Eisenhower rolled quietly toward Abilene today, bringing the former president back to his boyhood home for burial.

The train was expected to enter Abilene eight hours late, its path slowed by crowds of saddened Americans who stood in silent tribute along the tracks.

Originally intended as a purely private trip, the cortege became an object of national mourning as it moved west across the continent from Washington through the Appalachians and St. Louis, gateway to the West.

Mrs. Eisenhower and the family planned to return to Washington on the train later today.

The grave for the former president and wartime Allied commander lay beside that of his son who died at the age of three.

The town of Abilene—once the end of the trail for cowpokes herding their cattle from Texas to the Great Plains—resembled an armed camp as the army prepared for the final salute.

Up to 100,000 persons were expected.

The soldiers strove to lend to the final rites the crisp efficiency Eisenhower, who died Friday in Washington, D.C., might have praised.

Thousands of Americans came out to wave goodbye as the 12-unit funeral train made its way into the Midwest from the three-day state funeral in the U.S. capital.

There were no railside ceremonies, at the family's request. Nevertheless, a train that had been scheduled to pull into the little freight depot by midnight was delayed until dawn.

In the cold and rain of the Kentucky hills hundreds lined the route, some holding flags. Many were veterans of the war in Europe and served under the general.

In many towns high school bands played solemn hymn as the train passed.

The train crossed the Appalachians into the flatlands and cornfields of southern Illinois and people lined the tracks at every town.

There were more than 1,000 at Caseyville, a town with a population of 2,700.

There Mrs. Eisenhower made her first appearance. Standing on the rear platform of the last car she waved at the crowd. They quietly returned her wave.

The train crossed the Mississippi north of St. Louis over the MacArthur Bridge, named after the late Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Eisenhower's commander in the Philippines before the Second World War.

In St. Louis, 5,000 mourners were there to meet the train when it stopped to change crews.

Moved by the welcome, Mrs. Eisenhower again stepped to the platform. Clutching the hand of her son, Col. John Eisenhower, she fought back tears.

"We want to thank everyone for coming down," she said. "I feel very proud."

Her grandson David, and his wife the former Julie Nixon, stood behind her.

Toronto Racial Tension Report Called Nonsense

TORONTO (CP) — Social workers termed nonsense Tuesday a Negro researcher's report of "potentially explosive" tensions among minority groups in downtown Toronto — especially between white youths and young black militants.

George A. Brown, a researcher for the Ontario Human Rights Commission, issued his report Monday after a nine-week study of racial and ethnic groups in the area.

Main causes of conflict, he says, are name-calling, interracial dating and competition for status.

But local social workers and youths said Tuesday they have never heard of the conflicts and deep race prejudice in the area is any more than an uncomfortable feeling between people from different backgrounds.

David Maben, director of St. Christopher House, and Robert Dewar, youth worker at Bathurst United Church's youth centre, denied Mr. Brown's assertion their youth programs have been disrupted by Negroes demanding all Negro programs.

They say white youths have "floated away" from the youth centres as large numbers of Negro youths joined, but say this resulted from the same kind of feeling that caused Anglo-Saxons to drop out of recreational activities at Portuguese and Italian youths entered.

Rev. Glynn Firth of Bathurst United Church said the youth centre is in trouble because the senior program is about 90 per cent Negro.

But the problem is not because the Negroes are militant —although some of them are— but "because they are black."

"It's a reflection of the kind of racial attitude we have in our community.

Toronto Teachers To Sue for Bonus

TORONTO (CP) —An official said Tuesday night that Toronto high school teachers will sue the board of education if it does not pay out $156,000 in retention bonuses.

Robert Brooks, district president of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers Federation, said he sent a letter to the board demanding the bonuses. He said if the board does not comply, the teachers will file a breach of contract suit.

The $100 bonus for each teacher who stayed with the board for four to seven years is part of a premium pay clause in the teacher's salary agreement, he said.

"This is really a test of the validity of the contract," Mr. Brooks said. "It was approved by the six board chairmen in Metro, which was supposed to mean settlement with the board, but the Toronto board now is trying to back out of a clause in an agreement signed by their own chairman."

The board, meeting the teachers in negotiating sessions, has maintained that the retention pay is not part of the premium pay clause and should be negotiated separately.

The retention bonus was instituted last year to hold experienced teachers who tend to look for better positions after they have had several years' experience.

Hawaii Trip Called Mistake

TORONTO (CP) — Alex Thompson, chairman of the Toronto board of education, said Tuesday the board "made a mistake" in allowing five trustees to take a convention trip to Hawaii at the taxpayers' expense.

Mr. Thompson said in an interview he would investigate the trip when the five—Alan Archer, Kenneth Carson, Thomas Clifford, William Lang and Edgar Rooke—return.

The chairman said the board made a second mistake by not knowing that the Music Educators' National Conference in Honolulu was for the organization's western division only—Guam, Hawaii, California, Nevada, Arizona and Utah.

NDP Wants University Fees Ended

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government could help create better universities by abolishing tuition fees at the post-secondary level, the provincial New Democratic Party said Tuesday.

The proposal, part of a master plan suggested by the NDP for all post-secondary educational institutions, was contained in a brief to the commission on relations between universities and governments in Canada.

The brief was presented by Prof. Gordon S. Vichart of MacMaster University, Hamilton, John Harney, formerly of the University of Guelph and now secretary of the Ontario NDP, and Prof. Eugene Benson of the University of Guelph.

Agreeing that higher taxes may have to be imposed if tuition fees were abolished, the brief said "those taxes should not be imposed on low-income groups whose children are inadequately represented in the universities."

Premiers Give Boy Pictures, PM Sends Him Price List

SASKATOON (CP) — Randy Kleckner, who made national news with his gift of a miniature poodle to former prime minister Diefenbaker, is again involved with heads of governments.

Randy, 14, a cerebral palsy victim, recently wrote to Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan asking for information to be used in a school project Exploring Canada.

The letter requested information on geography, history, politics and the natural resources of each of the Canadian provinces.

Randy is unable to speak, but he communicates with an electric typewriter and an electric word board.

Mr. Thatcher responded by supplying Randy with extensive material on Saskatchewan. He also told the Saskatchewan tourist information department to ask each province to write Randy directly and send him the material wanted.

The children's rehabilitation centre at University Hospital, where Randy goes to school, was soon flooded with material.

On one wall is one of the original copies of the Canadian Bill of Rights, signed by Mr. Diefenbaker.

Randy received personal letters from all the western premiers and in addition, photographs from Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia and Harry Strom of Alberta.

But Randy was exasperated by the reply from Prime Minister Trudeau. The prime minister's office sent him a price list of information available from the Queen's printer.

Ray Case Studied

Death of Judge May Force New Trial

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Two prison cell letters from James Earl Ray and the death of the judge who received them have placed the state of Tennessee in an apparent legal dilemma.

The problem is whether the circumstances may force authorities to give the admitted killer of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., the trial by jury he has been quoted as saying he wants. Faced by seemingly conflicting opinions from higher judicial authority, four judges of the Shelby County Criminal Court huddled with prosecution officials Tuesday. None of those at the meeting would say what, if any, conclusion was reached.

Judge W. Preston Battle, who accepted Ray's guilty plea in Criminal Court March 10 and sentenced him to 99 years, disclosed nine days later that he had received a letter from Ray, saying he intended to "file for a post-conviction hearing."

Battle, 69, died of a heart attack Monday in his chambers.

Associates who searched his official effects said Tuesday they found a second letter which Ray asked the judge to treat "as a legal notice of an intent to ask for a reversal of the 99-year sentence."

Existence of the second letter was not been made public by the judge. Its wording raised the question whether it was the valid equivalent of a motion for a new trial, or perhaps a writ of habeas corpus.

Judge Charles Galbreath of the State Criminal Appeals Court says a motion for a new trial filed within the 30-day review period is automatically granted when the judge who presided over the case dies before acting on it.

But Chief Justice Hamilton Burnett of the Tennessee Supreme Court said Ray's letters, even if construed as motions, do not automatically guarantee a new trial.

Ray entered the guilty plea before Battle in exchange for a 99-year sentence for the April 4 sniper slaying of King.

In open court, Ray was asked repeatedly by Battle whether he understood that such a plea precluded appeals. He said he did.

Ray has claimed since, however, that he was forced into his guilty plea.

Appeal Refused

Gregory Begins Sentence

CHICAGO (AP) — Dick Gregory, entertainer and civil rights activist, surrendered Tuesday to begin serving a five-month sentence for battery and resisting arrest during a 1965 demonstration.

Gregory had been free on a $3,000 bond since he was arrested during the demonstration in downtown Chicago. The demonstrators were seeking the ouster of Benjamin Willis as city schools superintendent. Willis later resigned.

The U.S. Supreme Court refused three weeks ago to hear an appeal of the case.

Gregory was taken to the Cook County (Chicago) jail to serve his sentence.

Assemblies Tidy Up

Legislatures Quiet as Easter Holiday Nears

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Provincial legislatures across Canada were comparatively quiet Tuesday—either being closed for the Easter break or tidying up for it.

Quebec's national assembly adjourned March 28, until April 15.

In Fredericton, Premier Louis J. Robichaud was to close the New Brunswick budget debate today, ending that session until next Tuesday.

—And in Halifax—only hours before the legislature recesses today for Easter—the Nova Scotia house begins a study of tax measures to raise $42,000,000.

This would raise the provincial sales tax to seven from five per cent with a broadened base and increase taxes on liquor, tobacco and gasoline.

In other legislatures Tuesday:

Charlottetown: A bill to regulate store hours in Prince Edward Island was given second reading—approval in principle.

The legislation, applying to the majority of businesses, would set the hours from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday to Saturday, with specified exceptions.

Winnipeg: The opposition won a point as Manitoba's medical care insurance plan neared final approval. Health Minister George Johnson introduced an amendment to a bill making the plan conform to federal requirements after New Democratic and Liberal members hammered at effect of the legislation on employees under contractual agreements with employers.

Regina: Ediing Kramer (NDP —The Battleford) accused the Saskatchewan Liberal government of "waste, inefficiency and downright stupidity." Speaking on proposed highways department estimates for 1969-1970, she said "millions upon millions of dollars have been spent in this province on roads that benefit no one, or practically no one, but industry."

Victoria: Legislation establishing British Columbia's new compulsory no-fault automobile insurance system was approved. The bill, establishing compensation-type benefit payments for death, physical injury and disability, passed on a Social Credit majority of 28 to 21.

Shulman Claims Doll Is 'Lethal' Weapon

TORONTO (CP) —A furry doll sold in Toronto stores Tuesday was described in the legislature as a lethal weapon.

Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP—High Park) said the doll's head slides off with a "very slight force" to reveal a pointed spike which could "penetrate a child's eye."

Mr. Shulman later showed reporters a doll and also gave one to Leslie Rountree, minister of financial affairs, whom the NDP member recently had accused of being drunk.

Mr. Rountree said Mr. Shulman's charges that the doll is a lethal weapon will be investigated.

The dolls are manufactured by a Japanese company for a Toronto firm.

In other business:

—Darcy McKeough, minister of municipal affairs, called for creation of a York County committee to make recommendations for regional government in that area. Mr. McKeough said it is necessary to discuss possible boundary changes between regional governments which may eventually surround the metropolitan Toronto area.

—Leonard Braithwaite (L—Etobicoke) said the provincial government should stop treating Indians as second-class citizens or they would organize a protest march on Queen's Park. Mr. Leonard, the only Negro member in the legislature, said there is a "new mood of unrest among Ontario's Indians."

—Health Minister Matthew Dymond said that none of the 192 employees of Ottawa businesses tested for typhoid showed signs of having the disease. The testing started after two persons in nearby Quebec communities contracted typhoid.

She Went on Diet -- Then on Trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It was her diet, suggests her prosecution report, that led Kristina Cromwell to a murder conviction.

As a child Kristina was "giggly, happy," says the report, and as a Girl Guide she was popular —but fat, fat, fat.

She got married when she was 21, divorced the next year. Then went on a diet. The report says she lost 70 pounds and it transformed her from "a life-long ugly duckling" into a cute, cuddly blonde.

She remarried Marlin Cromwell. But the report says "she was unable to 'handle' her new found popularity and fell easy prey to blandishments and flattery."

She identified former policeman Paul Perveler, 42, "with a new and exciting way of living and it is probable that he had little difficulty in enlisting her . . . in his infamous schemes," it continues.

Kristina, now 28, and Perveler were convicted last month of shooting Marlin to death, and Perveler was convicted of killing his wife Cheryl. His death sentence now is being appealed.

The motive, said the prosecution, was $100,000 in life insurance.

"She apparently became used to a faster pace of living," said the probation report, made public in court Tuesday when she was sentenced to life in prison.

"When she lost weight and developed a 'figure' and found that she was attractive to men, she couldn't handle it."

Mrs. Cromwell once weighed well over 200 pounds. Since her arraignment last May, courtroom observers said she has gained back at least 30 pounds.

Sirhan Interrupts Trial Again

LOS ANGELES (Reuters) — Sirhan B. Sirhan interrupted his trial with another angry outburst Tuesday when a prosecution psychiatrist said he thought the young Jordanian immigrant lied about suffering temporary amnesia when Senator Robert F. Kennedy was shot.

Judge Herbert Walker threatened for a second time to have Sirhan manacled and muzzled to prevent further interruptions, but later accepted an apology from the man accused of killing Kennedy.

The prosecution psychiatrist, Dr. Seymour Pollack, also testified he believed Sirhan went to the Ambassador Hotel with the conscious intention of slaying Kennedy.

He discounted defence claims that the 25-year-old defendant went into a hypnotic trance precipitated by alcohol the night Kennedy was shot.

Pollack told the court he thought it probable Sirhan "took a few drinks in order to bolster his courage and strengthen his resolution to kill Kennedy."

Sirhan's outburst came when Pollack testified he thought Sirhan was lying when he said he could not remember writing threats against Kennedy's life in his personal notebooks.

"It is my opinion," Pollack said, "that Sirhan killed Kennedy because he hated him for what he stood for and he saw himself as a defender of the Arab cause as individual who through this act could bring world attention to the Arab plight."

In earlier testimony the court was told Sirhan grew enraged when Kennedy supported the sale of U.S. jet fighters to Israel.

Pollack said Sirhan picked Kennedy for assassination because he thought the New York senator had "sold himself out to the American Jews."

Pollack, who examined Sirhan in his jail cell several times, directly contradicted the testimony of defence psychiatrists who earlier said Sirhan was mentally sick and did not comprehen his thoughts and actions.

NHL Lottery Trial Postponed

MONTREAL (CP) — The preliminary hearing of four men on lottery charges which police claim involved tampering with the clock used to time National Hockey League games here has been postponed to May 1.

Bernard Bilodeau, chief Crown prosecutor, asked for a postponement Tuesday when the four appeared for preliminary hearing.

The defence agreed to the postponement.

Accused are Jean-Guy Doiron, 38, and Andre Dandurand, 34, both of suburban Anjou; Henri Labelle, 34, of suburban Verdun, and Gilles Bacon, 34, of Suburban Brossard.

Doiron faces charges of conspiring to operate a lottery, conspiring with Dandurand to interfere illegally with the official clock of the Canadian Arena Co. used in time NHL games at the Montreal Forum, and with giving Dandurand $12,500 to induce the latter to interfere with the clock.

Dandurand, timekeeper at the Forum, is charged with having conspired with Doiron and others to interfere illegally with the normal operation of the official clock at the Forum, with accepting $12,500 to interfere illegally with the operation of the clock and with conspiring to operate an illegal lottery.

Labelle and Bacon face charge of conspiring to operate an illegal lottery.

Judge Langlois continued bail of $5,000 each for Doiron and Dandurand. Bail for Labelle, originally set at $5,000, was reduced to $3,000 while bail for Bacon was $2,500.

Police said the lottery scheme involved the sale of tickets based on the time of goals scored during NHL games played here.

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Buckingham, Joan and Lyle returned recently from Rapid City, Manitoba where they visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Terry. Mrs. Buckingham and children spent seven weeks with her parents and Mr. Buckingham joined them for two weeks returning home with them by train.

Mrs. Eric Jones opened her home for a potluck dinner at noon followed by a party demonstration by Marge Bletcher.

Mrs. George Cotton accompanied her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Auger, Kathy, Michael, Timmy and Danny to Aylmer to attend graduation exercises for Carl Auger, grandson of Mrs. Cotton and son of Mr. and Mrs. Auger. Carl graduated as an OPP and will be stationed at London.

Typhoid Tests to Continue In Ottawa Area Says Dymond

TORONTO (CP) — None of 192 employees of Ottawa businesses who has been tested for typhoid showed signs of having the disease, Health Minister Matthew Dymond said Tuesday.

He told the legislature the testing will continue until all persons exposed or likely to be exposed to typhoid have been tested.

Testing of Ottawa employees who live in Pointe Gatineau and Touraine, two Quebec communities where typhoid cases have been identified, is being carried out at the Ontario provincial laboratories at Bells Corners.

Most are employees of Ottawa restaurants, dairy bars, takeout counters and some grocery stores, who have been suspended from their jobs during the testing.

Helen Hayes Ends 13-year Screen Absence

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Yes, I'm playing a real rascal," and what a joy it is: The nice thing about being a character actress is that you get a chance to play such fascinating parts."

Helen Hayes was exulting over what she termed a brand new career. She is performing in her first movie since Anastasia in 1956. Her role: Ada Quonsett, the sweet little lady who is a professional stowaway in Airport, the all-star Universal version of Arthur Hailey's best-selling novel.

"A whole new field has opened up for me since I played in The Show-Off on the stage," remarked Miss Hayes. "I played a real harridan in that one, and audiences loved her because she aimed her scorn at the show-off.

"And oh, how lovely it is to be able to grab hold of a real character. The trouble with being a star when you are younger—particularly if you have some reputation for ugliness—is that the roles you get lack dimension. My most successful role was Queen Victoria, which I enjoyed because she was portrayed as a rather headstrong, willful and sometimes foolish woman.

Miss Hayes, 68, emphasized that her future work would be in films and television only.

"I have retired from the stage," she said. "I just can't take the routine of eight performances a week any more. I've done it to long.

"When I finished up The Show-Off in Washington, I made the announcement. I figured if I announced my retirement from the stage in public I would be too ashamed to change my mind later."

As has been her custom for other parts, Miss Hayes has been thorough in preparing for her role in Airport. She has been assiduous in her diet, reasoning that a thin Mrs. Quonsett will bring more humor and pathos from the audiences. She quoted the long-ago advice of her late husband, Charles MacArthur, when he noticed her putting on weight:

"Helen, you can't make 'em cry if you've got a big backside."

Baseball Expansion Is Goal

Expansion is the goal of the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association for the forthcoming season.

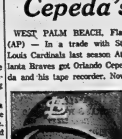
This decision was made at a recent executive meeting of the Association held in Belleville. An effort will be made to expand all age classifications from novice through to senior, thus increasing baseball competition on the inter-city and inter-town level.

Dick Elston of Belleville, an executive member of the EOBA, will accept entries into the EOBA for the coming season with April 11th set as the deadline date for registration.

Anyone interested should contact Dick Elston at 16 Lemoine Street, Belleville or phone 962-6004.

Cepeda's Bat Should Help

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — In a trade with St. Louis Cardinals last season Atlanta Braves got Orlando Cepeda and his tape recorder. Now all they have to do is get some hits.



"Nobody hit last year," manager Lum Harris pointed out as he discussed the reason why the Braves were only a .500 club. "Out pitchers set a Braves' record for the lowest run average."

If the bats begin to hum, then, Harris sees no reason why the Braves can't move up to battle for the pennant in the National League's Western Division against Cincinnati, Houston, Los Angeles, San Diego and San Francisco.

The two biggest additions as far as Harris is concerned are Cepeda and Rico Carty, the lifetime .300 hitter who missed the entire 1968 season while recuperating from tuberculosis.

Carty's return to form would give the Braves a solid .300 hitting outfield with Hank Aaron and Felipe Alou holding the other two spots.

Only Aaron and Alou held up last season, with such proven stars as third baseman Clete Boyer, shortstop Sonny Jackson and Torre having the difficult years Harris talks about.

Top Gas Housers Meet

It'll be the top team versus the bottom team when the Gas House Hockey League final playoffs start Thursday night at 8.15 p.m. at the Belleville Arena.

The top team, Mulroney's Sunoco, earned their final playoff berth by eliminating third place Marysville in three straight games, while the bottom team, the Wings, earned the right to oppose Mulroney's by edging the Mustangs 3-2 last night.

The win gave the Wings the best of five series three games to two with one game tied, and came on the strength of single goals by Bob Percy, Bob Lloyd and Bob Green.

Joe Lomsden tallied both goals for the Mustangs, who finished in second spot in the four team league at the conclusion of the regular scheduled.

Barriage Girls Out

Mel Barriage Landscapers, the Ontario and Dominion Class "C" Hitchhikers, suffered the embarrassment of elimination from the Quinte Women's Hockey League semi-final playoffs last night.

Napanee Royals edged the Belleville girls 4-3 to win their best of three series with two wins and a tie. The 4-3 score was identical to the score of the opening game of the series.

Jessica Grow paced the Royals' attack with a hat trick and Janice Wartman tallied the other goal, while Marjorie Reid tallied a pair of goals for the Landscapers and Judy Rapelle added a singleton.

The Landscapers will play an exhibition game in Belleville April 12, to prepare for the Dominion championships in Toronto at month's end, while Napanee Royals will play off with the Picton Rockettes for the league title.

Teachers Cut Aces

The first and second place teams in the Quinte District Men's Basketball League prevailed in last night's semi-final playoff games and earned the right to battle each other for the league championship.

The Belleville Aces scored an 11 point victory over the Trenton Flyers at CFB Trenton to take their two-game total-points series with a margin of 14 points.

The other semi-final series saw the Belleville Teachers slip by Cobourg 70-65, to win their two-game total-points series with a six point margin.

THE DUTCH ARE RESPONSIBLE!

In America, bowling is a very popular sport . . . just as it was in ancient Germany. But it was the Dutch immigrants who brought it to these shores where it became a favorite sport in the 1600's and has retained good exercise value ever since.

Not interested in bowling say you? Well that still-perfect bowling ball and those accessories from the 1600's deserve a home! Want Ad. Dialing 962-3171 now will do!

KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Whenever I get a cold it hangs on for weeks. Either I cough or sneeze or keep it a-ching or have trouble breathing or feel achy; all of which remind me I'm not yet rid of the darn thing.

Yet I have a friend, a little skinny fellow who you'd think would be laid low every time he caught cold. Instead, he's over it in a few days. How do you account for that? — Mr. H.

COMMENT: Viruses vary; people vary. To repeat: there are all kinds of colds; all kinds of people. Yours may hang on for three reasons: 1. Your resistance is low. 2. The virus bug that hits you is stronger than the one which attacks your friend. 3. You do not take good care of your cold; but your friend nurses his.

Whatever the reason, remember we make a mistake when we think we have the "same" disease as our neighbor. Whether it is a cold or ulcer or high blood pressure or a heart attack — they vary in how they involve various people.

One person will get over a cold in 48 hours; another will come down with pneumonia in 48 hours.

One will die of a heart attack and another with the "same" disease will live for 20 years.

One person with high blood pressure will suffer excruciating headaches, another will be free.

Ask yourself, Mr. H., if you have taken care of the cold from the first day it strikes. Perhaps you underrate it. You don't think it important enough to stay home from work for a day or two; you don't keep warm; you don't force fluids; you don't even take an aspirin.

Often a cold becomes subtle and many simply because you call it a "common cold" whereas it considers itself "uncommonly important." Treat it with respect and it won't hang on so long in the future.

For Mrs. N.: All doctors live in frustration, whatever their sphere of activity in medicine.

Yesterday, I was talking to a friend who is a busy family physician. He said, "For me one of the worst daily experiences is to have to tell a patient he will never regain his sight — or will even lose what little he has left — because he has come too late for me to do anything for his glaucoma."

By now, I think most people realize that glaucoma is one of the leading causes of blindness. Gradually, and often painlessly, pressure builds up behind the eye. It is these canals which ordinarily let the eye fluid drain off. This causes unnatural pressure to back up against the vital organs of vision and disables them. (More rarely is the attack acute and it alerts the patient to trouble.)

So, Mrs. N., be thankful you came in time. Although doctors daily eye drops are a "bother" as you say, what a small price to pay for having your sight.

I tell people that the safest way to prevent the dangerous onslaught of glaucoma is to resolve to have a complete eye examination at least every two years. This includes a tonometer examination (quick, painless and simple) to check symptoms that suggest serious eye pressure.

As in your case when you came in for your routine eye checkup, Mrs. N., so many are completely unaware of glaucoma because they have no symptoms that suggest serious trouble.

For Mrs. A.: The chemicals used to sweeten diet drinks are called cyclamates. To date there is no specific evidence that they are a threat to health.

Nevertheless, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration is still studying the problem. For example: Do cyclamates influence significant levels in our chromosomes?

What to do about it? I suppose the rational course is to use them (if you do) in moderate amounts until such time as the FDA makes definite evidence that they are harmful.

Recess Delay Looms

Liberals Attempt to Revise Transportation Group Report

OTTAWA (CP) — Attempt by Liberals to have the report of a Commons committee sent back for rewriting sparked a day-long debate Tuesday and raised some doubts about when the House might break for an Easter recess.

The debate provoked claims by opposition MPs that the government is an dictatorial it will accept no committee report that does not jibe with cabinet views.

There were counter-claims by some Liberals that the opposition was trying to turn a molehill into a mountain.

The end result of the confrontation Tuesday was that adjournment time for the Commons arrived without any resolution of what was going to be done with a report by the standing committee on transportation.

Another result was that the Liberals appeared somewhat out of focus all day. They were objecting to a report made by a committee under a Liberal chairman and with a majority of Liberal MPs on it.

None of the Liberals who contributed to the committee report spoke in the debate. The only Liberals who took part were House Leader Donald S. Macdonald and two transport committee members who missed the meeting at which the contentious report was approved unanimously.

Before the transport committee issue brewed into a day-long debate, it had been expected that Parliament would adjourn today for an Easter recess until Monday, April 14.

By the time the Commons quit for the night, it was not exactly clear just when the adjournment might come.

Focal point for the fuss was a committee recommendation that the government overrule an order of the Canadian transport commission allowing the CNR to scrap rail passenger service in Newfoundland in favor of a passenger bus service.

The commission made this recommendation after its members made a special trip to the Atlantic provinces to look into transport problems.

Mr. Macdonald argued that the committee recommendation would amount to setting aside a statute and this could not be done by a parliamentary committee. He wanted the report sent back to have this recommendation excised.

So did Warren Allmand (L—Montreal North-Dame-de-Grace), who said the committee report did not give a proper reflection of the views of those MPs who had gone to the Atlantic provinces. He said "about five" MPs had to be absent from the committee meeting at which the report was drawn up.

James A. McGrath (PC—St. John's East) said nine of the 11 Liberal committee members were present when the report was approved.

He and a number of opposition MPs kept asking why those Liberals who approved the committee report remained silent in this debate.

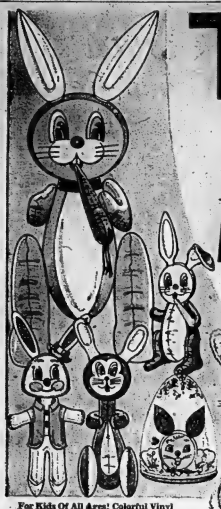
Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) said that if the government is willing only to accept committee recommendations with which it agrees, "what's the point of going to these committees."

Committee reports "are quite obviously interfered with" by the government, he said, and he referred to Mr. Macdonald as "a blunt instrument" of the government.

John Lundrigan (PC—Gander-Twillingate) said the Liberals who had voted for the committee report and were now staying silent were benefiting under to browbeating and intimidation by the Liberal cabinet.

Another Newfoundland Conservative, Walter Carter (PC—St. John's West), added:

"This naked exposure of dictatorial power is shocking."



Ray Perreault (L—Burnaby-Seymour) made an abrasive speech in which he suggested that some "key members" of the transport committee, including himself, were absent when the report was drawn up.

Gerald W. Baldwin, Conservative House leader, said Mr. Perreault appeared to be suggesting that any Commons vote taken when he was absent was not a legitimate vote and could be challenged.

Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North) said if Mr. Perreault's argument was accepted, virtually every Commons or committee vote could be challenged because of some MP claiming he had to be absent.

Mr. Woolliams said it was apparent that there were many Liberal back-benchers who went along with the cabinet because they wanted to "get close to the executive." They wanted to get into the cabinet or to become secretaries to cabinet ministers

Quinte Official Knows Little of British Talks on Cheese

LONDON (CP) — Canada intends to put up a fight against British effort to restrain imports of Canadian cheddar but in the end some form of compromise is likely to be reached, informants said today.

(In Belleville, a centre of the cheese industry in Ontario, Arnold Johnson, manager of the cheese division of the Milk Marketing Board was unable to spell out the Canadian strategy.

All Ontario exports are handled through the milk marketing board which buys up the cheese from Ontario manufacturers and then exports it under a government guarantee of quality.

Mr. Johnson said he had heard nothing of the new developments.)

If Canada does agree to restrict shipments voluntarily, it will be for a temporary period only, they added.

With the emergence of large surpluses of domestic cheddar, producers have complained that the domestic market is being increasingly absorbed by imports, mainly from Canada, Australia, New Zealand, The Netherlands, France and Ireland.

The British trade department, after an investigation, concluded that this foreign cheese is being subsidized and "dumped" on the British market, threatening to cause "material injury" to domestic producers.

Canadian officials make no secret of the fact that exports of Canadian cheddar carry a government subsidy of 15 cents a pound. This subsidy was designed to offset British currency devaluation in 1967. British importers bid for Canadian cheddar in Canadian currency.

Canadian officials argue, however, that Canadian cheddar is a specially protected commanding a premium price and therefore does not compete with English cheddar. They want to be shown clear evidence that such imports are causing damage to British producers before they agree to take any action on a request for voluntary restraint.

Britain is Canada's biggest cheddar market. Canadian officials want as free a trade as possible. But informants said that in view of the current British situation, some form of Canadian restraint may have to be accepted.

Cabinet Meets, Kierans Away

OTTAWA (CP) — Communications Minister Eric Kierans was a notable absentee when the cabinet met today to discuss again Canada's future role in NATO, if any.

Mr. Kierans has been a strong public advocate of Canadian withdrawal from NATO. An aide said he was in Montreal preparing to go south on vacation.

Prime Minister John Gorton of Australia accompanied Prime Minister Trudeau to the cabinet meeting. Mr. Gorton stayed for some 30 minutes.

At least 22 of the 29 cabinet ministers turned up for the meeting, expected to be a long one.

Prime Minister Trudeau said Wednesday he hoped that after today's meeting he would be in a position to make an announcement.

But he left open the possibility, in a statement Wednesday to the Commons, that the announcement will come as late as next week.

Mr. Trudeau had told the House on previous occasions that he would try to have the announcement ready for Wednesday.

Canada's future policy towards the 15-member North Atlantic Treaty Organization, which Canada helped found 20 years ago, is at the core of the foreign and defence review ordered by the prime minister shortly after he took office one year ago.

The cabinet met all day Saturday, all day Sunday and again Tuesday night without apparently achieving a consensus on the NATO question.

The weekend meetings were devoted partly to studying the report of a Commons committee which recommended a continuance of the status quo, under which Canada maintains an air division and a mechanized brigade group in Europe.

David Lewis, the NDP deputy leader, and Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield got in some barbed Commons comments about intra-cabinet differences on the NATO question.

"Trimming the defence budget is one thing, but this is ridiculous!"

Ontario Plans Study of Taxes

By Lenny Williamson, Staff Reporter

The financial crisis facing Ontario's new county school boards will be probed by the provincial department of education.

Wednesday the department asked all boards to provide full details of their budgets and the expected effect they will have on local tax rates.

Spokesmen in some counties, said the legislation which set up the boards last Jan. 1 meant spreading the tax load unevenly so that some municipalities face tax rates two or three times the 1968 levy.

However, officials of Hastings county board of education do not share the alarm expressed by other county boards.

"In the past the contributions made by certain communities in the province have not been on a level with others," said director of education Eric Runacres this morning.

"We have marginal problem in some Hastings county communities, but no dramatic differences such as some counties are experiencing."

F. B. Allore, superintendent of the Prince Edward - Hastings separate school board, refused to share the Hastings board's optimism.

He stood by the statement made last week by separate school board chairman E. J. Buckley that the mill rate will double in most municipalities if the present provincial grant structure remains.

Orillia Township voted Tuesday to refuse to pay its portion of the Simcoe County school board's 1969 levy.

"We're in a very unfavorable position," said T. E. Schultz, business superintendent for the Simcoe board. "the province's grants have simply not kept pace with the increase in cost.

"Much displeasure is being voiced all over the county."

Council said the $402,224 tax bill would mean an extra $124,000 would have to be raised from township ratepayers. This would increase the township's mill rate by 18 mills, or increase the tax bill on a house assessed at $3,000 by $60.

L. R. McGill, education director in Grey County, said that anyone who would estimate the levy in that county this year would have to be off his rocker." He said it would

Czechs Bow to Kremlin, Adopt Tough New Curbs

PRAGUE (Reuters) — Fears of a new Soviet military intervention grew today after Czechoslovak leaders bowed to Russian demands and imposed a new crackdown on vestiges of the country's reform movement.

There also were rumors of troop movements by Warsaw pact nations and reports of possible resignations among the Czechoslovak leaders.

The tough new curbs brought relations between the two countries to their lowest level since the Aug. 20 invasion, and took the country almost back to conditions which existed before pro-premier Alexander Dubcek took over in January, 1968, from conservative Antonin Novotny.

They were imposed Wednesday to meet strong Russian protests over widespread anti-Soviet demonstrations through Czechoslovakia Friday and during the weekend.

The harsh new measures included:

—Reimposition of press censorship, suppressed in a liberal party weekly and curbs on three other magazines.

—The supply of extra weapons to police to enable them to crush any further demonstrations with the help of army units.

—A warning of bitter new economic measures in the next few days, an apparent hint of price increases for consumer goods.

The party leaders also launched a stinging attack on Karel Smrkovsky, a popular reformist hated by the Russians and eased from a major post in the old national parliament under Soviet pressure.

Many Czechoslovaks are stunned by the severity of the new repressive measures and the attack on Smrkovsky but there was no indication of organized protests.

Romania Voices Plea For Right to Self-rule

GENEVA (AP) — Romania made a passionate plea today for "respect of the sacred and inalienable right of nations to decide their own destiny without outside interference."

An informed Communist source said the dramatic speech by chief delegate Nicolae Ecobesco to the 17-nation disarmament conference was a reaction to the Warsaw pact meeting in Czechoslovakia. Romania's Communist leaders have been persistent critics of the Soviet war on Czechoslovakia's reform movement.

Ignoring disarmament issues in the first part of his long address, Ecobesco spent 15 minutes emotionally appealing for self-determination for all nations.

He called for the withdrawal of foreign troops from all countries and denounced all uses of force, including "military manoeuvres on the territories or borders of other states."

Quebec to Probe All Land Sales In Airport Area

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec government will hold an inquiry into all land transactions in the area surrounding Ste. Scholastique, north of Montreal, where an international airport will be built it was learned Wednesday.

The inquiry will investigate all transactions in the last four years, concentrating mainly on dealings since March 27 when the federal government applied land freeze measures to prevent speculation.

Meanwhile, Gustave Theriault, notary for Ste. Scholastique, said in an interview Wednesday farmers and small landowners stand to lose the most in the affair.

Mr. Theriault said Tuesday the federal government's land freeze measures were ineffective in preventing land speculation.

Black Panthers Charged with Plot To Bomb Busy Manhattan Stores

NEW YORK (AP) — Midtown Manhattan might have rocked to explosions today if police raiders hadn't headed off a conspiracy by 21 members of the Black Panther party to bomb five department stores crowded with Easter shoppers, District Attorney Frank Hogan says.

Seven of the 21 Panthers indicted Wednesday on charges of conspiracy to murder, arson and weapons violations were still at large.

Hogan, announcing the 12-count indictment, said the Panthers had planned to bomb the stores, a railroad, a police station and kill policemen today, in an attack on "the white power structure."

Teams of police, heavily armed and wearing bulletproof vests, arrested 13 suspects in early morning raids Wednesday. Two others were in custody in a Newark, N.J., jail.

The 12 defendants pleaded not guilty before Supreme Court Justice Charles Marks, who held them in $100,000 bail each.

Marks signed arrest warrants minutes after a grand jury returned the indictment at 1 a.m. Wednesday. Two women were included in the indictment.

Among those arrested was Robert S. Collier, 32, convicted in 1965 of plotting to blow up the Statue of Liberty. He served 21 months of a five-year sentence and was released from Lewisburg, Pa. federal penitentiary in March, 1968.

Hogan said the defendants plotted to:

—Bomb Macy's, Alexander's, Bloomingdale's, Korvette's and Abercrombie and Fitch, and fire guns into the store.

—Dynamite the tracks of the Penn Central Railroad at six points in The Bronx.

—Bomb a Bronx police station to divert police from the railroad bombings.

They agreed to assassinate police officers by bombs and guns and planned a number of other co-ordinated acts of violence," Hogan told a news conference.

Runacres: No Dramatic Difference... ...Allore: Mill Rate Could Double

School Grants Furor Brings Mixed Quinte Reaction

By LENNY WILLIAMSON

Quinte district educators greeted with mixed reactions announcement of a probe into the new provincial education grants formula.

County boards throughout Ontario have complained that the legislation setting up the boards last Jan. 1, and the grant structure announced March 19, have raised municipal tax rates by two or three times the 1968 levy.

Although Hastings county's director of education, Eric Runacres, said this morning this county will feel "no dramatic effects such as some counties are experiencing," Prince Edward - Hastings separate school board superintendent F. B. Allore stated flatly that most municipalities could expect their educational mill rates to double.

The Prince Edward county board of education today sent a delegation to Toronto to discuss the grant formula with department of education officials.

"Some county boards have gone off half-cocked on this grant formula — they have reacted without information," said Mr. Runacres.

He added that the reaction has been "a good thing, it has persuaded Toronto to reconsider the grant structure".

"It is obvious that the grant structure is the problem," he said. "We anticipated two weeks ago that the set-up would result in difficulties."

Mr. Runacres said the provincial grants are limited to a 10 per cent increase over the 1967 costs of education.

"Everyone in Hastings has borne a fairly good share of costs in the past. We have a marginal problem in some Hastings communities, but no dramatic differences such as some boards are experiencing."

"The present grant structure strikes at rural municipalities," F. B. Allore said this morning.

"The villain is the 10 per cent ceiling on provincial grants," he asserted.

Mr. Allore said the counties most affected by the grant formula are those in which the cities pay less than three - quarters of the total education al costs.

According to the information collected by the Interim committee set up last year to plot the change-over to county units, Belleville pays about 49 per cent of the county's total educational costs.

The more rural areas a county contains, the greater the impact of the grant structure on the ratepayers, Mr. Allore said. "If the present grant formula remains, the mill rate will double in most municipalities.

Raymond Rowe, Frankford, vice-chairman of the county board and trustee for ward 6, which includes Sidney township, commented that "increases can't be that high in our county."

He withheld further comment until officials put the budget figures before us," but admitted that last year Sidney's share of the total county cost of education "was one of the lowest."

Jim Picton, spokesman for the Prince Edward county board of education said grants are higher this year than in the past, but still lower than the board had hoped.

This morning director of education John McNeil, business administrator E. A. Short, finance committee chairman George Flower and the board solicitor left for Toronto to seek clarification of the grant formula.

In Belleville, Mr. Allore said his budget calculations were sent to Toronto two weeks ago when the implications of the grant formula first became apparent to his board. If all goes well, his board hopes to present its budget by mid-April.

The Hastings county board's budget meeting is scheduled for April 28 at an open session.

Fair-size Cheque To City

Mayor J. Russell Scott reads cheque for $10,000 presented by Belleville fair board president Cameron Bunnett. Cheque represents one half the fair board's commitment toward the cost of the new fairgrounds building.

Executive officials of the Belleville agricultural society today paid off half of its $20,- 000 commitment to the city in connection with the new fairgrounds recreational building.

This morning fair board president Cam Bunnett turned over the cheque for $10,000 to Mayor J. Russell Scott.

In making the payment Mr. Bunnett said the balance of the fair board's commitment would be paid later this year after final costs of the structure were known and application was made for the agricultural grant.

This grant, amounting to about 15% per cent of the cost, is paid to the fair board.

In addition to its role as a recreational centre, the fairgrounds building is used by the fair board as exhibition space during the Belleville fair.

Last spring when the city decided to go ahead with construction of the new fairground building, the fair board pledged $20,000 toward the cost.

Total cost of the building has been estimated in the area of $118,000 including restrooms, canteen, landscaping and other items.

Boards' Views Differ

two weeks before the county's budget will be completed.

W. G. Abraham, business superintendent for the West Parry Sound board, said the county levy will be doubled in some municipalities. The district's budget is $3,643,623 compared with $3,031,738 spent by the 1968 board.

H. W. Lever, Lanark County education director, said "we are waiting to clear certain things with Toronto." But he doubted the increase would be significant.

Only other board to comment was Kenora, where a spokesman said the budget will be ready in two or three days.

The current provincial budget calls for an increase in general legislative grants to school boards to $464,500,000 from $443,000,000 last year.

But the increase is only about five per cent and costs have been rising by 10 per cent a year.

The new provincial grant regulations limit increases to any board to 10 per cent. The 10 per cent does not make allowances for cases where completion of a new school or large addition have brought increased debt retirement costs.

Complaints centred on a clause in the act that set up the county school boards. It was approved last summer in the legislature along with a clause inserted at the request of Frontenac County.

The clause attempted to guarantee a slightly larger apportionment of costs in counties with one large city and a rural hinterland but its effect has been to penalize any municipality whose old school board under-budgeted in 1968.

One county board official said the effect of the new formula has been to reduce the over-all provincial contribution to elementary and secondary education to about 40 per cent from 45 per cent last year.

In one small county the result has been a prospective school tax of nearly $700 on houses with a market value of $20,000. The 1968 tax was about $300.

One of the first counties to complain was Wellington. That county board early this week rejected its own budget after it learned some rural municipalities faced school tax increases of 100 per cent.

The Globe and Mail quoted "a source close to the education department" as saying the new grants formula would mean the cutbacks in spending ordered by the provincial treasury department.

Walter Pitman, education critic for the Ontario New Democratic Party in the legislature, said the "predictable mess" in school financing could have been avoided had amalgamation of school boards had been phased in over six or seven years.

"It was done too quickly," he said in an interview. "It should have started with all the elementary schools being brought under one county board, then all secondary schools with an adjustment period in which to spot and correct the bad effects.

"Implementation of the program also should have been accompanied by provincial assumption of at least 50 per cent of the costs of education.

"That should not have been left for Treasurer Charles MacNaughton's budget as a policy to be made effective over three years in the future."

A great many poor rural families will be unable to pay their taxes and some may i se their land, Mr. Pitman warned.

"The areas most badly hurt are not where the people can least afford hare tax increases. Many simply will not be able to pay."

Mr. Pitman showed examples from Peterborough County, which he represents in the legislature.

Harvey Twaddle, a poor rural community, had a secondary school levy in 1968 of $32,- 594, he said. Its projected tax levy for 1969 is $127,200, an increase of 120 per cent.

Smith Township, on the northern edge of Peterborough, had a 1968 secondary school levy of $181,022. It will be $321,114 in 1969.

The public school levy in Harvey Township will rise from last year's $75,000 to $91,017; and in Smith Township from $177,081 to $215,067.

"Harvey Township last year was collecting 97 per cent of its education costs through the provincial equalization plan of grants," he said. "This year it will get 50 per cent.

"No new schools are being built there. For their higher taxes ratepayers will get no new services except for a longer bus ride for their children to new schools close to the built-up communities."

Mr. Pitman said cottagers will be hit so hard that a great many may have to give up their properties.

Cottagers last year got the provincial basic shelter rebate against property taxes, but the government has announced that the rebates will not apply to cottages in 1969. And they will have to pay "drastically increased" taxes for school purposes.

Loyalist Students Tackle River

Those Loyalist students are at it again.

This time the students and a teacher will risk their necks in a canoe run down the Moira River from Plainfield to the Bay of Quinte.

There is only one factor holding up the eight mile run scheduled for this Sunday. The boys are having trouble finding a second canoe for the trip.

So far the adventurers are students, Fred Robinson, Harold Hellott and Terry Murphy, and teacher Mike Barrett. They will have two persons in each canoe.

The "fun-seekers" have estimated that the current at present in the Moira will carry them at speeds between 25 and 40 miles per hour.

On top of that the temperature of the water, recorded just a couple of days ago by the students, is 34 degrees.

The intention of the canoeists is to ride the rapids before anyone else dares.

The trip will include two portages around the dams at Canniton and at Corbyville.

The dam near Belleville will be part of the danger, however, as the students intend to shoot through an opening in it.

Attire for the group will include wet suits and life jackets.

The journey is estimated to last about an hour. It starts Sunday at 12 noon.

One of the canoes in operation will be a 14 foot fibre glass canoe being loaned by Jim Jenkins, a local canoe builder.

Dundas Bridge: Tenders Soon

Tenders for the construction of Belleville's long discussed Dundas Street bridge will be called in the near future.

Yesterday, Dr. Richard Potter, MPP Quinte, announced that final department of highways approval for the bridge has now been granted with budget approval also given for the reconstruction of Dundas Street.

City engineer Wilbur Purcell said tenders for the bridge would be called as soon as the signature of the highways minister on the required forms was received.

The Dundas Street bridge is part of a three-phase project to relieve traffic congestion in downtown Belleville.

First phase of the project — the CPR - Bay Bridge Road overpass and approaches — was constructed last year. The Dundas Street bridge is scheduled as the second phase. Reconstruction of Dundas Street between the Moira River and the railway overpass will be the final phase.

Estimated cost of the bridge is $740,000 of which the city's share is said to be approximately $245,000.

Cost of the Dundas Street reconstruction expected to go ahead next year is estimated at $787,000 with the city paying $340,000.

County Sets Budget Next Week

Hastings county council will be presented with the 1969 county budget next week when council members meet for their April session.

The session, to commence Wednesday morning, is expected to last for three days.

In addition to striking the year's county tax rate, council will consider a road needs study to be presented by consulting engineers Totten, Sims and Hubicki and will hear reports from committee chairmen.

Nine resolutions from outside counties will be considered, including one from Perth county seeking repeal of the province's residential property tax reduction act and that persons employed in its administration be dismissed as their services will no longer be required.

Students Protest To OMB

Students at King George Public School have added their weight to a protest of local residents against the Ontario Municipal Board decision on the North Front Street area shopping plans.

This morning a petition signed by approximately 90 school students over the name of pupil Richard Sharpe, was delivered at city hall.

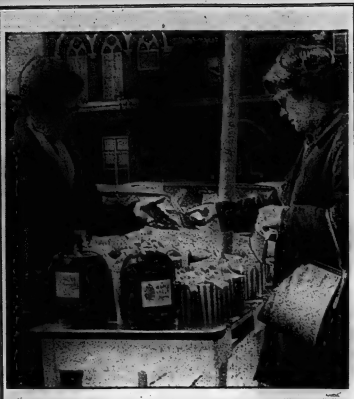
The petition set out several reasons why the students felt that the proposed northend plaza would benefit the city's economy.

City Files Petition

Belleville's petition protesting the Ontario Municipal Board ruling against the proposed northend shopping plaza has been filed with the Lieutenant Governor in Council.

City Solicitor E. Guss Porter said today that the city's petition had been filed subject to withdrawal should Cambridge Leaseholds Ltd. not agree to pay the costs involved in any new hearing.

Mr. Porter said he had expected to hear not later than this morning whether or not the plaza's developer would agree to bear the costs of a new hearing.



However, now he did not expect to hear from Cambridge until possibly early next week, said Mr. Porter.

Mayor Russell Scott said the city's petition had to be presented this week to meet a 28-day filing deadline.

He said if Cambridge Leaseholds did not agree to costs involved in any new hearing the petition would be withdrawn.

Reeve, Company Confident

No Fear for Marmora in New Mine Law

MARMORA — Ontario's revolutionary new mining policy is not expected to overthrow the economic status quo in North Hastings.

That's the belief of Reeve William D. Marcott of Marmora — Hastings County's major mining centre and home of the bustling 12,000-tonne-a-day Marmoraton Mining Co.

Local effects of the new law, requiring ores mined in Ontario be treated and processed in Canada, were not immediately known.

Marmoraton concentrates iron ore, taken from its huge open-pit operation here, into pellets. The concentrates then are railroaded to Picton for shipment across Lake Ontario to Tonawanda, N.Y., and the furnaces of Bethlehem Steel.

Reeve Shannon said he was not sufficiently informed about the new legislation to express an opinion on its possible ramifications at Marmoraton.

However, he was confident there would be no adverse effects for his village — a municipality of 1,400 which mines the bulk of its own economy from the ore pits.

"I'm not worried about the effect on Marmoraton," said Reeve Shannon. "I think the government in Toronto is fully aware of the situation at Marmoraton and wouldn't do anything to upset the status quo."

And at Pittsburgh, a spokesman for Bethlehem Steel — Marmoraton's parent — reflected Reeve Shannon's confidence the legislation would not interfere with company operations.

The official said he did not think Ontario's new policy would affect the Marmoraton operation "since we process and treat the ore there."

Reeve Shannon, chairman of the county's industrial promotion committee, said the legislation "came as a complete surprise to me. I didn't even know it was being considered."

As a long-term policy he personally believed the new law was "good Canadian thinking."

"However, I think it has to be tempered with reason," he cautioned.

The government should make allowances in mining locations where the potential resources would not economically warrant immediate processing.

"But if it is a sizeable and lucrative resource then I think the government are doing the right thing."

Mines Minister Allan Lawrence indicated the legislation would permit exemptions under certain conditions.

"Some of our resources . . . will have to be exported in the form of concentrates rather than metal, so there is provision . . . for . . . exemptions to the over-all policy," he told the legislature Wednesday.

He said exemptions will be granted only after consideration of certain refining facilities in Canada.

"Before ore can be processed outside Canada, specific authority must be obtained, he said.

Today, other active mining area in Hastings County is uranium-rich Bancroft, now showing signs of slow recovery from a decade of demand decline.

A new operation — Canadian Metal Mines now is re-exploring silos once worked by Faraday Uranium Mines in Bancroft's heyday as an Ontario uranium centre before markets dried up in the mid-'60s.

However, Reeve Jack Brown of Bancroft doubts if the new provincial rules affect such operations. Uranium is still a national-resource with processing governed by federal law.

The new law is formulated by amendments to the Mining Act and the Mining Act, introduced in the legislature by Mines Minister Lawrence.

By implementing a new policy the Ontario government seeks to ensure the development of Canada's northland, he emphasized.

Said Mr. Lawrence: "We want no one in the mining industry to be fooled by our attitude and our intention. We mean business. Ontario's natural resources belong to the people of this country as a whole."

The minister said the legislation represents a "very intimate change in the policies of this government."

Section 106 of the Mining Act already requires that all ores or minerals removed from any land sold by the Crown since April 12, 1917, be refined in Canada, but Mr. Lawrence said this has been ineffective because the largest number of Ontario's producing mines are on claims which were patented prior to that date.

The legislation will also put into effect tax changes announced in Ontario's budget in February.

Fund Makes Policy Change

Centennial Scholarship Fund of Belleville will have to change its method of operation to conform with regulations laid down by the Ontario Securities Commission.

The securities commission has placed a "freeze" on the operation of the fund until it's sales agent, Commencement Sales Ltd., satisfies certain requirements.

The foundation operates a savings plan designed to help parents pay all or part of their children's education.

Company official C. W. Cawker said today the problem revolves around franchising arrangements previously offered by Commencement Sales Ltd.

"Instead of selling franchises the company will now employ sales people to conform with new OSC regulations," he said.

So far the company has five franchise agreements which will have to be cancelled. The franchise fees amounting to $3,500 per area will be returned by the company.

Mr. Cawker said this morning that the total refund will amount to between $18,000 and $18,000.

He said the Ontario Securities Commission had changed regulations involving the operation of scholarship funds last September and that the company and its lawyers did not completely understand the changes.

"The problem concerns franchise operations and we're in the process of re-constituting our whole sales organization," Mr. Cawker said.

In the Quinte area the group has sold approximately 500 scholarship plans. "The publicity we have been getting has only resulted in the cancellation of two of these," the company official said.

The franchising problems arose in February when Nicholas Grant, a former salesman, complained to the securities commission.

Mr. Cawker says he has no complaint at all with the securities commission. "We intend to clear up this unpleasant situation as soon as possible and get back into business."

"I think the new regulations are good but they're of such a recent date we've all got to increase our familiarity with them.

"The regulations are there . . . they are fair . . . we've just got to tidy up and conform. We are already having discussions with the commission for reorganizing the sales operation and expect to be back in business very shortly."

Mr. Cawker also emphasized that the contributions of subscribers are in no way affected. "The funds go directly to a Toronto Trust Company which acts as a trustee for the fund," he said.

"A letter explaining the current situation and changes in the sales organization will be going out to our subscribers in the near future," said Mr. Cawker.

The company is still selling the fund in Quebec and Nova Scotia.

Another company operating a similar business in Ontario was ordered by the Securities Commission. United Scholarship Fund Ltd. of Montreal has been denied the right to sell plans because of deficiencies in its prospectus.

"Our prospectus was not in question at all," Mr. Cawker said today. "We have not had any questions about it at all."

Conference Televised

A network of approximately 285 television stations will televise the World Wide General Conference of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints this Sunday.

The telecast will feature David O. McKay, 95-year-old president and spiritual leader of the Mormon faith.

The broadcast, at 10 a.m. Sunday, will come from the Mormon Tabernacle in Salt Lake City, Utah.

The Political Life

Former President Eisenhower has been laid to rest in his native Kansas. His passing, mourned around the world, gives pause for reflection on the politics of the day. Strange for instance are the twists of fate that bring together men who spend their lives in opposition.

There was Prime Minister Trudeau, journeying to Washington for the memorial ceremonies with Opposition leader Stanfield and former Prime Minister Diefenbaker. What did they talk about en route? Politics — or did they just indulge in pleasantries?

There was President de Gaulle, France's stalwart leader and Eisenhower's wartime comrade-in-arms. Now Canada has had its times with de Gaulle over Quebec. We recall his "Vive Quebec Libre" cry during his 1967 visit, and his premature leave-taking following a rebuke by Prime Minister Pearson.

With that diplomatic flurry still fresh in mind, Prime Minister Trudeau has not been contemplating any visits to Paris (for one thing he has not been invited) or further invitations to de Gaulle. The closest they have been thus far has been the Eisenhower funeral. However, any possibility of the pair actually meeting was eliminated by the French leader declining an invitation to a White House reception. Instead he returned directly to Paris.

De Gaulle did call on President Nixon and relations between the two have been notably cordial since Mr. Nixon's recent European tour. The French leader plans to make a formal visit to the United States next year. This fact in itself is a tribute to de Gaulle's enduring qualities. Now 79, he has been president of France for the past decade and shows no sign of retiring.

No reference to such wartime figures as Eisenhower and de Gaulle would be complete without mentioning Field-Marshal Viscount Montgomery, hero of Alamein and deputy supreme commander of the Allied forces in Europe. Montgomery had his own brief fling at politics in the post-war years, but it was on a freelance basis and included a visit to China and publication of his memoirs of the second world war. Now 81, Montgomery is none too well and was unable to attend his former chief's funeral. But like all the other gentlemen mentioned here he is, as Robbie Burns once said, "a man for all that."

Public Relations

Public relations are a vital adjunct of a democratic society, and those who are representatives of public boards must expect not only to maintain such relations but to be answerable to the taxpayers for their decisions.

Hastings County Education Board director Eric Runacres is aware of this now if he were not before. He told a Madoc meeting the other day that the board invites the Press to all its meetings except those involving personal comments on staff, union negotiations and sale or purchase of land.

That is as it should be, but Mr. Runacres still seems to have some reservations. He said he had come to Belleville from Toronto "loathe to open up to the Press." Fair Press coverage had caused him to alter his opinion — but then he added: "Mind you, if we are hurt in the future, we may react a bit."

Now Mr. Runacres should know that being "hurt" is simply one aspect of the democratic process. It happens every day in political life, in Parliament and at other levels of Government. If by "hurt" Mr. Runacres is suggesting the Press is not entitled, in the public interest, to report or make fair comment on some controversial situation, that is plainly unacceptable.

The Press, for its part, has a duty to be both fair and accurate in reporting and commenting on the affairs of the board or any other public body. Fundamentally, however, a public board such as Hastings County Education Board, which expects to spend millions of dollars of taxpayers' money annually, must be accountable to the public for its operations.

Alberta's Lead

Lack of compensation for victims of crime has been an issue in Canada for some time. Now Alberta is taking a lead in introducing legislation to this end. Awards of up to $10,000 will be provided to persons injured while helping police to prevent a crime. Alberta, incidentally, is a leader in another sphere — the province has an ombudsman to keep an eye on citizen's rights.

Magic Word 'Separatism' Newest Attention-getter

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — So now it is official. Warnings of western separatism.

Prairie MPs, Conservatives and Liberals alike, have been muttering about it for months.

But until now it seems to have been discounted by Prime Minister Trudeau and the cabinet as nothing more alarming than the usual grumbles of parliamentary backbenchers.

Historically they are frustrated, and discontent is a way of backbench life in the Commons.

Maybe too, it is because the prime minister has been depending too much on his regional desks which are supposed to keep him alerted to what is going on in the political grassroots all across the country.

And since the political intelligence agents who man his regional desks after all are employees, dependent on his favors they might hesitate to brief him fully on news they suspect he really would rather not hear.

A volatile boss of instant enthusiasms and profound disinterests, the grassroots' spies on his regional desks can't ever be sure of his mood.

So it might be that in the interests of self-preservation, they "edit" — or even manage the news from their regions, playing up the good and low-keying the bad.

Could be, academics that they all are, they remember how Chegwin hoodwinked to death the royal messenger who was so unfeeling as to bring ill tidings.

The MPs, though, especially the Liberals, have been under no such handicap.

They have not tried protecting the prime minister's supposed sensitivity to other than the best possible of all news from the territories over the horizons from Ottawa.

They have been telling him and any cabinet minister willing to bend an ear exactly the way it is, both East and especially West.

The Conservatives, particularly those from the Prairies, have been hooking it to him in the Commons.

But he has not appeared to have been all that impressed.

Obviously then, one of the West's five representatives in cabinet felt compelled to give it to him straight.

Straight from the platform in a formal speech to the Liberal faithful in the very heartland of Ontario's Metro, one of the government's true stalwarts and seat of party power (the other being Quebec, of course).

It was delivered in Hamilton by Acting Energy, Mines and Resources Minister Otto Lang of Saskatoon-Humboldt.

What has been happening in the West he was careful not to pinpoint as "separatism," but instead, only slightly bluoring the point, described it as "the growing feeling of separation."

It was, he went on, "a feeling of discontent, of isolation in the West from the rest of the country."

And he laid the blame squarely on federal government "national policies."

It sounded remarkably like a confession of failure — unless he had forgotten that except for six years between 1957 and '63, his Liberals have been in charge of national affairs ever since 1935. That is 28 of 34 years.

National policy, Lang conceded, had become frozen, "dictating attitudes and posture creating an imbalance of power and influence."

The power, he was admitting, as the western and maritime premiers have been complaining for longer than Ottawa cares to remember, powers and money is concentrated in Ontario, the great, rich "have - and - getting - more - all - the - time" province.

Talk to the prairie and west coast MPs and you find that they are not unsympathetic to Quebec, and see some parallels between its requirements and feeling of isolation in the two regions.

But there the parallel stops.

Because what bothers the MPs west of the Lakehead is that all Quebec has to do is whisper of neglect and Ottawa in panic comes rushing to its aid.

But let the Prairies and the West Coast shriek in High C that Ottawa doesn't love them, and who cares enough to bother listening? Not Ottawa, say the western and coastal MPs, and that is for sure.

Separatism, or now, even talk of separating, seems to be becoming the accepted way of catching Ottawa's ear and ear and getting a little of the attention that automatically always has gone to Ontario.

Even the Maritimes' are getting into the act, although separatism with the Atlantic provinces is sort of old political hat.

We've always talked about it," says John Stewart, former maritime MP, now leaving a key Privy Council advisory post to return to the canyon, this time St. Francis Xavier.

"Our trouble is we're afraid to leave because nobody will take us in."

But now the Trudeau cabinet is facing up to regional "isolation," feelings of national neglect, and even just mere talk of separation — not only in Quebec — there has been some changes made.

The big change, which could lead to others, luckily appears to be in Ottawa's political heart and mind.

Canada paid the United States $130,000,000 on taking over the Alaska Highway 23 years ago today—in 1946. The sum covered all roads, flight strips, telephone systems, buildings and other assets, but not construction of the highway itself. The 1,523-mile highway was built in 1942-43 at a cost of $139,900,000 to the U.S., with Canada supplying the right of way.

Letter to the Editor

Plaza Would Boost City's Revenue

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

"Interested Bystander" is being more than a little naive when he commits himself to saying that the proposed new mall scheme for the downtown shopping area would not involve a colossal expenditure of the taxpayer's money.

If it is not the taxpayer that provides the money for Federal and Provincial grants, where on earth does it come from? Perhaps if we left ourselves into believing that Federal and Provincial money is rather more pleasant to spend, than say municipal cash, it is possible to delude ourselves it is not costing so much to spend.

However, the end result is the same, enormous cost to the taxpayer. With regard to the businessmen that have remodelled their stores inside and out, I would commend them, and suggest that others follow suit. This indicates initiative and would seem to suggest an ambition that is perhaps lacking among the 60 or so, that, to their everlasting shame, anonymously petitioned the Ontario Municipal Board to stop the plaza scheme.

I think enough has been said to clearly establish the fact that the proposed new shopping plaza would enrich the city coffers to the tune of around $250,000 in the way of revenue, and I think it is most complimentary to the city that a "complete stranger" from a cozy office in a large city has the faith and foresight to want to invest such a large amount of money in a municipality whose past history is literally splattered with lost opportunities.

I might add that the call for Bellevillians to "Wake up" is a little late. We have just been witnessing the awakening under the leadership of a concerned and dedicated citizen, thousands of signatures in support of the shopping plaza have been obtained by many willing helpers, whose desire is to see that our city "gets a new face" during our lifetime. If we continue to allow the remnants of Belleville's fading "Old Order" to continue to hold the reins and dictate the way of things, then our city will fall by the wayside, losing its youth and vitality, until such time we may count ourselves lucky to rate the status of a village.

Peking Congress

Aging Mao Tse-tung Pursues National Solidarity

By JOHN RODERICK

TOKYO (AP) — China's ninth Communist party congress, which opened in Peking Tuesday, is Mao Tse-tung's last great effort to remake his nation.

In the early days of his 76-year-old regime, when he held the reins of both the party and the government, he sought to impose his will through both. Rebellions in the army and at the top of the Communist hierarchy blasted his dreams.

In 1966, placing his faith in a great mass movement dubbed the Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution, Mao tried to achieve mastery through revolutionary committees modelled on the Paris communes in 1871.

The breakdown of party and government which accompanied his epic purge thrust the often unreliable army into a position of dangerous dominance. Mao countered by decreeing, fruitlessly, that the workers and peasants should take over the revolution.

Now, finally, he has had to fall back on the party he spurned and shattered. He is trying to rebuild it on Maoist lines from the shambles it had become.

The task of the party congress is to revise the constitution to include Mao's political philosophy, designate Defence Minister Lin Piao his successor and name a new central committee for the party.

Mao, now 75 and nearing the end of his turbulent revolutionary life, is taking no chances on failure this time. The 1,512 delegates have been handpicked rather than elected. As the opening-day communique put it, they were chosen "through full democratic consultation by party organizations at various levels and after extensively seeking the opinion of the broad masses."

The criterion for membership was simple: Loyalty to Mao.

Mao's fight to give the new central committee control of the army will be bolstered by a record number of industrial workers and peasants among the delegates to the congress.

The new central committee later will name its own ruling politburo and standing committee, the select inner circle responsible for the day-to-day operation of the party, the army, and the government.

The next formality will be a national people's congress to go through the motions of naming a new president and a new government.

It is possible that a few of Mao's former opponents may be retained on the central committee as "teachers by negative example." But they are unlikely to include any of the leaders of the anti-Mao group which former president Liu Shao-chi led.

Liu was removed from all of his posts by a plenary session of the central committee last October. Under the present party constitution, its action must be confirmed by the party congress.

One of the main orders of business for the congress is likely to be elevation of some leaders of the cultural revolution group to positions on the central committee. They include Mao's wife, Chiang Ching, and Lin Piao's wife, Yeh Chun. Both appeared on the rostrum Tuesday beside Mao, as the congress opened.

Special Events, Pageants

City Prepares to Observe the Easter Holiday

Easter weekend begins tomorrow — Passover started last night at sunset.

And so Belleville is busy with special church events and pageants celebrating Good Friday and Easter Sunday as well as Passover.

For the Jewish people the holiday will recall the exodus of Israelites from bondage in Egypt more than 3,000 years ago. The observance began Wednesday night with the ceremonial meal Seder and lasts for eight days.

On Good Friday almost all of the churches in Belleville will be holding special services, most of them beginning at 11 a.m.

And Sunday services at all churches will be held at the same time as on regular Sundays.

Schools will be closed on Good Friday. The long weekend comes after students recently completed one week of their mid-term vacation.

Good Friday will also see the stores and businesses in Belleville shut down. It is a legal holiday and banks won't be opening again until Monday.

Stores will again be open on Saturday from nine a.m. until five p.m. — a relief night for the majority of them.

Brewers' Retail stores and liquor control outlets will be open late, until nine p.m. tonight, and will of course be closed on Good Friday. They will open on their regular hours Saturday.

At 1.30 p.m. on Saturday the annual Sports Parade will get off to a start from the West Hill Fire Hall. Over 800 walkers, service club members, minor sports people, clowns, floats and city officials will be participating in the annual event.

Other than the parade the weekend is expected to be rather quiet in observance of the religious aspects of the three days.

Provincial police do not expect an abnormally high number of travellers on the main highways and Belleville city police are also looking for a quiet weekend.

The Intelligencer will not be publishing on Friday but will resume normal operation again on Saturday.

In conjunction with the sports parade the Shriners possess hockey tournament, with 24 teams participating, will get under way tomorrow and finish on Saturday. It, also is an annual event.

Liquor lounges in the city will only be closed on Good Friday and as always on Sunday. Normal hours will be in effect on Saturday.

All government offices will be closed beginning on Good Friday. They will open again on Tuesday morning.

In Belleville, city hall employees also have a long, long weekend as municipal employees will be off from Friday morning through Monday.

The honorary bearers were McLean Haig, Ormonde Butler, Clarence Carvell, Newton Thompson and Douglas Latimer. The active bearers were William Hurst, Harry Fast, J. C. Bowman, Archibald Campbell, Freeman Burrows and Dr. Harold Craig.

MRS. GORDON W. BAILEY

STIRLING — The funeral for Mrs. Gordon W. Bailey, the former Kathleen Alice Mundy was held in St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, Monday with Reverend J. Bruce Small officiating and was largely attended.

A full choir composed of members of the Belleville University Women's Club and students from Centennial Secondary School with Quinte Secondary Schools rendered two hymns.

Those in attendance included professionals, teachers and students of the secondary schools in Belleville, Messrs. Raymond Rowe and Donald Williams represented Hastings County School Board.

The bearers were John L. Good, Harold Wells, Russell West, Burton Morton, Harry Morrow and Wendell Camm.

The entombment was made in Stirling Cemetery Vault. The funeral was under the direction of the Hogle Funeral Home.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—The Toronto stock market declined fractionally in light mid-morning trading today.

The market opened with a small gain but was dragged down by a sharp opening drop in New York.

Industrial mines were slightly lower but base metals were up. Allan Lawrence, Ontario mines minister, presented amendments to the Mines Act in the legislature Wednesday that called for all ores and minerals mined in Ontario after Jan. 1, 1970, to be treated in smelters and refineries in Canada.

Icon slipped ¼ to 35¾ and Falconbridge 1 to 113. The two mining companies ship some or all of their Ontario output in concentrate or semi-refined condition out of Canada.

Trading in Stuart House was halted shortly after opening pending an announcement from the company. The stock was unchanged at 10 before the trading halt, but rose ¾ Wednesday. John Stuart, president, said the company is negotiating for acquisition of a group of companies, subject to exchange approval. The stock has more than doubled from a low of $4.25 in January.

CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE

GARBAGE NOTICE

Householders who would normally place their garbage for collection on Friday, April 4th, 1969, are reminded that, in accordance with the Contract for the City of Belleville Garbage Collection contractor, there will be no collection on this day, it being Good Friday.

Garbage and refuse should be retained and placed for collection on the next normal collection day by householders so affected.

Latin Revitalized

Classics Come Alive

By LINDA GELDART

Latin may be a dead language, but it took the opportunity to really "come alive" for several local high school students recently.

Students from both Moira and Quinte Secondary schools representing their own classical clubs, attended a Junior Classical League Convention held in St. Catharines.

The convention, which brought together "lovers of Latin" from 25 high schools all over the province, was just the chance the young people had been waiting for to do their classical "bit."

More than 200 students attended the convention, the majority of them feverishly participating in the unending procession of skit contests, lectures, and poetry readings.

And they loved it.

This was the League's first year of existence, and, of course, its first convention. But the response indicated an enthusiasm on the part of the students.

For the Quinte Classical Club, the experience was especially rewarding.

We won two prizes, one for the skit we did, and the other for our costume entry," one of the Quinte members explained proudly.

The skits were in either Latin or English, and on a classical theme.

"It was really interesting to see what the other groups did, — and compare. You could tell as you watched the various skits that each group did a great deal of research — which goes to show their immense interest," Quinte Club president Maxine Bowler said.

Every part of the convention was so organized that it gave the students a chance to be inventive, and even dramatic.

This was particularly true of the orchical part of the program. Here, it was necessary for the student to learn sometimes more than 25 lines of Latin prose.

Artistic exhibitions, underlined with a classical theme, also clearly demonstrated the special interest and involvement the students felt.

Aside from the cultural and linguistic benefits, perhaps the greatest single thing the students took away with them from the convention was the knowledge that there were other young people just as enthusiastic about Latin and the classics as they were.

Something like unity in a common purpose.

When questioned about the validity of this statement members of the club agreed wholeheartedly.

"The prize was just being there, and the reward was being able to take part," one member said.

"To realize others had your enthusiasm, and to be about to invest it together, was a culminating experience, and a very unifying force for our club," remarked Maxine Bowler.

"Besides all that, it was just plain fun," she said.

The Latin teacher at Quinte is John Cernic, and he also attended the convention.

"I would describe it as a high calibre event. Things were going on all the time, you could never possibly get bored," he said.

The point the club, and even the convention was trying to make is simply this: Latin and the related classics are not staid, dry and uninteresting.

It is quite the opposite.

Several club members said that the majority of students taking Latin feel "square" if they take an added interest in their subject.

"The colorful history, philosophy and beautiful poetry of this age are valuable. In studying the Roman or Greek culture, for instance, you stimulate interest in the study of other cultures", ventured Miss Bowler.

There are only 20 club members, but they are active and involved members.

How could the study of such a subject as Latin be made more interesting, so as to entice the student to be curious about more than what is in the text book?

The students suggested movies, that would supplement the Latin course or, interesting novels that relate the history of the period.

It is too bad the majority of students don't look beyond what they are studying like this group of enthusiasts do. They just don't know what they are missing.

In This Corner, A Winner...

Coleen Fortin shows off the authentic Roman costume that won a first for the Quinte Classical Club at a recent convention of the Junior Classical League held in St. Catharines. Representatives from the Moira Classical Club also attended. This was the first year for the conference.

NCC Students Win Honors

By JUDY SCHREIDER

"Never be afraid to say what you think," was Milt McCrystal's answer when asked if he had any tips for up-and-coming radio announcers.

A grade 11 student at Nicholson Catholic College, Milt is the president of the school radio club and was on hand to receive the CJBQ trophy last Saturday. The trophy is awarded annually to the club producing the highest calibre of radio broadcasts throughout the school year. Milt felt that the success of the club was due mainly to the willingness of each member to strive for originality in the script.

"We tried to give as much life to it as possible," he said.

Sandra Flagler, a CJBQ employee, who was in charge of the school radio clubs, said of the Nicholson group: "That club has a lot of talent."

However, Milt's reply is simply: "If you like to do something, you usually do it well."

Ray Duminie shares his opinion. He entered his experiments on oxidation-reduction reactions in the recent Rotary science fair and won first place in the grade 11-13 physics division, as well as the title of grand champion runner-up.

A grade 13 student at Nicholson, he will be going to Regina early in May for the national fair. Ray says that he is really looking forward to the experience since he plans to enter an honors science university course this fall.

Nicholson can also boast of two girls with outstanding athletic ability. Ann Wilmer and Loretta Fleming will be representing NCC at the 1969 COSSA gymnastics meet.

Patsy Jean Allore, a grade 12 student at NCC put on an excellent performance in the Belleville Ice Carnival last weekend.

Pyramid on Top

The Far East influence creeps into hair-styling for spring, as actress Deanna Lund illustrates with her pagoda coiffure. Long, uncurled tresses are essential for this style and a fall for the crown treatment helps.

Spring Trend Trio

(By Reba and Bessie Churchill)

Three new hair - styling trends are emerging for spring time coiffures. The first, and most feminine, is sash curls. Front and sides are brushed back from face, and belted and bowed at the crown. Tresses tumble freely to shoulder line, where tips are flipped into delicate petal curls. Latter are feather-teased only three inches from ends to insure extra body for fanning and cupping strands. Wavy tendrils at each temple completes the flower-fresh silhouette.

For the more sophisticated, there is the pagoda coiffure. Borrowing its name from the Far East, it features a pyramid silhouette, haloed by twin loops. It makes hair setting obsolete, for curl-free is a requirement. Hair is combed to the crown, and secured with a coated elastic. If long, like actress Deanna Lund's, who is seen in the 20th - TV series Land of the Giants, a loop braid is possible. If not, twirl hair into a circle at the crown, and attach a fall. Wrap twin sections into an elongated figure eight. Conceal end tips in loops.

The third coif combines casual styling — the trademark of the outdoor girl—and sculptured symmetry, preferred by the precise beauty. Bangs, top and sides are short and scattered - brushed. Translation: Tease rear scalp, then fan in a free-form pattern. The back, either your hair or an assist from a fall, is twirled into cascade curls, which are sprayed neatly in place. An added touch is a series of bows, as narrow as shoestrings, which flit across crown and back, leaving frost curly cropped and uncluttered.

Easter Egg Hunt on Saturday

President Inez Smith of the Quinte Chapter of the Industrial Management Clubs of Canada announced that the club's Annual Easter Egg Hunt will be held at the East Hill Playgrounds at 10.00 a.m. on Saturday, April 5.

Club members will arrange the hunt — a popular annual event for many years, always enjoyed by the hundreds of youngsters who participate.

Boys and girls 12 years and under are eligible to join the hunt for clues to the major prizes of Easter chocolate bunnies, roosters or eggs. All participants will receive lollipops. The Quinte Chapter, I.M.C. of C. is affiliated with the Belleville Family YMCA.

Bert Menzies, YMCA general secretary, will assist IMC members in conducting the event.

Expect a lot of good things when you fly West with Air Canada.

Like the convenience of choice, for instance. Air Canada has eight jet flights to Vancouver every day from Toronto. Two of these are non-stop — most of the others one-stoppers. All have a standard of service that we think is the best you'll get anywhere. On any airline. But, that doesn't mean we're going to leave things just the way they are. There will be changes... simply because we believe that even the best can get better. We're on our way up in more ways than one. And we intend to prove it. Always. All ways. For you. Next time you head West, come with Air Canada and see for yourself. Just call your travel agent for your reservations.

Opening lead: Queen of Diamonds.

The Belleville Bridge Club held an Open Pairs, two-session event on March 30, well attended, with competitors from Kingston to Toronto taking part. The best Belleville could manage was a third place finish overall, with first place won by Oshawa, and second place going to Kingston. Today's deal is taken from this tournament, and shows how to play well for a bottom score. Before reading on, plan your play to six spades against the opening lead of the diamond Queen.

If you planned to draw trump, and finesse in clubs and hearts, you have done what every pair but one did, and as you can see looking at all four hands, you would be down.

However, note what happens if you win the Ace of diamonds, draw trump in one round, play King of diamonds, ruff a diamond, Ace of hearts, and ruff the last diamond. Now when you lead another heart, East must win and is forced to either lead clubs up to your Ace Queen, or allow you to ruff in your hand and shuff the club Queen on the board. And so you make six for a top score. Even if East turns out to have the heart King, you can still try the club finesse. Or East may even lead another heart, giving you the ruff and shuff.

Beautiful play? Top score? No—one South player did play exactly as described, but unfortunately for him, the hands were not as shown above, West held the heart King, and East the club King — so this South was the only player in the room to go down, for a very cold bottom.

Protect Murals

SANTANDER, Spain (AP) — Special fibers have been installed in the lights of the Altamira cave to protect its stone-age murals. The prehistoric drawings are estimated to be between 17,000 and 20,000 years old. Technicians said ultraviolet radiation from neon lights in the cave was causing the ancient paint to fade.

Welfare Review Is Called Money-grab

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government was accused Wednesday of forming a welfare review board only to get more federal money with no intention of correcting injustices in welfare administration.

Liberal and New Democratic Party members questioned John Yaremko, minister of social and family services, for more than two hours for assurance that welfare recipients are notified they have a right of appeal against welfare decisions.

Mr. Yaremko was accused by James Trotter (L—Toronto Parkdale) of "appalling conduct —Tory government at its worst" when he refused to do more than "carry out the legislation passed by this house."

The debate arose from a minor $45,000 item in Mr. Yaremko's estimates for a welfare review board created two years ago but functioning to date with only three of its nine members appointed.

The board, a prerequisite for Ontario sharing in the Canada Assistance Plan, is to review welfare applications rejected by the administrators and to hear appeals against inadequate appeals.

Mr. Yaremko said only three members have been appointed to it because only seven reviews, all in the Peterborough area, are pending.

Walter Pitman (NDP—Peterborough) said that was because only Peterborough residents knew the board existed.

Vernon Singer (L—Downsview) said Mr. Yaremko created the board to deceive the federal government and is "either negligent or he is guilty of a deliberate denial of the right of appeal to those needing it."

Nuclear Reactor Is Closed

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro's nuclear reactor at Douglas Point has been shut down since March 6 due to a mechanical failure but there has been "no problem" of escaping radioactive materials, Energy Minister J. R. Simonett said Wednesday.

Speaking in the legislature in reply to questions from Liberal Leader Robert Nixon, Mr. Simonett said the shutdown followed a mechanical failure in one of two remotely-operated refuelling machines used for the reactor.

The failure, combined with the annual shut-down for maintenance purposes, would delay the plant's return to operation for another six or eight weeks, the energy minister said.

Two Nova Scotia Tax Bills Passed After Fifteen Hours

HALIFAX (CP) — Weary legislators gave two tax bills third reading in the Nova Scotia legislature shortly before 5 a.m. AST today following a 15-hour filibuster by Opposition Leader Gerald Regan.

Lt.-Gov. Victor Oland was to give royal assent to the bills later today. They will go into effect Friday.

Mr. Regan started his filibuster, longest in the Nova Scotia legislature since 1882, at 2 p.m. Wednesday. He continued speaking, except to yield the floor to opposition members and for two half-hour breaks, until 4.40 a.m. today.

In an interview afterwards, Mr. Regan said he quit the debate when he realized the Conservative government wouldn't back down. He had planned to talk until the government abandoned its intention to tax electricity and removed the retail tax from building products.

Mr. Regan termed it "legislation by exhaustion."

Premier G. I. Smith said Mr. Regan conducted "an exercise in futility."

The two bills given third reading increase taxes on gasoline, liquor and tobacco and raise the sales tax from five to seven per cent and broaden its base.

A previous amendment removed the seven per cent sales tax from electricity and substituted a flat rate of 50 cents a month for domestic users and rates ranging from $1 to $30 for commercial customers.

Airport Site Wins Support

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Air Traffic Control Association stated Wednesday that it supports the federal government's choice of Ste. Scholastique, Que., as the location of the new Montreal International Airport.

National Vice-President D. M. Diffley of Montreal said his association supports the choice because "location elsewhere would have meant the establishment of conflicting streams of traffic" and that would defeat the purpose of creating an airport for the jumbo and supersonic aircraft of the future.

The association's 800 members are all federal government employees.

Self-dubbed Smoking Therapist Gives Advice to Chronic Smokers

MONTREAL (CP) — A year ago a "Stale Montreal tornado" threw away her cigarettes, dubbed herself a smoking therapist and launched an anti-smoking campaign at the Royal Edward Chest Hospital in Montreal.

Twelve months later, 15 per cent of the chronic smokers Beronice Lurie visited had given up the habit, the staff at the Royal Edward had cut down smoking considerably and school children from all parts of Montreal were reaping the benefits of her knowledge.

Mrs. Lurie, a pint-sized mother of two grown sons, admits there is a method to her madness, at the same time boasting of the fact that the Royal Edward is probably the first Canadian hospital to put such a therapy program into effect.

"I'll bet I'm the first smoking therapist in Canada," she said during a recent interview.

"I'm not a saint. I used to smoke 50 cigarettes a day until a year and a half ago and I'd be the last person to tell anyone to stop smoking completely, immediately."

But, she says, she has a few tricks, "and they work—boy do they work." "Now, watch and listen. This is a yoga breathing exercise that relaxes tension. Everytime you get tensed up and want to reach for a cigarette try this:

"Place one finger against the side of one nostril and breathe in through the other nostril to the count of four, fold your breath till a further count of eight and then breathe out through the other nostril. Now reverse the procedure using the other nostril."

Mrs. Lurie says the exercise should only be done once for each nostril as "you can get dizzy if too much oxygen reaches the brain suddenly."

An enterprising reporter tried the exercise immediately—and by golly it worked!

Other procedures when trying to kick the habit include;

—Removing all ashtrays around the house—"the power of suggestion."

—Removing cigarettes from night tables—"It's too easy to reach over and light up."

—Never carry matches. "But never."

—Keep cigarettes in some other place in your pockets than the one they're usually in.

"For example, if you've absolutely got to have a cigarette after meals, allow yourself those three. Then add the one you always must have before you go to sleep or the one that's an absolute must about 10 a.m.

"O.K? That's five critical cigarettes. The rest are either smoked to kill time, left unbroken, reduce anxiety or reward the smoker.

"I used to say, 'Aha, I've finished the dishes like a good wife should so now I'll reward myself by sitting down with a cup of coffee and a nice cigarette.'

Mrs. Lurie tells women to keep a pencil and pad of paper handy at the telephone so when it rings and so that she can doodle instead of lighting up a cigarette to keep her hands busy.

Chest surgeon Dr. D. D. Munroe, on the first anniversary of the anti-smoking program recently, praised Mrs. Lurie loudly.

"I tell you, last year that little Montreal tornado whizzed into my office with her ideas for an anti-smoking program and nearly took my breath away.

Dr. Munroe, who is surgeon-in-chief at both the Royal Edward and Royal Victoria hospitals here, expressed the hope that hospitals across Canada might adopt similar programs.

"I had a letter from Health Minister Munro, he said, "and he couldn't get over what Mrs. Lurie had accomplished in such a short time.

"Every day we see the pallorish, runny of them heavy smokers for more than 20 years. Every day lungs are removed from them of cancerous growths, patients gasp for breath around hospital rooms because they can't catch their breath—emphysema or some other respiratory disease.

Dr. Munroe said the rate of lung cancer in women is rising sharply.

"Believe it or not, more men than women are cutting down on their smoking habits.

"Maybe that's because women began smoking about 25 years later than men.

In 1950, said Dr. Munroe, 202 Canadian women died of lung cancer.

"That figure had tripled in 1967.

"In 1950 1,034 males died of lung cancer and in 1967 3,700 males had died of the disease.

The surgeon blamed cigarette advertising as a major factor in starting young people "on the downside habit."

"You can't drive your car, turn on your radio, watch a television program or open up for a walk without cigarette advertising hitting you in the face, he said angrily.

Mrs. Lurie said she had received letters from bereaved 11- and 12-year-olds whose schools she had visited to talk about her program and show slides and filmfi on the danger of smoking.

"These kids write and tell me they don't understand why a message on television from a cancer prevention society is followed by an advertisement to smoke.

"What's even sadder is that these kids are becoming more aware of the dangers of smoking and are afraid of losing their parents because they smoke.

Many youngsters, after listening to Mrs. Lurie, go home and plead with their parents to give up smoking.

"Some parents are grateful and have written to the various school boards praising them for bringing such a program into the school.

The spunky therapist, who works on a voluntary basis and non budget, remains about five feet. She thinks nothing of whipping a cancerous lung, pickled in formaldehyde, out of her briefcase and "scaring the hell out of someone who smokes.

"See that. That's what cancer looks like.

One photographer taking her picture got so nervous when he saw the lung that he promptly lit a cigarette.

Of the 100 patients Mrs. Lurie has been seeing at the Royal Edward, "15 per cent have given up smoking."

Dr. Munroe said that in the United States 10,000,000 people had given up smoking since 1964, "so it can be done.

Commends Robbers

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. A. H. Spicer, the wife of the British trade commissioner in Toronto, says if she is ever robbed again she'll choose the group that robbed her during a recent visit to Britain and the Mediterranean. She told the Empire Club here "they moved out a lot of heavy stuff, but they didn't scratch any of the walls or woodwork doing so . . . they were much more careful than our movers were when they brought it in."

Dancer Now Carves Cutlets

TORONTO (CP) — Jann Olsson, a petite former nightclub dancer from Australia, spends her days carving cutlets with 38 males.

The five-foot-two, 105-pound native of Australia is the only woman taking a meat-cutting course at a local community college and she hopes to open a "meat boutique" in Australia or Canada when she graduates in May. She comes from a family of food caterers, but meat-cutting in Australia is strictly a male trade.

Before entering the course, she worked as a nightclub dancer in Australia and was a magician's assistant in New Zealand where being "sawed" in half was all part of a day's work.

Before arriving in Canada two years ago with her husband, a TV producer, she toured the Orient for six years.

Instructors at George Brown College which has been offering the course for three years, say Jann is the first woman to enrol and that her marks are "good to excellent."

Jann says she is strictly not a "steak and potatoes" girl but prefers stroganoff and beef bourguignon.

She hopes to sell "rosy rumps, mini-steaks and frilly fillets" if she opens her boutique.

USC Chairman Attends Meet

Mrs. Jean L. Smith, this year's Unitarian Service Committee Chairman, and other local representatives participated in the National Agency Review Committee Session held recently in Toronto.

Area representatives included Robert Porter, executive director of the United Committee Services in Belleville; and Mrs. Betty McFarlane, last year's campaign chairman, and Carl Whitemore.

The N.A.R.C., an independent reporting service, was formed to aid local communities plan fair-share support of the central program and administration of national agencies.

In formulating this plan, N.A.R.C. sessions are held annually to review all National Agency activities.

At this session, all of the local United Community Service participating agencies with national offices, (i.e. CNIB, VON, YMCA,) were reviewed.

Sixty-one representatives from eight provinces formed panel groups to discuss the proposed activities of these agencies for the ensuing year.

Consideration was given to area of need, program services, budget, financing as well as formulating a support plan.

Each panel group met with representatives from the executive of the National Agency, and reports summarizing the conclusions and recommendations were reviewed and adopted by the committee as a whole.

Area W.I. Groups Meet

BAY OF QUINTE WI

WHITE'S DISTRICT — The Bay of Quinte Women's Institute held their March meeting at the home of Mrs. Frank Sandercock.

A letter was received from Mrs. Alastair Kerlin, Provincial President of the Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario. It was planned to have a short course at a later date on "Home Furnishings." Plans were made to cater for a wedding at Glen Miller Hall in June.

The District Annual convention will be held at Centenary United Church on May 13 with the Bay of Quinte Institutes catering. All members will be needed on this occasion. It was decided to put a new border for the institute.

Many of Canada's mining operations have employed Indians since their mines were already reached for production. Indian crews have played a major role in clearing ground for International Nickel Co. of Canada at Thompson, Manitoba.

After the meeting, refreshments were served, and a social time enjoyed.

SPRINGBROOK - BONARLAW W.I.

The March meeting of the Springbrook - Bonarlaw Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Everett Heath recently, with a good attendance.

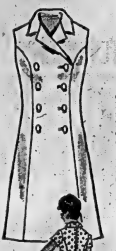
President, Mrs. Cyril McKeown was in charge. Mrs. W. J. Barlow reported on the six card parties showing a balance of $100.75 realized.

Mrs. Jas Sory gave her report of the District directors meeting held at Madoc and reported the W. I. convention will be held at Cooper on May 7.

Mrs. C. L. McKeown was in charge of the program, and gave an interesting address on Eskimos past and present and Northern Canada Women's Institute, followed by readings and contest by Mrs. C. McKeown.

Thanks were expressed to the hostess for opening her home by W. I. president. Refreshments were later served by the hostess.

Lengthy Career



TORONTO CP — Gertrude Lucas, 67, has been modelling women's fashions for 44 years and this year has done numerous free-lance assignments with the "elegant" trend in fashion. "I hope to carry on to my 50th year of modelling," she says.

A REMINDER

Wedding forms for write-ups are available at The Intelligencer office. Should be completed and returned BEFORE the ceremony so a report can be published immediately after the wedding.

Pictures may be submitted by your photographer up to three days after the wedding. We cannot publish wedding write-ups submitted later than six days after the date of the ceremony.

Accounts of showers and entertainments in honor of the bride do not belong with a wedding write-up and should be sent in immediately after they are held, for publication separately.

Various Volunteer Bureaus Report Programs

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I was interested to read about the Geriatric Institute in Oshawa in your column. In it you mention that "volunteers help with meals-on-wheels, the sick and dreary up bubbles and fun and games." And you state that we are just beginning to tackle some of these things in Canada's larger centres.

Here in Vancouver, there is a great deal of volunteer work being done for the aged. Meals on wheels are available three to five days a week in several communities. Both preparation and delivery are done on a volunteer basis.

The "Volunteers for Seniors" program provides direct personal activities weekly for older people living in nursing homes, rest homes and private hospitals in the Greater Vancouver area. This program was begun in 1960.

We still have a long way to go but a good start has been made! — Vicki L. Smith, Volunteer Bureau of Greater Vancouver

Dear Doris: Word has started to circulate in Niagara Falls about our new Volunteer Bureau. I have had people call in to offer their services, which is encouraging.

We see our job as: exploring needs, volunteers can meet, encouraging volunteers to volunteer; developing standards work; co-ordinating all such activities in volunteer groups; serving as a clearing house for such efforts; consulting about volunteer projects; program and training; and interpreting the value of volunteer services. — Dorothy Parker, Volunteer Bureau, Social Planning Council of Greater Niagara.

Dear Vicki and Dorothy: Now that's what I call super. In both locations. Let's hear what others are doing.

Dear Doris: My fiancee and I will be married next summer. The other day she said she wanted to have her ears pierced. Really I don't see that it should be my concern, but she wanted to know what I thought of the idea.

Doris Clark

So would you please tell me what the advantages and disadvantages of pierced ears are? — R. V.

Dear R.V.: Advantages: She isn't likely to lose them — her earrings, that is.

Certain types of earring, like small gems, look better on the lobes if they appear to have sprouted there.

Pierced ears are fashionable.

Disadvantages:

Too heavy an earring can tear the skin and even spread the hole open.

Improper piercing can cause infection.

If she uses common sense in her choice of earrings, and has the piercing done by a practising physician and under sanitary conditions, I can't see a thing wrong with it. Say yes, Mr. Fiance.

Please make letters as brief as possible — not more than two pages. And remember that stamped envelope.

RATE DECLINES

WIESBADEN AP — West Germany's birth rate, which climbed after the Second World War to 18.3 births annually per 1,000 inhabitants, has been declining since 1964, the federal statistics office reported. It said in 1968 there were only 16.1 births per 1,000 inhabitants.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Caller (on telephone): "May I speak to your mother? Hello, is this the Taylors' home? Please call your mother to the phone."

Child: "What do you want? Who is this?"

If children are rude on the telephone, they do not realize how it sounds to the caller. A few instructions will help a family's telephone manners.

Mother: "When you answer the phone, say 'Taylors' house, Larry speaking,' in a nice voice, just as you would greet your friends at the door. Then listen to what the caller says."

If you're not home, it may be because you're busy with other things. Perhaps you're playing outside, or you're busy with a hobby. Or maybe you're visiting a friend. Whatever it is, you should tell your mother where you're going, and when you'll be back.

Ann Landers

Constant Reader Irked by Advice

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN: Every member of our family reads your column religiously and has profited from your advice. But now and then you go off the deep end cause trouble. Like that letter from Ned whose wife Peggy surprises him at the door every evening in a bikini, a see-through blouse, or maybe topless.

After my husband read that letter he said: "How come you never think of anything like that?"

Ned didn't mention children, so obviously they have none. But most people I know do have kids and I'd like to know how in thunder a decent mother can do a nightly strip act with small fry running loose?

Your advice is still tops for day-to-day living, Ann, but please, don't give any more space to a dumb dumb like Ned. — STILL DRESSED AT 5 P.M.

DEAR STILL DRESSED: You're right, I'll take ten lashes with a G-string.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Thank you for printing the letter from the woman who was bored stiff listening to fat friends talk about their starvation diets. That letter gave me the impetus to write a letter I've composed in my mind at least 25 times. The subject: "A Few Homey Hints On How To Keep Friends Forever."

Don't discuss your physical ailments with social acquaintances. They are not interested in your headaches, backaches, nervous spells, or the details of your recent surgery; don't tell another woman how wonderful her husband is. And no matter how wonderful he is, don't take him aside and tell him your troubles. It will inevitably get back to her that you cried on his shoulder and that will fix you with her; don't run down your husband. Such talk will not generate sympathy. It will make you look like a swiveling, disloyal wife don't allow another woman to bum rap her husband in your presence. Change the subject. Most marriages fluctuate between good and not so good. The wife who tells all about her

Investigate Stocks

By KEN WEEKES

The last two articles discussed purpose of stocks and how to plan your stock investment. If you have decided that you may be able to put some money into stocks, you will want to know how to buy them.

The purchase and sale of stocks is relatively easy. Most stocks are traded through a stockbroker. To find a stockbroker, simply look in the Yellow Pages of your telephone directory. Talk to on the telephone and he will ask you a few routine questions, and suddenly you have a stockbroker. You are advised, however, to have your banker or other reliable source recommend a broker to you.

Be extremely wary of brokers you know nothing about. You may get on the list of an unreliable broker. Then you begin getting phone calls or salesmen at your door attempting to sell some stock that is of questionable value.

Your broker will do any buying or selling that you request him to do. His fee will be a certain commission, both on the purchase and sale of your stock. Commissions are usually in the range of two to five percent of the amount you buy and sell. Obviously you must make at least five percent on your stocks just to break even. The commission may sound high but it is reasonable when you consider what services your broker performs.

Most brokers are helpful about such things as providing information about companies, although they may not give you advice as to which stocks to buy. And they send you regular accounts of the stocks you hold, the proper forms for income tax and other necessary documents.

When you want information about a company you can write to their head office and get information about their operation, financial position, and management in what is termed a prospectus. The prospectus from well-known companies are usually reliable, but don't rely on only this information if the company is not well known.

You may also consult the Public Library. They will assist you in getting some information. Or at least they will show you how to locate and read books that outline a company's past activities. And subscribe to newspapers like the Financial Post, Financial Times or the Northern Miner.

Talk to your banker or stockbroker. They often have information about the company you are interested in.

Regardless of the company you are concerned with, check and double check. A few hours investigating can be worth many dollars to you.

Once you have shown an interest in stocks, or even if you haven't, you may find salesmen calling by telephone or at your door attempting to sell you stocks. Be wary in these circumstances. Unfortunately, the laws in Canada are not clear as strong as they should be in controlling these types of operations. And some of the promoters can be extremely high pressure.

Don't be caught by offers like "This stock will double in a week" or "Invest today, because the stock will all be sold tomorrow." Any offer that is legitimate and sound can be held off for a few days to give you time to investigate.

Don't pay attention to irresponsible tips whether from a salesman or a friend. These tips are extremely dangerous and you may well get your fingers burned. Let the tipsters gamble their money — you invest yours for growth and income.

Any attempt at getting rich in a short time is a sure way to go broke over night. Many, many experienced investors have tried it and lost.

Should you invest in a poor stock, and many people do at some time, admit your losses and sell. Get what you can out of it and learn by your mistakes.

On the other hand, if you get an extremely good stock, don't become hoggish or have a blind loyalty to it. Look at it objectively. If it may stop its climb, sell, take your profits and be happy. The less risk you take, the more protection you have for your dollars.

Commons Adjourns

Foreign Policy and Housing Plans Not Known

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons adjourned Wednesday for a 12-day Easter break but before it did the opposition got in a few licks at what it called government failure to announce new housing and foreign policy before the recess.

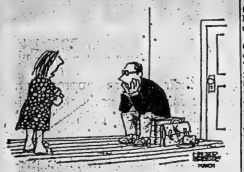
David Lewis, the NDP deputy leader, protested Prime Minister Trudeau's "refusal" to inform the Commons Wednesday of Canada's future policy on the 15-member North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

He accused the prime minister of a cavalier attitude toward Parliament. Mr. Trudeau denied the accusation.

Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood) said it has become "perfectly obvious" that Transport Minister Paul Hellyer, minister responsible for federal housing policy, has been unable to get his plans to increase the housing supply past cabinet.

He said the minister should make a statement before the House adjourned until Monday, April 14, for the recess or resign.

Mr. Brewin said Mr. Hellyer has set up a special study group on housing and laid said new legislation on housing would be through the Commons before the spring building season started.



Despite objections from Mr. Lewis and, Mr. Brewin, the adjournment motion passed with Mr. Brewin and some other opposition members calling "no confidence" to record their disagreement.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield criticized the April 18 deadline for the filing of proposed amendments to the government's bill to amend the Criminal Code which has returned to the Commons after detailed clause-by-clause study in committee.

Mr. Stanfield said MPs should be given two or three days after the House returns to file amendments to the controversial legislation which would make homosexual acts between consenting adults in private legal and permit abortion where the health of the prospective mother is endangered.

Government House Leader Donald S. Macdonald gave no indication he would change the deadline.

THE PICK OF Punch

"And to think I believed you when you said you were a good confidence man!"

Alberta Worried About Oil

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta government is worried about the future of the oil industry, which has been the bulwark of the province's economy for the last 30 years.

Premier Harry Strom is concerned over the impact on future markets of recent major oil discoveries in Alaska and possible construction of refineries in Eastern Canada to process oil imported from overseas.

Mr. Strom's Social Credit government is pressing Ottawa for a thorough review of the National Oil Policy, adopted in 1961, which designates the area west of the Ottawa Valley as a market for Western Canadian Oil. The province wants to see a new policy, developed in co-operation with the United States.

After his talks with President Nixon in Washington early this week, Prime Minister Trudeau told the House of Commons the two leaders agreed on "our community of interest in the expansion of energy movements across the border."

Mr. Trudeau said Canadian government officials, who will begin talks with their American opposite numbers on oil policies April 7, will impress upon them "the importance of buying as much as possible of good, secure Canadian oil."

While the full potential of the Arctic discoveries in the Prudhoe Bay area remained uncertain, Canadian officials estimated that two-thirds of the field lies in Canadian territory.

Since 1949, Alberta oil production has been only about 80 per cent of capacity and the provinces fears that failure to increase the production level may result in less incentive for exploration.

CRABGRASS

THERE'S ONLY ONE ANSWER . . .

Pre-emergent chemical herbicide; weed killer that acts on seeds as they germinate in the soil. Crabgrass is a summer annual weed, germinating in June, establishing as a mature plant in July, extremely aggressive in August, then dying out completely with the cool moist temperatures of September. Crabgrass fits its life cycle to the dormant cycle of all desirable lawn grasses.

The problem is that this particular weed can produce viable seeds in as few as 8 days from sprouting of the original plant. These seeds fall on the ground and, despite cutting and raking, they lie dormant over the winter only to sprout and grow new plants in the first drought of the next season. Killing the mature plants in July or August is no good because the seeds are still planted ready for the next year's infestation.

The only way to control crabgrass is through the use of pre-emergent chemicals . . . thoroughly proven in farm use . . . which are applied as a protective barrier on the soil's surface during April and left undisturbed until the crabgrass seeds start to sprout in May and June. Apply as evenly as possible after the grass has been raked and cut once so that this barrier need not be disturbed again. Most popular "crabgrass preventers" are free of effectiveness.

We recommend an application of regular turf fertilizer now, then a treatment of crabgrass preventer (it comes mixed with fertilizer for ease of spreading) as a follow-up application any time in April or up to May 15th.

Trudeau and Gorton to Discuss Wheat Prices

OTTAWA (CP) — Wheat prices will be discussed here today by prime ministers Gorton of Australia and Trudeau of Canada.

Mr. Trudeau is anxious to get Australian support to halt the undercutting of international wheat prices by big exporters.

Mr. Gorton, who flew here Wednesday after a Washington visit, was to have two private chats with the Canadian Liberal leader today.

Other Canadian cabinet ministers were to get into the conversations, including Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin, responsible for wheat marketing through the Canadian wheat board.

Canada, Elsa Australia, a major wheat exporter, is acting in concert with the U.S. to get exporters to observe prices laid down under the International Grains Arrangement.

Mr. Gorton may also find it illuminating to talk with External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp and Defence Minister Leo Cadieux. Canada is on the verge of announcing the result of a year-long review of its relationship with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Officials here say the talks will also deal with Canada's Far Eastern policy, particularly its move to extend diplomatic recognition to mainland China. Australia has made no similar move.

Mr. Gorton said in a statement that Canada and Australia, as Pacific nations, "are both concerned to see stability and progress in Asia, with genuinely independent, economically developing, self-reliant states."

Wednesday night, Mr. Trudeau was host at an intimate dinner for Mr. and Mrs. Gorton. The guest list included a few cabinet ministers and Canadian members of Parliament and their ladies. There were 20 or so at the function at the prime minister's residence.

A blonde who arrived by taxi was said to be Mr. Trudeau's date.

Strictly Personal

New Not Always Better

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at Large:

The most illogical implication in modern thinking is the proposition: "If it's new, then it must be better" . . . for while many products are introduced or changed as an improvement, an equal number are introduced or changed for the sake of "newness" itself as a selling-point.

* * *

The great majority of mankind has always desired peace, just as we have always desired health; but we have not understood the preconditions of peace any more than we have understood the preconditions of health; now the rise of preventive medicine has drastically cut the mortality rate in illness, but there has been no similar rise in preventive peacemaking to reduce the mortality rate in war, which is our most pressing need.

* * *

My children were amused to learn in school that the ancient Egyptians wrapped the utensils along with the corpses, for possible use in the afterworld; but is this any more absurd than our custom of burying the outworn husk of the body itself, and reverently "honoring" the departed person by feeding him to the worms?

* * *

Industry keeps calling for more "freedom," but the litany of technological change in the last two decades is that the major industries in our economy become more and more interlocked in increasing interdependence, and the call for freedom sounds dissonant in the Age of Merger.

* * *

"Charisma" has probably become the most debased word of the last couple of years; originally a theological term (it isn't even listed in the unabridged Webster Merriam 2nd Edition, though "charismatic" is), it is now made to apply to movie stars, politicians and pop singers.

* * *

The truth of the matter in the academic controversy between the "teaching machine" and the "live professor" is that while no teaching machine can stimulate and motivate students one-hundredth as effectively as a good live professor, at the same time a teaching machine is probably far more effective than the mediocre or dull professor, who is make up about 90 per cent of academia. (It stands in fact, in about the same relationship as a computer to chess: the computer can easily beat 99 out of 100 ordinary players, but would stand no chance against a true chess expert.)

Control by Police Of Judges Feared

TORONTO (CP) — Control of the judiciary by the police will become an established threat if Provincial Judge Lorsen Kurata is removed from the bench, a commission of inquiry was told Wednesday as it concluded a nine-day public hearing of testimony about the judge's behavior.

Arthur Maloney, counsel for the judge, ended his 1½-hour summation of the case with a warning that judges must have more protection from unsubstantiated allegations by the police.

He urged the repeal of the sections in the recently proclaimed Ontario Courts Act, 1968, which set out the procedure for removal of a judge and under which the present inquiry was called in February by Attorney-General Arthur Wishart.

The legislation, he said, makes possible intimidation of the judiciary by police.

"If a policeman wants to get rid of a judge because he doesn't like the judgments being handed down, all he will have to do is make allegations of improper behavior against him. . . . How many men would sooner resign than have the guts of a Kurata to stand up to this kind of public inquiry?

"The police force in such a system has lost its subservience to the judiciary and the judiciary has lost its independence. In this system, the police control the bench.

"I don't want that kind of system, and neither does our society."

The main issue in the inquiry has been the citation of Toronto policewoman Marlene Watson that, in effect, she was mistaken for a prostitute by the judge and propositioned by him in his chambers last Nov. 15.

In the witness stand last week, Judge Kurata denied Mrs. Watson's testimony, and said, in cross-examination, it may be part of a police conspiracy to destroy him.

Hockey Situation "National Tragedy" - Emms

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — It is a national tragedy that Canada, a country that produced all but five of 302 North American professional hockey players, cannot prepare a competitive team for the world tournament, Leighton A. (Hap) Emms said Wednesday.

Emms, who owns Niagara Falls Flyers, the defending national junior hockey champions, just returned from observing the world hockey tournament at Stockholm, Sweden.

"I didn't see any Hulls or Howes in Sweden," Emms said, referring to the calibre of hockey in the six-country tournament.

Canada's team, which lost six of 10 games, simply wasn't "big enough, strong enough and tigether long enough," Emms said.

The Niagara Falls owner, who has been offered the post of manager with next year's Canadian team, said it would be a great asset for Canada to regain its world hockey image.

"In this country we don't look on the matter of world prestige for our country as too important," he said. "You only have to attend one of those tournaments to learn just how wrong you are.

"We must send over the best competitive club we can get or forget the whole thing."

However, Emms had nothing but praise for coach Jackie McLeod and his young Canadian team.

"They gave the best they had against odds that were just too great. They are to be congratulated, not condemned."

He said Canada sent a young team to compete against experienced men. The Russians and Czechoslovaks are together for 11 months and practise, sometimes, three hours a day.

"For them hockey is a full time job," Emms said. "The fancy part of it is they are not classed as pros. You explain it. I can't."

The Niagara Falls owner scoffed at talk the Russians and Czechoslovaks were as good as National Hockey League teams.

"I don't think they are in the same league. They don't have nearly as many pro prospects as we have in our junior leagues. Some would be fringe NHL players."

Emms suggested ways to regain top world hockey ranking for Canada as early as 1970, when the tournament will be held at Montreal and Winnipeg.

"Instead of talking about sending an NHL club, we should try players of top junior or good Central Pro calibre, strengthened by half a dozen good reinstated pros.

"Canada should have one main hockey camp, not two," Emms said.

"That team should be given top pro opposition before it competes in the world tourney. We now hope that Toronto and Montreal are going to help."

He described European hockey as positional, patterned after basketball style. They take the puck in too close, don't shoot often enough and often pass to a player who is covered. He added European teams have "actors" who fake injuries and draw penalties.

Emms is undecided on accepting the manager's job. "I won't make any decision until I know where the players are coming from and what calibre to expect.

"We just can't go on misleading the Canadian public."

Anyone passing through Belleville this weekend could hardly be blamed for thinking they were smack in the middle of some sort of eastern Ontario version of Boys' Town.

If you thought hockey was all over but the NHL tube shooting, pop into the Market St. Forum this weekend. Throughout the weekend, the city arena will house a cross between a hockey game and a buffalo stampede.

For openers, the Belleville citizenry will be Ontario's busiest baby-sitters as of Friday, when 15 tribes of peewee pucksters join battle in the annual Shrine Tournament.

Lickl response to the the request for billets was, as usual, overwhelming. It's hard to imagine someone actually offering to put up a dozen boisterous youngsters for a couple of days, but there were many who jumped at the chance to help the Shriners make the weekend a success.

For 50 cents a day anyone can make their contribution to the Shriner cause, which last year enabled the lezard men of goodwill to kick $2,000 into their Crippled Children kitty. The half-buck tickles the donation and admission fee for a full day of some of the best peewee hockey in the province.

Local rooters will watch for the popular Smith Facts of this city to knock off Cobourg, the team responsible for ousting the local peewees from pentrical playdowns this year. The other 14 title-hunters include Orillia, Georgetown, Napanee, Peterborough, and a spate of Toronto-area entries.

Coinciding with Saturday's Shrine-organized festivities — due to wind up with the championship game at 7 p.m. — will be what everybody loves — a parade.

Already, Belleville's parade martial extraordinaire, Colonel Angus Duffy has lined up more than 800 hoofers for the 1.30 Sports Day extravaganza.

The hordes of minor hockey players in the city will play their role in the procession, as will the other faces familiar in year-round sporting activities locally.

Failing an the capable shoulders of the Belleville Kinsmen Bantams in the chore of finishing the weekend off with a bang.

A win in their 2.30 Sunday game with Leamington would give the Kinsmen their second straight all-Ontario bantam "AA" title.

They got a 1-0 lies on the title last Saturday on the western Ontario team's home ice when they stepped onto the ice after a 300-mile bus trip to hand their hosts a 6-5 overtime setback.

It was a morale-builder for the Kinsmen, to be sure, but they're not counting their trophy engraving money just yet — they know that this same Leamington team bounced back from the brink to oust a favored Galt team for a berth in the provincial final.

Some of this city's future hockey bright lights are wearing Kinsmen colors now. Danny Lapensee's freewheeling style has earned him 54 goals this winter, and fellows like Dave Smith, Russ Harrington, Mark Coates, and John Mahrilll have all done more than their share to put this city in the minor hockey limelight.

This weekend actually represents the city's last hockey fling of the year. They're already talking softball, baseball, and soccer, and I heard a robin the other eve.

It would be well worth any city resident's time to put in an appearance at the arena to see where all those future Bruins, Leafs, Rangers, and Canadiens are coming from.

(That's assuming, of course, that they all want to steer clear of the expansion teams.)

In the long run, there's more at stake than the Stanley Cup.

Bruins Bomb Leafs As Espo Ties Record

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Phil Esposito and Boston Bruins are following the same script in Stanley Cup playoffs that they used during the National Hockey League season.

Esposito, who set three scoring records during the season, scored four goals and assisted on two others Wednesday night to tie a Stanley Cup record and lead Boston to a 10-0 victory against Toronto Maple Leafs.

His Boston team-mates employed the same rugged style of play that they used during the season and took a 1-0 lead over Toronto in their best-of-seven Eastern Division semi-final series.

Esposito's six points tied the playoff record established by Dickie Moore of Montreal Canadiens in an 8-1 triumph against Boston March 25, 1954.

Esposito set a record for most points this season with 126 and most assists with 71. He also established a record for most goals by a centre, with 49.

In other Stanley Cup action Wednesday night, Montreal Canadiens took New York Rangers 3-1, St. Louis Blues bombed Philadelphia Flyers 5-2 and Los Angeles Kings nipped Oakland Seals 5-4 in overtime. All games were the openers in best-of-seven divisional semi-finals.

Esposito's record-tying performance was overshadowed by a series of brawls and vicious checks as the game at Boston threatened to turn into a full-scale riot at times.

Defenceman Pat Quinn of Toronto started the violence late in the second period when he caught Boston defenceman Bobby Orr with an elbow, knocking him unconscious.

Orr, who was taken to hospital for examination by a neurologist, may miss tonight's game along with Dallas Smith—he was cut for 12 stitches on the arm in the first period.

Orr wanted to play the third period but Boston team officials felt he would be better off at the hospital.

Quinn received a five-minute major penalty for the check.

The crowd of 14,650 at Boston yelled for Quinn's blood and one fan threw a shoe at the Toronto defenceman. Police had to escort Quinn from the penalty box into the dressing room after one fan threw a soft-drink bottle at him and another hit him.

The glass around the penalty box was broken and Toronto players jabbed their sticks at fans for protection.

Late in the third period goaltender Gerry Cheevers of Boston and Toronto centre Forbes Kennedy fought. Boston's Johnny McKenzie took over for Cheevers and gave Kennedy a sound cuffing before peace was restored.

Kennedy received a minor, two majors and a game misconduct for his role in the skirmish, which included Kennedy knocking down linesman George Ashley.

Referee John Ashley issued a total of 69 minutes in penalties to Toronto during the game—12 minors, five majors, and two misconducts. Boston received 24 minutes—12 minors, four majors and one misconduct.

Other Boston goals went to Johnny Bucyk and Derek Sanderson, with two each, and to Fred Stanfield and Ken Hodge.

Esposito opened the scoring at 1:19 of the first period and Bucyk cashed in on a rebound of an Esposito shot about two minutes later. Esposito scored again at 14:01.

Esposito scored twice 16 the second period as the Bruins, who finished second in the Eastern Division this season but led the NHL in goals, increased their lead to 7-0.

Boston coach Harry Sinden was unimpressed by Toronto's attempt to imitate the Bruins' rugged style of play.

"They might have had ulterior motives," he said.

"But I wouldn't say our team is the best one to play that style of game against. They have two or three people who want to play that way. We have 18. The toughest job I've had all year was trying to hold our team back in that situation."

Montreal had a tougher time winning their Eastern Division semi-final against New York and lost forwards Claude Provost and Jean Beliveau in the process.

Montreal goals were scored by John Ferguson, Jacques Lemaire and Henri Richard. Jean Ratelle had th eNew York goal.

Cubs Have Bullpen--Need Only to Win on the Road

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Chicago Cubs have been unable to solve one of their chronic problems—they will still have to play half their games away from the cosy surroundings of Wrigley Field this year—but they may have the solution to another one.

"I've got a bullpen," says manager Leo Durocher triumphantly at the Cubs' spring training camp. "I can move now."

The cause for Leo's celebration was the off-season acquisition of Ted Abernathy and Hank Aguirre. Abernathy was the No. 2 relief pitcher in the National League with a 2.47 earned-run average at Cincinnati last year while Aguirre posted an 0.89 e.r.a. in limited work with Los Angeles.

The Cubs already have the top relief pitcher in the league, Phil Regan, who was 10-5 with a 2.16 average and scores of saves with the Cubs last year.

Starting pitchers are no problem for the Cubs. First there is Ferguson Jenkins of Chatham, the only man in baseball to win 20 games in both 1967 and 1968. Ken Holtzman was 11-14 and Joe Niekro was 14-10.

The Cubs' second pressing problem, winning away from home, may be harder to solve. In 1968 they were 47-34 at home in finishing third, 12 games behind St. Louis Cardinals. They now are in the league's East Division, but so, alas, is St. Louis.

The Cubs' 120 homers last year led the league for the fifth consecutive season, most of them coming in tiny Wrigley Field.

The Chicago lineup will be virtually the same as last season, including the best fielding infield in the league: Ernie Banks, Don Kessinger, Glen Beckert and Ron Santo.

Banks and Santo had 32 and 26 homers respectively last year while Beckert was seventh in the league with a .294 batting average.

In the outfield, Billy Williams, who is only 77 games away from Stan Musial's record of consecutive games played with a total of 818, and Adolfo Phillips seem set for left and centre field respectively while right field, where Durocher platooned last year, is open.

Stop That!

Middleweight fighter Ray Christian of Winnipeg, Man., plants a "kiss" on the cheek of Jimmy Morton of Madison, Wis., who gives him an "evil eye" during bout in Rochester, Minn., Friday night. Actually, Christian's momentum carried him into the position during a punch. Morton pounded out a unanimous decision over Christian in the six-round bout. (AP Photo)

Clendenon Signs 2-year Pact With Expos

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Donn Clendenon is back with Montreal Expos and Bill White.

Those developments overshadowed the action on the exhibition baseball playing fields Wednesday.

Clendenon ended his brief retirement, signing a two-year contract with the Expos and commissioner Bowie Kuhn said the confusing Montreal-Houston trade could be settled today with the Expos sending the Astros a "player or players."

The Expos picked up Clendenon from Pittsburgh Pirates last October and traded him, with Jesus Alou, to Houston Astros for Rusty Staub. Clendenon then retired and Kuhn ruled that his contract be returned to Montreal.

Staub also was declared Expos property. Also remained with the Astros. Now the teams are trying to decide who Astros should get from Montreal.

The Cardinals reacquired first baseman Orlando Cepeda from Philadelphia Phillies for infielder Jerry Buchek and catcher Jim Hutto. White will be primarily a pinch hitter.

Los Angeles Dodgers shelled Houston 10-5 in a night exhibition, while in afternoon games St. Louis walloped Detroit Tigers 11-3, Atlanta Braves crushed Cincinnati Reds 10-0, Kansas City Royals edged Philadelphia Phillies 2-0, San Francisco Giants crushed Cleveland Indians 9-2, Minnesota Twins nipped Boston Red Sox 5-4 in 10 innings.

Also Chicago White Sox blanked Chicago Cubs 2-0, New York Yankees took Washington Senators 3-1 in 10 innings, Oakland Athletics downed San Diego Padres 8-4, California Angels beat Seattle Pilots 6-4, Pittsburgh Pirates whipped New York Mets 7-3 and Montreal turned back the Mets' B team 2-1.

The Dodgers broke a 2-2 tie with three runs in the fifth inning and went on to defeat the Astros while Bob Gibson yielded three runs in seven innings as the Cardinals romped over the Tigers.

Ron Reed, Ken Johnson and George Stone limited Cincinnati to three hits in the Braves' triumph.

Cookie Rojas' first-inning single off Dave Morhead was the only Philadelphia hit as Morehead, Tom Bargreiser and Dave Wickersham blanked the Phillies for Kansas City.

Willie McCovey socked two home runs, one a grand slam, plus a double and single in the Giants' victory.

Harmon Killebrew slugged his first spring homer but the Twins needed George Mitterwald's two-out, bases-loaded single in the 10th inning to shade the Red Sox.

Sammy Ellis outpitched Bill Hands as the White Sox topped the Cubs in a game shortened to seven innings by rain. Frank Fernandez hammered a 10th-inning homer to nudge the Yankees by the Senators.

Dick Green's three-run homer paced Oakland over San Diego. Dick Stuart's two-run homer, his fourth of the spring, helped California down Seattle.

Food City Bags Win In Northland

Towers Food City novices travelled to the north country last night and bagged themselves a prize — a victory over Madoc in the opening game of their best of three series for the Zone 2 novice championship.

Bobby Crawford was the big gun for the locals last night with three goals and an assist; Tony Meagher, Peter Coates, Brent Walmsley, Paul Hayman and Pat Mulvihill each added a single goal for the winners.

The series resumes Sunday afternoon in Belleville with a 5.30 game at the Belleville Arena, and the Food City crew will have a chance to cap their successful season with a victory over Madoc and a zone championship, all in front of a home town crowd.

That's where this Leamington bantam hockey player is in relation to Belleville Kinsmen star Danny Lupenette. The Kinsmen hope to keep beyond reach of the entire Leamington team Sunday afternoon at 2:30, when a win in the Belleville arena would give the city bantams their second consecutive all-Ontario title.

Sport Brief

TORONTO (CP) — One thing about Toronto Maple Leafs: They are prepared. Leaf officials had National Hockey League playoff tickets all printed and ready last year, but the Leafs failed to make the playoffs. So the tickets were saved and will be used this year despite the fact they read: "Stanley Cup Playoffs '68." Printing a new set with 1969 on the tickets would have cost $1,250.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — The bidding war for the services of UCLA's Lew Alcindor has officially ended with the seven-foot-1½ centre signing a Milwaukee Bucks' contract. Alcindor autographed a document Wednesday that would make him a millionaire and a part owner in the National Basketball expansion team. Terms of the contract were not disclosed by John Erickson, Bucks' vice president and general manager. Alcindor said he chose the NBA's Milwaukee "because their offer was more stable and more lucrative than one by the American Basketball Association." The signing came less than two weeks after Alcindor had led UCLA to a history-making third straight national collegiate title.

COLOGNE (Reuters) — FC Cologne of West Germany and FC Barcelona of Spain drew 2-2 in their European Cup Winners Cup semi-final first-leg soccer match here Wednesday.

Fuels Dump Kingston in Shrine Warmup

Smith Fuels peewees warmed up for the weekend's annual Belleville Shrine Peewee Hockey Tournament by journeying eastward to the Limestone City last night and defeating the Kingston Young Nationals 4-2.

The game was the last prelude to the Shrine Tournament for the Smith Fuels squad who open the tournament at 8 o'clock Friday morning when they take on the Brampton peewees.

Bruce Sutherland collected a pair of goals for the Fuels last night, while Tim Whelan notched a goal and two assists and Peter Crawford collected one of each.

A First for Local Fans

Kinsmen Can Win Ontario Crown Here

The Belleville Kinsmen bantams won the Ontario Class "AA" championship last year, defeating Wallaceburg in two straight games, but local hockey fans didn't get a chance to see t'em do it, for both games were played in Wallaceburg.

Things are different this year though, because the Kinsmen, who hold a 1-0 lien on the provincial title, will play host to Leamington at the Belleville Arena, Sunday afternoon at 2.30.

A win Sunday would give the Kinsmen their second consecutive Ontario title, and also the only provincial hockey crown to rest this year on the shores of the Moira River.

The Kinsmen got their 1-0 lien on the title last Saturday with a 6-5 overtime victory in the western Ontario town of Leamington.

Belleville has yet to lose a game during the provincial playdowns, having eliminated Trenton in two straight games, Lindsay in three games, two wins and a tie, and then proceeding to oust Orillia in two successive games in the provincial semi-finals.

Leamington, however, is no stranger to the underdog role. The Leamington club was down to Galt, in the provincial semi-finals, with a loss and a tie, but they rebounded to win the next two games and upset Galt right out of the Ontario finals.

They were especially impressive in the last game of the series when they overcame a four goal deficit in the third period to eliminate the Galt club which defeated Belleville 5-2 in the "B" series final of the recent Georgetown International Bantam Hockey Tournament.

Sunday's game promises to be a thriller, and team officials are hoping for a big turnout to cheer the Kinsmen to victory — and the Ontario Class "AA" Championship.

Shriners Set for Tourney

STAFF — From the opening faceoff to the final whistle, local fans will have an opportunity to watch a dozen hour-long games of peewee hockey Friday at the Belleville Shrine Club's annual peewee hockey tournament.

The eight first round games of the 16 - team tournament will start at 8 a.m. and conclude at 4.45 p.m. They will be followed by four second round games, two in the "A" or championship series, and two in the "B" or consolation series for first round losers.

Second round play will resume Saturday morning at 8 o'clock and the tournament will wind up with the "B" or consolation final at 4.30 p.m. and the "A" or championship final at 8 p.m. Saturday.

Three teams to watch are Cobourg, the defending "A" champions who eliminated Belleville in the second round of this year's Ontario playdowns; Oshawa, the defending "B" titlists and always a strong threat on any hockey rink; and the home town Smith Fuels club, which captured the Ontario Class "AA" peewee crown last year, but was eliminated by Cobourg this season.

The schedule of Friday's first round games is Belleville vs. Brampton, 8 a.m.; Napanee vs. Cobourg, 9 a.m.; Toronto West Hill vs. Orillia, 10.15 a.m.; Lindsay vs. Ajax, 11.15 p.m.; Kingston vs. Oshawa, 12.30 p.m.; Rockcliffe vs. Richmond Hill, 1.30 p.m.; Georgetown vs. Bowmanville, 2.45 p.m.; Peterborough vs. Whitby, 3.45 p.m.

Second round action will match the winners of Belleville - Brampton and Napanee - Cobourg at 5 p.m., and the losers at 8 p.m.; and the winners of Toronto West Hill - Orillia and Lindsay - Ajax at 7.15 p.m. and the losers at 8.15 p.m. in Friday's final game.

of his career, late in the final period, proved to be the winner. Richard's goal was into an empty net at 19:30 after New York goalie Ed Giacomin had been removed for an extra attacker.

Provost suffered an apparent pulled muscle in his left thigh in the first period a nd Beliveau was bowled over by linemate Dick Duff in the second but only limited action afterwards because of injured ribs.

Gump Worsley stopped 26 shots in the Montreal net while Giacomin had 24 saves.

Goalie Jacques Plante of St. Louis, pressed into quick action because of an injury to Glenn Hall, gave up one quick goal and then settled down.

Plante came in at 19:48 of the first period after Hall left because of a pulled hamstring muscle in his right leg. The Blues said Hall would not play tonight in the second game of the Western Division semi-final series.

Ab McDonald, Tim Ecclestone, Larry Keenan, Camille Henry and Terry Gray scored for St. Louis, Philadelphia goals were by Dick Cherry and Bill Sutherland before 15,156 at S. Louis.

Ted Irvine slapped in a rebound after just 19 seconds of overtime to give Los Angeles its victory — the only one by a visiting team in the four games Wednesday night.

The game was pushed into overtime when Gene Ubriaco scored for Oakland with less than three minutes remaining in regulation time.

Gary Croteau and Eddie Joyal scored two goals each for Los Angeles. Other Oakland goals went to Earl Ingarfield, Joe Szura and Frank Lecompte.

The game—the first playoff contest ever at Oakland—attracted only 5,448 fans.

The second game in all four series are scheduled for tonight in the same cities as Wednesday night.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For April 4

Your birthday today: Determine now to permit yourself no laxity in finishing up responsibilities you take on. Pressure comes from all sides to take on more than you can complete. Today's natives are frequently interested in speed records, particularly in swimming and athletic events. Many are talented athletes, but not aggressive socially.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Put forth your usual effort, but allow others to help. The direct approach is more applicable today than a subtle one. Inquire about a raise (if you have earned one).

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Today is the time to ask for whatever is owed to you. This is the end of a cycle of windfalls. Clear off all details as you go, as there may not be another opportunity.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): New projects are not favored today. Do only what you must; use the extra time for added rest if you can. Look at your diet from the standpoint of health, and resolve to improve it.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): You come out a notch higher in human affairs today. Take on new contacts with confidence and an open mind. Social activities are favored for the evening.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Legal and home affairs claim attention this morning. Younger people may be confusion later. Leave yourself plenty of time to enjoy the turmoil without taking too active a part in the proceedings.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Surface matters run well and smoothly. Underneath your mind is busily engaged on some favorite subject of interest. Expect normal co-operation from all around you; meet people halfway.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Short or brief travels for business produce well now. You are at a peak of persuasive talent and should be able to communicate your ideas fluently.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Routine your current program unchanged, just fill in and properly recognize more details. Make sure your efforts come to the attention of people whose opinions count. Revise your accounts where outstanding circumstances so indicate.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 22): Your personal interests are supported today with cheerful cues, the chance to see people and things that are new. Young people take a great share of your attentions. Be prepared for an odd question for which you have no answer.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Get an early start and do a full day's work while the chance exists without distractions. Make peace on all sides wherever there has been misunderstanding. Entertain (modestly) this evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Finish off the routines. New operations are better postponed. Plan to get rid of all clutter. Expect no vigorous reactions from your loved ones now offer them generally in turn.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Strive to consolidate your position. Clear away weekday details, leaving nothing to drag over into the next week. Make announcements, final reports, applications — get them into the mails early.

For April 5

Your birthday today: A year begins now of personal re-evaluation. If you are working on some literary project or invention, apply steady pressure. The inclination is to brood over past errors and people try to rationalize or escape through self-indulgence. Close personal relations cool a trifle; partially because of increased activity, partially because of spending more time alone. Today's natives are generally fascinated with nature. Many are talented dancers, musicians, poets orators.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Demands for your time, attention, money come from all sides today. Windfalls promise opportunities for additions to savings (at somewhat later dates). Celebrate this evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): It is definitely possible that you accept responsibility (and income)without your having asked. They are beyond your control. Nothing is gained fretting over money or equipment misplaced.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Family problems are more amenable to solution now. You can accomplish a great deal if you will only get up and start early enough. Creative projects are strongly favored.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Take advantage of any opportunity to anticipate the chores and problems of the coming week. Preparation will put you way ahead and help improve your position.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Children, legal affairs, hobbies, household chores all vie for your time and attention. Take a long pause for meditation, then focus your main effort where your own emotional interest is highest. Find somebody to help!

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): You already know deep within yourself what your preferences are. Simply state in plain terms what these choices are so that others can adjust or comply with them.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Settle outstanding accounts early, attend the minimum weekend routines, then take a break. Meditate. Pursue creative and romantic interests in the latter part of the day.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Resting on your laurels may be tempting, but it will not work out. Seek expression, repairs, and maintenance of property.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Visits to people and places you have not seen for a while are in order. Do something for your pet charity. The affairs of children are likely to come to the surface . . . and some of the details are surprising.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Information-seeking can turn out to be successful. Errands and other short jaunts are effective, if followed through. Gather friends and relatives for a quiet evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Business picks up and with it a chance for improvement of your resources. Where you are composing notes or stating figures, stick to the facts and speak plainly since confusion is more likely than usual. This is one night your friends will want to stay up late.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Consolidation of your position is favored today. Using normal channels, take action on delayed issues. Avoid extreme statements or gossip.

Tyendinaga Reserve

TYENDINAGA RESERVE — Word has been received of the favorable progress of Lorenzo Hill of Shannonville, who is in hospital in Wallaceburg. He suffered a heart seizure Sunday of last week when preparing to return home after having taken part in a bowling tournament on Walpole Island the previous day.

Mrs. Garnet Maracle is again a patient in the Lennox and Addington County General Hospital.

Leslie Claus, of the staff of the Quinte Model School, is ill at home. John Craig of Napanee is supplying for him.

All schools in the Tyendinaga Reserve were closed Friday afternoon for the funeral of five-year-old Charlene Maracle, and on Monday for the funeral of Rev. F. F. Dunning, who died when coaching that service.

Mrs. R. W. Taylor and Mrs. F. B. Turnbull are with their sister, Mrs. F. F. Downing. They arrived by air from Winnipeg the day following the sudden death of their brother-in-law, Rev. F. F. Downing.

NATO

More Storm At Home Than Abroad

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's decision to scale down its European NATO forces produced little public stir in foreign capitals Friday, Friday, the day after the policy re-orientation was announced by Prime Minister Trudeau.

What little initial reaction there was among Canada's 14 NATO allies tended to restraint and caution.

Robert McCloskey, the U.S. state department's press spokesman, said it welcomed the decision to stay in NATO and "looks forward" to discussions about redeployment of Canadian NATO troops.

Officials in France, which pulled out of the Atlantic alliance's integrated military command structure three years ago, doubted the "planned and phased reduction" of Canadian forces would seriously weaken NATO.

A West German government spokesman labelled the Canadian reduction plan "not opportune." He suggested his government would have a better view of the situation after the Canadian position is explained at the NATO ministerial council meetings in Washington next week.

At home, the issue seems destined to loom large for some time. Both Conservative Leader Stanfield and David Lewis, the New Democratic Party's deputy parliamentary leader, were sharply critical. Both said they were confused by the decision.

Mr. Stanfield said the reinstatement of conscription for labor to produce the new defence policy was a "false pregnancy."

It was "a weasley-worded statement" that indicated an isolationist attitude on Mr. Trudeau's part. Canada ought to maintain its present forces in association with NATO.

Mr. Lewis said the new policy was meaningless, imprecise and confusing. The government, he said, hasn't really reached a decision and it was "rather scandalous", that a nine-month review should produce something like this.

Russian Planes Veer Off

WASHINGTON (AP) — A flight of eight or 10 Soviet jet bombers flew to within 65 miles of the northwest coast of Alaska Tuesday, defence department sources disclosed Friday.

The aircraft, described as TU-16 Badgers, did not penetrate North American air space, it was said, but veered away and returned toward the Soviet Union.

* * *

In the last such incident publicly disclosed by the department, three Soviet bombers last February flew to within 30 miles of Alaska and in another incident to within 120 miles of Newfoundland where American jet fighters intercepted them.

Bombers Get Bigger

WASHINGTON (CP) — Indications here point to heavier reliance by the United States on the continental bomber defence system shared with Canada.

Defence Secretary Melvin Laird has speeded up plans for a big new inter-continental bomber. If the Soviet Union reacts to match it, as has been the pattern in the arms race between the big powers, a new phase will materialize for the North American Air Defence Command.

Laird proposes to have the big new bomber flying by 1977 and to alter the policy followed by the last U.S. administration. It was assumed as recently as mid-January that the Soviet Union was making no move to replace its 150 elderly heavy bombers or about 750 medium-class aircraft.

Missiles Suggested On Great Lakes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A paper is circulating among congressmen and lobbyists proposing deployment of missile-launching ships on the Great Lakes as an alternative to the Safeguard anti-ballistic missile system proposed by the United States government.

The theory is that tense waters afford better cover from snooping satellites and other tracking methods, and that ships could do a better job at less cost than the controversial Safeguard system.

Under plans announced by President Nixon, the Safeguard system would guard ICBM sites near the Canadian border in Montana and North Dakota.

The U.S. State department said the new proposal is news to it.

But officials there and at the Canadian embassy quickly pooh-poohed it as barrier to any such move. This is the Rush-Bagot Treaty of 1815, signed after the War of 1812 and sharply limiting the size and number of warships on the Great Lakes.

Asked by a reporter what he thought of the idea, Representative William R. Anderson (Dem. Tenn.), a retired navy captain, said he considers it "entirely practical."

Anderson, who navigated the submarine Nautilus on its historic voyage beneath the ice at the North Pole 11 years ago, suggested the ships might cruise at high speeds on random courses.

Intrigued by the idea, Anderson agrees that it might solve the problem of maintaining a second-strike capability that President Nixon and Defence Secretary Melvin R. Laird seek to provide through a modified ABM system.

Second strike capability is the response to a nuclear first strike by an enemy.

Czechs Feel Soviet Wrath

PRAGUE (CP-AP) — Top Communist leaders, reported to have been forced to agree to three more divisions of Soviet troops in Czechoslavakia, today sharply rebuked the Czechoslovak Journalists Union for resisting Soviet-imposed censorship.

The three divisions would amount to about 45,000 troops and would raise the Soviet occupation force to perhaps 115,000 from 60,000 or 70,000 reliable informants said.

Both the troop increase and the Soviet-ordered crackdown on the country's news media would be a result of anti-Soviet demonstrations last weekend that were touched off by Czechoslovak victories over the Soviet Union in the world hockey tournament at Stockholm.

Establishment of press censorship and strengthening of the security police have been announced officially as part of the "political prices" the country would have to pay for the demonstrations.

There was no official announcement of the increase in occupation forces. Neither was there official confirmation of reports that a number of Czechoslovak army units were being ordered to vacate permanent barracks in order to make way for new Russian contingents.

The Czechoslovak news agency CTK reported Friday that President Ludvik Svoboda and other top Czechoslovak officials visited Czech army units Thursday and Friday.

The tour came amid persistent rumors of unrest in the army. Military leaders are known to be worried about morale in the ranks, swollen with young reservists who strongly oppose the Soviet occupation.

Rude Pravo, organ of the Czechoslovak Communist party, published a statement today of the inner eight-member executive committee of the party pre-sidium attacking the journalists' stand against censorship.

The executive committee "rejects in principle the statement of the Union of Czechoslovak Journalists, condemns its irresponsible approach to serious problems and the present crisis situation," the statement said.

It added that the party "deems it necessary to take steps which will lead to restoring the high responsibility of mass media toward the sovereign interests of socialism in our country and toward the community of socialist states."

Kennedy Pledges Race Aid

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (CP-AP) — Senator Edward Kennedy, last of the Kennedy brothers, was given a tremendous ovation at a memorial for Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Friday when he pledged to work for the elimination of racial discrimination in the United States.

"Let us work," he said in his short speech, "so no man be denied a job by the evil of discrimination . . ."

"If I fight for these goals all my public life, there is no greater service I can do for my country."

Pearson Rejects 'Marshall Plan'

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — Lester B. Pearson, chairman of the Commission on International Development, today argued against the suggestion of a new "Marshall plan" to help developing countries.

Pearson said the commission's general impression was that most recipients of aid would prefer it to be multilateral to avoid any feeling of pressures that might arise from bilateral aid.

Four Face Narcotic Charge

Four Belleville youths have been charged with illegal possession of the narcotic hashish, after Royal Canadian Mounted Police officers arrested them Good Friday.

Robert Wilson Rowbottom, 19, Thomas James Lafferty, 17, Robert Benson 19, and Lawrence Robert Coles, 17, were all charged jointly with possession by the RCMP. They will appear in court on April 21 to answer the charge.

Officers of the Belleville detachment said they had been watching the youths for three days before they moved in on Friday, to make the arrest.

As the youths were driving along in Benson's car in Point Anne the RCMP stopped them.

After a search the youths themselves proved fruitless the police found approximately one ounce of hashish in the car.

The youths were charged and the police are holding the car as a possible seizure since any vehicle used in the transportation of a narcotic is subject to be seized.

The ounce of hashish, divided as it was into 50 small packages would be worth close to $500 on the current underground market.

Cash Crops Sought

By Elmer Bonter

AMELIASBURG — Within four months a new Ameliasburg food processing plant will be providing annual jobs for 15 people and spending up to an additional $400,000 in the area annually.

Roger Sprague is the man behind the move and he is converting his seasonal canning factory operation at Mountain View into a year-round food processing operation.

It is also seen as the base for launching a major vegetable-growing industry recommended for the area by an international company hired especially to assess such a possibility.

The projection to 1980 calls for the cash distribution to local growers to run to $1,500 a day — up to $400,000 for the 260 days the plant is in operation annually — before it is necessary to consider plant expansion and the addition of extra production equipment. The projection did not include tomatoes and by-products.

Mr. Sprague is a third-generation member of the Ameliasburg family involved in canning and marketing local farm products for almost 50 years. He sees the study as "the first time the growing and processing of vegetables had been surveyed in the area with the projection over a 20-year period" The decision to proceed with plans for the new plant depended on the report, he said.

By July, when the new factory is scheduled to start production, the Sprague enterprise will have changed over from a seasonal canning operation to a year-round, food-processing industry.

"The step was imperative," Mr. Sprague explained.

It became more evident her personnel would have to be provided steady employment in the end of the comparatively short tomato run. Under the

Chorus of Criticism Mounts as Costs Stagger School Boards

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A mounting chorus of municipal criticism has greeted the first budgets from Ontario's new county education boards, and officials of boards with budgets still unfinished predict more angry councils will soon add their voices.

Sharpest criticism so far is from Orillia Township council, which voted Tuesday to refuse to pay "this scandalous and unjustified increase in school costs."

The township said it would not pay its share of the Simcoe County school board's budget, which would increase taxes by $80 on a house in the township assessed at $3,000, until both the board and the province justified the increase.

The Waterloo County board's budget represents a 20-per-cent jump in education costs over last year's combined spending by the local boards it replaced.

The Wellington County board, has not completed its budget. But trustees have voted to ask the provincial education department for "guidance" in the face of a probable doubling of school taxes in some rural municipalities.

In Simcoe County, Innisfil Township, near Barrie has called an emergency meeting of county councillors and trustees with provincial officials to discuss the education budget, and threatens to ask for arbitration to determine its fair share of the total cost.

Trustees also predict sizeable increases in Lambton, Peterborough, Oxford, Middlesex and Kent counties. Middlesex trustee George Lloyd says it's too early to speculate on exact figures, but "there's no question that we're in trouble."

Education Minister Davis told the legislature Thursday he has asked "a small number of boards" to send information on the effects of the new county system, but no pattern has yet emerged from this "limited sampling."

A spokesman for Mr. Davis' office said the increased costs are being studied by the province, but added that the problem normally accompanies an amalgamation of this kind.

The province is emerging as the major target of criticism by local officials who say the natural higher cost of providing better education is aggravated by inequities in the provincial grant structure.

For example, Sudbury board chairman A. E. Goring said areas outside the city, which now are included in the board, get higher provincial grants but "the city of Sudbury is going to pay about 65 per cent of the taxes."

"We can't take this over unless we get the same high grants," said Mr. Goring, adding that he expected the province to produce an answer.

"The department created the monster; they have to help us."

Middlesex County's Mr. Lloyd blamed the province for not providing enough explicit direction or leadership to the interim school organization committees set up to engineer the changeover. The department didn't give the change "enough thought in the first instance."

Picton Fire Department Issue Strikes Sparks

By DONALD MacKENZIE
Staff Reporter

PICTON — There's been a fire burning in Picton for the past week and oddly enough it's the fire department that's been fanning.

Fire Chief Duane Foshay made public the fact this week that he would make no more releases to the community, including reports on fires, because he has a council directive telling him to "keep his mouth shut."

But council's fire committee chairman, councillor James Bird denies the directive.

"The chief is certainly not gagged," said Mr. Bird this morning in reply to a report that the fire chief had been "gagged" by a town council directive."

Mr. Bird explained that the directive was to the effect that henceforth council or the fire committee would make all statements regarding policy matters.

"A town employee shouldn't comment on matter of policy publicly," he said.

"None of us (council members) like to pick up a newspaper and read about something that involves us and that we know nothing about yet."

Mr. Bird is not accusing Chief Foshay of speaking out of turn. However on several occasions the outspoken Picton chief has claimed that the Picton fire department was underpaid and overworked.

The department's equipment has also been the subject of Chief Foshay's comments on several occasions. He feels it is antiquated and should be replaced.

In his annual report Chief Foshay also told council they were breaking the law by requiring three full time firemen to work a 56 hour week.

Mr. Bird said he felt that the chief should make his recommendations to council before being so outspoken.

"Whether to spend $10,000 on a new fire truck is a policy decision," said Mr. Bird, "not the decision of an employee.

"It's a matter of internal discipline."

Chief Foshay who indicated as the beginning of last week he could not give out information on fires reasoned in this way "I would be expressing an opinion when I say there had been damage."

Chief Foshay suggested reporters call Mr. Bird for fire information.

Mr. Bird still considers the matter to be "a tempest in a teapot."

"There is really nothing different except that council would prefer to make its policy statements and decisions public itself."

Mr. Bird also accused the Kingston Whig-Standard of "making the tempest bigger."

At any rate the situation will be completely reviewed and explained at next week's (April 8) council meeting when the situation will be explained to Chief Foshay.

First Crash Of Year

It's that two-wheeled time of year again and as more motorcycles come on the road increased accidents reports will likely be rolling in, say police.

The first motorcycle accident of the season in the Quinte area occurred yesterday in Hillier on Highway 33 as a motorcycle driven by John Saucier, 36, of Consecon crashed on the road.

Saucier suffered cuts and bruises requiring 15 stitches. A passenger on the bike, Fred Campbell, had been uninjured. Both men were treated for injuries and released.

Plan Projects

The county dairy princess competition, the milk producers booth at Picton fair and the "consumer tour service" will be continued this year by the Prince Edward Milk Producers as promotional projects for the dairy industry.

Also continuing are two public relations programs, the "Down Dairy Lane" series by Carole Wright and the milk committee report by Kenneth Wright, chairman of the county milk committee.

Cannery Goes Full Time

new set-up there will be full time jobs for 15. The usual 50 extra hands will be needed during the tomato season.

The business established by his grandfather, Grant Sprague, in 1925, was taken over two years later by his father Jay Sprague, who continued active until he died last year.

Over the years the company's name products—Jay's tomato juice and Mountain View tomatoes—have become widely known.

Under the new processing arrangement, dried beans in large quantities will be needed daily to maintain production commitments, according to Mr. Sprague. The figures he quoted represents the processing of 1,000 cases of 24, 19-fluid ounce tins each regular work shift. The first bean run has been set to continue 175 days.

To fulfill its production projection the company proposes to eventually contract a minimum of 700 acres of bean crops annually.

Mr. Sprague said it would be necessary to buy beans from outside sources the first year. Local growers will be asked for their crops under contract in 1970.

Tests in connection with the feasability study showed much township soil marginal, but suitable for growing the different varieties the Sprague company is preparing to process. While much attention will centre on bean production, other farm products classed as convenience foods will be added to the Sprague line in time. The scope is not limited in the expansion of the economy Mr. Sprague noted.

The contract for $75,000 for the plant building went to the Belleville firm of Carr-Braint contractors. The price does not include the cost of the processing equipment and its installation.

Already the footings have been poured for the new building on Highway 14, just north of the original Sprague canning factory in Mountain View village. The building will have a floor space of 6,750 square feet. Its warehouse will be higher than the usual one - storey processing area.

The former cannery will be utilized for additional storage space.

The new building will be constructed of cement blocks with concrete floors.

Tower Will Soon Be Completed

DESERONTO — A large crane placed the top on Deseronto's new 125-foot water storage tower last Friday. The contract calls for its completion by May, and will probably be fulfilled, if the weather is as favorable as it has been since construction began in January.

Built at a cost of $70,000 the water tower has a capacity of 250,000 gallons, and is the first step in Deseronto's long range plan to provide its citizens with an abundance of pure water.

The plans call for the installation of a new intake pipe at the west end of the town where the water is deeper and purer than at the present source farther east.

The tower must be sand - blasted and painted before it is put to use, and such outdoor painting requires steady warm weather, possibly 30 degrees.

OPP Warning Cyclists

NAPANEE — The Napanee Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police has made public some grim statistics. Last year, the news release revealed that in Ontario 40 children under 15 years of age were killed while riding bicycles, compared with 17 the previous year. In addition, another 1,470 children in that age group were injured. "When you drive, always watch for children on bicycles," is the warning to the motorist.

Steps are being taken here to educate the children about the danger. Last week Constable R. H. Harrington of this detachment visited five school's teaching safety rules to 18 groups of children.

WEAVER — Ken and Jeanne are happy to announce the birth of their daughter Lynne Marie, weight 8 lbs. 1 oz. on Wednesday, April 2, 1969 at the Belleville General Hospital, a sister for Susan, Karen and Norman. Grandmother for Mr. and Mrs. D. W. MacPherson and Mrs. W. Weaver, all of Belleville.

WILKE — Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Wilke (nee Mildred Gray) are happy to announce the birth of their son Kevin Boyd, 7 lbs. 11 ozs., on April 3rd at Plummer Hospital, Smith Falls. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Gray, Belleville, and Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Wilke of Elgin Lake, Ontario.

CARD OF THANKS

To my friends and relatives may I express my thanks and appreciation for cards, flowers, gifts, personal visits and telephone calls during my stay in Belleville General Hospital and since returning home. Special thanks to Rev. and Mrs. Ed. Hall for their kindness and visits, also to Dr. Barins and Dr. McIntosh and nurses and staff on 7th level. To all my sincere thanks. Hazel Treverton.

The family of the late Archibald Ernest Hubbs wish to express their sincere appreciation to friends and relatives for the beautiful floral tributes, sympathy cards and deeds of kindness extended to them during their recent bereavement of their dear father. Our sincere thanks to Dr. Ferguson and Dr. R. B. Wright.

The Mountford family.

IN MEMORIAM

BALEY — In loving memory of a dear mother who passed away on Friday, April 5, 1963.
Many a day her name is spoken,
And many an hour she is in our thoughts.
Ethel Baley.

A link in our family chain is broken
She has been called home but not from our hearts.
Remembered lovingly by daughter Stella, Herb and family.

BALEY — In loving memory of a dear mother who passed away on Friday, April 5, 1963.
They say time heals all sorrow
And helps us to forget,
But as for time has only proved,
We miss you more as we get.
Remembered always by son Fred, Catharine and family.

HUTCHINSON — In fond and loving memory of our father and grandfather Jesse Hutchinson who passed away April 6, 1963.
Dad, you left us many years ago,
The love a heart holds dear,
Fond memories linger every day,
Sometimes a tear appears.
Sadly missed by Betty, Reta and Sandy.

KEENE — In loving memory of a dear mother, grandmother and great-grandmother who passed away April 6, 1968.
Oh my! she has arrived."
And not that she has gone,"
May every thought of her,
Be a glad land of song.
Arrived to trod no more,
Heaven's bright golden floor,
Where the redeemed throng,
Those she has lost awhile,
Clasp in her arms again,
Nor think of her as dead,
But say, "In Father's home,
She has arrived instead."
Remembered lovingly by daughter Ruth, son-in-law Ken and grandson Ronald.

DAYLIGHT SAVING

CITY OF BELLEVILLE
1969

THE CHRISTIAN FUNERAL

What A CHRISTIAN funeral should do for those who share in it.

FIFTH (In a series)

. . . the funeral should give the members of the religious community a chance to give evidence of their emotional and spiritual support of the bereaved. In the time of great emotional need it is important to be able to respond. It is also well to remember that, when the need is greatest, it is often the time when it is the most difficult, and we are inclined to run away. It is the homely child that stands most in need of love. So, also, those who are most sorely distressed and difficult to reach are apt to be the most needful of understanding and support.

Now City High Schools Join Plaza Controversy

Belleville high school students have added their voices to the clamour for a North Front Street shopping plaza.

Petitions are circulating at the four city high schools urging the Ontario Municipal Board to reconsider its decision that the plaza is "premature".

The students' concern centres on job opportunities.

"There's no doubt that any commercial or industrial development will create jobs for students," Henry Kafka of Quinte Secondary School said.

The petition argues that construction of the plaza and subsequent opening of stores on the site will provide summer employment for students.

Mr. Kafka said city realtor Douglas Grant told him 250 people would be employed to build the plaza and 300 to 500 jobs would open up later in stores.

"Some of these jobs, maybe 50 to 75, are bound to be part-time and suitable for students," Mr. Kafka said.

If the city decides to appeal the OMB decision a student representative will be sent to Toronto to present the petitions to the proper body.

Mr. Kafka said students at Moira Secondary School in the east end of the city have shown the greatest enthusiasm for the petition. Dennis Deveau, in charge of collecting signatures at the school, had obtained about 350 names by Friday and is aiming for a total 600-700.

At Quinte, about 250 students have signed the petition. Dennis Hodson of Centennial was unavailable for comment on the success of the petition at that school.

Mr. Kafka said response at Belleville Collegiate was poor. Then Anderson, in charge of the petition there, secured only about 20 signatures last week.

"They just couldn't care less at BCI, it seems," Mr. Kafka said.

The petition will continue to circulate in the schools until Friday morning.

A One and Only Weed!

William Fothergill, 286 MacDonald Ave., points to probably Belleville's first dandelion at his home. The weed, a sure sign of spring, could also be Belleville's smallest.

Marathon Hike

Teenagers Walk 50 Miles

A band of hardy young Tuxedonians today were resting in Belleville after a 50-mile hike to help the fight against muscular dystrophy.

Facing their aches at the Dundas Street Co-op football field this morning will decide the strategy they hope fully will take them another 120 miles to Toronto during the Easter holiday.

If they succeed, they hope to net $2,000-$3,000 in sponsorship pledges for the Canadian Muscular Dystrophy Association.

The Kingston - Toronto walkathon was spurred earlier this week after a Rexdale high school fraternity challenged young members of a nearby Chinese karate club.

Pooling their funds they chartered a bus through the association, and arrived in Kingston Thursday night. After about two hours of sack city fireball the 22 youths set out along Highway 2 Good Friday morning.

The walk turned into an endurance marathon as the teenagers doggedly dawdled, oil to reach Belleville on the first leg of the journey.

Among the first snags to success were tough parachuter boots supplied the walkers for the event.

The new footgear — never broken in — caused blistering on some feet and several of the group were forced to halt at Napanee.

Later they were taken to Belleville to await the overnight arrival of the rest of the band.

Escorting by provincial police, the majority of the hikers continued toward the Quinte city, the last group straggling in about 4 a.m.

After a long rest they were scheduled to discuss strategy and timing of the rest of the hike before challenging the remaining milenge to Toronto.

Sun Will Shine On Easter Bonnets

In your Easter bonnet, with all the frills upon it, you'll be the grandest lady in Belleville . . . at least, you'll have a chance to be, because the weather is going to be great.

The weather will clear partially this afternoon, with temperatures upwards of 50 degrees is the prediction of the duty forecaster at the Canadian Forces Base, Trenton.

"And tomorrow will be sunny and mild," he said.

Yesterday's high was 53 degrees with an overnight low of 41. Today's temperatures will be a little lower with a high of 50 and low of 35 but it is expected that Sunday temperatures should climb again possibly reaching 60 degrees on Monday.

"Good and warm" is the forecast for Monday, but alas, Monday evening will bring thundershowers which are expected to keep up through Tuesday.

Still it will be a warm rain as temperatures are not expected to drop.

Ticket Sales Increase For Art Festival '69

The lights go on next week on Arts Festival '69 — but already public support prospects are bright.

Quinte Arts Council officials — who organize the annual presentation of music, art and drama — today reported that subscription sales are up 10 per cent from last year.

Subscription tickets covering all events in the festival — have already accounted for 49 per cent of all ticket sales.

Arts Festival '69 — a three week presentation — opens April 8 with a concert at Centennial Secondary School by the Belleville Choral Society conducted by Murray Irwin. Guest artist will be organist S. Alec Gordon.

April 10-11 is given over to the visual arts. A combined display will be held in the Hotel Quinte's Pinnacle Room by the Belleville Art Association, Belleville Camera Club and Belleville Arts and Crafts Club.

Drama continues the festival into its second week.

Belleville Theatre Guild will present The Diary of Anne Frank, directed by Richard Howard, at Centennial, April 16-17.

The festival ends April 23 at Centennial with a night of music by the Eastern Ontario Concert Orchestra, conducted by Stephen Choma. Guest artists will be Hanslanne and Robert Reid.

Marmora Mine Exempted From New Restrictions

TORONTO (CP) — The iron-mining operation at Marmora, Ont., 30 miles north of Belleville, will be exempted from new restrictions on the export of metal ores only if the owners can show a blast-furnace in the town would be uneconomical, Mines Minister Allan Lawrence of Ontario has said.

At present, the Marmora-ton Mining Co., owned by the giant United States corporation, Bethlehem Steel, ships pelletized iron ore to plants in Buffalo, N.Y.

Under amendments to the provincial Mines Act, announced by Mr. Lawrence in the legislature Tuesday, mining firms would have to process Ontario ore in Canada after Jan. 1, 1970.

In an interview Thursday, Mr. Lawrence said the company will have to apply for a licence to continue exporting the pellets.

Should the company send its ore to be processed at blast furnaces in Hamilton, Mr. Lawrence said, it would benefit from a complete remission of a 15-per-cent mining tax on its profits.

Forum on Cancer Draws 500 Women

Over 500 women attended the cancer forum held at Belleville Collegiate Institute on Thursday night.

The event was sponsored by the Belleville Cancer Society and The Intelligencer.

"It was a tremendous success," said hostess Mrs. R. T. Potter today, "and we're hoping to have another one in the fall."

To provide information four doctors were on hand to answer personal questions written on sheets of paper to provide anonymity.

They were Dr. R. C. Burr, Dr. D. L. C. Bingham, Dr. James Low of Kingston and Dr. Ken Douglas from Belleville.

Envelopes containing three pamphlets of information on cancer were distributed at the door and Mrs. Potter indicated that more than half of the material was gone when the night was over.

Two films on the detection of cancer were shown before the women questioned the doctors.

In the fall, Mrs. Potter said that the forum, perhaps, will be for men or for mothers and daughters.

The local chapter of the Canadian Cancer Society sponsored the forum in keeping with its current fund drive.

This year's campaign is under the chairmanship of Dr. R. R. Brain.

Driver Unhurt, Damage $1,500

TWEED — A single - car crash on four miles south of here on Highway 37 caused $1,500 damage yesterday.

The car, driven by Richard Lee Wright, 36, of Ottawa, left the road, bowled over five guideposts a fence post and part of a fence, say police.

Wright escaped uninjured.

Plead Guilty To Gun Theft

TWEED — Two Tweed youths pleaded guilty before provincial judge R. J. Jackson in Madoc Thursday to a charge of break, enter, and theft of eight used guns and 25 cartons of cigarettes.

The articles were stolen from Holmes Service Station here in late January.

Brian McConnachie, 19, received a two-year suspended sentence and Bert Kelly, 19, was remanded until April 1 for sentence.

Y's Men Buy Canoes

Modern voyageurs of Belleville will be members of the city's YMCA which now is the owner of six 16-foot fibre glass canoes.

The canoes were purchased by the Belleville Y's Men's Club and ongoing club president Robbie Clarke announced the project at a recent president's night event.

"This is a culmination of interest by the Y's Men in this particular program, which has been evidenced in the past four years by annual canoe trips with high-school-age boys on the May 24 weekend," he said.

In his president's report Mr. Clarke also noted the most successful Y's Men radio auction ever, as well as a remunerative Christmas tree sale.

Through the Christmas tree sale the club was provided with funds to send two YMCA leaders on a training course in Geneva Park; sponsor a Pee Wee hockey club; contribute $1,000 to the YMCA building fund; purchase a tape recorder and sound system for the YMCA and sponsor the YMCA Family Banquet.

At the last meeting of the Men's Club a new slate of officers was installed with Hurb Watson taking Mr. Clarke's place as president.

Other officers are Murray Bryden, vice-president; Vern Weir, secretary; and Garry Sherman, treasurer. All of the officers were installed by past international director John Hayman.

A Newspaper's Responsibility

"Organs of Stupidity." That is the picturesque — if scurrilous — label that has been attached to newspapers by Laurier Lapierre, one-time television broadcaster ("This Hour Has Seven Days") and now a French-language professor at McGill University.

Mr. Lapierre is upset over last week's caper at McGill. He says the news media blew up Friday night's planned demonstration out of all proportion.

"Newspapers, he declared, "have created a psychology of violence and people were now looking for violence."

Mr. Lapierre's accusation is patently ridiculous. Unrest is a phenomenon that has been with us since time began. Wars, riots . . . murder, rape and sudden death have always been part of the human scene, regardless of the news media. And it will ever be thus.

Newspapers have a duty to report these activities — and report them they do. We might console it would be a good idea if in the course of such reportage they played down the little Caesars among the students and professional agitators.

But Mr. Lapierre should have more regard for history. Back in Biblical times there was social unrest. And since then mankind has staggered from one upheaval to another. Events like last Friday's demonstration in Montreal will continue. It takes only a few to get such an uprising going — and the mob takes over. The mob, as has been said, is "a weak and brainless thing." The mob, or potential mob, is always with us — and it is no fault of the news media.

Aloha!

As junkets go, the one in Hawaii this week is a dandy. Six members of the 19-man Toronto Board of Education are attending a Music Educators' Conference in Honolulu.

The astonishing thing about it all is that having made the long trip to Hawaii the trustees discovered the conference is a Western Division affair (which includes Guam, Hawaii, California, Arizona, Nevada and Utah). That is pretty sunburned company for the chaps from Canada's frigid east, barely emerged from winter. Except for this Toronto contingent, there are only about 20 people attending from outside the division. The Canadians ,moreover, are believed to be the only school trustees at the convention of about 1000 people.

Still, Hawaii is Hawaii and if the Torontonians are there . . . well they're there! Might as well enjoy it while they may, for it seems as if some questions are being asked at home. Former board chairman William Ross is quoted as saying he is going to ask for a full investigation, "because we weren't told it was a western regional conference."

And — just in passing — the Canadian counterpart of the Honolulu conference — the Canadian Music Educators' conference — is having its national convention in Regina shortly. No Toronto trustees, according to reports, have indicated they will attend.

Scots All

Scottish dancing in Canada has a big following. The Highland Games in centres like Maxville and Cobourg — and this year, too, at the Thousand Islands — attest to their popularity.

Yet some contestants you would scarcely recognize as Scots! Husky men, yes, and bonny girls — but what would you make of a youngster of say Chinese origin doing a reel or a sword dance. Yet that is the way it is in Canada. You can be from Hong Kong or French Canada and still do your thing in a kilt.

Here is an example from Cornwall — the recent presentation of awards by the Scottish Dance Teachers' Alliance to Paula Sawinski and Lori Laframbroise. Paula and Lori may not have their origins in Scotland, but that was no barrier to their receiving triple gold bar awards.

Holiday Mail

The Easter holiday throws into even sharper relief the inadequacies of the postal service as a result of the new regulations. Yesterday, being Good Friday, meant there was no mail delivery. Today, being Saturday, it was the same again.

Certainly there are other important things to think about at Easter. It is a religious holiday and most of us can wait until Monday. However, from a purely worldly (business) point of view, two days without mail at the end of the week can be an inconvenience.

Cool and Credible Stanfield Emerges From Trudeau's Aura

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — The longer you watch Conservative Leader Stanfield, the better he looks.

There were times when he appeared uncomfortably ill at ease, so out of place, he must have wished in his secret heart he never had left Nova Scotia.

But not any more.

Not, in fact, for quite some time now.

Perhaps the best thing Stanfield has going for him is Prime Minister Trudeau.

It just might be that "Quiet Bob's" biggest plus is the good, grey, solid contrast he offers to the sometimes mod, usually colorful and always volatile "Trudy Trudy."

From first glance of visiting taxpayers in the Commons gallery to resident politician-watchers who daily follow the performance of the leaders, Stanfield is altogether a most credible alternative to Trudeau.

And that is our Opposition leader's top priority, the presentation by No. 2 of a convincing alternative to No. 1.

He must look as if he could take over and do as good, or even a better job of handling the nation's most difficult management assignment.

This is the appearance Stanfield now reflects.

It is an image of quiet competence, of confident know-how. Comfortable. Reassuring. If not exactly exciting.

This asset of the quiet "can do" appearance likely is the well-earned inheritance from this 11 years as Nova Scotia's premier.

That he has maintained this legacy of — well, "presence" is as good a name as anything for it — and even managed to enhance it, is a measure of the credibility of the "alternative" he offers.

For it can't have been easy.

He first had to contend with the political love affair in which the majority of enraptured Canadian voters thought Hairy might delight forever with their prince charming, Pierre.

Stanfield had to point out to them, without becoming a boring old nag, that the romance really was not turning out to be all that wonderful.

The promises of that frantic courtship on supermarket malls were not being kept, were they, he has had to keep asking.

But people don't always like to be reminded of their impetuosities and the indiscretions of romantic interludes.

So Stanfield had to be extremely careful not to scold or surrender to any Hold-you-accountables.

This with remarkable restraint and carefully calculated cool, he had been doing.

And he becomes all the more convincing as the flame of love flickers and begins to die.

In the cold light of morning, the once enraptured voters are suddenly not-so-enchanted taxpayers and begin to see flaws in the image of their beloved.

If the prime minister was the Conservative leader's biggest problem, his once divided and suspicious parliamentary caucus was not much less of a worry.

The majority of Tory MPs and senators were convinced that his "dear nation" policy was dead wrong — and they had the misfortune election results as confirmation.

For a time, he had the support in his caucus of a select few, a little band of self-proclaimed "intellectuals" whose interests in foreign affairs always seem so much more compelling than their concern with domestic issues and problems.

But now, convinced by his cool and credible performance in the Commons, his entire caucus has been rallying around. And ranks should be closed completely by the time the Conservatives at their policy conference this fall go to the wood to coming up with something more appealing — both in Quebec and the rest of the country — than the double - meaning "deux nations" hangup.

Stanfield's third problem — and he yet has not fully solved it — has been John Diefenbaker, still "The Chief" to so many Conservatives, both in and out of Parliament. "The Chief," perhaps now more in respect and affection than in reality, but still and all, "The Chief."

Trouble is that Dief remains as ever the old headline-catcher and airtime-grabber.

While Stanfield may hesitate sometimes to sound off against Dief's detested "Grits," as he calls them like it was a bad name. "The Chief" is in like a flash with the ever - quotable quote.

But Stanfield does show some promise of getting out of this particularly difficult hook. Not by putting the Old Chief in his place, for that could arouse generosity for one, resentment of the other.

Instead, he never attempts to crowd or upstage him, giving him the freest of all possible reins. The strategy just might be working because Dief, with his always-so-available scowl and growl for the TV cameras, could be suffering from overexposure.

And here especially, as he does with Trudeau, the Conservative leader offers a nice contrast to Diefenbaker.

In place of the thunder and lightning of dissent and protest, quietly reasoned rational argument.

And always that credible alternative.

It's "sock-it-to-me" time.

Family Makes More on Welfare

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder figures, he would receive $15 per week and keep his self-respect until he could improve his position to the point where welfare assistance was no longer necessary.

He makes a strong case, too, by pointing out that industry often is unwilling to take on an untrained man, but, that industry might well be prepared to train men on the job at a nominal salary. Earning that nominal salary, the trainee, if his paycheque was supplemented by welfare assistance, could afford to learn a job which would make him self-supporting once he had mastered his training.

Using the hypothetical figures above, it would cost $980 to support a man for eight weeks on full welfare — and $130 to provide him with the same income via supplemental payments. And if that doesn't make sense, what does?

We urge the City of Cornwall and the federal and provincial welfare authorities to give these proposals serious consideration. They would not only be saving dollars; they would be saving men. And the shiftless bum who shuns work because he claims he can't earn enough at it to support himself would lose his last excuse.

Pensioner Fares Badly

Letter to the Hamilton Spectator

I am a retired teacher. I receive the same superannuation pension I received 10 years ago. Together with the $78 a month Old Age Pension I receive $180.48 a year less than the new proposed (by the Ontario Federation of Labor) minimum wage of $2.25 an hour for a 40 hour week. Many of my clothes are at least 10 years old. Should not a teacher who gave 45 years of service during the best years of her life have more to live on? Also, the income tax of $413.50, counting deductions for sickness and age, is too high a percentage for so low an income.

I know there are many worse off than I am but there are also many young folk earning as much or more who have youth, health, a chance for advancement, and a family from whom they can borrow. Anyone and almost everyone has gone on strike except the senior citizens, who worked that others may benefit and now when they need it, they are part-changed.

Name Withheld.

Newfoundland 'Bullet's' Last Journey Looms Closer

By TOM MITCHELL

OTTAWA (CP) — Did opposition MPs swallow the government's hook, line and sinker in the last stages of Commons debate before the Easter recess?

The question was getting some serious attention Wednesday after the Commons adjourned, two hours ahead of schedule, for a recess until Monday, April 14.

One reason was the government's performance in the Commons Tuesday.

If the government had been tested Tuesday for ruling on a scale that indicated its effectiveness in making headway with a Commons legislative program, it would have collected a fat zero.

If it had been tested on a scale that gave 100 for keeping the opposition talking on a question that was a foregone conclusion and, in any case, of basic interest only to one region, then Liberal House Leader Donald S. Macdonald would have hit the 101.

Tuesday's subject was a committee report that sought another extension of the death sentence that has been hanging over CNR passenger rail service in Newfoundland for months.

The Commons Transport committee's recommendation appeared to be the sort of thing the government could have accepted without fuss and quietly ignored.

But Mr. Macdonald made an issue of the report, arguing that it should be sent back to the committee for revision.

This raised all kinds of comment about the government trying to dictate to committees and about the impending death of the committee system, supposed to be given new impetus under streamlined Commons rules.

The fuss and furore easily carried the Commons to the Tuesday night adjournment time.

When the Commons met Wednesday, there was no mention of the committee report.

Instead, the government called for debate on three mundane proposals for amendments to farm bills—so mundane that discussion petered out two hours before the normal deadline when the House would have adjourned.

Another factor in the equation is that the CNR will scrap the Newfoundland passenger rail service April 15, the day after the Commons resumes from its recess. Scant chance at that point for mounting a last-minute reprieve.

Another point is that David Lewis, deputy New Democratic Party leader, could only get a small attack going Wednesday on his contention that the government was deliberately trying to avoid making a first announcement of the long-heralded review of Canada's defence commitments in front of the Commons.

Mr. Lewis said he felt the Commons should have first crack at such an announcement and called on the government to make it now.

The government did not.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

George Jacques Danton, one of the leaders of the French revolution, was guillotined by Robespierre's extremist party 175 years ago today—in 1794. In the early days when the French beheaded the king, abolished religion and defied the great monarchies of Europe, Danton and Robespierre had been colleagues. But as the Reign of Terror started, Robespierre began killing off rivals to his leadership, charging them with treason such as Stalin later labelled rival conspirators.

Robespierre later died on the same guillotine.

FRANKFORD W.M.S.

Frankford Full Gospel Women's Missionary Council met for their April meeting in the Sunday School auditorium on Wednesday evening.

The president, Mrs. Wilbert Reid welcomed everyone and Mrs. George Chapman opened the meeting with prayer. Dessert and tea were served.

The WMC theme chorus was sung, Mrs. Reid then read from the Scripture.

Mrs. Gerald Curry read the monthly bulletin. The secretarial report was also read. Correspondence was read. Letters of thanks for greeting cards received on the African missionary station were read by Mrs. Fred Miller.

Mission study was given by the president on: Mrs. Ingrid Chowner, missionary from Mozambique, Africa.

Discussion and plans were made for the Women's Missionary convention to be held in Frankford on April 16.

Social convener, Mrs. Loonie Reilly gave a report. Prayer calendars were collected. A time of prayer was spent on behalf of missionaries overseas and on the field at home.

Mrs. Fred Wood gave the flower fund and sick visiting report.

Mrs. Curry gave a vote of thanks and appreciation to the missionary group for their prayers, flowers, cards and visits while a patient in Trenton hospital and since returning home. The offering was received.

The remainder of the evening was spent in preparing greeting cards with Scripture verses for the mission stations for Africa and West Indies.

Prima Ballerina to Teach Ballet

Lois Smith, prima ballerina of the National Ballet of Canada, today announced that she will retire from active dancing at the end of the current season, June 8, 1969.

"One of my future plans is to open a ballet school, and I plan to do some guest roles with the company next season," she said.

"I will also be doing some teaching at the National Ballet School".

Several current injuries have necessitated in Miss Smith's decision to withdraw from her heavy dancing schedule.

One of the original members of the company, Miss Smith has performed with the National Ballet of Canada since 1951 and has appeared in every major city in the U.S., Canada and Mexico.

The daughter and granddaughter of English bootmakers, Miss Smith began ballet lessons at the age of 10 in Vancouver.

At 15, she decided on dancing as her profession and embarked on an intensive daily training schedule. Within two years, she landed a role in the U.S. touring production of Song of Norway, which led to appearances with the Los Angeles and San Francisco Light Opera companies and a role in the touring production of Oklahoma. After many summers dancing with the Theatre Under The Stars in her native Vancouver, she joined the National Ballet of Canada for its first season.

Prima ballerina of Canada's National Ballet since 1955, she has danced the ballerina roles in many productions.

In addition to her numerous stage appearances with the National Ballet, she has also starred in four full-length ballets with the company on the CBC television network, most recently as the Fairy Godmother in Celia Franca's Cinderella, and two years ago with Erik Bruhn in his production of Swan Lake.

Lois Smith has been proclaimed by North America's foremost ballet critics as one of the world's finest prima ballerinas.

Marchers Are Unifying Force

TORONTO (CP) — The Miles for Millions marches across Canada bring unity to people in the same way as a disaster or a war, says photographer Joan Latchford.

She discovered this for herself during a 20-mile sponsored walk in Calgary.

"Can you imagine under normal circumstances Canadians going up to stranger's home and saying: 'Can I use your bathroom?'"

The first woman photographer to receive a Canada Council grant, she obtained it to photograph the marches. The proceeds go to a number of welfare projects.

When she is assigned in a march she walks too to get the photos. She has still to photograph marches in Quebec, the Maritimes and British Columbia, and hopes to produce the pictures in a book so the marchers can see themselves.

What she wants most in her pictures is sincerity, she told an interviewer. She finds she cannot take an "unkind" picture, probably because of her training. At one time she was a Roman Catholic nun.

She entered the Society of the Sacred Heart in Roehampton, England, where she trained to teach. But she left at the end of seven years because her superiors felt the religious life was not for her.

She entered photography by chance.

When she suggested a TV show on teaching mothers how to take pictures of their children, the CBC asked her to do one.

So she bought a camera, a second-hand book on photographing children and did the show.

In 1967 she earned $5,000, working one day a week. With four children—two of whom are adopted—and a husband who produces educational films, Mrs. Latchford organizes her time carefully.

She has a housekeeper three days a week which allows her a day for shooting and two for writing, processing and selling.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

More children are seriously burned at 5 o'clock in the evening than at any other hour of the day, according to statistics of hospital emergency wards. Mothers accidentally spill boiling water or hot food, or tiny tots reach up and pull pans off the stove.

When mothers are distracted and busy and children are hungry and tired, the prospects of an accident are high.

Put a gate across the kitchen door and keep toddlers away from scalding food while you are cooking dinner. Settle older children away from the cooking area with a quiet game during this peak hour for kitchen accidents.

PIONEERS, MODERN STYLE

"Everything revolves around change." — Donald Scott.

* * *

Our local history reveals how pioneer women walked miles to market, how they spun and wove for their families. How an implement such as an axe might mean all the difference between life and death; how stage coaches ran with difficulty and the problems of gaining a meagre education - - -

"How did the pioneers survive those early days?" we all ask filled with wonderment and admiration. Then the question arises: "When and does pioneering ever end?" as it did while talking with a Belleville grandmother, who was saying:

Tomorrow I am going to the city to see my grandson for the first time. I can hardly wait, for he is our first. In a way, to me, his being in this world at-all is a miracle, which makes him all the more precious.

"You see, his parents, (my son and his wife) lived in a city apartment. The lease clearly stated that the occupants must not be parents; there must not be children living with the parents. That in itself was enough to crush our hopes of becoming grandparents.

"Well, it came about that my son and daughter-in-law became parents. The next day, the caretaker was up with the cancellation of the lease.

"The new parents, with their baby had no place to go in the strange city. No apartment was available at that time, which they could afford. Apartments are so expensive. It is scarcely possible for a couple to rent one on the salary of the husband. It often takes the combined salaries of a couple to manage.

"But somehow it all worked out. This enforced change forced my son to stay with a friend, while my daughter-in-law stayed with another friend, with the baby. After a while, things worked out just fine — they finally found a place to live.

"Now that the crisis is over, I suppose I shouldn't have been so concerned. Life is little else than change, after all; yet knowing certain things stay the same. Confucius himself once said "The moral man can find himself in no situation in life in which he is not master of himself." The essence of goodness is within mankind and millions came to this country during the past centuries that they might live with human dignity and the chance to live in peace.

"Thus with the increased pace of living in urban centres, new emotional problems arise and our young people are faced with a new set of situations and challenges that often seem overwhelming. They are indeed, the new, the modern pioneers and I think they cope and manage admirable. I for one, am proud of them, and this Easter, which is tomorrow when we visit our children and new grandchild, it takes on a new meaning — at least for me — a wonderful time to renew faith and hope, at home and at large. You see, pioneering is new life, ever endless . . .

May we wish all our readers, "A Happy Easter, everyone!"

WEDDING

READ — PICKERING

Rev. R. S. Belkin was the officiating minister recently, when Janet Ellen Pickering, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd C. Pickering, of Searboro, exchanged wedding vows with Andrew John Read, son of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Read, of Belleville. The wedding was held in Toronto.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full-length white gown, with a chapel-length bouffant floral headdress. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and white stephanotis.

Maid of honor, Miss Ena Bowie was attired in a full-length gold lupda crepe gown. Bridesmaids, the Misses Betty Lou Barratt, Connie Partridge and Debra Pickering, all wore gowns identical to that of the maid of honor, except in a shade of mint green. Flower girl, was Miss Heather Lynn Mortou, of Belleville, niece of the bridegroom, who was also identically attired in gold lupda crepe.

Attending the bridegroom was Jim Leng of Belleville; while the ushers were Rick Collins and Michael Sloss of Toronto.

For the wedding reception, held in Scarboro, the mother of the bride received the guests wearing a cerise coat dress ensemble and matching accessories, completed by a corsage of white carnations. Assisting her, the mother of the bridegroom wore a blue coat dress and black accessories, complemented by a corsage of pink carnations.

For the wedding trip to Washington, D.C. and Virginia, the bride chose a navy and white ensemble, navy accessories and a white corsage. Upon their return, the couple will reside in Toronto.

Children's Play Coming to Belleville

The Belleville and District Physicians' Wives held their meeting recently at the home of Mrs. J. D. Empson.

An important business meeting was conducted to determine the necessary equipment needed for the new hospital, which will be purchased and donated by the group.

It was also decided the Belleville and District Physicians' Wives will sponsor the Quinte Arts Council project, to bring the Quinte Island Theatre Company to Belleville in April.

The children's play, "Please Don't Sneeze," will be directed by Tom Crothers. It will be presented in Belleville on Saturday, April 26.

YOUR ANTIQUES

Dagger Was at One Time A Combined Knife and Fork

In ancient times a dagger served several purposes, for defense and for eating. It was used to cut food and convey it to the mouth; a combined knife and fork. Spoons evolved separately for liquids. In fairly recent times the fork evolved, first as a single split, then two straight tines, later three and now generally with four, curved in a "French" shape.

It was customary until well into the 18th century for each person to carry his own knife, fork and spoon. In early 19th century Canada, guests who arrived carrying their own cutlery were considered old fashioned.

During the 19th century, flatware began to be produced in sets, often by the dozen. Knives lost their points and in many cases were made of steel. The blade was fluted in a handle of bone, wood, horn, ivory and sometimes, silver. Most of these handles came off with repeated washing and the blades were thrown away. Steel knives that survive still require polishing to remove rust, a never ending Victorian chore solved with a bath brick or patent knife-polishing machine.

In the 1840s production of electroplated cutlery began, and the turn of the century had cornered the market. Mid-Victorian table silver was often monumental in size, more than 10 inches long. It paid to eat cautiously when brandishing a Victorian fork in one hand and a newly sharpened steel-bladed knife in the other. Later in the century smaller "supper" knives and forks appeared, the size in common use now. The teaspoon, particularly in North America, edged out the tablespoon.

Elaborate matching sets like the one illustrated, with wide scimitar blades were made for eating fish. Similar sets, with narrow pointed blades, were made for eating fruit. "Canteens" of electroplate containing dozens of matching pieces were common. They held every conceivable utensil, from grape scissors to ladles, egg scissors to hammer like knives whose use defies analysis.

Boxed fish sets and dessert sets were particularly popular. Fish sets almost always have "French ivory" or celluloid handles. Most dessert sets have mother-of-pearl handles. Early sets may have electroplate blades with hollow stering handles, an indication of the popularity of early electroplate and the cheapness of stamped, pitch-filled, hollow sterling handles. Early electroplate is relatively inexpensive. By the end of the century it was common and cheap.

Most dessert and fish sets are advertised as Victorian. New imported English sets were being sold in Canada in the 1830's, quoted at $65.00 a set of 12, including a leather-bound case. This was expensive then and is a relatively high price today. Designs are identical with late Victorian sets and it would be difficult to determine the exact date of manufacture.

Successful Living

Activity Is Answer

By DORIS CLARK

"What can I do with myself? I'm a widow, my children all down a job, and the days just drag by." How often we hear these words !

Loneliness is horrible, and far more common than you might think. Yet it is often entirely unnecessary. The older woman who doesn't know what to do with herself can find many happy ways to keep busy.

One lady who was an active mother and business woman for many years and is now eligible for old age security, has refused to retire into inertia. She runs a Senior Citizen's group in her neighborhood, belongs to a diet club and a professional women's group, writes a weekly newspaper column, and is actively interested in politics. Her greatest pleasure is planning parties, bus trips and other activities for her Senior Citizens. Needless to say, she is never lonely nor bored.

Every community needs women like this, women who have time to devote to worthwhile activities. You might say, "But I have nothing to offer." Of course you have! You have experience in living.

You can help at the Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic; sew for the local hospital; make dressings for the Cancer Society; address envelopes for the Christmas Seal Fund; bake and sew for your church group; organize a lending library.

Or you can baby-sit. There is a tremendous need for reliable women to give loving care to children while their mothers work, or on occasional evenings when parents want to get out and enjoy each other's company for a while.

Keep for your motto Stella Benson's words in "To The Unborn": "Go forth with crowds; in loneliness is danger."

Dear Doris: Every time I go to the weekend dance this nice guy is there. He always comes over to me and stays with me all evening, drives me home and we have a nice time. He is about 22, I am 20.

The trouble is he does not call me at all during the week. My girl friends tell me he's a very shy person, but nevertheless he could call me sometimes.

At the last dance, as soon as I went to sit down "Joe" comes over to me and that was it. The same thing started all over again. He took me home, we parked in the yard, talked a lot and kissed. He walked me to the door, then he told me he'd see me at the dance next weekend.

Now I ask you, is this any way for a guy to behave? — Confused or What?

Dear Confused: Not in my book, it isn't.

Any "nice guy" of 22 who is too shy to make a date, call for you and take you to the dance, is too shy to live. I just don't believe it.

Either he is married, has another girl some place, or is trying to save the price of admission. Or he is just not giving you the courtesy that a nice girl should be able to expect.

Homemade Jam Gives Breakfast A Lift

By MARY MOORE

LETTER: Thank you so very much for your release on frozen raspberry jam but more especially for the assurance that I could safely use unsweetened frozen berries — though you did not know how it might turn out.

I used one 2-lb. pkge. raspberries with 5¼ cups sugar, one pkge. Certo, ½ cup water — and the flavor was quite like what I had tasted made with fresh berries.

Flushed with success I pressed on and made strawberry jam — the same way — same quantities. I was not quite so well pleased with this jam — the mixture seemed frothy — and the berries did want to rise. I sealed the jars and turned them repeatedly in an attempt to thwart the berries — bad didn't really succeed.

Both jams are of a nice texture — not runny, yet not too firmly set.

And they have given our mid-winter breakfasts a lift — as well as making a "conversation piece" at work where I took a sample. — Isabel R.

ANSWER: Feedback is so rare I want to thank you for reporting your success. The frothiness you mention on the strawberry jam could have been eliminated by letting it stand and rise to top as scum which could then have been skimmed off.

Letter, I was much amused about how your grandson played ball with the bread dough. For some time I have been letting my two older ones get their hands into the dough and do they have a good time! I make eight loaves at a time and freeze it, so you see it would be too much for handling as a ball. I put the big kneading pan on the floor and they sit beside it and have a wonderful time. That has been going on for a couple of years.

I want to give you a hint re turnips. I see a reader wanted ways to use them. I usually cook enough at a time for two meals. Next day to what is leftover I add some flour, maybe two heaping tbsps. (I do not measure), salt and pepper and some chopped onion. I fry this as little cakes and they are good; my husband loves them. —Judith M.

ANSWER: I am so glad to hear other grandmothers are just as doting as I. Thanks for the turnip tip.

List of Adjectives Describes Husband

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm married to an alcoholic who refuses to admit he has a problem. He says I'm a nut who has a "fix" on whisky because my father was a drunk.

In addition to his hideous hangovers, I've witnessed an endless parade of women in his life because everything and anything looks good to a bounced up Lothario.

Last night he said, "You might as well face facts, Inez, I'm in and you're out. To be in' one must unless his creative mind and let his imagination run free. Some need marijuana, others use speed or meth or LSD.

I'm a simple soul. I've said sanctimoniously, "All I need is liquor."

So he's in. Well, I guess he is. He's insincere, infantile, inconsistent, insipid, insolent, incompetent, insensitive, inarticulate, inept, indiscreet, intolerable and insolvent. Just sign me — OUTSPOKEN.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR FRIEND: Outspoken by whom?

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our son is 18 and in the first year of college. He has a good job from 2:30 a.m. to 8:00 a.m., five days a week. He doesn't pay one cent for room and board. I even borrowed $600 from a loan company to make a down payment on a car for him. (He is making the monthly payments himself.)

Last week I asked him to pay the utility bill. He acted insulted. Yet he bought his girl a ring for $650.

Should I open my mouth and ask him to help out? Twenty dollars a month would give me a lift. Or — should I keep my mouth shut and avoid an argument? — M.D.

* * *

DEAR M.D.: By all means open your mouth. Unless you have lockjaw, that is — in which case write him a note and request $25 a month. You do this kid no favor when you allow him to freeload.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Are you real or are you a computer who spits out answers when cards are slipped into a slot in your head? Whatever you are, please answer. I need to know somebody cares.

Whenever a teen-ager writes and complains because her mother is too interested in her business, I die. I'd give anything for a mother like that.

My mother ignores me. She has no interest in what I do, where I go or with whom. She couldn't care less about my school activities. Once I tried to discuss a problem that was fracking me up. She said, "I don't want to hear about such nonsense."

I know mom will never change, but I hope you tell the girls with "nosey" mothers how lucky they are. Too much interest is better than none. — LIKE ALONE.

DEAR LIKE: Excessively interested mothers outnumber the disinterested at least 20 to 1. Your letter, however, serves a threefold purpose. It might (a) make girls with nosey mothers feel better, (b) let the disinterested mother know how daughters feel, and (c) let you know that somebody cares, because here's your letter.

STITCH 'N TYME

The seventh and eighth meetings of the Wallbridge III were held recently at the home of Mrs. McCurdy, with all members attending.

During the seventh meeting, Kathy Bergsveld read the minutes. There was no important business.

In the discussion, Mrs. McCurdy went over the uses of the crewel stitch and the selection of stitches to be used in designs for the "free choice" article. All members agreed to plan the achievement day exhibit of "seven basic embroidery stitches".

The demonstration was made up of such topics as how the "free choice" article can be assembled and suggested finishes for it.

For the group work of this meeting, members filled in the answers to the crewel stitch, and worked on "free choice" articles and the club exhibit.

April 27 Vote

Apathy Faces De Gaulle's Regional Proposal

PARIS (CP) — Frenchmen by the millions are blissfully heading for the country or promenading on the boulevards this Easter weekend.

But the men around President de Gaulle, faced with reported apathy and opposition over his plans for national re-organization, are hard at work with final preparations for an exceptionally extensive campaign geared to the April 27 referendum.

The referendum will decide the fate of de Gaulle's proposal that more authority over local problems should be vested in 21 regions making up the country as a whole and that the Senate should be reshaped in line with this radical departure from the French tradition of highly-centralized government.

De Gaulle himself pictures the projected changes as a priority move towards the principle he began preaching after last year's social upheavals—greater mass participation in public affairs.

In a country still shaken by the 1968 troubles, many politicians of diverse parties are as one in proclaiming opposition to excessive centralization.

The catch lies largely in the way the Gaullist program of change is being put forward and in the realities of power behind the torrent of talk about constitutional niceties.

The Communists, the party least battered in last year's legislative elections, maintain that a vote for "regionalization" April 27 would really be a vote for the Gaullists and therefore is unthinkable.

De Gaulle himself acquiesces in treatment of balloting as reflecting public confidence in his leadership.

This in turn is provoking many predictions as to whether the 78-year-old chief of state will—as, with the chips down, he so often has threatened to do —resign in the event of a referendum defeat.

Some of the reported lack of interest in the vote is being attributed by observers to the complexity of the issue up for consideration.

A government brochure describing the reform proposals—and topped by a 600-word exhortation from de Gaulle himself—runs to 14 pages.

Opposition groups on left and right denounce the way the president has pegged both Senate and regional reforms to a single referendum question.

Some critics say they favor regionalization but oppose what they call de Gaulle's Mussolini-like plan for changing the Senate from a voting part of the two-chamber parliament into a purely consultative group representing regional and occupational interests.

Such voters resent being unable to register their feelings through anything more than the single "Yes" or "No" the general allows them.

Resentful too are those who might agree with Senate reform but dismiss the Gaullist regionalization plan as a cover-up for continued centralization of authority in Paris.

A number of constitutional experts support another opposition charge—that the referendum as a way of revising the constitution is illegal without prior consideration of the issues by parliament.

Use of the referendum alone to change the constitution is "revolutionary," said one legal specialist.

But the Gaullists, to whom the referendum is a revered technique for measuring the public will on vital matters, are pushing ahead with their campaign plans regardless of such complaints.

Golds Jump Sharply On Canadian Market

By NICK PERRIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Golds jumped sharply this week as Canadian stock markets registered a general advance for the second consecutive week.

Canadian exchanges were closed Good Friday.

The gold group started the week with a small decline, then rose strongly Tuesday and Wednesday but slipped fractionally Thursday.

However, the mid-week jump was almost enough to wipe out the group's 13-point drop of last week when Canadian gold shares followed a downward trend set by European bullion prices.

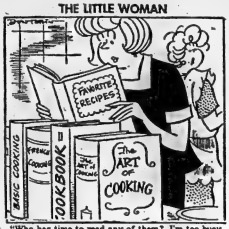
Observers said last week's slump in European bullion prices was attributed to:

—A statement by a British financier that the free market gold price would fall to $39 from its current level of $40 plus if South Africa sold its newly mined gold to the free market;

—Facade year-end selling for tax or bookkeeping purposes.

Bullion and gold share prices rose when buyers came back into the market, observers said.

Bank stocks were higher following news that Ottawa will allow chartered banks to decide their own lending policies—but within the confines of the Bank Act and overall monetary conditions.



Concern that the federal government might be preparing to bring pressure on banks to curb consumer lending in particular was cleared up this week when Finance Minister Benson said the government had no intention of persuading banks to allocate their available lending funds in any particular way.

Inflationary pressures by restricting credit growth will continue to be made through overall monetary and fiscal policy.

Pulp and paper issues and copper stocks came under pressure Wednesday and Thursday after Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin warned lumber and copper producers that the government would impose controls on exports of these products unless Canadian domestic needs were looked after.

He said the shortage and the demand are leading to an inflated price for lumber and added that he looked "to the industry to safeguard the requirements of traditional customers . . . and to resist any tendency to neglect the Canadian market in favor of speculative short term export."

Soviet Makes Movie On Chinese Clashes

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Soviet Union issued a movie and a book Friday on its recent border clashes with China in an apparent attempt to keep the incidents fresh in the minds of the people.

A 20-minute documentary entitled On the Events of the Ussuri, opened in two major Moscow movie theatres, while the 69 page book, The Heroes of Damansky, appeared on bookstalls.

Both are devoted to the fighting March 2, 14 and 15 when at least 48 Russians and an undisclosed number of Chinese died in fighting around a disputed island in the frozen border River Ussuri.

Car Union Criticizes Ford Cost

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Dennis McDermott, Canadian regional director of the United Auto Workers, has criticized the more expensive costs of Ford's new Maverick car in Canada compared with prices in the United States.

Ford officially unveiled the Maverick Monday and said the suggested list price in Canada would be $2,275, or $285 more than the same car selling in the United States.

"If ever Canadians had a right to expect price parity, it is on the Canadian-made Maverick," Mr. McDermott said Thursday.

About two thirds of total North American production of Mavericks will come from the St. Thomas plant.

"No one quarrels with the company on the discount on Canadian money relative to U.S. currency and the higher Canadian sales tax," Mr. McDermott said. "But . . . comments about 'unique Canadian costs' is a snow job."

Poor Weather a Key to Final Races of East-West Ski Series

NORTH VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP) — Weather remained the talking point today for the second day of final ski races in the East-West series, but Friday by a mixture of rain and snow.

Only a handful of spectators joined skiers and workers on 4,100-foot Grouse Mountain Friday. The weathercock called for snowflurries today but said there "should be more breaks in the weather."

Conditions Friday were poor for the first run of the men's giant slalom, won by Norwegian Hans Bjorge, and improved a little for the women's slalom, won by Marilyn Cochrane of Richmond, Va.

Miss Cochrane, 17-year-old Olympian and holder of the World Cup for giant slalom, conquered skilfully a course that defeated all but 14 of 25 entries, including Canadian Betsy Clifford of Ottawa.

The American girl was a split second ahead on the first run and Miss Clifford, 15, labelled the successor to Nancy Greene, bumbled halfway down the second run after starting fast.

Miss Cochrane had times of 41.35 seconds and 44.83 for a total of 1:26.18. Penny Northrup of Ellicottville, N.Y., was second at 1:30.34 and Patty Boyd-sion of McCall, Idaho, third at 1:33.72.

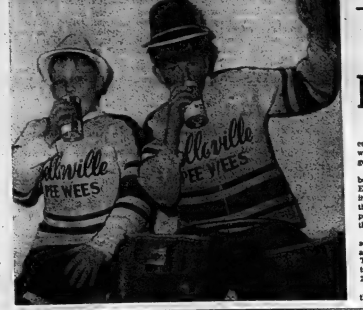
Bjorge, 22, a business administration senior at Colorado Alpine College, won in race-delaying conditions which led second-placer Jim Hunter to remark: "You can't see a damn thing up there."

Duncan, a Canadian A team veteran from Mont Tremblant, Que., was timed in 1:23.64, compared with Bjorge's 1:22.72.

Keith Shepherd of Lake Louise, Alta., was third at 1:34.80.

The men's junior leader, Steve Becker, 18, of Banff, Alta., placed 10th Friday in 1:27.66. Jim Hunter, 18, of Calgary, was 17th in 1:30.71.

The women's leader, Diane Culver, 16, of Montreal, missed a gate and was disqualified. Pam Allen of Rossland, B.C., was fourth in the slalom at 1:36.8.5



Only event today is the men's slalom in the afternoon. The meet, last of 10 in the East-West series, ends Sunday with the women's giant slalom and the second half of the men's.

Miss Greene, the world star from Rossland, watched, and took a couple of runs. She described conditions as challenging but "really good competitors will turn this . . . to their advantage."

Miss Greene, who's raced against her often, said: "This is the best I've ever seen her ski slalom. She was just fantastic on her second run."

Four inches of snow fell by fore races, while it rained below in Vancouver, bringing the total in the week to almost three feet. There was a near-blizzard later Friday night.

Leafs, Rangers Seek Home Ice Revival Tonight

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Players on New York Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs will undoubtedly agree that it is good to be home.

The Rangers and Maple Leafs both trail in their Stanley Cup Eastern Division semi-finals 3-0 in games, and are relying on the advantages of home ice to put them back into contention in their best-of-seven series.

Boston Bruins recorded their second consecutive shutout against Toronto at Boston Thursday night, with a 7-0 victory. Boston won Wednesday 10-0.

Montreal Canadiens dumped the Rangers 5-2 at Montreal Thursday after winning 3-1 Wednesday.

In Western Division semi-finals Thursday, St. Louis Blues blanked Philadelphia Flyers 3-0 to take a 3-0 lead in their best-of-seven series and Oakland Seals downed Los Angeles Kings 4-2 to even their series at 1-1.

In games insight, Boston is at Toronto, Montreal visits New York, St. Louis journeys to Philadelphia and Oakland is at Los Angeles. The same schedule is in effect Sunday.

Playing on Maple Leaf Gardens' ice gives Toronto a psychological boost over the Bruins who are winless there in 22 consecutive National Hockey League games since Nov. 27, 1963.

The Rangers, on the other hand, have an 18-game unbeaten streak at Madison Square Garden in New York.

Johnny Bucyk and Boston Thursday night with two first-period goals and an assist on Johnny McKenzie's goal in the second. Other Bruin goals went to Ted Green, Ken Hodge, Ron Murphy and Phil Esposito, his fifth of the series.

It was the third consecutive game in which the Maple Leafs suffered a shutout. They lost 4-0 to New York on the final night of the regular schedule before dropping the two games to Boston.

Toronto played without centre Forbes Kennedy, suspended for knocking linesman George Ashley to the ice during Wednesday's game.

Defenceman Bobby Orr, who spent Wednesday night in hospital after being knocked unconscious by Toronto defenceman Pat Quinn, played Thursday for Boston and picked up an assist before 14,629 at Boston.

Manager-coach Punch Imlach of Toronto, who put his team through a concentrated shooting drill Friday at Maple Leaf Gardens, admitted he was disappointed in his team's showing so far.

"But I've been in this business long enough to know that you can rebound. Hell, I've been down 2-0 before."

Thursday's game contained little of the violence of the night before. Each team had one major while Boston took six minors and Toronto four.

The Canadiens overcame a 2-1 deficit against New York Thursday night by scoring three goals in the second period.

Scoring for Montreal were rookie Christian Bordeleau, recalled from Houston of the Central Hockey League, Bob Rousseau, Yvan Cournoyer, Jean Beliveau and Ralph Backstrom.

Rod Seiling and Vic Hadfield contributed New York goals in front of a crowd of 16,538 at Montreal.

Manager-coach Emile Francis of New York was bursting with optimism when his Rangers returned home Friday.

"We expect to be back in Montreal next Tuesday—all even," he said. "Any team that can't win at home doesn't deserve to be in the playoffs.

"I don't feel the team was flat in Montreal, except during the second period Thursday night. We had our opportunities but failed to cash them in.

The Canadiens have two regulars listed as doubtful starters for tonight's game—right winger Claude Provost and defenceman Jacques Laperriere.

Laperriere left Thursday's game with a groin injury while Provost did not play after suffering a pulled thigh muscle Wednesday night.

Coach Claude Ruel said both players would make the trip to New York and probably would play Sunday, if not tonight.

Defenceman J. C. Tremblay and Beliveau also are nursing injuries, but are expected to play. Beliveau suffered a rib injury Wednesday night when he collided with team-mate Dick Duff while Tremblay is bothered by a hip injury suffered on the final weekend of the season.

Ruel praised the play of defencemen Terry Harper, who replaced Laperriere Thursday night.

"Terry went out there and played like he had been in the lineup all season," Ruel said. "He had only played one full game and that was against Boston last Sunday, but he's been working hard at practices and I had no worry about sending him out there."

Harper appeared in only 21 games during the season because of a knee operation.

Ruel said rookie right winger Lucien Grenier, recalled from Houston, would travel to New York as an insurance forward.

Los Angeles coach Red Kelly seemed happy to return home after gaining a split at Oakland.

"We have the home ice, but we have to take advantage of it," he said Friday.

A Hitters Comeback?

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Ted Williams figures all this talk about the invincibility of pitching in baseball is so much poppycock.

The manager of Washington Senators said he has been watching pitchers closely this spring and "I haven't seen a pitcher who wasn't hittable."

"Let's face it—hitting is 50 per cent eyesight."

With that Williams tapped his head.

Williams said Friday night he is enjoying his return to baseball but said he still "isn't too sharp on baseball rules and fooling around with the scorecard."

"But I sure like being around the game again. I forgot how enthusiastic I could be about it."

Williams said he is looking for hitters "to make a comeback" this season.

"Oh, they dropped the mound five inches, but that's nothing. We've been trying to keep our hitters from pulling the ball. We even let the catcher call balls and strikes during spring practice to help sharpen the eye."

Williams said one reason pitchers had an edge was because of the poor lighting, shadows and other distractions in the ball parks.

He said he intends "to make a scene" this season if his hitters are in a park where they can't see the ball.

Sports On All Fronts

SUDBURY (CP)—Mauno Tuss of Sudbury rolled an eight-game total of 2,301 pins to win the men's singles title Friday and a $200 cash prize at the Ontario five-pin bowling championship.

Theda Procher of Toronto captured the ladies' singles title and a $200 purse with a pin-score of 2,196.

Bowlers from Barrie and Richmond Hill, Ont., who made up the York-Simcoe team, compiled 3,261 pins at the half-way mark of the mixed teams event and held a 300-pin lead over the Gateway to the North squad from North Bay.

In the men's team competition, York West of Toronto rolled 3,432 to lead Niagara Peninsula by 375 pins at the half-way mark.

At the same point in the ladies' team events, the Gateway 4,370 to hold a slim 19-pin lead over Niagara Peninsula.

Titles for team competition will be settled today.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Bookmakers said Friday St. Louis was an even favorite to win the National League baseball pennant and Detroit a 21-5 favorite in the American League.

Odds of 150-1 were listed for the four expansion clubs — Montreal Expos and San Diego Padres of the National League and Seattle Pilots and Kansas City Royals of the American League.

Five bookies were taking odds on divisions because prohibitive odds in some races and chance of a tie and playoff.

Astros Get Win From Slugger's Replacement

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jack Billingham, one of Houston Astros' replacements for Doon Clendenon, already has made his presence felt.

The young relief pitcher hurled two hitless innings Friday night and picked up the victory as the Astros beat Boston Red Sox 5-2 in an exhibition baseball game in Houston.

Only two other games were played Friday. Richmond of the International League stopped Atlanta Braves 4-0 in Columbus, Ga., and California Angels defeated Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3 in 10 innings at Los Angeles.

Billingham joined the Astros from Montreal Expos in payment for Clendenon, who retired when he was traded to Houston with Jesus Alou for Rusty Staub and then changed his mind to sign with Montreal.

Montreal and Houston solved the long-disputed trade Thursday when Montreal sent Billingham and left-handed reliever Skip Guinn to Houston to compensate for the loss of Clendenon, a first baseman.

Cecil Upshaw, "Larry Maxie and Pete Richert held Atlanta to four hits, but again the pitcher who stole the show was Satchel Paige, Paige, 62, and retiring again after the exhibition season, pitched a scoreless first inning for the Braves. He had blanked Richmond in one inning the night before.

"You Braves lost outfielder Rico Carty, trying to make a comeback from tuberculosis which sidelined him all of last year. Carty suffered a dislocated right shoulder in a pre-game warmup and flew back to Atlanta today for an examination.

Ruben Amaro dashed home on a passed ball in the 10th inning to enable California to edge Los Angeles. Amaro led off the inning with a single, advanced to third on Bubba Morton's single before Tom Haller hit a Pete Mikkelsen pitch to give the Angels the victory.

Before the game California acquired outfielder Lou Johnson from Cleveland Indians for outfielder Chuck Hinton, and bought pitcher Phil Ortega from Washington Senators for the $20,000 waiver price.

Off the field, 81-game winner Denny McLain remained a question mark for Detroit Tigers' opening day assignment after he was treated in Detroit for a tightness in his shoulder.

Friendly Cousin Helps

Marr Reverses Form

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Jack Burke failed to make the 36-hole cut, but his influence was being felt today as the $100,000 Greater Greensboro open golf tournament moved into its third round.

Burke's cousin, Dave Marr, got a quick lesson from Burke last Tuesday and profited with a five-under-par 66 Friday that gave him the halfway lead with a 134 total.

Marr, who says he was "playing badly" in eight tournaments before coming here, held a five-shot lead over Gene Littler, Gordon Jones and Rod Funseth in the chase for top money of $32,000.

Three Canadians qualified for the final two rounds. George Knudson of Toronto shot a 68-71 —139 while Al Balding, also of Toronto, had a 71-69—140. Wilf Homenuk of Winnipeg was in with 72-70—142.

Alvie Thompson of Toronto missed the cut with a 71-74—145. A score of 143, one over par, made the cut and 76 players survived.

Marr didn't win a tournament last year, but he earned $53,000 on the tour, then went into a playing slump this year.

"It took Jack just three swings over last Tuesday to tell me what I was doing wrong," Marr said. "I was set up wrong, aiming too far to the right and Jack corrected that after watching me hooking only three times."

Marr had opened with a 68 Thursday and when he birdied four of his first three holes Friday, each from 15 feet, he figured he had maybe he had something going.

He played the back nine of the 7,094-yard Sedgefield Country Club first and shot it in 32, three under par.

Sifford Suffers Abuse

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Negro professional Charlie Sifford says he never again may play in the Greater Greensboro open golf tournament after the heckling he received during the tournament's second round Friday.

"This used to be a damn good tournament," said Sifford, formerly of Charlotte, N.C., but now of Los Angeles. "But it isn't worth a damn anymore."

His remarks came after four spectators were ushered from the Sedgefield Country Club course for allegedly heckling golfers. Sifford was the target of most of the abuse, club officials said.

"When Charlie was putting, after the stroke, some members of the gallery were yelling 'Miss a nigger,'" said George Walsh, member of the Professional Golfers' Association field staff.

Sifford finished with an even-par 71 for a 145 total and missed the 36-hole cutoff.

Shortly after the incident, tournament officials issued a prepared statement in which they apologized to Sifford.

Pro Al Geiberger said the fans were saying some "pretty nasty things," but that he didn't believe the insults were racial.

"They were just picking on the guys who were missing the short putts," he said.

In 1961 the Greater Greensboro Open became the first southern tournament to break the color line. Sifford played in that tournament.

Belleville Shrine Club president Dick Sargeant drops the first puck between team captains Bruce Parkinson (left) of Brampton and Steve Kirby (right) of Belleville, to officially open the Shriners annual peewee hockey tournament Friday morning at 8 o'clock. The two-day tournament, whose proceeds go to the Shrine Club's Crippled Children's Fund, will conclude tonight, with Belleville still in the running for the "A" series championship.

Jr. Hawks Even Series

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — St. Catharines Black Hawks trounced Niagara Falls Flyers 6-2 Thursday night to even the best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association Junior A semi-finals at two wins each and one tie.

Sixth game is in Niagara Falls tonight with the seventh to be played in St. Catharines Monday night.

The Hawks scored eight straight goals before Niagara Falls got two in the final four minutes from Bob Walton and Paul Keit.

Dennis Giannini scored two for the Hawks, bringing his total to 12 for the playoffs, and assisted on three others. Wayne Ego also scored twice while single goals went to Skeeter Teal, Dick Redmond, Brian McKenzie and Marcel Dionne.

The game turned into a brawl with only 28 seconds left to play when Don O'Donoghue of the Hawks and Walton of the Flyers started fighting.

The fighting quickly spread to all players on the ice. Two officers left their benches to join the fracas.

Walton was given a double major and misconduct, O'Donoghue a major and minor.

Keit, Bob McMahon of the Hawks and Rick Dudley, also of the Hawks majors.

Stars Rebound

STAFF—Aluminum Stars lived up to the old adage "never say die" Thursday in the third game of their best-of-seven Quinte Hockey League final playoff series with Stinson's Construction.

Things looked bleak for the Stars with just 10 minutes remaining in the game, for they were behind 3-1 and down 2-0 in games to Stinson's Construction.

But the Stars kept coming on strong and rallied to score three goals in the dying minutes of the game and rebound back into contention for the Quinte Hockey League championship.

The 4-3 victory keeps the Stars alive on the trail of a double sweep of the regular season playoff championships of the four-team Quinte League.

Don Moore tallied the winning marker for the Stars Thursday night after Bill McQuire and Ron Poitner had scored single goals late in the final period to bring the Stars back from a 3-1 deficit.

Jim Muir netted the Stars' first goal, while Art Deline, Dennis Ray and Leroy McBrien scored singletons to give the Construction crew a 3-1 lead.

Meet Lindsay Today

Fuels Win Pair in Tourney

STAFF — Smith Fuels possess took a giant step forward towards winning the Belleville Shrine Club's annual peewee hockey tournament Friday when they scored a pair of impressive victories over Brampton and Cobourg, the team which eliminated them in the second round of the Oshawa playdowns.

Belleville blasted Brampton 5-0 in the opening game of the tournament as John Ross and Ricky Hutchinson shared the shutout, and edged Cobourg 3-1 to score a morale victory over the Cobourg squad which also beat them in the championship game of the Shrine Tournament last year.

Tim Whitten opened the scoring for the Fuels' squad in the first period of the Cobourg game when he connected on a low drive in the corner from right wing after centre Steve Kirby ricochetted through the middle of the Cobourg team and passed off to him. Cobourg was shorthanded at the time.

Bruce Sutherland made it 2-0 for Belleville at 7.19 of the middle stanza when he scored on a low wrist shot from 25 feet out.

Doug Croisiere tallied for Cobourg midway through the final period, but Belleville held on to win despite a late Cobourg surge.

Lindsay will be Smith Fuels' opposition today at 2 p.m. in one semi-final game of the "A" or championship series.

Lindsay qualified to meet Belleville by bombing Ajax 9-2 in a first round game, then eking out a 3-1 win over Orillia in a second round overtime game.

Lindsay and Orillia staged a torrid battle which was not decided until Jim Coomba tallied the winning marker at the 3:30 mark of the second overtime period.

The first round results were Belleville 5 - Brampton 0; Cobourg 3 - Napanee 0; Orillia 12 - Toronto West Hill 1; Lindsay 9 - Ajax 2; Oshawa 6 - Kingston 1; Richmond Hill 10 - Rockcliffe 1; Georgetown 6 - Bowmanville 0; Whitby 2 - Peterborough 1.

Winners of the first round games advance into the "A" or championship series, while first round losers drop into the "B" or consolation series.

Friday's second round action is the "B" series saw Brampton eliminate Napanee with an 8-2 win and Ajax eliminate Toronto West Hill with a 5-3 victory.

Today's second round action leading up to tonight's championship game at 8 p.m. is as follows: "A" series — Oshawa vs. Richmond Hill, 8 a.m.; Whitby vs. Georgetown, 11.15 a.m., with the two victors meeting at 3.15 p.m. for the right to meet the winner of the Belleville - Lindsay game in tonight's championship game.

"B" series play will see Brampton and Ajax tangle at 2 p.m. with the winner advancing into the "B" series final at 4.30 p.m.

Kingston meets Rockcliffe at 9 a.m., and Peterborough meets Bowmanville at 10.15 a.m. with the two winners meeting at 4.15 p.m. to decide the other "B" series finalist.

Wings First Team To Down Mulroneys

STAFF — Upsets are a part of the sporting world, but the Wings 4-3 win over Mulroney's Sunoco Thursday night in the opening game of their best of five Gas House Hockey League championship playoff series was one of the most surprising in local hockey circles this season.

The loss snapped Mulroney's unbeaten string, in regular season and playoff games, at 18 — 17 wins and a tie — and came at the hands of the team which was mired in the league's cellar at season's end with a record of three wins, ten losses and two ties.

The Wings have staged a playoff resurgence though, and eliminated the second place Mustangs in six games in the semi-final playoffs, thus qualifying for the seemingly dubious distinction of taking on the powerful Sunoco club who eliminated Marysville in three straight games in the other semi-final series.

Wayne McTaggart notched the winning marker for the Wings Thursday night, while Paul Goodfellow, Don Putman and Perry Taylor added single goals for the winners. Terry Casselman netted a pair of goals for Mulroney's and Reid Mallory added a single marker.

The series resumes at the Belleville Arena Sunday night at 7 p.m.

Goyer Paces Merchants' Win

Good Friday was very good indeed for Gary Goyer and the Picton Merchants.

The veteran centre from Bellevile collected three goals and two assists last night as the Merchants scored a 6-2 road win over Midland in the opening game of their best of seven intermediate "B" series with Midland in the semi-finals of the Ontario playdowns.

Goyer picked up first period assists on goals by Fred James and Larry Pero, and then notched his hat trick in the middle stanza, in a game which saw Picton outshoot the home town squad 40-34.

Moe Hunter tallied the other goal for the Merchants, who take on Midland Sunday night in Picton at 7 p.m. in the second game of the series.

GANDER, Nfld. (CP)—Mike Anderson's goal with 18 seconds remaining in the third period gave Gander Flyers a 5-4 win over Galt Hornets in the third game of their Eastern Allan Cup quarter-finals here Thursday night.

The Gander victory left the Ontario team leading the best-of-seven series 2-1. The Hornets won the first two games at Galt, but all remaining games in the series will be played here.

The fourth game is scheduled for tonight.

J. C. Garneau, who was a pickup player for, the Victoriaville, Que., team that won the Allan Cup last year, scored two Gander goals. Bill Laslie and Ed Philpott scored the others for the Flyers.

Ron Hergott, Pete Brennan, Vance Miller and Pete Panagabko were the Galt scorers.

Galt led 1-0 after the first period and were in front 3-2 after the second.

Both teams had 29 shots on goal.

WINNIPEG (CP)—Beverley Boys of Pickering, Ont., who placed fourth in tower diving at the Mexico City Olympics last year, staged an upset Friday in the three-metre springboard event at an invitational meet sponsored by the Manitoba Aquatics Club.

The blonde, 19-year-old Miss Boys defeated two other top international divers in the event in which the 1968 United States three-metre champion, Jerrie Adair of Long Beach, Calif., finished third.

Second in the event was Melina Duchkova, 16, of Czechoslovakia, gold medalist in the tower event at last year's Olympics.

In the other major event of the meet, Dick Rydze of the University of Michigan, one of the top six male tower divers in the United States, won the men's 10-metre platform event.

The meet continues today.

Orioles vs. Athletics in AL Playoff?

NEW YORK (AP) — In the American League, where East still is East and West still is West, it appears that 3,000 miles are likely to separate the winners. Baltimore Orioles and Oakland Athletics, in the new two-division setup.

For baseball's 100th anniversary brings with it for the first time a tradition-breaking alignment that separates the 12 league teams into two geographically-separate divisions.

The National League did not adhere strictly to geography, as the American League did and created two divisions that at first blush at least will be somewhat unequal in strength since last year's top five finishers are in the Eastern Division.

Each club will play the opposition in its own division 18 times each, then cross division lines for 12 games with each team in the other, a situation that complicates any attempt to try to pick the final standings.

But here's the way it looks in the American league:

Eastern Division

1. Baltimore. 2. Detroit Tigers. 3. Boston Red Sox. 4. New York Yankees. 5. Cleveland Indians. 6. Washington Senators.

Western Division

1. Oakland. 2. Minnesota Twins. 3. California Angels. 4. Chicago White Sox. 5. Seattle Pilots. 6. Kansas City Royals.

In the Baltimore playoff for the pennant and a spot in the World Series the Orioles will show the Athletics that the power still is in the East.

The eastern race should evolve into three separate battles with the Orioles in a tight struggle with the defending champion Tigers. Boston, New York and Cleveland will battle among themselves. And Washington, despite Ted Williams, will fight to avoid embarrassment.

The Tigers went all the way last year with Denny McLain making the most astounding contribution with 31 victories. It is doubtful he can repeat and just as doubtful that the rest of the pitching staff can take up the slack.

While the Tigers have more punch than the Orioles with Willie Horton, Jim Northrup, Mickey Stanley, Norm Cash, Bill Freehan and Al Kaline, the Orioles have a hard-hitting trio of their own in Frank Robinson, Boog Powell and Brooks Robinson.

But the Orioles may have more pitching in Dave McNally, Jim Hardin, Tom Phoebus and Jim Palmer, who looks as if he will make good on his comeback, effective during the spring.

The Red Sox should run in front of the division's second section with Jim Lonborg's return to the pitching staff the big factor. The Yankees, without Mickey Mantle, still have strong pitching and two top youngsters in Bobby Murcer and Jerry Kenney, enough at least to pull ahead of the Indians.

In the West, the race could be much tighter with only the two expansion clubs—Seattle and Kansas City—seemingly without a chance.

Pitching gives Oakland the edge here with such young hurlers as John (Blue Moon) Odom, Jim (Catfish) Hunter and Jim Nash to go with a team that has daring in Campy Campaneris, slugging in Reg Jackson and a new manager in Hank Bauer.

The Twins have a new manager in Billy Martin and his emphasis on the running game should lift Minnesota into the No. 2 spot. California gets the edge over Chicago because of the potential slugging of Rick Reichardt.

Campbell Fines, Suspends Kennedy for Altercation

NEW YORK (CP) — Forbes Kennedy of Toronto Maple Leafs has been suspended for four games and will lose $1,000 of his playoff money for striking linesman George Ashley in a Boston-Toronto National Hockey League game Wednesday night.

League president Clarence Campbell announced the extended suspension Friday. He had earlier ordered an indefinite suspension for the veteran forward.

Campbell said the suspension for four games includes Thursday night's game which Toronto lost 7-0.

Campbell said in a statement: "While the brawl was a long drawnout affair involving many of the players of both teams, the events which have led to Kennedy's game misconduct and expulsion from the game are well established by the testimony of all three game officials and by both still photos and excellent motion pictures."

Kennedy and Gerry Cheevers, Boston goalkeeper, had been feuding throughout the game and at 16:14 of the third period when the game was halted for a fight between a Boston player, Kennedy skated toward the Boston goal to resume his feud with Cheevers, the statement said.

In his testimony Kennedy acknowledged, "I got the fight going," Campbell reported.

Campbell said that still photos and the slow motion pictures show that when Kennedy delivered the punch or a violent push Ashley was straight in front of him and there was no Boston player within 10 feet. Ashley was not physically restraining Kennedy in any way and offered no provocation for such a blow.

Campbell concluded:

"In these circumstances the only rational conclusion is that Kennedy intentionally struck the official. . . ."

Injuries A Problem

Blues Intimidate Flyers In First Games of Series

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — St. Louis Blues have beaten Philadelphia Flyers in two important phases of ice hockey, accounting for their 2-0 lead in the Stanley Cup semi-finals of the West Division.

The third game in the best-of-seven set is scheduled for the Spectrum ice tonight.

Coach Scotty Bowman's Blues, winners of the regular-season West title, have intimidated the Flyers with a bruising style of play, and outplayed them in the nets. In winning both games, St. Louis scored pretty often but kept the pressure on the Flyers by keeping the play in Philadelphia's zone.

Thursday night's defeat, Philadelphia had only six shots on goal in each of the first two periods and nine in the final period. St. Louis bombed Flyers' goalie Doug Favell with 36.

Flyers' coach Keith Allen is expected to return Bernie Parent to the nets for the third game. Parent fired in the 5-2 opening defeat and was rested in favor of Favell for the second game. St. Louis will call upon 40-year-old Jacques Plante, who apparently has to do an ironman job because of an injury to Glenn Hall.

Hall suffered a hamstring muscle early in the first game and Plante supplanted him.

Philadelphia, too, has an injury problem. Ed Van Impe, a tough defenceman, fractured again a finger during a melee in the second game and will be sidelined. Van Impe missed the opener, but tried to play with the finger heavily taped Thursday night.

Paille Frustrates Aces Playoff Bid

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Great goaltending by Marcel Paille of Providence Reds Friday night prevented Quebec Aces from clinching a playoff spot in the American Hockey League.

Paille kicked out 32 shots in the first two periods as Providence built up a 2-0 lead and then went on to a 4-1 victory over the Aces.

The win left Quebec three points ahead of Rochester Americans in the battle for the third and final playoff position in the Western Division. Both teams have two games left, including one against each other Sunday at Rochester.

In other games Friday, Rochester edged Buffalo Bisons 5-4 and Hershey Bears took Baltimore Clippers 6-3.

Paille made 41 saves in all as the Reds climbed to within one point of second-place Baltimore in the Eastern Division.

Scoring Providence goals were John Sleaver, Alton White, Yves Locas and Dennis Macka. Tony Esposito scored midway through the final period for Quebec.

Rochester scored three consecutive goals in the third period to overcome a two-goal deficit and defeat Buffalo.

John Gofton scored two goals for Rochester while Norm Armstrong, Billy McNeill and player-coach Dick Gamble had one each. Gamble's goal at 16:17 of the final period was the winner.

Picking up Buffalo goals were Gerry Ouellette, Guy Trottier, Dennis Hextall and Bob Jones.

Gil Gilbert had two goals for Hershey while single goals went to Ted Snell, Stan Gilbertson, Mike Harvey and Phil Maltovez. Bob Brinkworth had two for Baltimore and Sandy McGregor one.

Summerbee Boots A Pair

LONDON (Reuters) — England International Mike Summerbee scored two goals to help Manchester City beat Bristol FA Cup final opponents Leicester City 2-0 in an English First Division soccer match Friday.

Summerbee scored his first after 12 minutes and then added a second five minutes from the end to keep Leicester deep in relegation trouble, second from bottom.

The two teams meet in the cup final at Wembley here April 26.

Leicester's only consolation was that relegation rivals Coventry City crashed to a 2-0 defeat against Tottenham Hotspur. Leicester is still four points behind Coventry, but they have four games in hand.

In the other two First Division games, Newcastle United held Chelsea to a 1-1 draw, while Ipswich beat Sunderland 1-0.

On a day when the leading four First Division clubs were without a match, attention was focussed mainly on the relegation struggle and the battle at the top of the Second Division.

Crystal Palace shared a goalless draw with its closest rival

Eyes Frozen Shut

Sky Diver Makes Polar Jump as Last in Test Series

EDMONTON (CP) — Less than a week after parachuting onto the Arctic ice pack 150 miles from the North Pole, Ray Munro figures it's about time for a rest.

"I think on Saturday morning I'm going to sit out on the sun porch in a rocking chair and, along about Monday, I'm going to start rocking," he said in an interview.

Last Monday, he was digging his six-foot frame out of four feet of soft snow on polar ice, 2,500 miles north of the Arctic Circle, after jumping from an aircraft at 2,000 feet.

By the time he landed, his eyes were frozen shut and he became tangled in his parachute because of stiff ground winds. Object of the jump was to study effects of a polar jump on the human body.

The experience climaxed 10 years of adventure. He also is a veteran newspaper man who worked on newspapers in Vancouver, Toronto and at one time was managing editor of the Chatham Daily News.

His partner, Norman Jones, 41, of Montreal, owns a dental laboratory. Both are married and have children.

They were brightly-colored skydiving jumpsuits which bore small Canadian flags and blue crests which read:

"Munro Para-Pole Expedition 1969".

Mr. Munro said they decided five years ago to do a definite study of the physiological and psychological effects of skydiving on the human body.

They chose to make the 500th, and final, jump in the program at the North Pole. The first such attempt earlier in March was frustrated by poor weather. A jump at the Pole Monday was also abandoned because of poor weather and they decided to complete it 150 miles from the pole.

Neither man was disappointed by failing to achieve the geographic goal.

"It would've been nice to do it, but . . . it was exciting and it was adventurous the way it was," Mr. Munro said. "It wasn't fraught with perils—that's comic book stuff."

Because of the 550-mile distance to the drop site from Alert, at the northern tip of Ellesmere Island, the men and their gear had to weigh no more than 350 pounds.

Pilot Wehby Phipps of Resolute, N.W.T., landed his turboprop twin Otter on an ice floe "about the size of a football field," Mr. Munro said. "Then we had to roll out four drums of gas at 30 degrees below zero and refuel the plane."

Mr. Jones was left on the tiny floe with two 15-minute orange flares that were to be used as a drop target by Mr. Munro.

"The first one lasted about two minutes," said Mr. Jones. "It was lonely and I came very close to being left there."

He had a movie camera trained on Mr. Munro and after his parachute popped, "kept the camera on him all the way down."

And the marks on his face showed where the metal camera frame had frozen to his skin.

"He had his gloves off all the time I was coming down and his fingers were dead white all the way down to there," said Mr. Munro, pointing to the base of his fingers.

Mr. Munro said he removed his goggles shortly after leaving the aircraft so he could see the drop zone more clearly, which "from that height looked like a saucer."

When he landed, his eyes were frozen shut and a brisk wind had rolled him into a ball in the middle of his parachute.

Asked what would have happened had he missed the floe, Mr. Munro replied:

"We had screwed that if I went into a lead—an open stretch of water—there would be no attempt whatsoever to recover me."

Both said they had no plans for adventure after completing the study, estimated to have cost $38,000. They declined commercial sponsorship to retain the study's "scientific purity."

For now, it's back home to wives, families and businesses.

Christians Prepare for Easter Services

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pope Paul will light a Paschal candle at a vigil service today as Christians around the world prepare to celebrate the resurrection of Christ.

Thousands of pilgrims, who have been clogging the streets of Rome for the last few days, were expected in St. Peter's Basilica to join with the pontiff in the vigil and the mass of joy commemorating the end of Christ's entombment.

While vestments were set aside for the Pope to change into during today's ceremony after removing his purple robes, This signifies the end of mourning for the death of Christ on Good Friday and the coming of Easter.

In the Holy Land 1,000 pilgrims were gathered in Jerusalem for vigil services at the 400-year-old Church of the Holy Sepulchre, which tradition holds is the site of Christ's tomb.

It was the second Holy Week in Jerusalem under Israeli rule and it passed as peacefully as any other. Streets and parks mingled with the crowd, thinned by the absence of Arab pilgrims who used to throng the city when it was divided under Jordanian and Israeli rule. The Israelis captured it during the June, 1967, war with the Arabs.

In Rome Friday night, the Pope prayed for peace in Vietnam, Africa, the Middle East and cited the crucifixion of Christ as an example of salvation through non-violence.

The 71-year-old pontiff was speaking from an altar on the Palatine Hill after taking part in the traditional Good Friday ceremony of the Via Crucis—the Way of the Cross.

"Our Via Crucis ends with a prayer for peace in our souls, redeemed by the cross, and for the peace of the world for those it ravished and gave his blood," the Pope said.

"Especially we want to pray for the peoples and the regions where peace does still not exist."

He spoke of:

—"The distant but to us spiritually-near Vietnam where hatred and revenge reign and where blood is being shed.

—"Africa, so seriously afflicted by an implacable fratricidal conflict.

—"The country which was that of Jesus, where our thoughts and our best wishes still lie."

Speaking of the crucifixion, the Pope said: "Jesus showed himself there in a complete state of weakness, of human defeat, of non-violence."

Before his address the Pope carried a large wooden cross in procession up the side of the grassy hill where about 5,000 pilgrims watched under a smoky drizzle.

He carried the cross for the last four of the 14 stations, which recall the 14 incidents of Christ's crucifixion.

For the first 13 stations, starting from the Colosseum, the cross was born by Cardinal Angelo dell'Acqua, the vicar of Rome.

Earlier, the Pope, barefoot, bareheaded and without his papal ring as a sign of mourning for the death of Christ, ventured what he believed to be fragments of the Holy Cross in a ceremony attended by 1,000 pilgrims.

Predicted Quake Fails to Appear

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Caltists, mystics and soothsayers who said a severe Good Friday California earthquake would make Phoenix, Ariz., a seaport could point only to three jolts that came in a little weak and 1,200 miles off target.

Sharp shocks in the ocean off Mexico Friday morning cracked a few walls in northwest towns and sent people scurrying into the streets.

And, scientists point out, there were hundreds of micro-quakes too small to be detected except by a seismograph. In fact, there are hundreds of micro-quakes every day and about 300 noticeable shocks each year.

The doomsayers were not interested in these. For months they said California would be murdered from the continent or even sink into the Pacific in April. Many said it would happen on Good Friday—the day of the disastrous 1964 Alaskan quake.

If the undersea quakes and the micro-quakes Friday were not what soothsayers expected, the feeling of fires and sudden flood didn't reassure others. Civil defence officials and scientists were deluged with worried telephone calls.

Throughout the day citizens called the Earthquake Institute of Technology, the U.S. Geological Survey and the city's civil defense office demanding to know when the quake would come.

Female Minister in Ecumenical Observance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Mixed weather conditions greeted Canadians across the country as solemn Good Friday services opened an Easter weekend of special church services for some, protest marches for others and for all a chance to show off new clothes for many.

Skies were sunny in the Atlantic provinces, southern Ontario, Alberta and Saskatchewan with temperatures in the 30s and 40s. But Quebec, Manitoba, Northern Ontario and British Columbia experienced gloomy, unseasonable conditions.

In B.C., at least one person drowned and two others were missing in a boating accident and another person was killed in traffic as rain and cold winds buffeted coastal regions.

Three-hour religious services were held at many centres, many of them inter-denominational. Toronto's first ecumenical Good Friday observance, at St. Michael's Roman Catholic Cathedral, was attended by more than 1,500. Rev. Harriet Christie, a United Church of Canada minister who read the lesson, was the first woman to take active part in a service since the cathedral was built in 1848.

After the service the participants crossed the street to Metropolitan United Church for a "hunger meal," consisting of one slice of bread, a cube of cheese and cup of coffee. Then a showing of slide photographs depicting world poverty and hunger.

In Halifax, the Atlantic Symphony Orchestra and choir performed Mozart's Requiem Mass at the Anglican Cathedral of All Saints in the evening another performance will be staged tonight.

An Ottawa Presbyterian church sponsored a "hunger lunch"—the menu just a bowl of soup—to raise money for relief to Biafra.

At Edmonton, Colin Marshall, 18, and Lewis MacGillivray, 15, set out on a four-day, 100-mile walk south to Red Deer to raise money for Oxfam.

Although there were no protests Good Friday, anti-Vietnam war groups in Vancouver and Toronto have plans for the weekend.

In Vancouver, one group will march today to show solidarity with the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Viet Cong, and another will march Sunday in general protest against the war without accusing the United States of imperialism.

In Toronto, organizers are demonstrating at city hall, the Easter parade headed by an Easter bunny and bunny girl will move through the downtown section with the traditional showing of new outfits and bonnets.

Air Canada, and CNR officials across the country have reported the usual Easter rush for reservations. Extra flights were laid on by Air Canada and extra coaches were added to transcontinental trains.

Marches and Vigils

Dedication Asked in King's Battle

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

On the first anniversary of his assassination, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was memorialized in services, marches and vigils across the United States. Speakers pleaded for a re-dedication to his battle for human rights.

The observances Friday in hundreds of towns and cities were peaceful, like that in Memphis, Tenn., where King was killed on April 4, 1968, a mass march was taken as an opportunity by vandals to smash store windows.

A curfew ordered by Mayor Henry Loeb and cool rain emptied the streets during the night. Police arrested more than 70 persons for curfew violations, looting, burglary and assault.

In Montgomery, Ala., several thousand Negroes camped through the night in a huge field behind a Roman Catholic school. They were waiting the start of a march on the state capitol today in memory of King.

Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, who succeeded King as head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, was to lead the march. He headed the services for King in Memphis Friday.

The day passed calmly in Chicago, the only other city where mourning was marred by violence. There were outbreaks in two neighborhoods Thursday by groups of Negro youths.

Police and 5,000 National Guard troops stood by in case of further trouble but only one minor shooting incident was reported.

Dr. Martin Luther King Sr., speaking at special Good Friday service in suburban Decatur, called on blacks and whites to follow the non-violent principles of his son.

"Violence gains nothing," the elder King said. "Good men will always be opposed to violence, killing and rioting. We must strive continually for peace, justice and fair play."

President Nixon sent a message of condolence to Mrs. King's widow, Coretta, in Atlanta. Mrs. King avoided public ceremonies during the day but visited her husband's grave with her four children.

In Nashville, some 300 demonstrators marched to the grounds of the Tennessee state prison where James Earl Ray is serving a 99-year sentence for King's murder. They said their purpose was to remind Ray "of what he did."

Boston Mayor Kevin White called on Congress to declare King's birthday a national holiday. Later hundreds of Negroes held a black-only rally in King's honor, at one point asking a Roman Catholic priest and four nuns, all white, to leave.

In Alaska, a member of the John Birch Society led the opposition forces that defeated a resolution in the state Senate to ask Congress to declare King's birthday a national day of mourning.

Senator Clyde R. Lewis, an Anchorage republican and member of the Birch Society, said King had "contributed more than anyone else to the present campus rioting and street rioting."

In Selma, Ala., the scene of a bloody 1965 "civil rights" clash, about 2,000 persons marched behind a blazing sun singing "Soul power, soul power! Uhm Ah!" All but a handful of the marchers were black.

In a memorial service at Spelman College in Atlanta, Rev. T. Y. Rogers, said: "Those voices of dissent must be heard, or America will be destroyed in our time."

And in Memphis, a surprise guest was Senator Edward M. Kennedy (Dem., Mass.), who said: "Let us work so no man be denied a job by the evil of discrimination . . . If I fight for these goals all my public life, there is no greater service I can do for my country."

Cardinals' Vestments Reduced

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul today ordered reductions in the traditional finery worn by cardinals and bishops of the Roman Catholic Church.

The move was taken to lessen the rich and regal splendor of church vestments and bring the clothing of prelates more in line with the "simplicity, practicality and the spirit of humility and poverty" emphasized by the Vatican ecumenical council.

The edict will be in force the April 28 consistory to create 33 new cardinals one of the most sizable consistories in centuries.

One of the cardinals to be elevated at the consistory is Most. Rev. George Bernard Flahiff, Archbishop of Winnipeg.

Pope Paul's order, which takes effect June 1, abolishes the use of red shoes, shoebuckles, the broad-brimmed galero hat, and the red pileoli hat traditionally worn by cardinals.

The sashes with tassels were likewise done away with, along with the mantelletta—a short red cape.

Tweed

TWEED — At 7.15 a.m. April 2, 1969, a one vehicle accident on Highway No. 37, just north of Roslin, caused $800. damages to a 1964 convertible, driven by Gregory William Douglas Goode, of Tweed, 21 years of age.

Mrs. Rose Lucas, who has been a patient in Belleville General Hospital, was able to return to her home in Flinton, recently.

HOTEL MANAGERS ARE MADE - NOT BORN -
Because we believe this, we are prepared to train the right person (man or woman) to manage a hotel in the Quinte District, which features fine dining, a cocktail lounge and good entertainment.
Who is the right person?
From experience, we know he or she . . .
- will be hospitality minded
- will care about details
- is a cost watcher - not a clock watcher
- can work well with systems
- has leadership qualities and supervisory know-how
- will be ambitious enough to earn above average income — working longer hours than average, including most evenings.

If you are that one person in a 1000 whose background and personality are appropriate for this position - and able to become expert in this field with training - then, by all means, write and tell us why.

Sat Atl, Intelligencer. All replies held in confidence, interviews to be arranged.

BEDS FOR DECORATING?

Used since ancient times as a substitute for sleeping on the floor, beds were also an important piece of creative furniture, especially in Europe where they laid developed and costly draperies. Bed design today is much more functional, yet still appealing to the eye and room design.

Today's beds and mattresses are grown, there may be some empty beds at your house. If you can sell them with an Intelligencer Want Ad . . . just by dialing 962-9111.

KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Not too long ago I wrote about complications which came about as a result of expensively unprudish patients put off necessary examinations. Postponement of essential breast and vaginal examinations, for example, sometimes resulted in undetected serious illness.

It seems that some husbands can also be unprudish about their wives' examinations in the doctor's office:

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: One of your recent columns dealt with breast examinations and the need for Pap tests. I am an unbelievably jealous man. I become sick at the thought of another man touching my wife. Of course, I know that this is being silly. I haven't actually kept my wife from being examined because I love her and know that it is for her good. Fortunately I am not of violent type, but I do actually become physically ill at the thought of her being examined.

My question is, why must it be a male doctor who performs these tests? Why can't the husband be given the necessary instruction so that he could do these things for his wife? And if not the husband, why not the nurse who is always in attendance and has some knowledge of medicine? (The nurse writing of this letter makes me ill.) — Mr. S.

Comment: Your reaction is not a usual one, but I can understand how you feel. Besides, unwholesome known as boundaries between male and female. I've known some male patients who were ashamed to ask for a physical examination.

As for you or a nurse doing essentially medical diagnostic work, I think you can understand that such delegation of responsibility is not feasible. Perhaps the following letter is the solution to your personal problem, Mr. S.:

* * *

Dear Dr. Seincrohn: With reference to the letter from the mother of four who voices reluctance to obtain the very vital Pap smear because of the disrobing, etc., that such a test necessitates, I fail to see anything prudish in her attitude. I am shocked, as a matter of fact, at your failure to offer the one sensible alternative to her dilemma.

There are a number of very capable, qualified and even distinguished lady gynecologists and internists in almost every area. Their names may be had for the asking from the local medical society.

Thank the good Lord it is no longer necessary for any member of the fair sex to suffer through the embarrassment of a complete physical by a male doctor unless she so chooses. I believe you do your readers a disservice if you fail to point this out. — Mrs. M.

Comment: You make a good point, Mrs. M. In fact, I believe you have already helped many. I am shocked, as a matter of fact, at your failure to offer the one sensible alternative to her dilemma.

Comment: You make a good point, Mrs. M. In fact, I believe you have already helped many. I am shocked, as a matter of fact, at your failure to offer the one sensible alternative to her dilemma.

Any woman who is ashamed to be examined by a male physician can turn to a physician of her own sex. (Incidentally, I wonder how Russian men feel about being examined by predominantly female physicians in their country? I've known men to become prudish when being examined by a lady physician.)

Prudishness? I do not use it as a derogatory term. Only as meaning extreme modesty.

* * *

For Mrs. U.: Recent studies on men (and on rats, chickens, and monkeys) indicate that 6 to 8 small meals daily are more healthful than 2 to 3 big ones. Moreover, weight is less chance of getting a coronary attack.

Belleville Livestock

Trade was active and prices stronger on most classes of livestock on Tuesday. Sale of fat steers and heifers were higher. Good cows were stronger, common and medium cows were steady. Choice veal calves were higher and medium calves were steady. Feeder cattle were fairly steady. There is a strong demand for spring lambs. Choice springers sold steady common cows were under pressure.

Following quotations:

Sale of choice steers 28 to 29½.

Good steers 26 to 28.

Good heifers 25 to 27½. Medium 23 to 24. Common 20 to 22.

Good cows 21 to 22. Heifery cows as high as 23. Medium 18 to 20. Common 15 to 18.

Good bulls, bologna bulls 22 to 24. Medium 20 to 21. Common 17 to 20.

Good stock calves 30 to 34½.

Choice veal calves 42 to 44. Good 35 to 41. Medium 32 to 34. Common 28 to 32. Boners 20 to 27.

Choice lambs 30 to 34. Sheep 07 to 09.

OMSIP Premiums to Go Up To Cover Increased MD Fees

TORONTO (CP) — Premium payments for the Ontario Medical Services Insurance Plan will be raised 10 per cent to match this week's increase in doctor's fees, the government announced today.

Health Minister Dr. Matthew Dymond told the house as he introduced a five-raising amendment which it must approve that OMSIP premiums will be raised to cover all or most of the extra costs in the new Ontario Medical Association schedule. OMSIP, which now pay 90 per cent of costs under the 1967 OMA schedule, will pay 90 per cent of the new schedule which became effective April 1, Dr. Dymond said.

But opposition to the government announcement sparked an hour-long debate so intense that Premier Robarts eventually withdrew the amendment to the 1965 Medical Services Insurance Act, serving notice that it will be reintroduced April 15 after the Easter recess.

In the one-hour debate—much of it snarled around procedural points—opposition members accused the government of succumbing to OMA pressure.

Speaker Fred Cass ruled out of order a motion by New Democratic Party Leader Donald MacDonald to adjourn for debate on a matter of urgent public importance—"unilateral capitulation of the government to the OMA."

The exchange was one of several between Mr. Cass and Mr. MacDonald as the NDP leader tried to pin down the government for its plans and later challenged the government on procedural grounds.

Most of his attempts were ruled out of order, including the motion for an emergency debate when he challenged Mr. Cass and was defeated along straight party lines.

In other business:

—Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said the government's school-board amalgamation program has "shifted the financial nightmare from the province to the municipalities." He was commenting on reports that school taxes have soared out of control since amalgamated school boards took over Jan. 1.

—Mr. McKeough publicly warned municipal councils to stay out of public money markets except for essential debentures. He said in a letter tabled in the legislature that school board borrowing has increased to the point where a provincial agency formed to purchase debentures at less-than-market rates in 1968 was asked for $35,000,000 more than the $175,000,000 available to it.

—John Yaremko, minister of social and family services, told Mac Makarchuk (NDP—Brantford) that he will consider his request to change the terms of reference for inquiry into the operation of the welfare office in Brantford. Mr. Makarchuk said Brantford city council set up terms of reference which exclude consideration of insulting or unethical behavior by welfare administrators.

Municipalities Condemn Assessment Decision

TORONTO (CP) — The Association of Counties and Regions of Ontario has condemned the provincial government's move to take responsibility for property assessment away from municipal governments.

About 230 delegates from 960 municipal governments Thursday ended a three-day convention with a resolution criticizing the government for not informing municipalities of its plans to handle property assessment beginning Jan. 1, 1970.

Last December, the government said assessment will be a responsibility of regional governments it hopes to establish throughout the province by 1975.

The March 4 budget speech by Provincial Treasurer Charles MacNaughton said the government will handle assessment in parts of Northern Ontario beginning July 1 and for the rest of Ontario beginning in January, 1970.

Municipal delegates said Thursday:

"Municipalities will never tackle the job of essential long-range programming if important functions are to be summarily removed to other jurisdictions."

Police Object to Changes In Disciplinary Measures

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said Thursday he is "prepared in principle" his department did not consult sufficiently with the Ontario Police Association before introducing new disciplinary regulations affecting the province's 12,000 police.

He added he will meet with association officials before midApril to discuss possible changes in regulations to which they object.

The regulations, criticized by police spokesmen as giving police fewer basic employment rights than any other group in the province, came into effect March 27 but were first published in the Ontario Gazette until April 5.

Asked by Morton Shulman (NDP—High Park) whether he could suspend the regulations pending the meeting, Mr. Wishart said he does not have the power to do so.

Earlier Thursday, Dennis Latten, executive director of the police association, said in an interview some Ontario policemen have already been charged with the breaches of the new regulations.

Dr. Shulman said at least one officer has been informed he will be dismissed.

The regulations prohibit police from joining a union, taking part in politics or signing any petition to the Ontario government.

Mr. Latten said he does not think Ontario policemen, who are forbidden by law to strike, will work under the regulations.

He said if the association cannot get satisfaction from the Ontario government, then policemen might march on Queen's Park in protest.

Mr. Wishart said the association had submitted briefs rejecting the proposed regulations when they were under consideration in 1965 and 1966.

But since the association felt it had not had sufficient chance for discussion, he intended to bring the parties together to reach a solution.

The regulations set out a list of 50 offences coming under the headings of discreditable conduct, neglect of duty, deceit, breach of confidence and corrupt practices.

Policemen found guilty of offences, after a hearing before their police chief or a police commission, may be admonished or lose five days pay for minor offences. For major offences they may be reprimanded, lose up to 10 days pay, or be dismissed.

Lakehead City Bill Introduced

TORONTO (CP) — Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough Thursday introduced in the Ontario legislature a bill to incorporate the city of Lakehead, amalgamating the cities of Fort William and Port Arthur and parts of the surrounding area.

He said in a statement a final name for the city will be decided by local residents.

The government's decision to create a single city at the head of Lake Superior was announced by Mr. McKeough several weeks ago. The amalgamation includes portions of Neebing and Shuniah townships.

Mr. McKeough said an interim municipal committee had helped "resolve a number of points of difficulty during the preparatory stage of the legislation."

These had to do particularly with questions related to the basis of representation and organization. . . ."

The mayor and aldermen will be elected by general vote, but aldermanic candidates must qualify as residents in one of the four wards into which the new city will be divided.

The first council will hold office for three years, requiring an election in 1972 this year to take office Jan. 1, 1970.

DISSOLVES BODIES

The Lakehead hydroelectric pointed body for the first term with its sitting members, but several boards and commissions will be dissolved, Mr. McKeough said, with their powers going back to the council.

There will be no board of control for the new city.

Tax increases in the new Neebing and McIntyre wards, former semi-rural areas, will be gradually introduced and graduated payments over five years will be made by the new city to the municipality of Neebing for the portion taken away from it.

Mr. McKeough said he will meet the new city's municipal councils, boards and commissions April 17 to test further reactions to the government proposals.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For April 6

Your birthday today: The coming year promises material rewards beyond the expected if, somehow, you can disencharm the illusions that have crept into readily available forms. Reinvestment is in order for those with more sizeable funds. Today's natives are fascinated with the high levels of metaphysics and the occult.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Expansive ideas are the order of the day. Your participation in community affairs is important. Be on time! A new hobby promises well, if you have everything else organized.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Let other people shine today. Just be there and quietly lend a hand. Share serenity or concentrate on activities you can go about in comfort. Other people are open for action different from any you have tried before.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): If you can avoid the temptation to criticize, today can be a full day of good fun, conversation of faith, and helpful new contacts. The afternoon hours are fine for catching up on correspondence.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Make your appearance for your Sunday assistant; then organize some journey, real or symbolic, for the afternoon. Business contacts may prove easier and less pressure than during the week.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Old friends and associates bring on social activities. Romantic interests also thrive. Reflection this afternoon on what you are doing and where you are may bring you the ideas for a future vocation.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Quiet steady activity is far better today than any attempt at large busy circles. Family squabbles have a way of getting out of hand. It is wiser to let things pass for a while.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): A great deal of movement takes place this day. Be patient with complexities in the lives of relatives, but spend more of your time with cheerful acquaintances. Romantic and marital interests have favorable aspects.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Joint ventures are favored, so get aside purely personal programs. Closer ties with friends and loved ones are promised. A special gathering tonight would be a good start.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Certain matters perhaps a pending legality — occupy your thoughts, but the day is going to church. Where there is any doubt of the propriety, be sensitive to get an evaluation as a first step to a row.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your tendency to keep everything tightly organized to several unexpected reactions today: people tend to rebel and your personal affairs come into conflict with your responsibilities. Therefore, expect others to be sensitive.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Share the communal expression of faith. Relatives and friends claim attention, but avoid friends with high flown theories. Now is not the time to commit your reserves.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): A little trust and change of pace this Sunday will give you clearcut insight into business coming up later in the week. You might even obtain an informal legal opinion to help you make up your mind.

For April 7

Your birthday today: Now is the time to clear your schedules. Get rid of anything that has outlived its purposes, habits which waste time. Unfinished business tends to become the most difficult feature of your life, so finish your obligations. Today's natives generally have warm, emotional natures with a flair for poetical or lyric expression. Many have been writers.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Today the accent is on doing it yourself for yourself. Learn something new. It will be worth the doing. With some unusual people, put together a conversation group this evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Your energy is best directed into physical channels today; pet hobbies and pastimes are definitely favored. Tact is essential, all day.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Your plans run into conflicts with other people. They have notions about having the same space at the same time. Seek some exchange or compromise without fuss. Serious study is the preferred chore for tonight.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Use great care today with anything with moving parts; be especially wary of thoughtless moves by other people. Chronic problems which come to a head today can be solved through simple decisions. Rushing matters will do no good.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Pursue social activities vigorously. Old friends have developed new connections, too. Sentimental journeys are favored, likewise serious agreements.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Confidence in your own point of view helps in conference with friends and family. Be sure to include everybody in your plans or at least in the news. Find a change of pace this evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Expect some increase in costs of living and the like. Put your time allotments into your work and the affairs of your mate, otherwise there is little worthy of your effort. Use finesse in dealing with relatives.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Postpone signing agreements until better information is obtained and you have a chance to review your decisions. Relatives may kick up a fuss over health and family resources.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): The unexpected is normal today; anything seems possible. Speculative interests are mostly erratic — do not confuse wishful thinking with intuition.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): A certain amount of caution helps this long day become a pleasant adventure. Be gently firm with those who would coax you into unwise activities. Romantic interests are favored but not apt to be correctly understood by other people.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): You may have to reach far and make many moves, but support and encouragement are available to you. Fresh contacts open many doors for future explorations.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Mixing friends and money becomes complicated. Your life patterns are changing in complex ways, so that your emotional needs are not the same as before. Avoid pressing for long-range commitments you may not wish to keep!

Double Winners

Championship Bantams City's Top Travelling Ambassadors

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

A waitress in a London, Ont. restaurant smiled when she approached the tables occupied by hungry members of Belleville's Kinsmen bantam team.

"You're the fellows that were through here last year to play hockey, aren't you."

she beamed. That was last Saturday and the bantams were en route to the first game of their Ontario championship series in Leamington.

But that's the type of lasting impression the Kinsmen sprinkled generously around the province in winning all-Ontario minor hockey championships the past two years.

Final chapter in the two-year spree for nine of the 17 bantams came Sunday afternoon, when the Kinsmen retained their OMHA "AA" crown with a 7-2 win before 900 hometown supporters.

The nine, including captain John Mulvihill — a four-goal performer Sunday — will provide the nucleus for a midget all-star city representative next year. Other graduates include Brian Cousins (a two-goal contributor Sunday) and the Kinsmen's version of Rocket Richard — Danny Lapezette — whose 55th goal of the season came in his last bantam game. It would come as no surprise to see Lapezette and Mulvihill vaulting midget ranks next winter.

What meant as much to the all-star city representatives as the title was the fact they had a chance to win it at home. Last year, an opposing game loss in the Market St. rink forced the Kinsmen to win a pair of road games to oust Wallaceburg in the final.

A 6-5 overtime win after a 320-mile bus trip to Leamington last Saturday opened the door for a home ice finale for this season.

And what a season it was!

Losing only six of 45 games is pretty good skinny at any level. And the Kinsmen bounced Trenton, Lindsay, Orillia, and Leamington playoff opposition without suffering a defeat.

As important for Belleville as the provincial titles has been the bantams' reputation as goodwill ambassadors.

It's not uncommon for The Intelligencer to receive letters, as after the Kinsmen's triumphant weekend at the annual Cornwall invitational bantam tournament, advising that "your team is a credit to your community."

And coaching staff Earl Cousins, Fiori Geegan and Bob Ricketts marvel at the gentlemanly behavior on the road of a bunch of what should be boisterous, cocky youngsters. (They do, after all, have a right to be cocky.)

"Just last night," said one, "we threw a banquet for the boys in an area restaurant. The manager came up to me afterwards, and said he couldn't believe his eyes. The boys are a credit to their parents."

(For details on the championship game see Page 11.)

Moira Furniture Fire Loss Quarter Million

Ruins Probed Seeking Cause

By Harry Mulhall, Staff Reporter

Investigators today were back on the site of Saturday's Front Street fire, seeking the source of a blaze that may have caused as high as $250,000 damage.

Centre of the probe — headed by an inspector from the Ontario Fire Marshal's office — are the ruins of Moira Furniture store, core of a spectacular blaze that:

Left a family of five homeless; seriously damaged the adjacent Adams Furniture store; sent 30 nearby apartment dwellers scrambling to the street; closed the Belle Theatre; and caused smoke and water damage to Simpsons-Sears store.

Fire chief Leo Culhane today estimated total loss in the blaze between $200,000-$250,000.

The fire gutted the operations of one of the city's most colorful merchandisers — Edward Crandall, who has advertised for 15 years under the name of The Spider.

For the second day, fire marshals inspector Paul McEtcracher and local fire investigators were sifting the rubble — seeking a clue to the blaze that was roaring out of control minutes after Moira Furniture closed for the Easter weekend.

Mrs. Crandall, who locked the store at the regular 5.30 p.m. closing time Saturday, was baffled for an explanation to the blaze that took city firemen more than three hours to bring under control.

"It just happened all of a sudden," she said.

Mrs. Crandall was about to drive away from the rear of the building when Mrs. Eric Rolfe, a tenant with three children who rented a second-floor apartment in the building, came running up, shouting the building was on fire.

Mrs. Crandall dashed to the Front Street entrance to the store, inside "the fire seemed to be coming from all directions," and she was unable to get inside to phone firefighters.

The blaze already had been spotted by police and passersby and fire trucks began rolling up within minutes as a general alarm was sent out.

For the next four hours firemen pumped up to a million gallons of water as the stubborn blaze roared through the building, estimated by its owner — city realtor Frank Follwell — as one of the oldest in Belleville, and site across aities into the adjoined Adams Furniture premises.

The spread of the flames at first was masked from street view by an unbroken aluminum facade fronting the Adams building. Firemen punched gaps in the sheeting to pour water into the two lower floors of the second building, while heat ate holes through the metal.

As the threat mounted, tem-

Horton, Bower Retire

TORONTO (CP) — Two veteran Toronto Maple Leafs—defenceman Tim Horton and goalie John Bower—have announced their retirement from the National Hockey League club.

Their decision came as a direct result and only minutes after manager-coach Punch Imlach had been fired by Stafford Smythe, president of Maple Leafs Gardens.

"This is for me," said Horton in the club dressing room when informed by a reporter that Imlach had been fired with a year still remaining on his $36,000-a-year Toronto contract.

"I'll have to tell the front office," said a tearful Bower. "But you can say that this is my last game."

25 Sailors Missing

Mississippi Flows Fire As Ship Hits Oil Barge

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A head-on collision between a Formosan freighter and an oil barge set both ablaze, sent sheets of flame soaring into a heavily travelled bridge and covered a section of the Mississippi River with burning petroleum Sunday night.

The coast guard said 25 of the 31 members of crew of the freighter, the 7,301-ton Union Faith, were unaccounted for. Twenty-five were taken to hospitals.

The fire-swept ship sank about six hours after the collision while being towed away for beaching.

The oil barge broke in two and the two fiercely-burning sections floated downstream pursued by fire tugs. One section finally sank and the other ran aground. The barge carrying 9,000 barrels of crude oil was being pushed by the tug Warren Doucet.

The coast guard said all members of the tug's crew were accounted for.

Firemen hosed down wharves and ships in the area to prevent the spread of the blaze.

"It looked like the river was on fire," said Elysee Landry, a crew member on a dredger working near the scene.

The Union Faith, carrying a cargo of salt, cotton cloth, toys, handbags, household goods and footwear, was headed upstream.

The oil barge was one of three being pushed downstream by the tug.

Troops Patrol Prague

PRAGUE (Reuters) — The streets of Prague today were patrolled by Czechoslovak troops armed with machine-guns, who joined police to prevent further anti-Soviet outbursts.

The patrols were instituted by the Communist party leadership on orders from Moscow in the latest tough restriction following anti-Russian demonstration in various Czechoslovak cities 10 days ago.

Curbs have been imposed on the press since then—including the re-introduction of censors—and progressive journalists have been threatened with a purge.

Capital sources predicted an eventful week may lie ahead as the effects of the Soviet-ordered measures became more apparent to the populace, who flocked to the countryside during the Easter holiday.

Romania Faces Pressure

MOSCOW (AP) — Romanian Foreign Minister Corneliu Manescu arrived in Moscow today for a visit during which the Kremlin is expected to put new pressure on his country's independent Communist leaders.

Communist informants say the Kremlin is annoyed at what it regards as Romania's refusal to take sides officially in the Chinese-Russian dispute, its strong opposition to the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia, and the cordial relations it maintains with West Germany and Israel.

Svoboda Caters to Army

PRAGUE (AP) — President Ludvik Svooda was reported resisting Soviet pressure Saturday to dump Premier Oldrich Cernik's government and run Czechoslovakia himself under orders from Moscow.

The reports said pressure was increased by some Czechoslovak generals expressing distrust in the press leadership and volunteering to help set up a Soviet puppet state.

Svoboda's sudden trip to army bases Thursday and Friday were believed aimed at shoring up any cracks in military loyalty. These reports were being circulated in Prague in a mimeographed memorandum to provide information on the Soviet-Czechoslovak crisis no longer available in the censored news media.

The unofficial, unsigned memorandum was reported to contain information which some members of Czechoslovakia's ruling Communist Central Committee felt should be circulated.

Inquest Expected

Two Quinte Area Fatalities Darken Holiday Scene

An inquest is expected into the death of a Trenton-area man who died early Easter Sunday after he was thrown from his truck as it veered out of control on the Macdonald - Cartier Freeway near Belleville.

The death of 55 year-old Gordon Langstaff, RR5, Trenton, whose body was struck by several cars speeding by the accident, was one of two fatalities darkening the Quinte district holiday scene.

Near Coe Hill, the body of a 17-year-old boy was found in a ditch Sunday and police surmise he may have drowned in eight inches of water after an epileptic seizure.

Provincial police today were still seeking out details on the freeway mishap, which occurred shortly after midnight Sunday.

They say Mr. Langstaff was thrown from his light truck as it veered into the median, then swung back across the freeway onto the shoulder.

Mr. Langstaff was thrown on the pavement while his wife Rita and the couple's two-year-old granddaughter Susan Zebedee were tossed out on the shoulder. Police said yesterday it was difficult to say if the man was killed when he was thrown on the highway.

They say Mr. Langstaff's body was struck a number of times by passing automobiles and are still seeking the first car that may have hit him.

First passersby to stop were a man and woman from Kingston who spotted the body and the truck in the ditch.

The Zebedee child was running along the shoulder of the road as the couple stopped their car.

Mrs. Langstaff was reported in fair condition in Belleville General Hospital with head and back injuries. Her granddaughter suffered minor head injuries and was in satisfactory condition.

Police, fearing a hit-and-run fatal mishap, sent out an alert for any westbound automobile showing signs of being involved in the accident.

Later they said an inquest will be held in an endeavor to clear up details surrounding the incident.

Meantime, in North Hastings Bancroft OPP today were awaiting results of a post-mortem to determine the cause of death of Brian David Hulme, of Coe Hill.

The youth, described by police as prone to epileptic seizures, left his home noon Sunday for a walk along Highway 62.

About two hours later his body was spotted by a boy cycling along the highway — David Bird, 13, of Ajax.

The teenager was lying in a ditch filled with inches of water — caused by spring runoff.

Police say he may have suffered a seizure and toppled into the ditch.

In other mishaps, 18-year-old Franklin John Allen, of 17 Montrose Road, suffered back injuries late Sunday night when his car crashed on Sidney townships 5th concession. He was described in fair condition today in Belleville General.

Meantime, in Belleville, funeral services will be held for Mr. Langstaff at the George O'Brien Funeral resident tomorrow at 11 a.m.

Mr. Langstaff was born at Mountain View, a son of Mrs. Ethel Langstaff and the late Andrew Langstaff and has lived in the community all his life.

He was employed with the Northern Electric Company for the past 20 years and was a valued employee of that firm.

Surviving are his mother, his wife, the former Rita McDonnell, two sons, Clayton and Everett Langstaff, Toronto, one daughter Miss Georgina Langstaff, Belleville and seven children Doris, Teresa, Ruth, Georgina and James all at home.

Also surviving is one sister Mrs. Lee (Marjorie) Patiera, Richmond, N.Y. and three brothers, William Langstaff, Montreal, Reynolds, Chatham and Clifford of Belleville.

Interment will be in St. James' cemetery.

Kingston artist Fred Schonberger and his daughter Margaret went down on their knees to inspect art submitted for the Belleville Art Association's exhibit Thursday and Friday during the Quinte Arts Festival. Mr. Schonberger adjuticated the submissions at Corby Library Saturday afternoon.

Could Cost $264,000

New Youth Centre Discussed

Does Belleville need another drop-in centre structure suitable for year round recreation activities?

There is a group of dedicated local people calling themselves the Youth Centre Committee, who think that it does and its members are equally confident that such a structure could be built for something in the order of a quarter of a million dollars.

To discuss the possibility of such a structure a public meeting is called for Thursday evening at 8:30 p.m. at the recreation centre on Pinnacle Street. All interested citizens are invited to attend.

The idea of a second covered arena to augment present ice facilities at the Belleville arena came out of a meeting on Jan. 30 called primarily for discussion of artificial rinks.

The Jan. 30 meeting decided outdoor rinks would not be satisfactory and instead made as its objective a covered rink structure.

A seven member steering committee headed by Dick Hurst has since come up with figures indicating that a Butler or Armco type structure with a full sized 200 by 85 foot ice surface, artificial ice and seating for about 400 people can be built for an estimated $264,000.

Committee members include Mrs. Doreen Meagher as secretary, Thomas Cavanagh, Bill O'Sullivan, Fred Robinson, Jr., Richard Sharp, David Coate, co-chairman, and Richard Hurst, chairman.

Specifications for a proposed arena structure were reviewed at a subsequent meeting on Feb. 15 at which various fund raising ventures were discussed.

The committee has asked council to provide city owned land for the erection of the proposed structure and have had their request referred to the city recreation and parks committees.

Mr. Hurst says a grant of up to $10,000 would be available for construction of the building.

But he is confident that sufficient public support, plus monies raised through fund raising ventures, would go a long way toward getting the venture off the ground.

Mr. Hurst points out that in Kingston, a city with less than double Belleville's population, has several covered rinks of the type proposed for Belleville.

And he says all of them see almost continued use.

"Belleville definitely needs more ice time for its young hockey players as well as year round recreational facilities for all age groups," he says.

"We're now decided on our objective and hope for a good turnout on Thursday night," he said.

Festival Paintings Selected

Twenty-six paintings were chosen Saturday by Kingston artist Fred Schonberger for the Belleville Art Association's exhibit in the Quinte Arts Festival this week.

The show will be mounted Thursday and Friday in the Hotel Quinte's Pinnacle Room. It will be open to the public from 2 to 10 p.m. Thursday and 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Friday.

Mr. Schonberger commended the artists on the high calibre of their work and the variety of artistic expression displayed.

Instead of picking the best of the over 50 paintings displayed, the adjudicator judged the works according to regional standards. In this way, he claimed, viewers are assured to see art work up to the same standard as those exhibited in Toronto and Ottawa shows.

Hasty Pees To Petawawa

The Hasty Pees are off to Petawawa again this weekend.

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will be training at the camp on Saturday and Sunday, April 12 and 13.

Included in the exercises will be live firing at hidden balloon targets in the jungle lanes at the camp. The facet of the training will be for first year personnel in Rifle Coy.

For the second year Hasty Pees the training exercise will include 24-hour patrol cycles.

This procedure, named Exercise Valpi, is a night patrol operation in which the militiamen will carry live ammunition. The purpose of the patrol will be an exercise in capturing an important commanding officer.

IN MEMORIAM

BURRITT — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Thomas F. Burritt who passed away April 7, 1966.
Remembrance is a golden chain,
Time cannot break a link,
Love is the strength that binds it,
And memory keeps it bright.
—Lovingly remembered by Lena, Jean and Harold and families.

CARTER — In loving memory of our dear father, Alexander Carter, who passed away on April 7, 1966 and Dad on June 27, 1965.
Time goes on with many changes,
But our sorrow, memories and pain,
With your memory we will cherish,
Until we meet you again.
—Lovingly remembered by Lena, Jean and Harold and families.

FRASER — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Edward Fraser, who passed away April 7, 1965.
Today recalls the memory,
Of a loved one gone to rest,
And those who think of him today,
Are those who loved him best.
The flowers we lay upon his grave,
May wither and decay,
But the memory of him who has gone,
Will never pass away.
—Sadly missed by wife Muriel, Clark, Gay and Kay and families.

WILLIAMS — In loving memory of Howard E. Williams who passed away April 7, 1967.
Sweet memories are golden,
Love and thoughts are true,
—Sadly missed by wife Barbara and sons Brad and Howard Jr.

CHAPMAN — In loving memory of our dear father, Charles Chapman, who passed away April 7, 1962.
Dear Dad, you are not forgotten,
Though on earth you are no more,
Just in memory you do exist,
As you always were before.
—Lovingly remembered by Lena, Rina and Perry, Aletha and Bob.

Threat Spreads

Firemen axe through metal front of Adams Furniture store as Front Street fire spreads. At left of firefighters blaze already has made tell-tale scorching.

Blaze Roars Out of Control

Century-old brick work at the rear of Moira Furniture Store withstood the ravages of flames as fire gutted the interior in Saturday's fire. At the height of the blaze charred wooden eaves and trim showered down on firefighters manning hoses in parking lot at the rear.

Slogan Sadly True

Sales slogan — The Spider In Bad Shape — proves sadly true as fireman goes aloft to fight flames roaring through store. Store operator Edward Crandall lost his business in the blaze.

Moira Fire

Writing Was on Wall Early

"I can't see anything, just hear the crackle," yelled a Belleville fireman as he kicked in the door of Moira Furniture Saturday night.

Firemen, who had jumped off trucks and were unrolling hose lines before the trucks stopped, took up positions as a captain shouted queries to the first man at the Moira Furniture door.

From that moment on it was a losing battle.

Wailing sirens and rising smoke quickly drew a crowd of 3,500 persons to the scene. They jammed sidewalks on Front Street opposite the burning building, despite the fact the spectacular aspects of the fire were occurring at the rear.

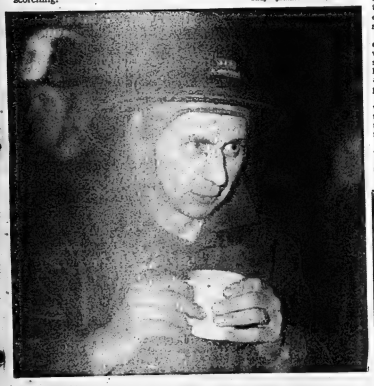
As the fireman at the top of the aerial ladder used his axe to chop through a third-storey window (the sign appropriately warned bystanders "the spider's in bad shape") flames and smoke billowed out and the writing was on the wall.

The engineer controlling the ladder quickly swung the gasping fireman at the top out of the choking smoke and men, on the ground at the ready, poured water into the upper storey.

Spectators got an unexpected drenching at one stage when a hose coupling on the street burst and the flailing hose end snaked its way back and forth before the water pressure was cut off.

At the front, at times smoke was so thick it covered pump trucks 50 feet away with only their flashing lights visible through the smog.

At the rear, the most spectacular pyrotechnics were taking place. In the courtyard between Moira Furniture and Adams Furniture a four-man team of firemen crouched on the ground as the heat rolled out in waves, and 50-foot tongues of flame seemed to shoot out vertically as if in search of victims.



At the rear of the building another four-man team sprayed water almost without effect. At a warning roar, they jumped back as the building wall blew out, leaving one fireman's hat under the rubble as he was pushed out of the way of falling bricks by his mates.

Once the back of the building was a shell, teams from the rear and the front concentrated on the three-storey section making up the front of Moira Furniture. With a half a dozen hoses in use, water poured out of the open doors on to Front Street in a six-inch stream.

In only 75 minutes Moira Furniture was a burning pile of rubble. But it was enough to give the fire time to eat its way through the wall into Adams Furniture.

Firemen attacked the new confrontation by chopping holes through the metal false front. "We'd better hope the next firewall holds," said one officer referring to the wall between Adams and Simpson-Sears.

It did, and firemen finally contained the blaze in the Adams store.

That Hits the Spot

Fireman Robert Armitage paused during the height of Saturday night's fire for a warming cup of soup prepared by Salvation Army personnel in the Fire Department's emergency van.

Pictures And Stories By Harry Mulhall And Lenny Williamson

Damage Estimated at $250,000

ants in 12 apartments over the nearby Simpsons-Sears store hurriedly moved into the street, leaving all household possessions behind.

Smoke seeped through the premises and into the first floor store area while water poured into the Simpsons-Sears basement.

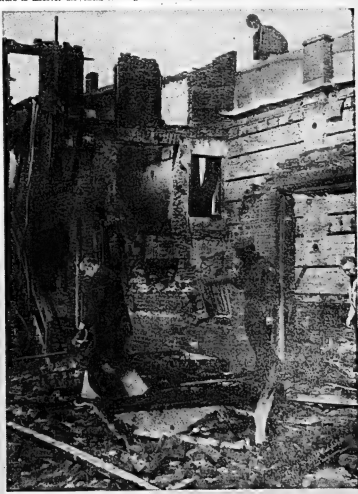
However, firemen, surrounding the stubborn blaze, from aerial ladders and nearby roofs, held the threat to the two furniture stores.

A heavy firewall stopped the fire short at the Belle Theatre, adjoining Moira Furniture. However, smoke damage was caused the inside of the theatre-managed by Mrs. Stella Culhane, the fire chief's wife.

A haze filtered through the entire downtown as the fire reached its height, pumping out mushrooms of black smoke.

Hundreds of spectators lined the opposite Front Street sidewalk as the fire continued and police eventually roped off the area.

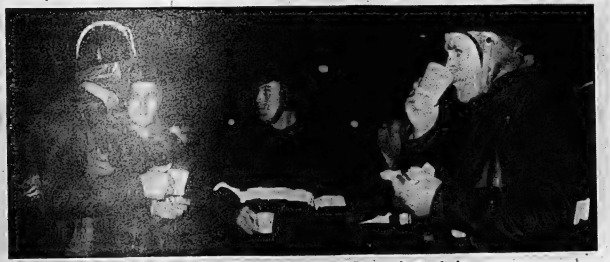
At the height of the blaze an aerial ladder and crew were rushed from Trenton to reinforce city firefighters if needed.



By 9 p.m. the fire was under control and insurance adjusters were moving in to assess the loss on the affected strip.

Tenants began trickling back to apartments above Simpsons-Sears to discover the extent of smoke damage to their homes.

Sunday morning Insp. McKeracher, now resident in Belleville, moved onto the site early as the rubble cooled.



The gutted building which housed Moira Furniture, besides being one of the longest-standing units on the city's main street, has a wider claim on history.

Once known as the St. Charles building, in earlier years it housed an omnibus works which turned out the first street cars used in Toronto, says owner Frank Falwell.

Seeking the Cause

Daylight shows extent of damage on Moira Furniture site and as rubble cools investigators move in to seek cause of costly blaze. Probe today was continuing under fire marshal's inspector Paul McKerracher (centre.)

Defence Policy

The effect of the Government's long-awaited defence review is that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) is being relegated to third place in Canada's scale of defence priorities.

According to Prime Minister Trudeau's statement, NATO now will play second fiddle to "Canadian sovereignty," and to NORAD (North American Defence). This would be all very well if there were any serious risk of a land attack on our territory.

There is no such threat. A missile attack . . . yes, that is always a possibility — by Russia or China — but a conventional land war, no. As one diplomat in Ottawa said with regard to the defence of our sovereignty: "Against whom and with what?"

That being so, any suggestion of a cut-back in the strength of our forces in Europe must be viewed with misgiving. Europe may not be the powderkeg it once was, nevertheless NATO is all that stands between the West and the threat of an overwhelming conventional attack by the Soviet Union. If the United States and the other NATO members thought as Canada, then Russia — militarily strong as it now is — would have an even greater advantage in any European land conflict.

Mr. Trudeau's statement was a vague, lack-lustre effort. It reflected divisions among the cabinet itself — and yet, after so many months of study, Canadians could have been offered something more specific on the country's defence policy. While there is to be no precipitate withdrawal from Europe there is to be a phased reduction of our forces there. We hope it will not reach the point, ultimately, that the U.S. and other NATO members will be left carrying the major burden of Western defence in Europe — for it is in Europe that Canada can make its best contribution to the overall defence of the Western world.

Educational Budget

The establishment of county education boards was a move heralded by the authorities as one that, ideally, would provide the best education for the most students at the least cost.

In practice it does not seem to be working out that way. Several counties have complained that a new provincial grants formula has forced big increases in local education levies.

A statement by Hastings County Education director Eric Runacres indicates there is no concern locally. "We have marginal problems in some Hastings county communities, but no dramatic differences such as some counties are experiencing," he has been quoted as saying.

The Hastings situation is encouraging, but not elsewhere. T. E. Schultz, business superintendent for the Simcoe county board put it this way: "We're in a very unfavorable position. The provincial grants have simply not kept pace with the increase in cost."

Ironically, the new provincial grants formula is said to be the result of drastic cutbacks in spending ordered by the provincial treasury department.

Clearly the department is going to have to look elsewhere if it wants to reduce costs. They might begin by building schools that are less elaborate, and they might trim a few salaries. Both these spheres of education, not to mention the cost of equipment, account for millions of dollars.

Costly Studies

What price a Royal Commission? There have been plenty of these in Canada and they have cost the taxpayer a pretty penny.

The Royal Commission on the Status of Women affords an example. Since this body was established about two years ago it has spent just over $1,000,000. And it will cost a lot more before it is finished.

Its nation-wide hearings long since concluded, the Commission presumably is now mulling over its findings. Rome, of course, was not built in a day and the status of women, while certainly in a state of flux, will not change overnight.

If the Commission's findings do result in a better deal for women in Canada, if it enables them to make a greater contribution to the welfare of this country, it will have been money well spent. But first we must await the report, then it goes before Parliament — and well, who knows, the Government might just act on some of its recommendations.

U.S. and Allies No Closer to a Decision in Vietnam

By PETER ARNETT

TAY NINH, South Vietnam (AP)—Optimism about the war reflected at United States headquarters in Saigon earlier this year has been replaced by constraint. American pacification officials no longer mention the confident forecasts made in February, that 90 per cent of South Vietnam's population would be under government control and protection by year's end.

As has happened often in the past, hopes have proved premature that the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces were so weakened and disarrayed that they had lost the drive for any real fight.

Many realities of the war seem as valid now as they did in earlier years.

One is that there is no easy way to win.

The B-52 bombers that send explosives crashing into the jungles have scored many successes, officers say, but they have not destroyed the determined Viet Cong and North Vietnamese from frequently bursting upon combined forces bases.

Sophisticated radar and electronic tracking devices on aircraft and vehicles were seen as another technique of reducing the troops' workload. But none of this apparatus located two battalion-sized Viet Cong ambushes laid in daylight last week along busy highways in this area 50 miles northwest of Saigon.

The South Vietnamese army appears nowhere near taking over the workload from the Americans. In three sectors surveyed last week, American troopers were earmarked to take over areas currently defended by the South Vietnamese army, should the pressure increase to a dangerous level.

Hopes that people in outlying villages recently armed by the Saigon government would resist the Viet Cong have not fully materialized. Viet Cong forces have walked through allegedly pacified villages west and south of Saigon without a shot being fired by the defenders.

Outer-ring defences around many cities have not functioned.

A hamlet outside Bac Lieu city in the Mekong Delta was found to be harboring Viet Cong forces at night. They regularly received intelligence from villagers visiting the nearby city market.

Another reality is that combined forces troops often cannot grasp the initiative from the Viet Cong. Usually only the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese are found only when they want to be found.

Deficiency in knowledge of the local scene is compensated by the vast firepower U.S. forces can summon at any given moment from artillery and airpower. In the final analysis, this immense firepower generally saves the day. But firepower can be used successfully only against a visible enemy.

This gap in knowledge has not been bridged by the South Vietnamese military who often give a sober assessment of the war's progress.

For example, South Vietnamese airborne officers at Tay Ninh characterize the weeks of vicious fighting in the sector as a boxing match.

"Up here the Communists are our equals," said a captain. "They come across the Cambodian border; we leave our base camp. We spar, then we fight for a while, then we retreat to our corners for a minute's break. Then it's out and at it, again."

Senate Will Study Mass Media

Vancouver Sun

The idea underlying the Senate's decision to name a committee to inquire into Canada's mass media has the ring of potential usefulness. As described by Senator Keith Davey, its author, the purpose is to hold "an objective, detached and dispassionate study" of the ownership and control of the press, television, radio and magazines of the country.

The public, because of its rights to be informed, has a lively and legitimate interest in this whole broad spectrum of publication by print and electronics, the various outlets should have nothing to hide, subject to the protection of their competitive positions.

It would be valuable to know if there are any abuses inevitable to multiple ownership with in the range of these facilities; and what proof might be adduced that other and better arrangements are possible.

As for the run of the press of Canada, to the best of our knowledge it is free, independent and honest, and intends to stay that way. Its records are available and its performance is open to daily scrutiny and judgment by its readers. Those who hold contrary or adverse views have every right to be heard by the committee within the bounds of reasonable and fair comment, and to have their substantiated allegations answered.

The committee, of course, will set its own ground rules and procedures. Presumably it will foresee the possible pitfalls contained in its second term of reference: "To examine and report upon the extent and nature of the media's impact and influence on the Canadian public."

Unless great care is taken, the committee is likely to find extreme difficulty in confining this aspect of its duties to the "objective" standard mentioned by Sen. Davey.

Once started into the labyrinths of mass psychology, the hearings could degenerate into a sort of Freudian witchhunt. Psychology is a highly subjective discipline and its practitioners, professional and amateur, are often more notable for the violence of their disagreements than their mutual reinforcement.

The closer it sticks to facts, the more worthwhile the committee's work is likely to be.

Farm Mechanization

Owen Sound Sun-Times

Farm output has increased 50 per cent in the last two decades despite the fact that the number of agricultural workers has decreased substantially. This is due largely to improved type of equipment rather than to more machinery of the same old kind. The amount of farm equipment per unit has not increased substantially in the past 40 years.

New types of equipment have made it possible to farm more land. This has resulted in farms increasing in size. A trend expected to continue. How far will it go? One estimate is that survival test that separates farms into two size groups, one increasing, the other declining.

The dividing line for Canada as a whole is estimated at 560 acres, and 80 per cent of all farms in Canada and nearly half of the country's total farm acreage are below that level. The level in Ontario is estimated at 240 acres.

Growth in the size and complexity of farm machinery and the accelerating rate of change has made farm decision-making more difficult and the whole farming operation riskier. Farmers need more information on what equipment is available and advice on what kind of equipment to buy to meet their particular needs.

As yet the government has done nothing, and the manufacturers have done little to supply this information.

In Dr. Barber's inquiries, he was appalled at the small amount of farm machinery research being conducted in Canada.

Labor-Relations Study

Peterborough Examiner

A federal task force has made a rambling attempt to democratize labor - management relations in Canada. In doing so it has achieved little except to illustrate and compound the fact that the barbaric system of confrontation on which the economy depends is inevitable. It even gives it a touch of dignity by suggesting that strikes and lockouts are an indispensable part of the Canadian industrial relations system and are likely to remain so in the present socio-economic - political nature of the country.

Hamilton Spectator

Woods report recommendations set out a ponderous array of practical and theoretical solutions to Canadian labor-management relations problems. Proposals of the task force would directly affect only the relatively small part of the work force under federal jurisdiction, but their implications will extend into provincial realms, with ultimate impact on every Canadian.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Politician Thomas D'Arcy McGee, one of the most brilliant orators in Canadian parliamentary history, was assassinated in Ottawa 101 years ago today—in 1868—by a member of the Irish-extremist Fenian Brotherhood. The Irish-born McGee served as agriculture minister during the Tache-Macdonald administration. McGee supported the Imperial connection and denounced the Irish extremists. He was shot down in downtown Ottawa just after he had made a speech in Parliament.

1847—Henry Ford died.

1953—The UN General Assembly approved Dag Hammarskjold as secretary general.

People Need A Word Of Good Cheer

After church on Sundays I usually drop over to the Party Palace on Elgin Street to see my friend Louis. If you go in there with a long face, have a few words with Louis and come out a different person. I took quite so bad: the countryside never was rich.

The "peoples' farms" are said to be inefficient and unpopular (though one of the foreign agricultural experts I spoke to was sure that their size would make the policy pay off eventually) and production of sugar, which accounts for over 10 per cent of Cuba's exports, is still thought to be running below the pre-revolutionary level.

The closer it sticks to facts, the more worthwhile the committee's work is likely to be.

The Good and the Bad

Cuba—Ten Years After the Revolution

Michael Frayn in

The Observer, London

No representation — but, then no taxation. No bars — but then no drunks.

No news, no institutions to protect the rights of the individual, nothing in the shops. Often no water in the pipes, occasionally no electricity in the wires. "No liberalism whatsoever! No softening whatsoever!" (Castro). No hope of an easier life for at least 10 years yet.

But then, no beggars, no barefoot children. No prostitution, no destitution, no racial discrimination. And so far, no real terror.

The tenth anniversary of the Revolution, and by common consent the end of the hardest year yet. Each year things have been just about to improve; and each year they have got worse.

Almost everything you can buy is rationed, and almost everything has to be queued for. There is a feeling of greyness and weariness, as if the nation had been at war for 10 years.

Havana is the saddest sight—shabby, blank, full of nothingness. The Revolutionary Offensive" last year put the remaining small shopkeepers out of business, leaving boarded-up fronts down every street.

The state-owned shops that remain have little to sell. Many of them have nothing at all. You go into some large department store that was once full of haberdashery and notions, and it's like a scene out of a symbolist film — sales staff standing behind row upon row of show cases that contain nothing but air.

A lot of the famous nightclubs survived until last year, when they, too, were closed by the Revolutionary Offensive. The bars went at the same time. Street-corner cafes remain open to sell cane-juice, or a coke-type drink.

Queues form at these places when word gets around that coffee may be made. Queues form everywhere as soon as some commodity is rumored to have come into stock.

But then sometimes in the evening, when the brilliant orange tropical sunsets silhouetted the towers and royal palms of Vedado, and the warm twilight hid the shabbiness, my dubious feelings about the place would come to seem grotesque.

The streets would fill up with sharply dressed young couples strolling and decorously courting, laughing in the dark. You could walk round and feel easy, reasonably certain that you wouldn't be robbed or stabbed, or clobbed by the police.

All right, there were shortages and queues. But had I, in point of fact, seen anyone who had actually died or fled and decently dressed — one single, solitary person? And wasn't that astonishing in one of the world's less-developed countries?

In fact, had I ever been in any country before, rich or poor where I could say that? Not America, certainly — not Russia — not Britain.

Anyway, once you get outside Havana things look quite so bad: the countryside never was rich.

The "peoples' farms" are said to be inefficient and unpopular (though one of the foreign agricultural experts I spoke to was sure that their size would make the policy pay off eventually) and production of sugar, which accounts for over 10 per cent of Cuba's exports, is still thought to be running below the pre-revolutionary level.

Quality Needs A Boost

Windsor Star

The passing of quality is one of the sad trends of modern times. Where men and women took pride in turning out goods of high quality, now they just turn out anything that will pass.

The recall of so many cars by the auto industry is just one of the examples of the lack of pride in workmanship. Where cars used to be built to stand the gaff, now the buyer is never quite sure how many bolts and nuts may be missing.

This loss of quality is not confined to the auto industry. It is found everywhere. It is evidenced by failure to give service, like cleaning windshields when buying gasoline, having clean linen on restaurant tables, clerks leaning against the wall when customers are charging at the counters, general lack of courtesy in business.

People do not care any more. Where they used to give that extra effort to give quality, now they let it go by.

It is sad, but only too true.

Rush of water draws canoeists toward foaming waters of Lazier's dam rapids in Easter Sunday venture by Loyalist College students. Challenge of flood-swollen river at its most dangerous point in city drew hundreds of spectators. Two of seven crews completed Corbyville - Victoria Park river run.

Hundreds of People Turn Out to Watch Students Paddle Canoes Down Moira

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

They doubted it could be done — but they turned out in hundreds to see it happen.

In fact, so many doubters lined the Moira River to see a daring band of canoeists challenge the flood swollen Lazier-dam rapids Easter Sunday, they caused a traffic tie-up.

Focus of the doubts, some fear and — finally — applause was a handful of Loyalist College students who went through with their announced dramatic intention to tackle the rapids.

The result was a dramatic highlight of the Easter holiday in the Quinte district.

The Loyalist band launched their bid upriver from Corbyville, aiming to finish at the river mouth by Victoria Park.

Two canoes made it all the way — the rest coming to grief in the furious rush of water around the Lazier breakwater.

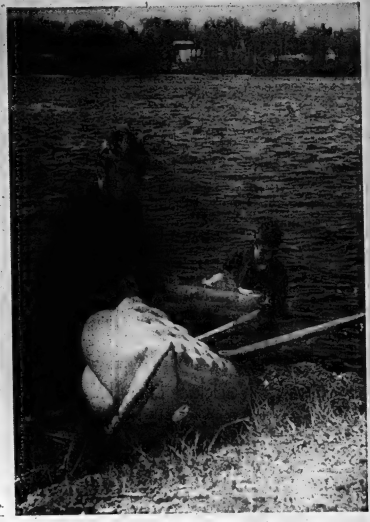
But, if the canoeists were aiming for excitement, all of them hit the target — for themselves and the spectators.

Crowds began to form along the river bank an hour before the first of the challengers appeared. From the tone of general comment, most of them had come to doubt. Some even questioned the safety of the adventure.

But any fears were dispelled as the first of the challengers appeared around the river bend above the foaming rapids. They swept into the tow— and upset. There was an anxious seconds - long wait. Then their heads bobbed above swirl and the pair swept down into the river and calmer water.

After that, the crowds relaxed. Upsets or no, it was apparent that the safety gear worn by the canoeists provided against dire emergency.

Suspense then turned to cheers as six of the seven canoes launched plunged through the rapids in succession — most of the challengers being dumped, all of them roundly ducked by the roaring water.



Making it all the way were students Terry Murphy, Harold Elliott and Fred Robinson and Loyalist instructor Mike Barrett.

Three hours later the event had an anti-climax — and caused another traffic slowdown.

Student Barry Dietenbek and Charles Benson returned with a group of the voyageurs to recover canoes and equipment snarled in trees at College Street bridge.

Trying to free the craft they became stranded in the river. They were rescued by an aerial ladder despatched by the city fire department.

They were taken to Belleville General Hospital for a cautionary checkup.

They Made It!

Adventure for Loyalist canoeists ended at mouth of Moira River and Victoria Park. But only two crews made it all the way — among them Terry Murphy (front) and Fred Robinson, coming ashore at end of dramatic voyage.

Budget Increase Expected

PICTON (Staff) — Taxes in the county are in rough shape according to the board of education administrator in Prince Edward. "As it stands now our tax picture is very desperate," said administrator Ernest Shortt this morning.

He was describing the spiralling cost of education in Prince Edward County as compared with the slow rising grants.

Mr. Shortt and several other members of the school board went to Toronto last week to see what could be done about the tax situation.

He said that department of education officials went over the board's figures — and found everything in order with no place to further cut down expenses.

Mr. Shortt said that the only way to alleviate the situation was to raise the grants "because our budget is cut to the bone now."

According to Mr. Shortt the officials said that everything is at a standstill until the Ontario government completes its study of the rising costs of education.

Canoe Course Planned

A course in canoeing will be offered by the Belleville YMCA beginning April 12 at 3:30 p.m.

It will cover basic canoeing skills with special emphasis on swimming, water safety, canoe use and care.

"At the conclusion of the course a trip is planned to the Kawartha Lakes region. Attendance at the canoe course is a prerequisite for new people who have not participated in previous "Y" canoe trips," said program director Glen Mastburtse who will be the instructor for the course.

Mill Opens July 5

Saturday, July 5, has been confirmed as the date for the official opening of the old O'Hara homestead and museum three miles northwest of Madoc.

For the past decade or so the old O'Hara Mill with its century old upright "muley" saw has seen increasing popularity both as a historical site and recreation area and with the opening of the old homestead will have even greater attraction.

The old homestead, restored to the 1800 era and furnished with original O'Hara household items, attracted much interest last year when it was open unofficially on weekends.

Since then more work has been done to restore the homestead to the way it appeared a century ago.

In addition to the old mill and homestead, the O'Hara museum complex includes a century old log school moved from Elzevir township and farm equipment used in the days prior to mechanization.

To make the O'Hara Mill area more attractive as a recreational area additional picnic tables and playground equipment is being provided.

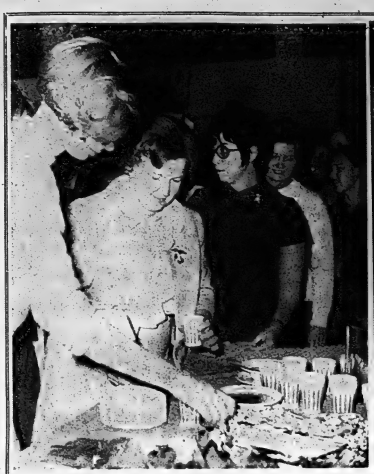
Irish Fashion Fair Held in Toronto

DUBLIN (CP) — Ireland showed off the cream of her fall fashions at a weekend preview of the annual Irish export fashion fair, just after a group of her leading designers hit Toronto for the first time on an export-boosting tour of North America.

Among Dublin's top ready-to-wear designers showing at Toronto last week was Jimmy Hourihan, whose white wool coats, their masterly cut set off by raising seaming, were a hit with the 60 international fashion writers at Friday's preview.

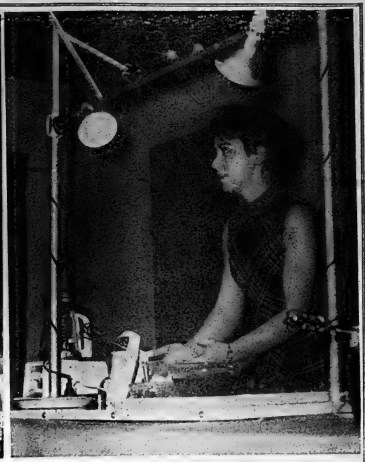
David Henry, another well-known Irish designer who showed in Toronto, also gained applause for his violet-colored tweed suits with swinging, no-pleated skirts.

Some 50 firms are taking part in this year's fair which opens to international buyers March 24.



Since the annual fair is a showcase for native materials and native designs, tweeds of all kinds inevitably take pride of place.

But each year seen less of an Irish folksy image to the clothes and this year the designers almost all featured a tunic-and-trousers outfit favored by Paris, London and New York.



One exclusively Irish touch was seen in evening dresses of richly-colored wool with crocheted sleeves.

The accent was on cut and color, with each group of clothes co-ordinated in one or two striking shades. Most popular was a military scarlet.

Some of the casual outfits might have been designed for a Canadian winter, such as a group of short scarlet skirts worn with hooded, white sweaters and matching ribbed white tights.

Miss Woods Demonstrates

International Cooking Course Held in YMCA Auditorium

By LINDA GELDART

For dinner tonight, what will it be? A main course of Chinese Chicken and almonds, Italian-style spaghetti, or may-be a real Hawaiian luau. And for dessert — chocolate mousse?

Impossible, you say?

It all takes too much time, effort and energy — and besides that, it is kind of complicated, just for supper.

But if you sat through one of the four sessions of the International Cooking Course, held in the YMCA auditorium, you would come to the realization that it isn't that difficult after all.

The four sessions, held March 17, 24, 31 and April 9, skillfully headed by Ontario Hydro's Home Economist, Miss Barbara Woods, demonstrated how easy a woman's cooking day can be.

Each session, the dishes of a different country are demonstrated. Chinese, French, Italian and even Hawaiian recipes each have their turn.

Attendance has been quite good, Miss Woods remarked, with about 20 to 25 women attending each "lesson".

"The recipes I use are Ontario Hydro recipes, naturally", Miss Woods admitted, "and these have all been pretested."

Because of the limited facilities, Miss Woods explained she had to choose her recipes carefully, due to the fact that she was mainly using portable appliances.

"I try to pick a variety of dishes, appetizers, main course and dessert, with Canadian foods readily available and easy to purchase," she added.

This reporter attended on French cuisine night, and got the opportunity to sample such rarities as chocolate mousse and rich creme de menthe shake.

It was all part of the show, which Miss Woods carried off with true flair.

Asked if all her shows came off as well, Miss Woods indicated that they usually do. "When you are up there, it just comes naturally. If you have a failure, you know how to cover it up", she added with a smile.

After the demonstration, the long line-ups indicated that the audience showed their appreciation in the best way possible — they sampled the goods — and came back for seconds.

The sessions are part of the YMCA's "learning for living" series, of informal education.

Other courses composing the series are things like swimming, sewing, life saving and so on.

There are no educational requirements, exams or credits involved. The whole purpose behind the program is to provide interesting activities to stimulate thought, fellowship and discussion among today's adults.

Ivanhoe Couple Mark 50 Years Wedded Life

IVANHOE — Mr. and Mrs. Sam Twiddy were at home to their many friends, neighbors and relatives recently to celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Twiddy is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burkitt of Madoc, and Mr. Twiddy was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Twiddy of Crookston.

Neighbors presented the couple with gifts from their family.

Mr. and Mrs. Twiddy were married 50 years ago in the bride's home by Rev. R. J. Tucker of the United Church. They were attended by the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Mabel Orr of Port Arthur, and the bride's cousin, Chris Burkitt, now deceased.

They resided with the bridegroom's grandfather for two years, after which time they moved to their present home.

During the afternoon, congratulations were received from the Hon. Robert Stanfield, leader of the Opposition; Lee Grills, M.P. and the Women's Liberal Association of Belleville.

Mrs. Clarke Rollins, on behalf of Clarke L. Rollins, M.P.P., presented a scroll from the Hon. John Robarts, Premier of Ontario.

Mr. and Mrs. Twiddy are Conservatives, and belong to the United Church. They now attend St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church nearby.

Mr. Twiddy has belonged to the L.O.L. for over 50 years, and Mrs. Twiddy belongs to the W.M.S. of the Presbyterian Church.

They have a family of three children, Phyllis, Mrs. Arnold Creasor, of Trenterville, Ont.; Denis, of Bancroft; Kendall of Deseronto, and Ross, who lives nearby. They have six grandchildren.

Among the many visitors who called were Mrs. Holmes, of Belleville, the Grand Mistress of the L.O.B.A. for Eastern Ontario, and a friend, Mrs. Bertrand, daughter of the late Rev. R. J. Everson.

The wedding cake was made by their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Ross Twiddy.

Refreshments were later served. Guests were received by the couple's daughters, and their son.

Algae and Sawdust Predicted As Foods for the Year 2000

VANCOUVER (CP) — By the year 2000, says food expert Elmer T. Banting, you may be telling your hostess her algae soup is delicious and the sawdust pudding superb.

Elmer T. Banting, general manager of the Canadian Food Processers Association, made the prediction while outlining achievements in nutrition and food technology during a recent luncheon meeting of the Vancouver Board of Trade.

He said the Japanese have developed a substantial algae industry.

"Algae are by far the most efficient converters of solar energy into foods."

Proper understanding of foods and food value would be necessary politically and economic fact in future years.

"The modern housewife has become aware of the fact she can no longer compete with pre-prepared products," said Mr. Banting. "This is especially true if she puts any value on her time. Let's face it, the modern housewife can think of many things she would rather do than peel potatoes or slice carrots."

He said extensive use would be made in future years of fungus, moulds and yeasts to produce protein. This would help meet the food requirements of the world's rapidly expanding population.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

(MELROSE WI)

The March meeting of Melrose WI was held recently at the home of the secretary, Mrs. Raymond Clarke.

A business period followed the opening exercises. A majority of members voted in favor of a "Food Forum" to be held later in the year.

An acceptance to the offer to cater for an anniversary had been received. Proceeds from the last two euchres amounted to $19.46.

Mrs. George Blatherwick donated prizes for the one for which she was hostess. Instead of canvassing for the Cancer Fund a donation of $25.00 was made.

A nomination committee was appointed consisting of District Director, Mrs. Mac Lazier, Mrs. J. Summers and Mrs. J. MacGregor.

A resolution was presented by the convener of resolutions, Mrs. A. Long. This was concerned with the quality and cost of nylons. Improved quality would mean longer life, thereby decreasing the expense. This resolution was adopted and will be presented at the District Annual for rejection or approval by the District.

The program for the District Annual to be held at Roslin, May 9, was passed around for each one to observe the plans that had been made. The "Tweedsmuir Tea" to be held at Gilead Hall on the 19th was announced by the District Director.

Attention was called to visiting dates open to Melrose WI at Hastings Manor. Mrs. J. McLaren reported she had been responsible for birthday cards, sent to the patients there, during the month of January.

Mrs. L. McLaren and Mrs. J. McLaren offered to act as hostesses for the coming euchre on the 3rd.

Mrs. J. McLaren, health convener, with her assistants, Mrs. Clare Weese and Mrs. C. Milligan had charge of the program.

Mrs. Milligan read a spring poem. Mrs. McLaren had prepared a paper on "The Miracle of Surgical Transplants" and several members assisted in presenting articles on transplants.

To conclude the program, Mrs. Weese used her projector and screen to show films on Safety — Man, Machinery and Fire.

Mrs. Clarke and the lunch committee served refreshments.

Clergy Dialogue Group Plans Workshop

At the recent meeting of the Clergy Dialogue Group of the Frankford and District Churches, plans were outlined for a Communications Workshop to be held in Frankford United Church, April 28th.

The Workshop will be conducted by Mr. Roy Bonisteel, host of the CBC/TV production, "Man Alive."

Mr. Bonisteel will conduct the morning workship in Frankford United Church. The Workshop will begin at 2.00 p.m.

The Workshop will be in the form of instruction, dialogue, observation, and will be geared to the use of modern communication methods in all departments of the church life. All churches of the area are invited to send as many delegates to the Workshop as they wish.

Mr. Bonisteel is an authority in the field of Communications in the church, having a history which is rooted in the Quinte district, but covers most of Canada on an interdenominational level.

Mr. Bonisteel was a reporter for the Belleville Ontario Intelligencer, the Trenton Courier-Advocate and special correspondent to the Toronto Star until, in 1951, he joined the staff of Radio Station CJBQ Belleville as Newscaster.

In 1953 he became staff announcer at CKTB St. Catharines.

During his 12 years at CKTB, he maintained his interest in journalism. He wrote a weekly radio column in the St. Catharines Standard, "Radio with Roy," reviewed stage plays for the Toronto Globe and Mail and authored several magazine articles on modern agriculture.

During this time he became a free lance producer for the United Church, one assignment being the production of "Checkpoint" radio programs for the Anglican and United Church Broadcasting departments in Toronto, and served as industry advisor to the churches in workshops across the country.

When the United Church's Regional Director of Broadcasting for British Columbia resigned, he was asked to take the post, review the whole TV-radio operation and propose such changes as seemed necessary to up-date its strategy and to make its content more relevant to today's audiences.

Upon acceptance of the B.C. position, he immediately revamped the five hours of weekly programming on CKWX Vancouver to make it Anglican, Roman Catholic and United. He removed the traditional 11 a.m. church service broadcast and began the popular "God-Talk" open line show on CKWX.

Concern for ecumenical broadcasting, in the interest of B.C. resulted in the half hour news magazine program "Dateline" featured on 29 B.C. stations.

In August 1967, Roy was appointed as national co-ordinator of radio for the Anglican, Roman Catholic and United Churches in Canada.

He is charged with the responsibility of co-ordinating the work of the three media offices in Toronto and maintaining and encouraging ecumenical broadcasting in the regions. He is the first person ever appointed jointly by these three churches.

Since Oct. 1967, he has also been the host of the half hour CBC national network television show "Man-Alive" — a new venture in public affairs programming dealing with the field of religions — that is enjoying a high and appreciative viewing audience each week in Canada.

Roy is married to a former radio copy-writer, Donna, and has three children: Mandy, Steven and Lesly.

HILLCREST SCHOOL CARD PARTY

Hillcrest Home and School sponsored a euchre recently in the Hillcrest Community Centre for its annual fund raising project.

The evening was a success with approximately 20 tables in play. Women's high went to Mrs. Pat Deline and Mrs. Shirley Vos winning high playing on a man's ticket.

Two draws and several door prizes were drawn which were made possible by donations from merchants and the teachers of Hillcrest School.

Baking goods were sold following the euchre.

A tasty lunch was served by the social committee to conclude the evening.

HIPPY?

So what's a girl to do if she's "hippy"? Use her Relax-A-cizer to reduce the size of the hip and thigh area, that's what!

NO WORK! NO WEIGHT LOSS!

Relax-A-cizer is the modern way. You use it while you rest at home! (No weight-loss!)

It's a fact! Many adult women lack good muscle tone because they don't get enough exercise. Relax-A-cizer gives effortless, concentrated exercise to such figure areas as hips, waistlines, thighs and abdomens. Regular use causes these areas to reduce in size measurably to the extent these muscles lack tone because of insufficient exercise. And the less the muscle tone, the greater the degree of size reduction.

Ann Landers

Wonderful Life Enjoyed by Blind Couple

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I cannot truthfully say I read the letter signed "A Friend's Friend." It was read to me by Bill Fitzgerald, a colleague in the Michigan House of Representatives. I am blind.

ANN LANDERS

I was interested in the letter, as Bill knew I would be, because it concerned a mother whose son had decided to marry a blind girl. My question was raised - - - "What if they have children!"

My wife Jennie, who is also blind, married me 27 years ago. (We met in Michigan's School for the Blind in Lansing.) Jennie and I had ten children - - - every one of them with perfect vision and in excellent health. Our life together has been wonderful. Our oldest child is 24. Our youngest is 7. We have two grandchildren.

In my 15 years as an elected member of the Michigan State House of Representatives, I've made countless trips from Lansing to Detroit. I used to travel with my Seeing-Eye dog. I now travel alone.

I hope "Friend's Friend" sees this and stops worrying about what blind people can't do. — ROBERT D. MAHONEY, Sixth District.

* * *

DEAR ROBERT MAHONEY: Thank you for an inspiring letter. And thank you, too, for the photograph of your family. The girls are lovely! The boys are handsome. You and Mrs. Mahoney have a great deal to be proud of.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a boy, 18, a freshman in college. I never cut classes, I take good notes, and I do a considerable amount of outside study. Yet my grades are no better than average. I know kids who cut like crazy, sleep during lectures, have never owned a notebook, and their grades are consistently better than mine.

Today I got back a psychology exam. I made a 78. The kid next to me got a 99. When I asked him if he studied for the exam, he said, "Of course not. I faked it." I'm ready to start "faking it" and see what happens. I bet I'll be on probation before you can say "Wilhelm Wundt."

What's the secret of making good grades beside pure study? Is there some secret to it. Thanks for any help you can give me. — BEGGING FOR A C.

DEAR BEG: First accept the fact that "all men are created equal" doesn't apply to educational aptitude. Some students soak up information like a blotter and retain nearly all of it. Others must work their heads to the bone in order to comprehend half of what they read and hear and then they forget three fourths of that within six hours.

If you slave as hard as you claim and make only average grades, my advice is to keep plugging. You will form work habits which will prove far more valuable than a flashy grade point average.

I also suggest you have a talk with your professors and ask them why you must knock yourself out to get mediocre grades. You might pick up some useful clues.

Successful Living

Adults Must Never Stop Learning

By DORIS CLARK

It's well-nigh frightening to observe how educated our schoolboys are getting. Mom and Dad exchange glances and wonder about all their new knowledge.

Then, if they can, they make an effort to keep up. Many a baffled parent has enrolled in a night class to learn about the New Math, or psychometry, or data processing, largely in self-defense.

But with or without challenging progeny, it's good insurance towards mental health to keep on learning something. One centre for continuing education identifies honorlves to adult education as the following:

(1) Personal satisfaction in developing unused talents.

(2) Financial security in reaching a higher level of employment.

(3) Desire to push problems into the background by exploring something new and exciting (not a bad thought!).

(4) A deliberate effort to achieve mental health through broader activities.

(5) The pursuit of knowledge for cultural benefits.

Don't let me hear you say you can't study any more. You can too!

* * *

Dear Doris: Our little Bobbie, at four, is still wetting his bed. Every night he says, "Tonight I'm going to keep dry, Mummy. I promise." Then in the morning he is soaking as usual, and terribly disappointed with himself.

My friend tells me you had something to about bedwetting. Can you help me? — End of My Rope.

Dear End: There are so many causes of Bobbie's dilemma! In one case it is caused by deep sleep; in another by tension; a third may well blame an infection or relatively minor physical difficulty, responsive to medical treatment.

We now have done some serious research on the subject and have a leaflet I will send to you; "Bedwetting Dilemma". It goes into many causes and remedies. (Leaflet available to readers for 10 cents and a self - addressed stamped envelope.)

* * *

Dear Doris: I am planning on being married this spring. I wonder if you might have a booklet on this subject.

I am mainly interested in such things as the wedding ceremony and reception, regarding what I am supposed to do, wear, etc. — Clueless Mate.

Dear Clueless: I'm sending our leaflet about weddings. Formal dress calls for a cutaway coat with grey striped trousers up to seven p.m. After that, it's tailcoats.

Informally, and in morning or afternoon, with a bride in white gown and veil, you don Oxford-grey coat, striped trousers, white shirt, grey tie. If no wedding veil, then wear dark blue or grey business suit.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Ham Casserole for Budget-wise

By MARY MOORE

As we ate my preview Easter dinner my two home economist guests wondered why ham had to be made up into leftover dishes. I had the same feelings for it is so delicious sliced cold.

But we have readers who love casseroles and readers who have to stretch their precious meat.

If you belong to the cold sliced ham group you do not need today's recipe, although you should glance through it for it freezes well. If you belong to the casserole crowd or budget bunch or freezer fillers this is for you.

I want to give it for another reason — the lovely Mustard Sauce.

HAMLOAF WITH MUSTARD SAUCE

Loaf:
2 cups ground cooked ham
¾ cup chopped onion
1 slice bread
1 cup rolled oats
¼ tsp. pepper
1 tsp. dry mustard
2 eggs
1 cup tomato juice
Sauce:
½ cup brown sugar
1 tsp. dry mustard
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
1 tbsp. cornstarch
1 cup hot water
¼ cup vinegar

Trim any excess fat from the ham. Put ham and onion through grinder into large mixing bowl. Follow them through with a slice of bread to clean out the grinder. Mix in all remaining loaf ingredients. Line a greased 8½" x 4½" loaf pan from end to end with a strip of heavy wax paper for easier removal later. Press meat mixture in. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 1½ hrs. Turn out on platter and garnish with spiced pear halves or crabapples or serve with —

MUSTARD SAUCE

In medium saucepan combine all dry sauce ingredients well. Then stir in hot water and vinegar over medium high heat until thick and boiling. Serve in sauce boat.

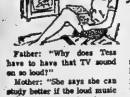
NOTES:

1) We think the Mustard sauce made this loaf a gala type meal.

2) The ham loaf slices excellently cold and is good with mustard pickles.

3) It freezes well.

NOTE: Tomorrow I will follow up with a quick Ham and Noodle Skillet Supper.



MONDAY

Dinner Menu

French Onion Soup; Broiled Beef Cakes; Chili Sauce; Hashed Brown Potatoes; Spinach with Nutmeg Butter; Pear Upside Down Gingerbread; Coffee.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Father: "Why does Tess have to have that TV sound on so loud?"

Mother: "She says she can study better if the loud music drowns out the other household noises. She likes to study down here where the family is."

A child may think she can concentrate in the midst of noise and activity, but psychologists have found that only a genius can become so involved in mental activity that he will not be influenced by outside stimuli.

Church Groups

MOUNT PLEASANT-RAWDON MESSENGERS

Approximately 75 women and children attended the recent Easter meeting at the Mount Pleasant - Rawdon church hall of the Messenger group.

The leaders in charge of arrangements were: Mrs. Raymond McConnell, Mrs. Garth Joslin and Mrs. Stanley Williams.

The president, Kenneth Sharp, chaired the program. Jill McAdam was pianist for the Easter hymns. Selections were read by Kathy Sharpe; Brian Hubel; David Jeffs and Hilda Talsma.

A vocal solo was given by Greg Joslin and Linda and Heather Hoard contributed a vocal duet.

Piano music was played by Margaret Hoard, Suzette Morgan and Linda Hoard. Cory Couch gave accordion music.

Heather Hoard and Gail Merrick assisted with the devotional. Donnie and Ian Hubel conducted several games and the leaders staged an Easter egg hunt.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served, and all the Messenger children were the recipients of special treats.

Kinsmen Repeat Bantam Heroics

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Everything came up roses Sunday for Belleville's Kinsmen bantams, who handed Leamington rivals an Easter — and playoff — lily to retain their Ontario Minor Hockey Association "AA" title with their 39th win in 45 games this season.

The Kinsmen tacked a 7-2 win to last week's 6-5 road decision to hang Leamington scalps along with those of the Trenton, Lindsay, and Orillia opponents they encountered en route to their second straight all-Ontario championship. This year's honors were captured by the Kinsmen without a playoff loss, and four of the eight wins came in overtime.

For two periods, Sunday afternoon's game looked like another extra-innings nerve-wracker for the 942 paid supporters and Kinsmen coaching staff Ken Keegan, Earl Cousins, and Bob Ricketts.

Less than four minutes into the third period with the score tied 2-2, Brian Cousins broke down the left side and blasted a sharp angle slap at Leamington goalie Mike Eppelett. The shot only momentarily stayed in the surprised goalie's catching glove, before trickling behind him as the eventual winning goal.

But the scoring hero of the afternoon had to be the one-man-captain John Mulvihill, who found time between beating back Leamington forwards to net four Kinsmen goals, three of them in the final 20 minutes of play.

A pair of goals by Cousins, and Danny Lupenette's 55th of the year were the other Belleville stepping stones to provincial bantam honors.

Greg Coulter's first-period tally for the visitors opened the game scoring. A second-period goal by Ken Cobby sent the teams to the dressing rooms tied 2-2 after Mulvihill and Cousins had forged a 2-1 Kinsmen lead.

With no tomorrow facing them in the event of a loss, the Leamington youngsters apparently came to town intending to intimidate a win out of the Kinsmen.

The visitors drew 15 of 25 penalties assessed, a marked contrast to last weekend's 6-45 win for the Kinsmen in Leamington in which the teams split only four minor infraction calls.

Leamington tempers got particularly hot after Cousins' third-period goal gave the Kinsmen their 3-2 margin.

Chippy playing resulted in penalties that led to three Kinsmen power-play scores in the final 11 minutes.

Goalie Mike Eppelett drew a misconduct and Leamington defenceman Jeff Wood received a game misconduct for their part in what threatened to be an unsavory ending to the hard-fought two-game series.

Wood will undoubtedly spend his first days as a middle-get next winter sitting out an OMHA suspension for his display Sunday.

The Kinsmen were as exuberant in victory as some of the visitors were sore-headed in defeat. They mobbed goalie Bruce Clark to the danger point when the siren made their feat official.

Parading their trophy into a boisterous dressing room, the bantams noticed it bore three plaques listing Leamington as recent winners.

"Not this year," the chorus came.

Lindsay Edges Smith Fuels But Loses Shrine Title Game to Oshawa

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Sportswriter

Oshawa swept through the 16-team Belleville Shrine Club peewee hockey tournament undefeated to capture the "A" series championship, and Kingston rebounded from a first round loss to Oshawa to win the "B" or consolation title, but the big winners were crippled children everywhere.

All proceeds of the two-day tournament, which attracted good crowds all day Saturday, will go to the local Shrine Club's Crippled Children Fund and will be donated to Crippled Children's Hospitals.

* * *

Oshawa was forced into overtime in Saturday morning's first game when eliminating Richmond Hill with a 3-1 win, before whitewashing Georgetown 4-0 in the semi-finals and shutting out Lindsay 2-0 in the championship game.

A pair of first period goals, Dave Shymlin's 20 foot drive to the top left hand corner of the net at 5.15 and Brian Drumm's goal from a scramble at the edge of the crease at 12.25, were all that Oshawa needed as Gary Aldred played flawlessly in the Oshawa net to earn his second shutout in four games.

Kingston won the "B" title with a 5-4 title game win over Brampton when K. Acton tallied the winning marker at 18.06 of the third period. Kingston got an earlier goal by Acton and single markers by K. Elliotte, R. Plumb and M. Kehoe en route to their victory. Saturday's other games saw Whitby nip Georgetown 1-0 in a second round "A" game and Bowmanville edge Peterborough 2-1 in a second round "B" game.

Kingston advanced to the "B" finals by shutting out Bowmanville 4-0 in the semi-finals and defeating Rockcliffe 6-1 in a second round game, while Brampton gained the finals with a 5-3 semi-final victory over Ajax.

Belleville's Smith Fuels peewees, who had eliminated Cobourg, the provincial Class "AA" semi-finalists, Friday, succumbed to Lindsay's rally late in the third period and dropped a 4-2 decision in the other "A" series semi-final before the largest crowd of the day.

Centre Steve Kirby started the Fuels off on the right foot when he scored, from close range at the 14 second mark of the opening period, but Lindsay came back to knot the count at 1-1 with a goal by Dave Maloney at 14.30 of the middle stanza.

Bruce Sutherland's 35 foot wrist shot put Belleville out ahead 2-1 at 2.20 of the final period and the lead held up until Jim Coombs beat Fuels' netminder John Rass with a low drive at 3.46 of the third period.

Lindsay increased the tempo of the game and Coombs tallied the winner at 13.46 when he picked an opening perfectly and blasted a 20 foot drive over Rass' shoulder into the top left hand corner of the net.

Belleville pressed and gambled the rest of the way, but Lindsay goaltender Steve Hickson held the fort until teammate Greg Scott tallied an open net goal with eight seconds remaining in the game to insure Lindsay of the win.

The high point of the tournament from the standpoint of Smith Fuels followers was Belleville's 2-1 second round win over Cobourg Friday.

The win enabled Belleville to gain revenge for Cobourg's one goal victory over Belleville last year in the "A" series championship game at the Shrine Tournament and also for Cobourg's elimination of Belleville in the second round of this year's Ontario playdowns.

Lacrosse League A Reality

STAFF — Four area communities are definite entries in the two year old Juvenile-age Quinte Lacrosse and it is hoped that other nearby centres will join the league at its Wednesday, April 16th meeting at Belleville Collegiate Institute, Belleville.

This was the word from league president Wally Beecroft following the League's recent organizational meeting at BCI. The four definite entries are teams representing Trenton, Picton, Campbellford and Belleville.

The grouping of the League will be in the juvenile to junior ranges, and rules, regulations, refereeing and playing dates all entered the discussion and will be finalized at the next meeting.

The league will get a boost from a Lacrosse Clinic which will be held on Saturday, April 19 at Quinte Secondary School from 10 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

The clinic will be held by official Ontario Lacrosse League representatives and is open to anyone interested, including players.

Merchants' Comeback Falls Short Sunday

The Picton Merchants rallied from a three goal deficit to tally three goals in the final period last night, but it was not enough as Midland Flyers, the defensive opposition in their semi-final series of the Ontario Intermediate "B" playoffs, returned the three goal favor to eke out a 5-4 win.

Midland led 2-0 after one period and 2-1 after two periods, and notched the winning marker at 13.51 of the third period with Picton's Paul McGill in the penalty box for high sticking.

Midland's win ties the best of seven series at a game each, with both clubs having won their single road game to date.

Gary Goyer, Moe Hunter, Roland Berry and "Pug" Keller scored single goals for the Merchants, the champions of the Lakeshore Intermediate Hockey League.

Mulroneys Gain Revenge

Mulroney's Sunoco rebounded from Thursday night's 4-3 loss to the Wings to return the favor in last night's second game of the Gas House Hockey League's best - of - five championship playoff series.

Mulroney's 4-3 win tied the series at a game each and came on the strength of single goals by Reid Mallory, Paul Ford, Wayne Walke and Doug Bolte.

Perry Soules with a pair of goals and Wayne McTaggart with a singleton replied for the Wings. The series resumes Tuesday night at 8:15.

Quinte Recréation Group to Meet

The Quinte Community Recreation Action Centre will hold an open meeting at the Belleville Recreation Centre, 370 Pinnacle Street, Wednesday, April 10 at 8.30 p.m.

The meeting is a follow-up to a public meeting held on Jan. 30, 1969 where it was established by a group of interested citizens that Belleville is in need of better recreation facilities in this area to accommodate the needs of young and old.

A committee of seven was elected to act as a steering committee to investigate the group's objective. The investigations are now completed and the committee believes that a new recreation action centre will meet the needs required.

The views and ideas of area citizens are welcomed at this public meeting.

McNevin Trophy Winner Announced

STAFF — Anthony Bennett of Victoria Avenue and the Simpson-Sears novice house league team was announced Saturday night as the 1969 winner of the annual Tommy McNevin Memorial Award.

Anthony is the eighth winner of the award which was instituted in 1962 in memory of Tommy McNevin who was a member of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association in the Squirt Division.

Tommy excelled not only as a hockey player but also as a student of music and scholastics. Thus, though hockey does play a part in making the final decision the judges do place the prime requisite as musicianship and hockey in that order.

Anthony Bennett was one of seventeen youngsters who were chosen for the Squirts' manship award on their clubs and has been eligible for the Tommy McNevin award.

Squirtsmanship award winners were Anthony Bennett - Simpson-Sears, Glen Andrews - Greaters, Bradley Kunetsky - Al Waterson Rambler, Martin Lowry - Dairy Queen, John Jiaquopulos - Archers Groceries, John Usborne - Police Rangers, Jeff Belanger - Volle's Furniture, Raymond Sharp - Golden Mile Restaurant, Chris Ripley - DCA Transfer, Randy Kells - Wm. Relch and Sons, Brian Masterson - Bad Boys, Bruce Hamilton - Towers Food City novices, Michael Groh - Shopette, Allan James Horwood - Horwood - Bibby, Steve Landon - The Dukes, Paul Weeks - Richard Ellis Printers, Brian Coughlan - Lions Club.

Peewee Championship Tonight

Five-thirty this evening will be the zero hour for a pair of peewee house league teams, the Penguins of the Eastern Division and Chambers Food Club of the Western Division.

The two teams are champions of their respective divisions and will meet tonight in the peewee House League city championship game.

The Penguins won their Eastern Division two-game total-goals series with the East Side Blues 8-6, while Chambers Food Club edged Lou Williams 4-3 to win the Western Division title.

The championship is a single game, sudden-death if necessary, contest.

Curling Season Ends

STAFF — The curling season concluded Sunday at the Quinte Curling Club with the conclusion of the final week's mixed curling bonspiel, resulting in the awarding of the Northern Electric Trophy for the main event winners.

Al McCallum's rink of third Earl Fleming, second Bill Downing and lead Mrs. Kay Pape prevailed to win the trophy which was presented by plant manager Mr. Ken Woodley.

Don Cowley's rink consisting of wife Madge, Murray Johnson and Dorothy Clarke earned the runner-up position.

The second event was won by a rink skipped by Cliff Neill with his wife Bev and Al and Shirli Shukster as members.

The third event saw the rink of Stan and Flora Reston and Les and Marjorie Reid come out on top while the winners of the fourth event were a rink composed of Phil Dyble (skip), Hettie Dyble, Bruce Parson and Betty Parsons.

Crawford's Heroics Spark Title Win

The hockey season came to a triumphant conclusion Sunday afternoon at the Belleville Arena for Towers Food City novices and Bobby Crawford.

Bobby, the son of ex- Belleville MacFarland defenceman Floyd Crawford, scored two goals, his 61st and 62nd of the season - a novice team record - to pace the Food City Club to a 7-4 win over Maple and the Zone 4 novice hockey title, all on his birthday.

Brent Walmsley notched two goals for Belleville and Paul Hayman, Tony Meagher and Randy Hutchinson added single goals for the Food City crew, who have now completed a successful season.

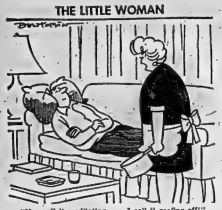
HOTEL MANAGERS ARE MADE - NOT BORN -

Because we believe this, we are prepared to train the right person (man or woman) to manage a hotel in the Quinte District, which features fine dining, a cocktail lounge and good entertainment.



Who is the right person?
From experience, we know he or she . . .

- will be hospitality minded
- will care about details
- is a cost watcher - not a clock watcher
- can work well with systems
- has leadership qualities and supervisory know-how
- will be ambitious enough to strive above average income — working longer hours than average, including most evenings.

If you are that one person in a 1000 whose background and personality are appropriate for this position - and able to become expert in this field with training - then, by all means, write and tell us why.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"You call it meditating — I call it goofing off!"

Seven Killed, 17 Injured

Sense of Racial Frustration Causes Rampage

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A burning sense of racial frustration is blamed for launching Donald Martin Lambright, 31, into an orgy of death and terror along the Pennsylvania turnpike.

And when he was finished, the tragic results of his rampage Saturday stood at four dead, himself included, and 17 others either wounded or injured.

"It is an unholy tragedy that a brilliant young man could be so frustrated by his life in the United States that he could only see achieving success through destruction," said his uncle, Howard Johnson Jr., a sociologist and official of New York City's Upward Bound poverty project.

From his car and from the roadside, with an M1 .30-calibre semi-automatic rifle and with a .30-calibre Marlin carbine, Lambright drove slowly along the highway, busy with Easter holiday traffic, firing at oncoming cars.

Finally, a mile east of this state capital on the fringe of the lush Pennsylvania Dutch country, he pulled off the rains-lick highway, shot his 31-year-old wife, Annette, to death and then took his own life.

Afterwards state police and stunned families began to put together the portrait of a black militant whose uncle said he often felt violence was the only answer to the frustration of race discrimination.

Born, as he died, in the spotlight, Lambright was the son of Negro motion picture comic Stepin Fetchit, whose real name is Lincoln Perry. Lambright's birth was recorded in Walter Winchell's syndicated Broadway column and noted by stars of the entertainment world.

Johnson said in New York Lambright slept with a .30-calibre rifle in his bed, saying he needed protection from whites.

Witnesses said most of the firing was done as Lambright drove along, slowly weaving from lane to lane. They said he fired into eastbound traffic. Now and then he'd pull over and fire from the roadside.

Some shots slammed into the car of Ignatius Keenan, 50, and his wife, Ruby, of Philadelphia. The Keenans were killed and son, Paul, was cut by shattered glass.

Lambright, took the name of his mother's second husband, Dr. Middleton. If Lambright, a Cleveland physician who legally adopted him when he was 8.

Man With Artificial Heart to Get Replacement

HOUSTON, Tex. (CP) — A woman has been found whose heart may be transplanted into the chest of Haskell Karp—the first man ever to receive an artificial heart.

Officials at St. Luke's Hospital declined to give any details about the potential donor except to say she lived outside Texas.

A chartered plane [illegible] standby at Houston airport was dispatched to bring the woman to Houston.

More than a dozen persons volunteered to die to save the life of Karp, but the prospective donor was the first to meet the exacting requirements of any implantation.

Karp, a 47-year-old printing estimator from Skokie, Ill., was listed in satisfactory condition at the hospital today, three days after receiving the heart mechanism. But it was uncertain how long he could be kept alive with the artificial heart. Hospital officials said a donor must be suffering from irreversible brain damage before a transplant would be considered. A suitable donor should also be in a coma and have type O positive blood, a hospital spokesman said.

The spokesman also emphasized written authority from relatives and a physician attending a potential donor would be required.

The artificial heart, made of plastic and dacron and linked to a bedside console, was implanted Friday by a surgical team led by transplant pioneer Dr. Denton A. Cooley.

Cooley said the eight-ounce plastic heart was designed only to keep a patient alive until a human heart donor could be found.

Karp, father of three sons, was visited by his wife, Shirley.

Mrs. Karp pleaded tearfully for a donor, saying, "When I see my husband fight for his life, I feel this is something very worthwhile. Someone, somewhere please hear my plea. A plea for a heart for my husband."

Cooley said he thought the artificial heart could function well for a month, but hoped it would not be needed longer than a week or 10 days.

Russell Defends Safeguard System

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Richard B. Russell of Georgia challenged opponents of the Safeguard anti-missile system Sunday to "offer an alternative to a militarily-strong" United States.

Russell, a Democrat and one of the Senate's top authorities on defence matters, defended in an interview Defence Secretary Melvin R. Laird's assertion that the Russians are working toward a nuclear first-strike capability.

Such a strike, if successful, would knock out the U.S.' ability to hit back.

Hubert H. Humphrey, 1968 Democratic presidential nominee, and his running-mate, Senator Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, have led an attack on Laird's position. They contend it will hinder efforts to reach an arms-reduction agreement with the Soviets.

Russell disagreed vigorously.

Detroit Doctors Prepare to Transplant Ovaries

DETROIT (AP) — A Wayne State University researcher says doctors on the university staff are preparing to transplant ovaries to help women have babies.

"We're still at the basic science level with this thing," explained Dr. Tommy N. Evans. "But we're hoping that in the next 12 to 18 months we'll be ready to try it in humans."

Dr. Evans, a professor and chairman of the obstetrics and gynecology department at Wayne, said he has on file the names of almost 100 women who want ovary transplants. The ovary produces the egg to be fertilized at conception and the hormones necessary to maintain pregnancy.

Donor ovaries could come from recently deceased persons, as in heart transplants, or from live donors if the loss of an ovary does not threaten life, he said.

Dr. Evans said preliminary research suggests that the body may be less likely to reject a new ovary than a new kidney or heart.

SCOHARIE — Five young people were received in full membership of Bloomfield United Church on Sunday morning.

Mrs. Lyle Leavitt, Wooler and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Leavitt and children, Trenton were Sunday afternoon visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Leavitt and sons. Also called on cousins Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stone.

Report Not Ready On Longshoremen

MONTREAL (CP) — Judge Alan B Gold, chairman of a conciliation board hearing a dispute between St. Lawrence River longshoremen and shippers, said Sunday he has not yet handed in his conciliation report to Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey.

In an interview, the judge said the report was to have been submitted by March 31 but is not yet completed.

Longshoremen in the ports of Montreal, Trois-Rivieres and Quebec can legally strike seven days after the report is presented to Mr. MacKasey if a satisfactory settlement has not been reached.

The labor minister and Judge Gold have been involved in talks with the Shipping Federation for the last four days.

Anticipating a possible strike, the shipping federation, which represents about 95 per cent of the ocean vessels using Montreal harbor, have provided their members with optional bills of lading.

Ships en route here have the option to transfer to other ports.

Wages and job security are major issues in the dispute. Montreal's 2,200 longshoremen want their hourly wage raised to $5.50 from the present $3.75 over a two-year period. The shippers are offering a 15 per-cent increase in a three-year contract.

Dayan Says Mideast Is Not Powder Keg

HAIFA, Israel (AP) — Defence Minister Moshe Dayan said Sunday the current Big Four talks to promote an Arab-Israeli settlement grew out of "a fiction that the Middle East is burning."

"The Middle East is not burning. It is not a powder keg about to explode," he said in a speech. "The Arabs know they are not strong enough to beat us, and so they will not go to war against us—not this summer, not this fall, not in the foreseeable future."

Sounding the same note, Deputy Prime Minister Yigal Allon said the talks among Big Four ambassadors to United Nations are "particularly dangerous because they might plant an illusion in Arab hearts that the great powers might impose withdrawal on Israel."

Israel says it will not accept any settlement imposed by the Big Four powers and has been insisting on face-to-face talks with the Arab governments and a contractual peace agreement. The Arabs have balked at direct negotiations, demanding that Israel first withdraw from territories it captured in the June 1967 six-day war.

Brandt Is Glad Canada Will Remain in NATO

OTTAWA (CP) — Foreign Minister Willy Brandt of West Germany says it is good Canada will continue to co-operate with in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

"The alliance needs Canada and we all need the alliance," Mr. Brandt said in a brief statement Sunday after his arrival from Bonn by way of Montreal for talks with the Canadian government.

The foreign minister, who also is the West Germany vice-chancellor was met at Ottawa International Airport by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp with whom he will have talks this afternoon and Tuesday before flying to Washington for NATO meetings.

His visit, he said, provides "a welcome opportunity for an exchange of views" between Canada and West Germany.

Meetings are scheduled with Trade Minister Jean Luc Pepin and Defence Minister Leo Cadieux as well as with Mr. Sharp.

Smothers to Try Canada If Blacklisted in U.S.

TORONTO (CP) — Tom Smothers of the Smothers Brothers team if he and his brother are blacklisted by U.S. television networks they will seriously consider doing their show in Canada.

He said at a news conference Sunday he fears they may be blacklisted.

"We could call it (the new show) The Smothers Brothers in Exile.

He said he and his brother Dick will not use the Columbia Broadcasting System for its recently-announced decision to cancel the weekly Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour at the end of this season.

CBS said it was cancelling a 26-part series planned for the fall on the ground that the brothers had failed to live up to their contractual obligations.

A news conference between the network and the brothers is planned in New York.

A long history of friction between them came to a head when the U.S. network dropped Sunday night's show. The story was seen uncut by viewers across Canada on the CTV network.

Robert D. Wood, CBS-TV president, said the show was cancelled because it was "in bad taste" and because the Smothers had failed to deliver a tape of it to the network in time for pre-screening.

Tom Smothers said Mr. Wood "is either a liar or misinformed."

"CBS has been trying to force us into...a breach of contract, and when we could do it, it breached it itself," he said. "It also is trying to portray us as troublemakers so that no other network will touch us.

"This is a completely different scene up here," he said. "You don't know what it's like to work where everybody's scared of doing anything controversial. It'd be groovy to work in a country where television is free, and they don't yank the rug from under you every time you do something that somebody might not like."

He said his difficulties with CBS came with his insistence on airing exposures on his show in "such "protest") performers as Pete Seeger, Joan Baez and Mort Sahl.

He said the establishment that controls American network television is afraid to use any performer not regarded as politically "safe."

CTV, which buys the show directly from the Smothers Brothers' production company, said it received its tape of Sunday's show on Thursday night, as it does each week.

Murray Chercover, CTV president, said at the press conference Tom Smothers had been informed of CBS' complaints about the show and that he had pre-screened it himself and found it inoffensive.

Obituaries and Funerals

MRS. FORBES MACLEAN

Following an illness of three months, Mrs. Edna Maclean, 313 Foster Avenue, died in hospital this Monday morning.

Mrs. Maclean was born in Bishop's Mills and had been a resident of Belleville for 60 years.

She was a member of Tabernacle United Church and was an active member of the UCW when health permitted.

Surviving are her husband, Forbes Maclean, one daughter, Mrs. Burton (Marion) Salisbury, Belleville and two sons, Dawson Maclean, Belleville and Gordon D. of Searborough.

Also surviving are three sisters, Mrs. Freeman (Addie) Boyd, Spencerville, Mrs. Percival (Rhoda) Turner, Saskatoon, Sask., and Mrs. Roy (Katie) McCaw, Smiths Falls. Three brothers and two sisters are predeceased.

Resident Marks 97th Birthday

TWEED — Mrs. Levi Lajoie, Tweed's oldest resident, was 97 years of age Sunday, April 6.

Mrs. Lajoie who has always lived in Tweed, is in good health and has a keen mind, but admits to a little arthritis in her knee joints. She enjoys company, music and definitely TV.

She has three sons, Alphonsus of Tweed, Gerry of Toronto, Levi of Actinolite, and three daughters, Mrs. Evelyn McGrath, of Tweed township, Mrs. Cecilia Rivers of Tweed, and Mrs. Mary McCormick of Tweed. John Lajoie of Tweed is a half-brother, while Mrs. A. Bronson, of Burlington, Ontario, and Mrs. Delphine La-Prairie of Bay City, Michigan are half-sisters. Mrs. Lajoie's husband passed away in April 1955 and her oldest son, Remy passed away in July 1965.

Geologists To Hold Field Camp

TWEED — Geology students from the University of Toronto will once again hold a field camp in the Tweed area, according to a recent announcement made by Professor D. H. Gorman of the Department of Geology at U. of T.

Similar field camps have been held in this district for the past numbers of years. The students will be billed at Bromley's cottages at Kennels Beach, just east of Tweed, will obtain most of their meals at the local Tweed Hotel and will use the Tweed High School as night time.

This year's camp will be from May 3 to May 30.

Professor F. A. Brown, who was associated with several U. of T. field camps is now teaching at Ryerson Institute. Although he will not be with the proposed field party, he is looking forward to leading field trips to this famous area.

Professor Gorman hopes that the party will receive the same generous treatment from local land owners, as past geology students and teachers have received.

ANAF Plans General Meeting

The next general meeting will be held in the ANAF Auditorium commencing at 8 p.m.; Thursday, April 10. A good turnout is expected as several important subjects are on the agenda and the general public could assist in deciding either for or against the motions.

After adjournment there will be a social evening and the entertainment committee will serve refreshments.

The Combined Veterans of Belleville Committee have organized a farewell church parade to honor Padre A. S. McConnell who is retiring April 20. The parade will form up in the armory at 10 a.m., Sunday, April 13, and march up Bridge Street East for service at 10.30 a.m. and return to the armory by the same route. Medals and berets will be worn.

The Vimy Ridge Memorial Banquet will be held in the Legion Hall commencing at 6.30 p.m. Monday, April 14. Please wear medals and berets.

The entertainment chairman states he is organizing a spring festival ball for Friday, April 25. Tickets will be available from the stewards one week before the dance.

In sports, the last regular match in the Mr. and Mrs. darts tournament will be played Saturday evening, April 12 and the playoffs between match winners and runners-up for the Harold Dracup Trophy will be on Saturday evening, April 19. The following Saturday, April 26th will be the grand climax to a successful season.

THE BETTER HALF — By Bob Barnes

KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P., Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have tried everything except a psychiatrist to take off weight. Do you recommend I see one?

Comment: In many instances such treatment has been successful. For example, the following letter:

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: May I please, for a short space, speak with you and your overweight readers. I am 5'3", of small bone structure. At the age of 21, I weighed about 237 pounds.

I couldn't live with myself any longer. I had failed at all attempts to lose. I didn't have the guts to kill myself.

At last I placed myself in the hands of a psychiatrist. I had to do a lot of shopping around. Some of the psychiatrists needed as much help as I did. Finally, I found one that I respected and with whom I could relate.

The road back was long and painful, but every step I a proved a blessing to me, my future to all those around me. I have lost 115 pounds. I have learned that all I have to do is to want it badly enough and then work for it. No one will, or can do it for me.

Why a psychiatrist? Weight was not my problem, but rather, it was the symptom of a much deeper problem. My advice to others like myself is go see a doctor to find out if it is organic. If it is not, you must begin a long, and I emphasize, terribly painful mental struggle to find, in the depths of your mind, why you use food?

If you do you'll never regret it. If you don't you'll never be able to live with yourself and lead a good deal of mental anguish. And if you can't live with yourself, nobody else will ever be able to happily.

You can't enjoy life if you are constantly hiding from yourself and others. If you are to overcome excessive overeating you must ask yourself (and answer): do I care enough? Best Wishes. — Mrs. L.

For Mr. B.: Dry heat or wet heat? It depends which makes your bursitis more comfortable. Take as many aspirin (up to 6 or 8) as are necessary to relieve pain. But if there is no improvement within a week or so after simple measures, then your shoulder-bursitis may need a doctor's ministrations: cortisone injections, ultrasonic treatments, etc.

* * *

For Mrs. L.: Reading when lying down is as good as when sitting — if for short periods, and as a precursor to a nap or bedtime. Just make certain that lighting is adequate and that the book is not too heavy to tire your arms and take all the fun out of it.

* * *

For Mrs. G.: Yes, gold therapy is still used in the management of rheumatoid arthritis. Injections can be given by an expert in its use for many months. But blood should be checked frequently to prevent overdosages and reactions to the drug: skin inflammations, anemia, etc.

* * *

For Mr. Z.: Gout is due to an upset in the metabolism of uric acid. Gouty arthritis results when too much uric acid is formed — or when too little is excreted by the body.

* * *

For Mrs. G.: Smoking for 30 years without inhaling is not entirely commendable. For you are not completely free of harmful effects. Smoke, even though not inhaled, is still absorbed from the mucous membranes of the mouth. Sometimes when it is drawn more than we realize and the smoker gets more into his lungs than is good for him.

CBS Terminates Show Biggest Drama: Smothers Confrontation

NEW YORK (AP) — Television's biggest drama—the CBS-Smothers Brothers confrontation—was played out during the weekend even as the long-running comedy-variety show was being cancelled by the network.

The program has an occasion been edited by network censors. Smothers has been a vocal critic of the practice, in print and on other TV shows. This led to the hour-long special CBS executives to comment that "Tommy has been sticking his finger in the network eye and something had to be done."

At a news conference in Toronto Monday night Tommy said the brothers would not sue CBS although Dick had said in New York Saturday they would "litigate to save the artistic integrity of television."

Sunday night Tommy said: "I guess we'll go to court," Tom said. "If I do, I will be tied up in litigation for two or three years. I am not going to sit and talk to the other networks to try to get another contract."

"We have already met our obligations," he said.

"We have been prepared to let the affiliates cut out anything they wanted—but CBS keeps itself between the creative people and the affiliates."

The Sunday show was shown uncut to viewers across Canada on CTV.

The program, opposite NBC's front-running Bonanza has done relatively well in a time spot that was disastrous for a succession of earlier shows. It has had respectable ratings although it could not be counted in the hit class. Therefore, it must be presumed that CBS was reluctant to take such drastic action. There are millions of dollars and many jobs involved.

The question now is whether there is still any chance things can be patched up. Opinion on this is split.

No Mistaking Authority When Petula Sings

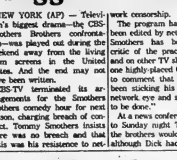
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — She seems tiny, even frail, but when Petula Clark begins to sing, there is no mistaking her authority. Her admirers will be able to see and hear their pet tonight when she stars in her second television special on NBC.

To casual listeners who heard her Downtown and other big selling records, Petula Clark seemed to be another teen-age favorite. Such an attitude ranks the British singer, who doesn't put out the sex rock 'n' roller but a performer who has appeared in cabaret and concert halls throughout Europe.

More recently she has added a new dimension to her career: movies. She can currently be seen with Fred Astaire in "Finian's Rainbow. Coming up: Goodbye, Mr. Chips with Peter O'Toole.

Between tapings for tonight's special with guests Andy Williams, Oscar nominee Rod Mc Kuen and guitarist-singer Sacha Distel, Petula mused on how her own singing style has developed.

"It has changed a great deal in the last two or three years," she says. "Some of my style is with what happens when you have a certain success. I was Downtown. Suddenly I have enough confidence to let yourself go, to relax and perform the way you would like to.



"But I think the change in my style began even before Downtown. It really started when I spent some time singing in France."

The singer is married to a Frenchman, Claude Wolfe, and until recently had their two children made their home in Paris. Now they reside in Geneva "because privacy isn't respected in France any more," as well as for tax advantages.

"Singing in France was especially good for my style," Petula says. "The French aren't very musical; they care more about the lyric than the melody. For that reason there aren't many good singers in France, but there are many excellent performers who know how to interpret songs. They seem to know how to get inside the meaning of the words.

"The simple matter of singing is only part of it. Anyone with a fair amount of voice can sing. The difference is how you deliver the lyrics. That's what sets people like Frank Sinatra and Tony Bennett apart from the others. They seem able to digest their songs.

"A singer can touch the audience not only musically but with the meaning of a song as well, that's the real thrill."

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market posted a modest decline in light mid-morning trading today.

The market opened with a small gain but was dragged down by a sharp opening plunge in Steel Co.

Western oils, real estate issues, golds and trust and loan stocks were the only groups to advance.

Trading in Stuart House, halted at the open Thursday, did not open. The company said it has agreed to purchase Arrco-Saxon Co. and Arrco Playing Card Co. of Canada Ltd. for $2,560,000. The Arrco group manufactures playing cards and other distributors of light office outlets. Stuart House was up 5 to 10 Wednesday.

Home Oil A was up ¼ to 43¾. The company said it has started drilling its first well in the Alaska North Slope area on lands farmed out by Atlantic Richfield Co.

Toronto Livestock

TORONTO (CP) — Trading was active at prices steady to last week's close for all classes and grade, of slaughter and replacement cattle at the Ontario public stockyards today.

Veal calves and lambs were steady, hogs easier.

Slaughter cattle 1,154: Choice steers 29.50-30.50 with sales to 31.10; good 28.50-29.50; mediums 26.50; commons 20.50-25.50; choice heifers 27.50-28.50; good 26-27; mediums 24-26; commons 20-23.50; good cows 22-23 with sales to 24; mediums 21-22; canners and cutters 15.50-20; good heavy bologna bulls 24-25 with sales to 25.75; commons and mediums 20-23.

Replacement cattle 298: Good light stockers 30-34; good stock steer calves 25-27; good stock heifer calves 29-32.50; commons and mediums 22-28.

Mixed Picture

Gold shares were big losers on the Toronto Stock Exchange during March, tumbling from 257.31 at the end of February to 244.92 at the end of March. In the same period Western Oils were ahead to 242.93 from 222.43; Industrials were up to 190.35 from 185.20 and base metals slid to 112.67 from 115.95.

Upside-down Riding Prepares To Finally Make '68 Choice

PORT ALBERNI, B.C. (CP) — Predictably, the candidates in Tuesday's federal byelection in the Cameron-Alberni riding have turned contemporary Canadian political orthodoxy inside out.

This is the riding that changed hands twice in the days following the June 25 federal election on the strength of nine votes. That was before the British Columbia Supreme Court bounced the whole thing back to the electorate after learning that 12 servicemen had voted at a riding polling station instead of at their homes in Comox.

There's Tom Barnett, 59-year-old New Democratic Party candidate seeking his sixth win against two losses in the Vancouver Island riding. The Liberals refer to him as "the establishment candidate."

And there's Progressive Conservative Blair McLean, a 28-year-old school principal. Mr. McLean, a Liberal deserter, says Prime Minister Trudeau won the Liberal leadership even though he "never worked a day in his life."

He's quick to add that Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield's speeches "put me to sleep."

Liberal Richard Durante, 36, who represented the riding in the Commons for 4½ months prior to the Supreme Court ruling that necessitated the byelection, shuns Trudeaumania.

Mr. Durante, a school principal in Port Alberni, prefers to think he carried the riding on his own merit and says his record as an effective backbencher will do it again.

Mr. Barnett, a mill worker by profession, admits he is running a lot harder than he did last. He hits hard at the theme that Trudeaumania is dead.

He has a good NDP political machine working for him, large sections of which moved in from bordering Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands where the NDP national leader, T. C. Douglas, won a solid byelection victory a few weeks ago.

Last June, Mr. Barnett after the recount had 11,930 votes to Mr. Durante's 11,939. Mr. McLean got 5,154 and NDP organizers are privately hoping he'll do a little better and take the edge off the Liberal vote.

Key to the byelection is the Alberni valley which Mr. Durante carried by more than 1,000 votes. The NDP is hoping for a turnout of more than 80 per cent there to turn the tide.

School Superintendent Denies Indian Children Tortured

CHILOCCO, Okla. (AP) — Intoxicated students at the Chilocco Indian school are sometimes handcuffed for disciplinary reasons but never treated brutally, the school's superintendent said Sunday.

Dr. Leon Wall accused a bureau of Indian affairs inspection team of half-truths.

Wall said it sometimes became "necessary temporarily to handcuff a male student or a girl even who has obtained liquor from some source."

The bureau's report said "the permanent scars on one youngster's arms, the deformed hand of another boy and an obviously broken and misshaped rib on another tended to reveal the veracity of student's statements."

Wall replied the youngster who had scars on his arms received them when he straired while handcuffed. He said the boy with a broken rib received it in a fight in Arkansas City, Kan., in January 1968, and the boy with the misshapen hand broke it in a football game.

Udersea Oil Leak Endangers Seals

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Government biologists investigating reports that oil from a ruptured undersea well is endangering thousands of elephant seals reported counting dozens dead or dying. But they said most of the animals aren't in danger.

"The count is minimal," said Harold B. Clemens of the California fish and game department after counting dead or stricken oil-smeared seals on San Miguel Island.

Clemens told the Los Angeles Times he counted nine dead seals on the beach, plus 35 heavily coated with oil and unlikely to survive and 30 less heavily coated and given a chance of surviving.

A Union Oil Co. well blew out Jan. 28 in the Santa Barbara Channel, spilling hundreds of thousands of gallons of crude oil into the sea.

Grotan Denies Wheat Price Cut

SYDNEY, Australia (CP-Reuters) — Prime Minister John Gorton said Sunday Canada and the United States have dropped wheat prices below the minimum set by the International Grain Agreement but denied Australia has done the same.

Gorton told an airport news conference on his return from visiting Canada and the U.S. that confusion over the IGA minimum will be sorted out at wheat talks in Washington.

Strictly Personal

Pace of Change Accelerates

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A high school student in Georgia writes to ask what I mean by referring to the "exponential" rate of change in modern society. And not only what do I mean, but why is it important?

What I mean is that the rate of change has increased in the way you keep squaring a number, whereas in the past change took place in the way you merely add numbers. This implies that change has entered a whole new dimension of speed.

Information systems — represented mostly by the computer — are now the world's leading business. The world, and our lives, are growing astounding rate. Yet it was only 54 years ago that the first business machine in the world was installed.

Nuclear power plants are another of the tremendous growth industries of our time, yet it was only eight years ago that the first large-scale privately financed nuclear power plant went into operation. And commercial jet engines are the third booming innovation of this period—but the first scheduled commercial jet airliners were put in service less than 11 years ago.

These industries alone have accounted for several million new jobs, calling for new skills, new learning, new approaches at every level from the technical to the administrative.

The time elapsing between the development of a new product or process and its introduction to the market has shrunk to a fraction of the time it used to take. Our educational, economic and social systems have scarcely had the breathing-space to adjust to these swift transitions.

As an amusing and instructive example of the recent past, not many people know that the slide fastener (or "zipper") was introduced by its inventor at the Columbian Exposition in Chicago in 1893.

Yet it was not until nearly 40 years later, in the early 1930s, that even so simple and practical a device was put into mass production in a Pennsylvania town that was the only one to survive the Depression because of its technological innovation: the Bendix fastener field.

Whereas in our grandfathers time it took 40 years to get a new product going, the average time-span has gone down to less than three years. But it still takes as long as it did in 1893 to educate people, to build homes for them, to transport them locally from one place to another (a horse could cross Manhatten faster than a taxi in traffic), or to retrain them for new jobs in new fields.

This is what an "exponential" rate of change means—and why it has made us the most prosperous society in the world, but also the most confused, the most frantic, the most frustrated, and the most anxious.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For April 8

Your birthday today: Success depends on your drive toward specific goals. Listen to your own guidance rather than outside opinion. Take the initiative at every opportunity. Decide what you want to be and keep that in mind. Today's natives often possess great energy, sometimes blast for short periods.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Adventure beckons and the unexpected is likely. Unconventional people pop up! In planning, give some thought to the pathway once the adventure is completed. A new job requires a rather conservative approach and today is not an exception.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 —May 20): Contract negotiations and close relatives have their surprises ready for you today. Both turn out to be beyond what you had thought. Hasty reactions do not produce the desired results.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Social matters and the movements needed to serve them dominate the day. Attract the attention of people important to you. Travel and visiting will produce erratic but very interesting results and new acquaintances.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Requirements for public affairs and business with officials and consultants are facilitated today. Leaders of the hours of the day at the earliest reasonable hour and seek pleasant diversion for the evening.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Pause a moment this morning to note the changes in your life and working conditions — there may be some little thing to do about them now.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Joint or family financial and insurance arrangements are up for review today. Taxes enter consideration — there is something you need to know before being ready to cope with the coming deadline.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Emotional ties are strong today, declare your feelings where it counts. Your regular work should not be neglected and should be a bit easier to organize than usual.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Today is best for clearing off unfinished business, loose ends. Bring your correspondence up to date. Friends and relatives are not very helpful for the moment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): All sorts of risky speculations beckon. Take a skeptical and philosophic approach rather than follow your immediate emotional response. Your own patterns are shifting slightly, so give your truthful plenty of time to compensate for strong stimulus.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Those you love are actively involved in your affairs today. Short trips, brief interviews can pay off heavily in information.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): The unexpected turn of financees is likely due to intervention of friends in high places. The things that happen today contain lessons for you. Conquer the temptation to find fault.

Your Car

Crankcase Needs to 'Breathe'

Harmful fumes normally accumulate to some degree in the engine crankcase. To dispose of them, a valve was built prior to the mid-sixties, fresh air is flowed in through a vent on top of the engine (usually the oil filler cap) and exhausted out to the atmosphere through a draft tube at the rear of the motor.

Should either the top air intake vent or the exhaust tube become plugged with, road dirt or crankcase sludge, the oil seal becomes overpressurized. As well, pressure builds up inside the crankcase forcing the engine's lubricant out of such areas as the front and rear crankshaft seals, the oil filler cap tube and the oil dipstick hole.

A clue to proper operation of this ventilation system is light smoke flowing from the end of the lower draft tube as the engine idles. The older the engine and the higher the mileage, the greater the volume of smoke. Heavy smoke pouring from the draft tube indicates badly worn piston rings or damaged pistons. Adequate ventilation is vitally important to the life of the engine.

In about 1963 many of the car makers discontinued the draft tube method of ventilation and introduced what is known as the positive crankcase ventilation system. (PCV). This system was primarily developed to prevent crankcase fumes from polluting the air, but other benefits such as better gas mileage and longer engine life are reported.

With this system the fumes are drawn from the crankcase by means of the vacuum from the engine's intake manifold and burned along with the fuel-air mixture in the combustion chambers.

The key to this improved method of crankcase ventilation is a small metal device known as the PCV valve. The internal mechanism of this valve is designed to control the vacuum flow at various engine speeds.

Foreign matter from the fumes passing through this unit can cause the internal valving arrangement to stick, preventing the fumes from being drawn from the crankcase. When this occurs the crankcase becomes pressurized resulting in serious loss of engine lubricant and the oil becomes contaminated with damaging by-products of combustion.

It is surprising the number of motorists who are unaware of this valve's existence and if it is not called to their attention by a mechanic is ignored completely. But servicing of this valve, plus various other components incorporated in the PCV system, as specified in the owners manual, is absolutely imperative and failure to do so could rapidly ruin the engine. To combat air pollution it is now mandatory that all vehicles sold in Ontario be equipped with positive crankcase ventilation systems.

NOTE: Letters from readers with hard to pin-point car problems are most welcome, but please include year and model, number of cylinders, mileage, standard or automatic transmission, power equipment, brief outline of previous repairs and a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

One Violent Incident

Thousands Pick Easter as Day to Protest Vietnam War

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Tens of thousands of persons joined Easter weekend protests against the Vietnam war.

More than 50,000 gathered in New York's Central Park Saturday in an orderly protest that set the tone for parades and rallies in other cities. The protests were organized by the National Action Coalition, made up of 12 anti-war groups.

The only violent incident came Sunday in San Francisco, where a peaceful parade of 10,000 to the Presidio army installation ended a clash that injured 13 military policemen.

Seven military police were treated for eye injuries after being sprayed with an unidentified liquid. Three others suffered chemical skin burns and three more were cut by thrown bottles. Police held three demonstrators.

The parade, which included some out-of-uniform service men, moved from the Civic Centre to the Presidio without incident.

The clash began when several demonstrators tried to push onto the base. Military police who resisted them were bombarded with stones and bottles.

More than 20,000 persons marched through Chicago Saturday in a peaceful protest. Strong winds blew away their signs and there was scattered heckling.

About 2,500 people gathered in Los Angeles Sunday for an anti-war rally. A brief scuffle between two anti-war groups ended with 12 flat-fighters falling into the lake at Lafayette Park. Police booked five persons on charges of suspicion of disturbing the peace.

Anti-Vietnam war demonstrators marched through downtown Toronto Sunday to the city hall. Organizers said there were 10,000 marchers. Another estimate placed the number at 3,000. There were hecklers but no violence.

About 2,000 persons marched in Vancouver and a Sunday parade through downtown Montreal drew 300 participants. About 130 protesters rallied in Ottawa to demand an end to Canadian "complicity" in the war.

The massive New York rally followed a parade up Sixth Avenue by about 40,000 persons. Six persons were arrested in two incidents, and police and bystanders were splattered with yellow paint hurled from a skyscraper, apparently at paraders.

Pope Has Message of Happiness

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) — Pope Paul greeted the peoples of the world Sunday with an Easter message of hope and happiness, contrasting sharply with his recent sombre warnings on the divided state of the Roman Catholic Church.

Addressing nearly 250,000 persons crammed into St. Peter's Square, the Pope said: "We are happy to announce to you the happiness of Easter."

Extending an "urbi et orbi" blessing to Rome and the world, The Pope wished "a happy ecumenical Easter to all brothers in Christ, to all peoples."

The 71-year-old pontiff, wearing a white cape and a gold-and-white mitre, addressed the vast crowd from an open-air altar in front of Christendom's largest church.

He made no reference to a growing rebellion against church authority, the keynote of papal speeches during Holy Week, but did speak of the difficulties faced by Christianity in the modern world.

He said the teaching of God's word is a hard teaching because it transcends ordinary experience and the logic of reason.

"It is a severe teaching, in continual contrast to the illusion of easy instinctive habit through which degrading licence would clothe itself in the exalting dress of liberty," the Pope told a crowd including many of an estimated 500,000 visitors to Rome for Easter.

Young Ladies Carry Banners In Major Canadian Marches

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

There were Easter parades in Canada's major cities Sunday, but most were not the traditional dress-up kind. Young ladies carried signs instead of parasols, protesting the Vietnam war.

The marches, held in Vancouver, Edmonton, Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal and Niagara Falls, were ordered. There was also a march in Edmonton to protest government control of marijuana.

Weather across Canada was mild and, except for showers in western Alberta, clear and sunny.

Largest peace rally was in Toronto, where one city official estimated that 20,000 gathered at city hall after the march. Attendance at other marches ranged from 2,500 in Vancouver to 150 at Ottawa and 35 at Niagara Falls.

But Canada didn't go without the more conventional Easter activities. In Vancouver there was a parade of vintage cars with passengers in period costumes. Toronto residents were treated to a boardwalk stroll, art show, fashion show, a carnival-type penny-pitch to help crippled kids and the arrival of the Easter Bunny by helicopter.

There were also the traditional religious observances. About 300 attended a sunrise service on Parliament Hill, sponsored by the Ottawa Evangelical Ministerium. More than 1,000 Mormons from Ontario and New York State gathered at Niagara Falls, Ont., for another early-morning service.

Meanwhile, the accidental death count had reached 61 by early Sunday evening, 32 in traffic. The Canada Safety Council had predicted that 55 to 60 would die on Canada's highways during the 78-hour week-end from 6 p.m. Thursday to midnight Sunday night.

Last year 53 were killed in traffic accidents during the Easter holiday period.

The nation's Easter observance carried over to today with an Easter-egg race in Nanaimo, B.C. Mayor Frank Ney said it would feature the biggest Easter Egg the world has ever seen.

"As far as I know he just bits people with it."

Crowd Estimates Vary

Toronto Demonstrators Want Peace

TORONTO (CP) — Beagles, babies and anti-Vietnam war demonstrators marched through downtown Toronto Sunday in a protest for "peace" and "freedom."

The march terminated at Toronto city hall where Toronto rabbi Abraham Feinberg said:

"Easter means peace and for the Jews it is passover and that means freedom. This demonstration is for peace and freedom."

Estimates of the number of demonstrators varied widely. A spokesman for the Mobilization To End The War In Vietnam committee, organizers of the march, said there were 10,000 marchers. A CBC spokesman said 3,000 marchers were counted and that there were 8,000 people at city hall. A city hall official estimated the crowd at city hall at 30,000.

Police said there was no violence. However, there were some hecklers.

Police arrested three youths but said they were not connected with the march. The arrests came as young extremists tried to force their way through police lines into city hall. Earlier, the youths were rebuffed when they tried to seize microphones.

Under blue skies and a temperature of 45, television commentator Ed Barton addressed the demonstrators, mostly long-haired youths, and said the Vietnam war was "silly, futile, and stupid."

"It is virtually impossible for anyone to win. The losers are the Vietnamese people.

The marchers carried brightly colored placards, a majority critical of the Canadian government's stand on Vietnam and chanted a slogan aimed at Prime Minister Trudeau and External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp.

Easter Bonnet Protesters Hold Unique Demonstration

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Using the traditional Easter bonnet as a symbol of protest against what they called social inequality, about 15 women attended a Roman Catholic Church service Sunday without covering their heads.

Rev. James J. Wamser, celebrant of the mass at St. John de Nepomuc church, admonished the demonstrators when he discovered they were in church without headwear.

The demonstration was sponsored by the Milwaukee chapter of the National Organization for Women. After the mass, the group handed out pamphlets which read: "Hats off now, women. Let us not be humiliated, let us not be treated as second-class Christians. . . ."

A spokesman, Mrs. Robert G. Ulrich, said her group wants to "raise the consciousness of the men and women of the parish that this type of hat covering is actually a symbol of the subjection of women. Therefore, it is a symbol of inequality."

Church Gives Away $1,900 - - for Profit

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Byron United Church hopes to prove it is more profitable to give than to receive.

When the collection plates were passed Easter Sunday, members of the congregation were asked to take money out instead of putting it in.

A total of $2,000—in new $5 bills—was offered at three services. The congregation took $1,930 and the rest was returned to the bank.

Those who took money are expected to turn it into a profit for the church.

The scheme is borrowed from the parable of talents in the New Testament, in which one servant was given five talents, a second two and another one.

In his sermon Sunday, Rev. D. G. Story said that the servant who received five talents traded them and made five talents more. Likewise he that had received two talents also gained two more.

"But he that had received one went and digged in the earth, and hid his Lord's money."

Major War Threat 'Real' Says Hussein

Harry Mulloch

A Day-Old--Ouch!--Dandy!

The quickness of the hand doesn't always deceive the eye — even of a day-old calf, as five-year-old Susan Chilvers finds, as newest addition to father's Foxboro farm livestock shows. But then, it's no ordinary calf. Weighing a king-size 118 lbs. at birth Sunday, it stands 30 inches and is cross-bred between Holstein and Charolais stock.

U.S. Modifies Proposal For Nuclear Inspection

GENEVA (Reuters) — The United States, in a major policy shift, today proposed that nuclear weapons countries should cut off production of fissionable material—the essential ingredient for a nuclear bomb—and open plants to international inspection.

Earlier U.S. cutoff proposals have involved substantial mutual inspection. But today U.S. ambassador Adrian S. Fisher suggested to the disarmament committee this should be carried out by the IBI-nation International Atomic Energy Agency in Vienna.

"This last element represents a change in the previous position of the United States," Fisher told the 18-nation committee.

Previously the U.S. had insisted on an inspection system involving substantial elements of adversary inspection, particularly in the search for undisclosed facilities. The Russians claimed this could lead to spying.

Fisher said such an argument "clearly cannot be applied to the inspection system we now are discussing."

A U.S. spokesman told reporters later the change from mutual to neutral—IAEA—policing was a "major shift in U.S. inspection policy."

Fisher told disarmament delegates a cutoff was "the one agreement that would be thoroughly effective in preventing the growth of the stockpiles of nuclear weapons."

The essential elements of the agreement would be:

1. From an agreed date, nuclear weapon states would halt all production of fissionable material such as enriched plutonium and uranium for use in nuclear weapons.

2. The production of fissionable material would be permitted in centres for purposes other than use in nuclear weapons-power and propulsion reactors and nuclear explosives for peaceful uses.

3. The IAEA would be asked to check the nuclear material in each country's peaceful nuclear activities and make sure facilities for the production of fissionable material remained closed.

Alexei Roshchin, chief Soviet disarmament negotiator, declined to make any immediate comment.

"We want to study and discuss the speech. It is not a simple matter. If I commented lightheartedly it would prove we were not ready for serious negotiations."

Toronto Streets Unsafe For Women After Dark

TORONTO (CP) — Night-time attacks have made Toronto streets unsafe for women alone after dark, Deputy Police Chief Bernard Simmonds warned today.

Attacks on women have become general across the city, the deputy chief said. "An attack could take place in the downtown area tonight and in one of the boroughs tomorrow night."

He said "a good scream is probably better than anything else" in scaring off assailants who usually follow their victims to a dark and deserted section of a street.

'Oh, dear. He wants to be a student!'

In this 102nd year of Confederation French Quebec stands at the threshold of new challenges. In a series of articles based on interviews with prominent Quebecois, Joseph MacSween of the Montreal staff of The Canadian Press reports on their views of what lies ahead.

The first article appears on page 5 today. The remaining four will appear on the same page for the remainder of the week.

Aqaba Duel Fought

From AP-Reuters

Israel and the Arabs battled at the head of the Gulf of Aqaba and across the Suez Canal today, with each side accusing the other of starting the hostilities.

The Israeli army said rockets from the Jordanian port of Aqaba landed on the nearby Israeli port of Elath, and Israeli air force jets quickly retaliated with an attack on the Jordanian port.

But the Arab guerrilla organization, charged that the Israeli planes struck first and said its troops shelled Elath with heavy rockets in retaliation. Al Fatah claimed its rockets heavily damaged "vital installations" in the Israeli town and port and killed or wounded a large number of Israelis.

Meanwhile, Israeli and Egyptian guns duelled across the Suez Canal throughout the morning. An attempt by UN observers to get a ceasefire at mid-morning failed, with Israel and Egypt each blaming the other for the continuation of fire.

Later UN observers managed to arrange ceasefire in both the Gulf of Aqaba and Suez Canal sectors after fighting had raged for more than five hours on each front.

A Jordanian army spokesman said eight civilians were killed, including a woman and four children, and nine were wounded when two Israeli jets fired rockets into a residential section of Aqaba.

An Israeli army spokesman said the planes were dispatched to silence rockets fired from Aqaba blasting Elath, Israel's gateway to East Africa and the Far East. The two port towns are only three miles apart at the head of the Gulf of Aqaba.

Donor Dead But Heart Kept Beating

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The woman whose heart was given to a man who survived for 65 hours on a mechanical heart was medically dead for 48 hours before the transplant, says Dr. Denton A. Cooley.

Haskell Karp, 47, who received the donor heart here Monday, was listed in satisfactory condition in St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital.

Cooley, the 48-year-old surgeon who performed both operations on Karp, said Monday night in Detroit that the donor, Barbara Kwas, 46, was medically dead 48 hours prior to the operation.

"She had complete brain damage and had no reflexes whatever," Cooley said. "She had been supported by extraordinary means."

Canoeists Marooned Six Hours on Isle

KITCHENER (CP) — It took the efforts of three scouts, police, and an emergency measures organization Monday to rescue two university students from an island in the Grand River.

University of Waterloo students Ronald Nelson, 24, of Toronto, and Jennifer Wyatt, 22, of Port Credit, Ont., were stranded for six hours after their kayak hit a rock.

The students had intended to shoot the rapids and proceed to Kitchener.

Police and members of the Wellington County Emergency Measures Organization tried five times to reach the island. Their boat overturned once.

Later, William Hillis, 13, used a bow to shoot a line 400 feet across the river, 20 miles northwest of here.

But before the line could be used as a support to get a boat across the river, the scouts, experienced canoeists and members of the Grand River Rover crew, reached the island.

The scouts were able to return the students to safety.

Death Penalty Won't Be Asked

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The state will not press for the death penalty for Sirhan Bishara Sirhan, the assassin of Senator Robert F. Kennedy—but will suggest it would be appropriate.

"We won't, in so many words, say to the jury 'bring in the death penalty,'" said Lynn D. Compton, chief deputy district attorney.

Jordan's King Visits Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jordan's King Hussein arrived for talks with President Nixon today, expressing fear that another major war threatens in the Middle East with the "possibility of outside involvement."

"If no solution is found I think the danger of another major conflict in the area in the not too distant future is very real," Hussein said Monday as he arrived in New York en route to talks with Nixon today.

The 34-year-old monarch who has steered his nation through 18 years of war and peril said he welcomes Big Four efforts to settle Middle East tensions and said he hopes they are successful.

But within hours after making his comments, guns blazed across the Jordan-Israeli border in another of the almost continuous duels that keep the region's tempers at white heat.

In another important development, Monday, State Secretary William P. Rogers declared at a news conference that "Israel . . . has a right to exist."

Rogers made no mention of any Arab countries directly, but his remarks were considered a rebuke to the Arab position.

Hussein is one of the most flexible and pro-Western of the Arab leaders. But he rules a land shorn of its richest province and overcrowded with refugees which has become a main base for Palestinian guerrillas waging hit-and-run war against Israel.

In advance of his meeting with Nixon, Hussein said he did not have a plan for peace but said "I do believe I have some

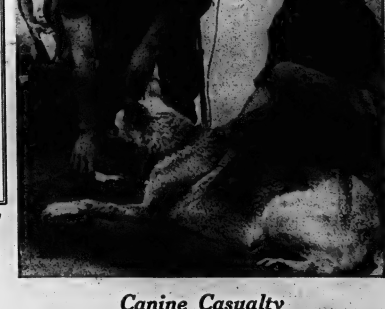
Dock Accord Is Won



MONTREAL (CP) — Agreement has been reached on a new three-year contract for Quebec longshoremen after a lengthy dispute which threatened to close down Montreal harbor, Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey announced today.

Mr. Mackasey said in a statement after all-night talks here that the International Longshoremen's Association and the Shipping Federation of Canada has reached agreement on the contract, which provides longshoremen with job security, increased pension benefits and increased wages.

It is subject to ratification by the ILA membership at a meeting Wednesday morning.

Specific terms of the contract were not revealed.

Involved in the dispute were longshoremen from the ports of Montreal, Quebec City and Trois-Rivieres.

Secret Peace Talks Believed Started

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The Nixon administration was reported today to be adopting a joint military-diplomatic strategy designed to de-escalate the Vietnam war within the next few months.

Although government officials remained silent, allied diplomats said there are strong indications American officials are engaged in secret contacts with Communist envoys outside the stalemated Paris peace talks, now in their 11th month.

Administration sources confirmed widespread reports of a new emphasis in negotiating strategy—which involves substantial changes from tactics followed by the Johnson administration.

But they refused to discuss details except to say President Nixon is convinced a negotiated settlement is attainable.

Observers said other signs of a new strategy include a decision last week to curb B-52 bombing raids in South Vietnam by 30 per cent and a refusal by the president to be swayed by military leaders pressing for strong retaliation after a Communist offensive in February.

Allied diplomats said Nixon's prime objective appeared to be an attempt to negotiate a phased withdrawal from South Vietnam—with the North Vietnamese matching man-by-man reductions of U.S. troop levels.

Unconfirmed reports recently said defence department officials were working on plans for withdrawing by the end of 1970 between 50,000 and 200,000 of the 549,000 U.S. servicemen in Vietnam.

Township May Set Up Own Planning Board

Sidney Township is considering setting up its own planning board.

Reeve Jack Bush told the rest of Sidney Council at yesterday's regular monthly meeting that they would have to make a decision — whether to remain a rural township or invest in the future and become an urban township.

The council discussed the creation of its own planning board in the light of one of the steps to investment in the future.

A small section of Sidney Township is a member of the Belleville and Suburban Planing Board and for this service the township pays $2,300 per year.

Mr. Bush feels that this is a needless expense when most of the township is left untouched by planning.

Council did not decide upon any action yesterday concerning the creation of its own planning board.

In other council action, a spokesman for Lakeland Properties, based in Toronto, joined with the council in discussing approval conditions by the department of municipal affairs for a summer resort subdivision to be constructed in Sidney Township.

The proposed subdivision would be situated on the west side of the Trent River just north of Frankford.

The subdivision would consist of 84 cottage lots of which 30 have already been sold.

Yesterday's meeting with the representative was a listing of the approval conditions to the subdivision.

Not Allowed

Gomme: Idea Not Feasible

A plan introduced to Sidney township council to provide them with their own planning board has met with opposition from both the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board and the Ontario Municipal Board.

Reeve Jack Bush promoted the idea at Sidney council's meeting yesterday and said that it was time for a decision to be made as whether or not Sidney was to remain a rural township or become an urban township.

He termed the $2,300 yearly expense Sidney pays for being part of the Belleville and Suburban planning board as a needless expense and said most of Sidney is left untouched by planning.

According to Horace Knight, chairman of the Belleville board, the formation of a separate planning board in Sidney would result in a "real mess".

"I don't think it could work," said Mr. Knight, "and I don't think the Ontario Municipal Board would allow them to form a separate board."

"We've got to work together on planning and two boards would make it more difficult," Mr. Knight stated. "It can't be done."

The question of a separate planning board for Sidney was first discussed at the provincial occasions.

Planning director Bert Kenny said that he had deep feelings about the matter but said it was not the type of thing he wished to discuss.

Mr. Bush had brought the matter up at a planning meeting in Madoc, about five months ago held to discuss regional planning.

E. A. Gomme, of the Ontario Municipal Board this morning revealed somewhat the stand he took five months ago that a separate planning board for Sidney was not feasible.

"I would have considerable reluctance to recommend that Sidney be designated as a separate planning area," he stated.

"I have said this before and nothing to my knowledge has changed since the past months which would cause me to reconsider."

Mr. Gomme however, pointed out that the township could make an application to be set up as a separate planning area and that the decision would have to be made by the minister.

"To my knowledge no application has been made yet," he concluded.

Probe Continues Into $250,000 Fire

Investigation of Front Street's latest major fire today entered its third day, with no official indication of cause.

Fire chief Leo Culhane said it may be "another couple of days" before the probe, headed by an Ontario Fire Marshal's inspector is complete.

The investigation seeking to pin down the cause of Saturday's fire — which caused an officially-estimated $200,000 - $250,000 — centres on the rubble that once was Moira Furniture.

The blaze erupted in the store minutes after closing time and took more than three hours to control.

Meantime, the adjacent Belle Theatre will reopen its doors tonight. Since the fire, work crews have been deodorizing the 840-seat auditorium which sustained smoke damage during the blaze.

Fund Goal — $3 Million

Competition Draws 464 Architects

TRENTON — The RCAF Memorial here is drawing almost as many architects from Canada as the number that entered the world-wide competition for the design of Toronto's city hall.

Maj. Norman Cairns, publicity director for the memorial fund, today said that the competition for the memorial will be drawing over 400 architects from across Canada.

"This is fantastic when you consider that the Toronto City Hall competition drew 500 competing architects and this was on a world-wide basis," said Maj. Cairns.

"We will be getting the top architects, the best it is possible to obtain."

And because of the response to the contest, Maj. Cairns feels the new memorial will be a peace of architecture without parallel in the country.

"I feel with the quality of the competitors, we will have Canada's first piece of architecture here in Trenton."

Building Fund Grows

TRENTON — A fever of generosity is hoped for by officials here to raise the mercury on a giant thermometer which will show the progress of fund raising for a new RCAF Memorial.

At present the 12 foot thermometers, outside the main gate at the Canadian Forces Base and at AMDU, will not get a chance to show their stuff until the response to the $3 million appeal begins.

But once the voluntary contributions begin to flow the amounts will be recorded on the thermometers.

To get the mercury to the top officials say $3 million is needed from the national appeal.

The campaign is directed to all serving and retired airmen.

L. A. Leicester, national coordinator for the memorial, said Trenton's goal has been set at $150,000. No public money will be spent on the memorial as all money will be raised by voluntary contributions.

He pointed out that if all air service personnel and former members of the RCAF assigned $1 per month for the next three years for the fund, the memory would have no trouble reaching the top.

Some service personnel have already assigned a certain amount of their pay to the fund while others have started to make contributions.

For Mr. Leicester the big job is contacting air person who have left the service. But he says most obstacles have been overcome and currently over 29,000 letters have been sent out to members and former members of the RCAF, soliciting their financial assistance.

But what the memorial will look like will be decided on May 25 when a board of judges chooses the winner of a national architects' competition.

Some 464 architects have registered for the competition posting no small job in front of the judges.

The successful architect will prepare working plans to enable construction to begin by the end of this year.

Highway Projects Announced

The Ontario department of highways proposes construction of an underpass across the Macdonald Cartier Freeway at the St. Hilaire Sideroad in Sidney Township during the 1969-70 fiscal year.

The underpass across 401 highway, east of Trenton, is included in the highways department construction program tabled in the Ontario Legislature last week.

Other work on Highway 401 this year includes 5.3 miles of resurfacing on both sides of the Salmon River Bridge.

Under a construction agreement with the city of Belleville, the department will pay 75 per cent of the cost of the new Dundas Street Moira River bridge to be built this year and also on much of the work in connection with the reconstruction of West Dundas Street between the river and Holden Street.

Excluded from province i a l subsidy will be the cost of lighting for the Dundas Street bridge.

Other highway work in the Hastings area includes paving of the Highway 7 route between Actinolite and the Madoc by-pass and resurfacing of 5.1 miles east of Actinolite.

Also on Highway 7 tenders have been called for grading, drainage, granular base and paving of 8.9 miles between Marmora and the Madoc bypass.

Completion of the above work will see the Highway 7 route brought up to standard from Marmora east to Perth.

Also proposed in the Belleville area is clearing on Highway 14 between Foxboro and Stirling preparatory to resurfacing Highway 14 in this area.

In Prince Edward county the highways department will continue reconstruction of 4.5 miles of Highway 49 north from Picton and will clear 2.1 miles of Highway 33 between Bloomfield and Picton in readiness for rebuilding.

At Trenton the approaches to the 2,100 foot span on Highway 33 will be rebuilt.

Fire Damages Home

Two fire departments rushed to Consecon late yesterday afternoon when a fire broke out at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Weeks.

According to the deputy fire chief in Trenton, the blaze broke out in the back part of the kitchen shortly after five o'clock.

"It was burning around the chimney but we're not sure if that's where the blaze started," he said.

As part of the mutual aid fire fighting program Wellington also sent a truck to the scene to help fight the blaze.

Firemen were able to bring the fire under control but not until it had destroyed the kitchen and a room above the kitchen.

However, the rest of the home suffered extensively from heat, smoke and water damage.

Damage to the home has not been officially estimated but firemen say the cost will be somewhere between $3,000 and $5,000 by the time the kitchen area is rebuilt, a new roof put on and the rest of the home repaired.

The elderly Mr. and Mrs. Weeks have only been living in Consecon for a short time, moving in from a farm. They have moved back out to the farm until the home is repaired.

WILLIAM CECIL COCHRANE
(Deseronto)

DESERONTO — A retired banker, former Customs and Excise officer and accomplished musician, William Cecil Cochrane, 181 Dundas Street, Deseronto, died in Napanee Hospital on Monday in his 85th year.

Mr. Cochrane was born in Ireland, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Cochrane and came to this country as a young boy. At an early age he entered the employment of the Molson Bank, later absorbed by the Bank of Montreal.

He started his career in Quebec where he served a number of years, then left the bank to enter the Customs and Excise department. He served in Morrisburg for 22 years and then was moved to Napanee, where he took up residence in Deseronto and had been retired for 22 years.

He served during the First World War and during that time put his musical ability to good use by entertaining the troops in many sectors. On returning to civilian life his family in music and they formed a musical group that entertained people in all parts of Canada.

Mr. Cochrane played in the orchestra of the Belle Canada troop.

Mr. Cochrane was an accomplished musician, able to play most any instrument, but the cello was his favorite instrument. He was a member of the United Church in Deseronto and played and sang in the choir for many years.

Fraternally he was a life member of Excelsior Lodge A F and A M No. 142 of Morrisburg.

Surviving are his wife, the former Maude Elizabeth Jones, three sons, Irving Donald Cochrane, Forest Credit, John Stuart, Willowdale, Robert William, Faymount and one daughter, Mrs. Urban (Patricia K.) McCulloch, Montreal, Mrs. Douglas (Adelina A.) Lyon, Downsview, Mrs. Allen (Isabella M.) Martin, Weston, Mrs. Norman (Doreen A.) Tuff, Ancaster, Mrs. Robert (Katherine M.) Robin, Napanee, Mrs. Lloyd (Grace A.) Edwards, Jr., Iroquois Falls, Mrs. Ross (Jessica L.) Cox, Ventura, California.

Also surviving is one sister, Mrs. Harold (Georgina) Hammond, Belleville.

Mr. Cochrane is resting at the White and Morris Funeral Home. Service will be held in the chapel on Thursday, April 10 at two o'clock.

Interment will be in Deseronto cemetery with Rev. W. Hendry officiating.

Plaza Protest Ready -- 11,000 Signatures

The Citizens of Belleville Committee — originally organized to protest a provincial government ban on the north end plaza project — may play a continuing, unique role in civic affair.

Last night the committee — now wrapping up a city-wide petition on the plaza controversy — opted to become a collective ombudsman, processing civic grievances.

The new role will be more clearly defined when the committee drafts a constitution — a basic first step endorsed last night by the membership.

However, preliminary guidelines mooted by members cast the committee as "non-political" prepared to investigate, and fight "injustices."

The proposal received immediate approval from one prominent civic source — Mayor Russell Scott, present at last night's meeting at the Park Dale home of committee chairman Donald Clement.

The mayor suggested the group also be prepared to support city council when necessary.

Further action on the proposal will likely await completion of the committee's founding project — the plaza protest.

The petition is now almost complete after two weeks' circulation across Belleville and Mr. Clement believes final tallies now will show about 11,000 signatures.

It will be presented to Attorney General Wishart at Queen's Park April 15.

With the petition — requesting the Ontario Municipal Board reverse its ruling against the $3,000,000 plaza development or hold new public hearings to reconsider its verdict — goes a brief, being kept under wraps until the official presentation.

Committee member Ian Reilly said the door-to-door canvass by signatures revealed an enthusiastic response by Bellevillians to the protest.

Mr. Reilly, a regional shoe union organizer and former NDP election candidate, told the meeting only one-to-two per cent of citizens canvassed refused to sign the petition.

Householders were submitting their signatures even when they didn't believe the petition would be politically effective, he claimed, and this showed a general disenchantment with the OMB decision.

"It's about time we found out if the government will recognize us," he told the meeting. "People are browned off that somebody in Toronto is telling us what to do . . . when we can collect taxes and create jobs without it costing us any money."

Robert Guthrie, a city barber, agreed that loss of the plaza development cost Bellevillans a job source.

But Mayor Scott cautioned the committee not to be disillusioned if its petition failed to bring results.

"Don't be discouraged if you get turned down — we're going ahead (in municipal progress) in spite of it," he said. "We're going to have jobs — and lots of them, Belleville is going ahead."

At Queen's Park, the petitioners will be introduced to the attorney general by Dr. R. T. Potter, MPP Quinte. They also will meet with NDP leader Donald MacDonald and city Liberals now are arranging an interview with Liberal leader Robert Nixon. Last night's meeting was told.

Delegation Wants Lower Taxes on Sewers

TRENTON — A 1964 petition, claimed to have been circulated under false pretences and having forged signatures, moved a delegation last night to demand that the council lower their taxes listed under local improvements.

The delegation included 30 residents from Edward street and they were complaining about the taxes they had to pay due to the construction in 1967 of a sewer and a water main on that street.

"The taxes we are paying for this construction is way out of line, it is ridiculous and we want something done about it," said Orvil Link, spokesman for the group.

However, council had been presented in 1964 with a petition signed by 74 per cent of the residents on Edward street asking that a sewer be installed.

But the residents say they did not interpret the petition in this way.

"We thought the petition was only to inform council of the need for a sewer—there was nothing mentioned about construction or cost," said Mr. Link.

According to Mayor James MacDonald, council regarded the petition as an official go ahead for the project. As a result a new sewer was installed on part of the street along with a new watermain.

Although the watermain was not mentioned in the petition, Mayor MacDonald explained that this was put in under a section of the municipal act which allowed council to construct the main.

"It was cheaper to do the two jobs at once", explained the mayor.

And last night the irate residents said the taxes they were paying for these services were too high. The cost in taxes on a lot of 50 foot frontage, which is the size of the average lot on Edward Street, is $90 a year over a 15 year period for the sewer and the watermain.

"If we have to pay this we can't afford to live in Trenton", said Mr. Link.

Clerk - comptroller O. W. Larry pointed out that both projects were advertised and no objections were filed.

But this did not matter to the delegation for they believed they were victimized.

"Many persons who have their names on this petition have told me they never signed it," said Mr. Link.

One woman said she had never seen the petition but stated her name was on it. There were cries of "this is ridiculous" and "if something isn't done we will move out."

Mr. Link recounted an incident concerning one man who was completely paralyzed on the right side of his body and his signature appeared on the petition. According to the spokesman the man was right handed.

And no one seems to know who circulated the petition.

Mayor MacDonald said he will look into the matter of the petition but pointed out that the delegation should not expect too much.

"You signed it and it gave us the go ahead for the project", he explained. "We advertised the project and no one objected."

"Well, we can't afford to live in Trenton if we have to pay these taxes", replied Mr. Link.

"The only way I can do anything is if the signatures on that petition are forged", said the mayor.

"We'll get the person who circulated it and let's all meet together", said Mr. Link.

The mayor said he will investigate the matter.

Post Office Could Be Sold

TRENTON — The old post office here could be sold, but the decision is not definite.

Councillor Stanley Ketcheson, chairman of the general government committee, last night told council that when all costs are taken into consideration the price for renovating the building for a police station or a municipal building will be too high.

The cost estimates exceed the $250,000 limit set by the voters when they chose to maintain the structure during last December's election.

Although all previous prices mentioned by the councillor had been below the quarter of a million dollar limit, he pointed out that these did not include purchase price, debenture and grant charges.

With all this included the cost for a new police station in the building would be $250,000 while renovations for a municipal building would total $274,000.

These costs do not include any of the interior furnishings.

As a third alternative councillor Ketcheson's committee proposed that the building be sold under the condition that if it were demolished the new owner would have to agree to maintain the clock tower.

In this way, according to councillor Ketcheson, the town would recover all the costs it has incurred on the building since the municipality purchased it in 1967.

The committee was quick to point out, however, that it should be considered if the electorate would be willing to spend the extra revenue on the renovation of the building. The costs mentioned last night go some $9,000 and $24,000 over the limit set by the people during the municipal election.

And the committee has thrown the ball back to council. It has labelled the problem of just what to do as one which should be decided by council.

Council hopes to have a final decision by the next meeting.

Court Decision Discussed

TRENTON — The press took a beating last night at Trenton council.

One councillor didn't like reading about events in the paper before he had heard about them himself.

Councillor Douglas Kinney said the first he heard of a recent Supreme Court decision concerning the Power's property was in the paper.

The decision granted ownership of the property to Powers. The town claimed it owned the land.

"I believe we as councillors should be informed of events such as this and not have to read about them in the newspaper," said councillor Kinney.

He added that the only facts he knew of the Power's case were those which he read in the paper. The mayor said he was in the same predicament on this particular issue.

As a result it was agreed that the town would have the lawyers who handled the Supreme Court case come to town and tell them why they lost.

"All the money we spent on legal fees goes to waste if we don't know where we were wrong," said councillor Ketcheson.

All of council agreed except for councillors E. M. Packer and Paul Tripp.

For them it was an exercise in futility. As councillor Tripp put it, "We took the case to the highest court in the land, we lost and that's it."

Councillor Parker thought it cheaper to write a letter on her then to have the lawyer come to Trenton.

Wages Boosted

TRENTON — The office workers employed by the town of Trenton will be getting an across the board pay hike of eight and one half per cent this year with the same raise for 1970.

The agreement between the town and local 739 of the CUPE was tabled at council last night.

According to clerk comptroller O. W. Larry, there was little difficulty for both parties "to arrive at an agreement and there is little change in the contract.

The chief ammendment to the contract is the 17 per cent pay hike over two years.

The salary boost has been set up for 13 various classifications of office workers. The lowest classification, clerk typist, under the agreement will receive $3,797 this year and $4,120 in 1970.

The highest classification, planning officer, will be boosted to $7,486 this year going up to $8,122 in 1970.

Trenton Still Wants Marina

TRENTON — Council last night decided that, although it is at least five years away it will not abandon plans for a public marina on the east side of the Trent river.

The decision came after the department of public works in Toronto asked council if it would abandon their marina for one which would be built on the west side of the river by Glenburnie Investments Ltd.

The department said they had been approached by Eben James of Glenburnie Investments concerning the project.

Mayor James MacDonald said he could not see the town having the money for its marina for five years, while councillor Paul Tripp said it might be as far as 15 years away.

Councillor Tripp was insistant that when council replied to the department it should say it would go along with the Glenburnie project as long as it did not jeopardize the town marina.

"Our marina is at least 10 years away and we should not let it hold up another project," he said.

But councillor Gerald Weaver said the letter asked council only if it would abandon its marina for this other one and added that no additional comment was necessary.

Council decided to simply tell the department they would not abandon their marina in favor of one on the west side of the river.

SNAKES ACQUIRED

WINNIPEG (CP) — Two coral snakes, ten-inches as venomous as cobras, arrived at the University of Manitoba recently from the Fiji Islands to be used for instructional purposes in the zoology department. They join a number of timber rattlesnakes which were acquired last fall.

DON'T BE LED UP THE GARDEN PATH TOO SOON . . .

Wait until the ground is thoroughly warmed up before planting vegetables and flower seeds. Onion sets and peas can stand early planting, but most seeds will simply rot in the ground if sown before the early part of May.

Best bet is to cultivate the garden a few times to eliminate weeds and work in some fertilizer . . . let the soil loosen up and the sun warm it for a while before sowing seeds. Your harvest will come sooner and be a whole lot more satisfactory if you wait until the soil and the season are ready.

Yet Once More!

All day Sunday they came — cars and more cars. They poured into Belleville via North Front Street and Station Street. Was it the ashes of yet another downtown conflagration that attracted them? We suspect it was, for people are not in the habit of flocking into the city in such numbers, even on a sunny Easter Sunday.

As it was, no traffic was permitted on Front Street and this created a fair-sized tie-up of vehicles at the junction of Pinnacle and Station Streets and the Upper Bridge.

The entire scene spoke volumes for the very pressing and contemporary need of downtown renewal — not to mention the boredom that attracts the population from miles around to any unusual (well not so unusual) occurrence such as a fire.

There was the inevitable cluster of people on Sunday watching from across the street as a work crew tidied up around the site of the blaze. And it was an unhappy spectacle — representing further thousands of dollars lost in property damage and city assessment. Unfortunately, it is one to which Belleville has become fairly accustomed.

Israeli Progress

The fighting between Israel and its Arab neighbors is one of the tragedies of the day. Territory where Christ was born and spent his brief sojourn on earth today is the scene of conflict. It is one of the ironies of our time.

Happily, life goes on as usual in these lands, despite the sporadic artillery fire and skirmishes between Arab and Israeli forces. Recent publications testify to the growth of Israel which is home to both Arab and Jewish populations. It is a country with a high standard of living and for all the turmoil there it is a happy land. The smiling, handsome youngsters on the cover of "Facts About Israel, 1969" testify to this.

Although the Israeli population has trebled since 1948, the building of new houses has kept pace. Since then the Government has erected more than 380,000 permanent dwellings — and this in a country of some 2,600,000.

Modern business houses and apartment dwellings have sprung up in recent years in cities such as Haifa, pictured on the cover of this month's Presbyterian Record. The main port and centre of Israel's heavy industry is seen from the slopes of historic Mount Carmel.

The troubles of the Middle East, the tension between Arab and Jew are centuries old. They likely will not be solved in our time. However, it is in the recognition of territorial rights and the pursuit of the kind of economic progress discussed here that the best interests of peace lie.

No Show

Toronto's Easter Parade on Bloor Street evidently was something of a flop because unlike New York's traditional affair few thought to get into their Sunday best, let alone anything remotely resembling the see-and-be-seen outfits that make for an attractive showing on such an occasion.

It seems everyone came expecting to see a parade and forgot that an Easter Parade is an informal, self-involving business with everybody getting in the act. As The Globe and Mail's Betty Lee put it, it didn't occur to those lining the sidewalk waiting for something to happen, "that they themselves were the parade."

Now there was a fashion show (and everyone thought perhaps the parade would start after that) and there was this New York blonde in blue leather — according to reporter Betty Lee one of an organizing group for the show, and very inevitably lugging a pencil. And suddenly she delivered herself of this seering observation: "Oh, this is a great city. In New York they are rude with personality. Here they are rude without personality, which makes it a little hard to take."

There in a nutshell are New York and Toronto. Just what the remark had to do with the Easter Parade or lack of it, is not altogether clear, but it is not too difficult to imagine the typical crowd scene on families in this continent, of people standing around waiting to be amused, and they are upset because nothing much is happening.

Now if only those looking for a parade had all turned up dressed for the occasion, rather than expecting others to make the scene for them. But perhaps Torontonians (or even Canadians at large) have not got the confidence for that sort of thing. It is as the Hungarian-born writer Stephen Vizinczey once said: "Canadians are embarrassed by self-confidence — they regard it as almost indecent. . ."

TV 'Parliament' Sidetracks Real Business of the House

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Now that your MP is back home there in the constituency — or should be, both for a rest and a sniffing of the political winds blowing across his riding's grassroots — ask him about that other House of Commons.

The unofficial one. But the one you get to see and read about almost as much, sometimes, as the official one itself.

It is the one just outside the doors of the Commons, in the vaulted rotunda of the Centre Block.

This unofficial House holds daily sessions immediately after the Question Period in the Commons.

It's "members" are cabinet backbench stars from all parties and as many press, radio and television newsmen as can jam in a semi-circle around the TV cameras.

The performance out there so often upstages and out-headlines that in the Commons, parliamentarians have been protesting to the prime minister.

Conservative Leader Stanfield and New Democratic Leader Douglas among others have complained that what goes on in the Commons during the Daily Question Period often is little more than a "warmup" for the performance outside in the unofficial "House" in the rotunda.

What is worse, they have told the prime minister, is that some members of his cabinet talk out of both sides of their mouth, telling it one way in the Commons and another a few minutes later out in the rotunda.

They see it as a "contempt of Parliament."

And as the most "contemptuous," they have fingered Transport Minister Hellyer.

What seems to happen in such situations is that the member of the cabinet being questioned by the Opposition in the Commons clams up on the requested information.

Or he comes out with it grudgingly, telling perhaps only half the story.

It could be the fault of the fun and games of the Daily Question Period itself, which, basically, is a quiz show.

The Opposition pops what it hopes is an embarrassing question at the minister, and if it is an awkward query, he does his best not to answer it. Or, if his arm is being twisted, to answer it with minimum damage to himself or the government.

But out in the rotunda, he can answer it any way he wants. He can toss in all sorts of information to window-dress it. And what in the Commons threatened to be an embarrassment can be transformed, in a few well-slanted words and nicely tailored phrases, into a carefully calculated advantage.

And while he may be penned in behind a picket fence of radio and TV mikes, he isn't on the official parliamentary record.

So what the heck — why not tell it the way he thinks or wishes it were, even if he does not really tell it the way it actually is.

It is not dishonest, nor even deceitful. It is simply verbal "editing" of his answer, a "color" or "snow" job to put the best possible face on it.

Since it is not stilted like his formal replies in the Commons because it is brief and blunt, stripped of qualification, it tells the story better, in black and white without the greys of stylized debate.

Few that is what the Daily Question Period in the Commons really is — debate in a pow-sap-wham style, but still and all, debate.

The result almost routinely is that what happens just outside the House makes more news than what happens inside.

The problem troubles both the government and the opposition. Both are searching for a solution.

Stanfield put it best in a formal bill of complaint:

"If debate in Parliament (or the newsmaking Question Period is to be replaced by monologues on radio and television, then one more blow has been struck at the power of Parliament."

He sees the "unofficial House" out there in the rotunda of the Commons as a "bypass" of Parliament.

And, he warns, "if Parliament is bypassed and weakened, the power of Canadians to control the government between elections becomes indirect and illusory." If Parliament is weak, the power of decision is transferred to the bureaucracy, and the power to question decisions becomes suspended and we are all less free."

Core of the problem is that the taxpayer can't talk back to the cabinet minister on television — he can talk back through his MP to the same cabinet minister in the House.

The only solution might be to clear the Commons rotunda of the TV cameras and cables and permanently recess this "unofficial House," while permitting some controlled live electronic coverage of Parliament.

Catch there is that Parliament on TV and radio might put the taxpayers to sleep.

"He could save the country all that money merely by getting married. A wife would give him all the advice he needed absolutely free."

Letters to the Editor

Armouries Rental and The Science Fair-Hobby Show

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

As one of the exhibitors in the hobby section of the Rotary Annual Science Fair and Hobby Show held in the Armouries last month, I would like to protest the decision of the Department of National Defence in raising the rental-fee to the Rotary Club for this worthwhile project. The local Commanding Officer had previously tried without avail to have this rental-fare reduced by the Department. This request was rejected for the reason that admission was charged at the door thus qualifying the project as for charitable purposes.

The Science Fair section of the show is comprised of entries from secondary and public school students in the Quinte area and the winners are sent to the National Science Fair in Regina. The rental-fee had been raised sufficiently to cut the net proceeds originally intended for sending four winning students; now, only enough money remains to send the two winning students. When students have taken enough interest to prepare, submit and attend their hobbies for two days, they should be encouraged and the incentive and possibility of attending the Regina fair for the winners should not be cut in half!

As far as the Department of National Defence is concerned, the armouries' building has to be maintained, regardless (and incidentally, on taxpayers' money) it should not be in operation for a profit-motive.

This action should be vigorously protested, as it was recently in The Intelligencer.

Millions of dollars have been spent by the governments in the past on any number of projects such as the CBC, Canada Council and the Company of Young Canadians, so they should not begrudge the loan of a building for use of Canadians equally young — and — (perhaps more deserving?) — as this is a self-supporting project that the Rotary Club puts on each year.

I would therefore request the Department of National Defence to reconsider this matter and make amends to the public, the Rotary and to the young people of the Quinte area, by not only rescinding their recent decision but at least for one time, forego the rent entirely!

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

April 8, 1949

Checker playing enthusiasts from the Eastern Ontario district will convene in the city on Easter Monday at the Hotel Quinte to participate in the annual spring checker tournament.

Rev. Robert Hall, of Saskatoon, superintendent of Home Missions of the United Church of Canada for Northern Saskatchewan will take part in the Sunday evening services at Bridge Street United Church. He was the last minister of John Street United Church which was destroyed by fire in 1926, the congregation disbanding in 1937. Rev. Mr. Hall has been attending the annual meeting of the Board of Home Missions in Toronto.

In a swimming meet held at the Trenton RCAF Station, the Air Force team defeated Mr. Heach's natators of Albert College by a score of 49 to 17.

Kay Trusiach, nurse in training at Hotel Dieu, Kingston, is visiting her mother, Mrs. J. M. Trusiach.

Jean Stobie who is attending Branksome Hall, will spend the Easter holidays at her home here.

A team of lady bowlers, representing the Belleville YMCA, journeyed to Peterborough who they engaged in a friendly exhibition bowling match versus a Peterborough ladies team. The home team won the match by a total score of 2220 to Belleville's 2156. The Belleville team was composed of Mrs. Charles Mott, Mrs. W. C. Morgan, Mrs. Russell Smith, Mrs. Edson Logan and Mrs. Jack McIntosh.

Easter Seals Campaign Aids Crippled Children

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

On July 1st last year I was appointed chairman of the crippled children's committee of Belleville Rotary Club.

Since then I have visited many of these crippled children and have seen the handicap under which they live. Most of them, in spite of their handicap and pain have a very cheerful spirit, something that can put us who are not so handicapped to shame.

This is one group that we should all like to help. An opportunity is given through buying Easter Seals. There has been much publicity this year, of the need, and the Rotary Club has sent out some 13,000 requests for donations along with the Easter Seals. What has surprised me is the fact that only 1,500 people have responded to date to this request, with total donations of $2,500. These have responded well, but what about the other 11,500?

Is it because there are so many calls for help or because the appeal is mislaid and forgotten or is it that people are just indifferent? Perhaps people think their bit won't help. If all 13,000 only gave $1 per family, that would be $13,000 — more than enough for the need in Belleville and area.

Donations may be sent to the Manager of the Royal Bank, 241 Front Street, Belleville.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By The CANADIAN PRESS

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover told a U.S. Senate subcommittee 18 years ago today — in 1951 — that a "hard core" of trained Communists was ready to sabotage vital industries in the event of war. He set the number of known Communists at 43,217. The next day, he said loyalty checks had resulted in the dismissal of 304 government employees and the resignation of 2,941 others under investigation.

Montreal Airport Issue

The Thin Dividing Line of Parliamentary Privilege

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — A cabinet minister can make the most colossal goof in the administration of his department without it constituting breach of parliamentary privilege and thus bringing on a committee inquiry.

That, in effect, was the substance of a ruling by Commons Speaker Lucien Lamoureux last week.

The ruling does not mean, however, that a minister can loose things up in his department and automatically escape Parliament's censure.

In such a case, the Commons as a whole would have to deal with the matter and likely on the basis of an opposition motion that the Commons had no confidence in the government as long as that minister was still in its ranks.

Eldon Woolliams, the Conservative lawyer MP for Calgary North, tried to get either a Commons committee investigation or a judicial inquiry into the activities of Transport Minister Paul Hellyer and Regional Expansion Minister Jean Marchand.

These activities concerned the pre-recording for broadcasting stations of the cabinet's decision on the site for the new Montreal airport. Five days before the decision was finally made or announced.

Mr. Woolliams maintained that the incident constituted a cabinet leak which could have led to land speculation. Mr. Hellyer denied any breach of cabinet secrecy or any possibility of quick profits by land speculators.

Speaker Lamoureux ruled out a committee investigation, Prime Minister Trudeau rejected a judicial inquiry and the case died away, at least until after the Easter recess.

The Speaker said in his ruling:

"Allegations of misjudgment, or mismanagement, or maladministration on the part of the minister in the performance of his ministerial duties, does not come within the purview of parliamentary privilege."

In more than 100 years, only one case had occurred in which the conduct of a minister had been subject to review as the result of a claim of breach of parliamentary privilege.

In that case, however, the minister's personal conduct and not administration of his department was involved. The minister had used inside dope he received as a minister to withdraw his money from a bank before it collapsed.

What, then, is parliamentary privilege?

It is, basically, the means by which an MP can continue to function as an MP without harassment.

For instance, an MP cannot be sued for libel for what he may say in the Commons.

He is entitled to Commons protection against threats, intimidation and misrepresentation.

In certain limited circumstances, he cannot be arrested.

He is exempted from court duty as witness or juror.

The Commons as a whole also has certain privileges: To protect its own good name; to protect witnesses it summons; to set its own rules.

As the Speaker said, parliamentary privilege concerns all MPs but not in any special capacities that may have, such as ministers, party leaders, parliamentary secretaries or whips.

Belated Sprint Takes Quebec to Threshold of New Challenge

MONTREAL (CP) — French-Canadians in Quebec — or Quebecois, to use a term much in favor now—have been running hard in the last few years to catch up with the rest of North America.

So where is Quebec now in the lifted face of Confederation, and what's the outlook?

French-Canadians do speak of progress already made. But thoughtful leaders assert in more passionate terms that their belated sprint has merely carried them to the threshold of new challenge—breathtaking in scope, its cost unknown, its nature not fully understood.

"The big challenge to French Canada is an economic challenge," said Dr. Roger Gaudry, 43, rector of the University of Montreal, French-Canadian pioneer in industrial research, vice-president of the Science Council of Canada.

"The language we have and can keep if we want. We now have good contacts with France. We have our own schools, universities. I'm not worried about that.

"My worry is the price of remaining French in North America. Are we ready to pay that price? Can we sufficiently develop our economy while maintaining the French culture and at the same time have access to an adequate share of the country's wealth?

"It's an altogether different challenge than was faced a century ago. It's one that can be faced only by highly trained people. Today you cannot create wealth without education."

Are the Quebecois being trained for the right things?

"More and more we're educating people for the right things," said Dr. Gaudry. "When I studied chemistry at Laval in the 1930s we had 30 undergraduates. That was all the science teaching at Laval and we were not much more numerous at University of Montreal."

Today U of M alone has 4,400 science undergraduates, including those in its Ecole Polytechnique, among 18,000 students and the proportion is similar at Quebec's two other French - language universities, Laval and Sherbrooke. The new University of Quebec, placing emphasis on teacher training and research, opens in September.

On the business side, "we've more than doubled in the last six years and now our enrolment is 1,560," said Roger Charbonneau, dean of the Ecole de Haute Etudes Commerciales, U of M's school of business administration. "When I attended this school in 1939 we had few more than 200 students."

"We tell our students: 'You are well-equipped. You have the American way of doing business, combined with two cultures. You have advantages in International firms.' In fact, we're setting up an international management program starting next year in our master's degree."

In computer science, U of M is in a category attained by only a handful of Canadian universities, said Dr. Jacques St.-Pierre, director of the "informatique" department.

Some 1,200 students from the various U of M faculties now are being taught computer science, including 55 at a highly advanced graduate level. "Within two or three years at the most no student will leave U of M without at least an introductory course in informatique," said Dr. St.-Pierre.

Quebec's educational reform and expansion—perhaps the most spectacular feature of Canadian life in the 1960s—have peaked to a 1969-70 estimated spending of $1,400,000,000, including the provincial government figure and the amount raised in school taxes on real estate. Government spending alone comes to more than 30 per cent of the total budget estimates.

"But you cannot assume that merely because you educate people you're going to get economic growth equivalent to the input in education," said industrialist Charles Perrault, member of the Economic Council of Canada.

"We started our revolution late, we had to go fast. This happened when education was generally moving ahead at a terrific rate. So we've been running like the devil and practically standing still. We chose the worst time to make our leap into the 20th century —when everybody else was going full blast.

"We've not succeeded in getting across to the young people the economic essence of the society we live in. These youngsters reacted very strongly to the destruction of the barriers which used to prevent all but a small number from reaching higher education."

The first wave of students from Quebec's 23 new junior colleges—known as CEGEPs—will graduate this spring, in a time already bristling with a variety of protest.

The number of these students opting for university and relatively unproductive callings—economically speaking—has dismayed authorities who expected them to grab for opportunities in the technical and business fields.

Several authorities say students should be guided or directed, perhaps by scholarships and bursaries, away from the social sciences—which, incidentally, generously breed or attract separatists.

The booming educational system has become a refuge for "misfits," said Mr. Perrault, recalling the old saying about selling insurance being the last refuge of the incompetent.

"Right now, I'd say the last refuge of the incompetent is education. There are some very competent people in education just as there always were in insurance, but frankly I can't think of a field where it is easier to be admitted. . . .

Quebec, heavily dependent on primary industry, needed to develop a much broader economic base in which the industrial system and the educational system could "feed," one another.

The province's high unemployment, front-page news month after month, was put in gripping terms by Mr. Perrault, who noted that new arrivals are hitting the labor market at 70,000 a year and "will continue to do so for the next several years."

"This is an almost incredible thing. An increase of about 1,000,000 in the working force in 15 years is unrivalled by any country in the world. If we don't create jobs we're going to have very deep social unrest."

Jean-Paul Letourneau, general manager of the Province of Quebec Chamber of Commerce, cited a lack of communication between education and industry, resulting in a gap in the right kind of manpower being produced. Employers were not consulted by the education department and, for instance, computer training was badly lacking.

"We've been pushing for 10 years for the department to introduce at the primary and secondary levels basic understandings of the economic system in which we live."

The whole picture was summed up cautiously by Dr. Gaudry after he remarked it is only too well known that French-Canadians, for a number of reasons, are not yet "playing a very major role in industry and business."

"Will the almost dramatic expansion of our educational system change that picture? Well, we hope so, but we cannot be certain. We only know these changes could not have been brought about without education."

And it was apparent that, one way or another, the impact of the student population would change all facets of life. "Events of the last seven or eight years have already changed the cultural aspects of life enormously. Our ability to produce artists in many fields is quite spectacular in the North American context."

But how do French-Canadians see the society of, say, the year 2000?

That kind of question is good for argument—or occasional hoots—anywhere in an era of general contestation, violence, groaning taxpayers, galloping technological change.

The idea of any permanent lessening of confidence in Quebec was slammed by Jean-Claude Lessard, president of Hydro-Quebec, who emphasized that the vast utility company has encountered no difficulty whatever in obtaining funds. Fifty per cent of its bond money comes from the United States.

"The question of what will be the French-Canadian population in the year 2000 will have an enormous bearing on our relative importance at that time," said Dr. Gaudry.

The once extremely high birth rate had dropped rapidly.

"Our spectacular growth in enrolment in French-speaking universities is bound to plateau around 1980," the rector added. "True many other changes in our society can modify that picture, but one would not be honest to ignore it now."

An English-language reporter who listens long to French-Canadians is struck by the way they look beyond the immediate question of federalism and separatism to the permanent realities of life in North America.

He doesn't always hear what he expects to hear. A federalist businessman, for instance, declares: "The biggest obstacle is the English-speaking people of Quebec, and the biggest hope is Ontario."

A separatist sociology professor muses: "The biggest problem is to retain the English population of Quebec and work with them. Personally I don't think we can do it otherwise." Can't make separatism work, that is.

A radical student leader regards the formidable Rene Levesque as a virtual reactionary. Mr. Levesque's separatism, to the younger activist, is only a step toward a whole "new normal" of sociopolitical action—a concept which, he feels, is shared more by like-minded English-language students than by older French-Canadians.

The student reserves his most blistering criticism for "rightist" young separatists who pose as agitators for social reform but are fired simply by the desire for "big cars and homes" in an independent Quebec of their own making.

The lesson seems clear that if there is — and, heaven knows, there is—a tendency to present the Quebec situation in complicated terms, the temptation to oversimplify is an even worse trap.

Industrialist Gerard Pioux, 53, says Canada's danger comes not from Quebec problems but a general disenchantment with society and he calls for new goals—perhaps aid to less-fortunate peoples.

This would be an objective infinitely more worthy than incessant clamor for a higher standard of living and so-called parity with the manifestly unhappy society in the United States.

Dr. Philippe Garigue, dean of social sciences at University of Montreal, put in striking perspective the emotional factors involved and the future of Quebec as it is seen by the intellectual community. One group thinks of a "sort of sentimentalized society, ideologically oriented toward political ideas."

"Then there are people like myself and a great many other Quebecers who are much more technologically inclined. We think that whatever happens to Canada, Quebec is a part of North America and its development will follow the development of North America.

"Whether or not there is a political boundary between Quebec and the rest is, as far as the long-term development is concerned, quite secondary. Let us put it as bluntly as that for a start."

French Quebec may have started slowly but now was catching up and developing in context of North America—"that is the first basic element."

"Whether we choose one political option or the other, the main trend of development is part of the North American way of life.

"Those people who like myself see this as inevitable—as certain, for instance, as that France is part of Europe—think that the problems Quebec has to solve are not of political priority but educational, scientific, technological. . . .

"There are some people—and I think they are the majority—who think that in the modern world, with greater and greater integration in the country and the world, it seems a bit ludicrous to give priority to a secondary political item called political autonomy.

"However, in discussing political autonomy it is no longer a rational argument that counts. It is heavily conditioned by emotional problems concerning language and status.

"Language is important—we can recite the bilingualism and biculturalism report—but status is not seen by most people outside Quebec as a fundamental question, and it is in Quebec."

The "highly visible" economic dominance of the English-speaking minority over the French-speaking majority in Quebec had become a deeply emotional factor. This was a matter of status. Why should the Anglos be decision-makers in matters affecting all? The French demand to know.

"It isn't a question of who is most fitted to make decisions, but simply: You have been making decisions for a very long time, we want to make the decisions ourselves.

"This factor of political autonomy is not so much a question of constitutional law, as far as the common people are concerned, as a factor of social activity. What is being done by whom?

"Today even people who consider themselves rationally inclined and technologically and scientifically oriented feel that unless in Quebec the French-speaking element do get into a position where they are in fact in control and seen to be in control, there will be a continuation of the tension, even if the English-Canadians are bilingual.

"A new balance between the groups is necessary to get rid of the tension over the status question."

Almost Any Fabric Used in Rainwear

CALGARY CP — Almost any fabric can be made into a raincoat as long as it can be waterproofed.

Canadian designer Lydia Sperlich uses drapery, cotton, wool, velvet and sheer dress fabric in rainwear designed to be worn at any time of day, in rain or shine.

This season she favors narrow, shiny coats in a variety of styles. Her plastic-coated materials often look more like stylish dresses.

"White is the most popular color this spring," she says. "It can be by itself or combined with black, navy or brown in stripes or checks."

A licensed pilot and a partner in a Montreal rainwear house, Lydia often flies to fashion showings across North America. She also travels to Europe for the textile fairs to find out the trends.

"We import some fabrics, but very few. We are trying to develop our own."

Born in Czechoslovakia where her mother was a designer, Lydia took a master's degree in design and worked in Prague and Cologne before coming to Canada in 1952.

She started as a machine operator in a sportswear factory. Within 10 years her labelled collections were seasonal events. She received the first Coty Canadian Fashion Critics Award in 1967 and has shown her designs in New York.

Rainwear with matching slacks is predominant this spring and many of her designs are belted.

"If they are not belted, they have a definite shape this year. The Twiggy look is out. In fact, even she is wearing falsies these days."

ST. CHARLES BORROMEO

The March meeting of the Read CWL was held Tuesday evening at St. Mary's School following Mass. President Mrs. William Buckley presided and the minutes of the last meeting were read by Mrs. Adrian Callaghan substituting for Mrs. Tom Callaghan. The correspondence was read.

It was agreed to hold a poverty lunch of tea instead of the usual potluck supper to be held April 15 at 8 p.m. Proceeds from the lunch will go towards development and peace.

Mrs. J. E. Walsh introduced the guest speaker, Rev. Father Raymond Shannon of Cardinal who spoke on Development and Peace in Santa Domingo. He spoke on how the Scarboro Foreign Mission priests, the Grey Nuns, the Hotel Dieu Sisters and the Canadian Aid are helping the people but there is much to be done. He spoke on the lenten theme "yesterday fasting for ourselves and today fasting for others".

Mrs. J. D. Walsh thanked the speaker and Father Ferguson closed the meeting with a prayer and lunch was served.

DON'T MIX

TWO LITTLE GIRLS WITH DOG — These two attractive coats in British wool cloth for little girls are by Kamella of Yorkshire. Both coats come in a combination of fawn, blue and pink.

MONTREAL BRIDE — This City of Montreal bridal creation, an aproned gown of sheer organza, is typical of the modern yet traditional influence. While some bridal outfits are produced as pant suits and gimmicky extremes, many brides still prefer the typical long, flowing designs - - - but not always in white. (CP Photo)

Brides Still Prefer Traditional Gowns

NEW YORK (CP) — Brides still prefer the traditional long gown, with trains and veils, New York designers say, but not necessarily in the traditional white.

Indeed, some fashion houses are showing pants-suits or mini-costumes for brides, but these are considered more a publicity gimmicks.

Exquisite Brides of New York places its accent this spring on youth, but it is a sophisticated young look. Interest centres on covered necklines and high bodices, and there is a minimum of ruffles. The back of the gown is treated importantly, too, since the guests see mostly the bride's back during the church ceremony.

Several "cage" gowns were included. One was in white lace over ivory satin; another had Swiss venise lace in a scatter floral effect.

Fabrics are varied, from satin-faced organza dacron with embroidery trim to a silk-and-worsted linen.

Color appears discreetly in a hand-crocheted venise lace gown of white over pink, with a pink velvet sash and tie, and also in point d'esprit lace over blue, complete with a Juliet cap of white lace flowers from which flows a point d'esprit train.

Designer Arnold Scaasi introduces a mod note in a softly folded gown and high collar, over which he arranged a sheer white plastic veiling to cover the bride from head to toe. Jacques Estérel feau goes modern with a sleeveless lace blouson worn over white organdy harem pants.

In Canada, Caty of Montreal also adopted the bridal pants-suit: One was an embroidered voile tunic over see-through pants, complete with pillbox instead of a veil. Several of her bridal gowns were definitely "way out, as the saying goes. Bride in a mini-skirted organdy top and sleeves worn with a cut-out lace sleeveless coat.

Caty also likes color. One gown, called Pink Lady, was created of appliqued daisies on pastel pink organdy over pale pink satin. On the back of her head the bride wears a small hat of daisies. Juliet is a gown of white and pink with a low-cut pink bodice, its tight sleeves ending in a pouff. Another gown was Russian-inspired, a real Anna Karenina, in a coat-dress of layered ecru and white lace, side closed with big ecru buttons. The bride carries an ecru muff.

Jacques Estérel of Paris even goes more modern with a white peau d'ange horizontally pleated floor-length suit. For going away after the wedding, the bride can unsnap the pleated tiers of the skirt for a travelling suit. Then later, for gala evenings, she puts the tiers back on, leaves off the jacket and she has a long pleain sleeveless tunic over the long layered skirt. Estérel prefers hats entirely, with no traditional veils unless the bride swaddling under the chin on some hats can be counted as veiling.

But the traditional gown still predominates in most bridal collections. Anna K of Vertical Greens designed one for the Canadian Cotton Council in rows of ruffled cotton organza, finished off with handkerchief lawn. Tiny buttons march from neck to toe.

Montreal Girl Is Miss Teenage Canada

TORONTO (CP) — Jewel McAvany, a 16-year-old brunette from Montreal, Monday night was crowned Miss Teenage Canada.

Miss McAvany, a student at Royal George high school, burst into tears when the judges' selection was announced, but stopped long enough to say that her, eyelashes were false.

"Everybody thinks they're false, but I've never worn false eyelashes," she said, breaking into happy tears again.

Chosen from 17 contestants, Miss McAvany became the second Montrealer to win a major beauty pageant in the last six months. Marie-France Beaulieu in November was crowned Miss Canada for 1968.

Selected as first runner up was Sheila McGuire, 18, of Ottawa. Diane Forman, a 17-year-old blonde from Quebec City and Susan Lowe, 18, from Calgary were chosen second and third runners-up respectively.

Jo-Ann Morgan of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., was not among those selected as finalists.

The new Miss Teenage Canada will receive a $2,000 education scholarship.

Saigon Woman Wages Campaign Against Vice

SAIGON (Reuters) — Mrs. Kieu Mong Thu is a glamor girl — moving gracefully around this South Vietnamese capital in flowing, ao-dais, wearing the highest pair of stiletto heels in town, her hair flowing down her back.

But wherever she points one of her long, painted fingernails people can expect trouble.

For Mrs. Thu, mother of four children, is waging a one-woman campaign against vice in the capital — trying to give a new life to the hundreds of bar girls who offer their charms for glasses of "Saigon tea."

Mrs. Thu, a deputy of the House of Representatives, first made local headlines when she claimed a fellow deputy was smuggling calendars semi-nude girls into the country.

The calendars were banned. Mrs. Thu, who wears gaily decorated traditional, tightly-fitting ao-dais — explained "this type of calendar was not good for Vietnam."

Now she is concentrating on the taverns, where Americans and other foreigners in town — few Vietnamese men go there — pay up to 300 piastres (about $2.50) for a beer and the same amount for a glass of tea for a bar girl so she will sit and talk with him and hold his hand.

PLAN SHOP

FORESTBURG, Alta. CP — A group of 148 high school students in this town, 120 miles southeast of Edmonton, has decided to cut down on school activities to raise $2,500 to equip a carpentry shop in a boys' home in Madras, India. The shop was built with $3,-250 raised by the school in the previous year.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

RYLSTONE WI

Rylstone Women's Institute had an attendance of 19 members for their annual meeting in the hall on Wednesday, April 2.

Mrs. E. Lindsay Anderson, president, was in charge of opening exercises.

Mrs. Murray Meiklejohn, secretary-treasurer gave a financial report of the past two months, including the games nights, which proved very successful and left no doubt be continued next year.

Mrs. Ernest Irwin and Mrs. Ella Jones were appointed delegates to attend the North Hastings District Annual Institute meeting to be held at Cooper, on May 7.

The Rylstone Branch will hold their regular May meeting on Thursday May 1.

It was decided to raise the rental charge for the hall, as the present amounts charged are hardly enough to defray expenses.

Plans are also under way for an inspection and probable repairs to the roof of the hall.

Annual reports were given by Mrs. Murray Meiklejohn, secretary-treasurer, and convenors of standing committees.

Mrs. Anderson, 1968-69 president, then declared all officers vacant and thanked all the members for their help and co-operation during a very busy and trying year.

Mrs. Eldon Anderson, chairman of the nominating committee, presented the slate of officers and Mrs. Ernest Irwin conducted the election of officers, which resulted, as follows:

President, Mrs. E. Lindsay Anderson to be assisted by Mrs. Eldon Anderson (chairman of the month), vice presidents, Mrs. Ernest Rowe, Mrs. Ernest Irwin, and Mrs. Jack Watson; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Murray Meiklejohn; assistant Mrs. Ellis Jones.

The district director will be Mrs. Eldon Anderson; alternate Mrs. E. Lindsay Anderson; branch directors Mrs. Ernest Stewart, Mrs. Stanley Kerr and Mrs. Jack Watson.

The convenors of standing committees are: citizenship and education Mrs. Donald Stewart; home economics and health Mrs. Frank Stone; public relations Mrs. Ellis Jones; resolutions Mrs. Gerald Barmon; Historical research Mrs. Hector Arnold; agriculture and Canadian industries, Mrs. Raymond Stewart; curator Mrs Stanley Kerr and press reporter, Mrs. Ella Jones.

Refreshments were served by the hostess Mrs. Ellis Jones, assisted by Mrs. Donald Stewart.

May hostess will be Mrs. Frank Stone assisted by Mrs. Percy Reid.

This will be the grandmother's meeting. The hostess will be given by Mrs. Stanley Kerr. There will be an exhibit of quilts, fashion tops and crochet work.

Couple Observe 25th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar D. Coles were entertained on Saturday, April 5, at the Maple Inn, Bloomfield to mark the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary.

Present to mark the happy event with them were their daughter Brenda and son-in-law John; also a son Albert and his friend Jo-Anne Dunfield. Also in attendance were both mothers of the honored guests, Mrs. L. Waite and Mrs. R. Coles.

For the occasion the bride of 25 years wore a corsage of mums and blue tinted carnations, while the "bridegroom" wore a boutonniere.

A Message to Those Who Give Counselling

By DORIS CLARK

It seems to me the following bit of rhyme might well rest the ball with all people who counsel — be they amateur or professional, male or female, friend or buttonholed stranger.

The Other Side of the Desk

Have you ever thought just a wee little bit, Of how it would seem to be in that fix, And how you would feel if you had to sit, On the other side of the desk? As that client you lectured at the kid who seconed a bum, As he sat before you, nervous . . . dumb . . . And thought of the courage it took to come, To the other side of the desk? Have you thought to yourself "It could be I, If the good things of life had passed me by, And maybe I'd flunkier and maybe I'd lie", To the other side of the desk? Did you make him feel he was frail of mind, Make him ashamed of his race or creed, Or did you reach out to him in his need, To the other side of the desk? May God give us wisdom and lots of it, And much compassion and plenty of grit, So that we may be kinder to those who sit, On the other side of the desk. — Anonymous.

Dear Doris: it is pretty difficult at times to tell boys and girls apart. In these days of hippy world girls wear slacks or pants as boys do and some boys wear long hair as girls do. The trouble is when young boys grow long hair, boys who are not yet ready to get a shave.

I suppose this abnormal situation must have existed from the earliest days of history. In the Bible we read: "The woman shall not wear that which pertaineth unto a man, neither shall a man put on a woman's garment: for all that do so are an abomination unto the Lord." Deuteronomy 22.5. And in the New Testament I read this: "Doth not even nature itself teach you that if a man has long hair, it is a shame unto him?" I. Corinthians 11:14.

It is really embarrassing to ask young people, "Are you a boy or are you a girl?"

How can we handle this situation? A Belleville Resident.

Dear Belleville: Could we get girls to wear hair ribbons? I grant you it is embarrassing when one truly cannot tell the difference.

The Bible also says we should first cast the beam out of our own eye, etc. One much loved youth worker decries the failure of parents and teachers to communicate effectively with young people. He says: "What our youth need is help and counselling about is sex, in all its meanings and difficulties; while their mothers and fathers can only talk about hair."

Touche!

Confidential to What's Maturity?: A psychiatrist says one hallmark of maturity is when we know what we should do, and do it.

Without emotions we would be vegetables; but we do need to know how to handle them. As children, we respond emotionally to our mother's care; then to other influences. If we are lucky, these influences give us habits of self-discipline (along with the love we need), and gradually our developing intellect takes over our behavior.

Education's Main Role to Help People Help Themselves

OTTAWA (CP) — The biggest role education can play is to help people live better lives.

That's the philosophy of a pretty, chic young woman who has to make use of it daily in her job as women's program consultant for the Ottawa collegiate institute board's extensive adult education program.

Mrs. J. F. Bodkin, 25-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Madsen of Banff, Alta., is a 1963 graduate of the University of Alberta where she took modern languages.

She followed up a year in Switzerland with a job in the personnel field for the defence production department here, becoming most interested in aspects of her work which dealt with training and personnel development.

Last April Jill Bodkin went to work for the Ottawa school board because she wanted to become more involved in adult education.

"I happened to have some of the kinds of specialized training needed in the job although I hadn't worked with it to any extent before," she said in an interview.

The board, she explained wanted someone to find out the type of courses women needed and were interested in rather than the academic night-school classes.

"Someone had to go and find out what the social welfare people felt were educational needs and what city people of all backgrounds wanted, and then base programs on this."

So Mrs. Bodkin, who arranges her working hours to suit the demands of her job, talks to women's groups, social welfare agencies, citizens' improvement groups and individuals. And she's a busy person on the telephone.

EDUCATION IS HELPING PEOPLE — Mrs. J. F. Bodkin, a 25-year-old graduate of the University of Alberta, says education means helping people to live better lives. The greatest aspect of her involvement is the creation of a desire to learn, she says. (CP Photo)

"I'm anxious to find out what kind of things women want to learn. One of my biggest problems is understanding what people really mean when they say they want to learn this or that."

A cooking class is being started, for instance, for women living in an urban-renewal area. The idea is to give the women the kind of cooking instruction they themselves want, while teaching sound nutritional principles into the program.

Another area which concerns employers and educational institutions is the woman who may think she wants to go back to a second career. What she is really saying is that she wants to do something meaningful for the 20 or 30 years after her family is raised.

"There is a great need for guidance. Such women frequently don't know what skills are marketable or what opportunities are available."

There were also opportunities in volunteer work involving "pretty exciting things — not driving kids around."

Women could be helped by courses in which groups met to discuss the problems they saw in returning to work.

They could be helped in reaching a decision about work by being given information about educational opportunities, how to apply for a job, and how to assess their skills relative to their family's needs.

Non-vocational education — the kind which helped people understand themselves in relation to family, community and culture — was also important.

"To me, the greatest thing is increasing the desire to learn."

Ham and Noodle Skillet Supper

By MARY MOORE

Yesterday I gave you a recipe for a Ham Loaf with a Mustard Sauce to utilize your leftover Easter ham to good advantage.

Today I am on the same theme but this time I made a quick skillet supper that is full of fine flavors and is filling too. It will serve six and is especially recommended for busy mothers with four children.

HAM AND NOODLE SKILLET SUPPER
(Serves 6)

3 tbsps. butter or margarine
½ cup chopped cooking onion or 1 cup Spanish onion
½ cup chopped celery
¼ cup chopped green pepper or chopped stuffed or salad olives
2 cups cooked ham cut into ½" strips (about 1 lb.)
1 tsp. salt
2 tsps. sugar
One 19-oz. can tomatoes, undrained
¼ tsp. pepper
¾ tsp. basil
3 cups (dry measure) ½" noodles (packed)
1 cup shredded or grated Cheddar cheese

NOTE: I used my large electric fry pan for this but any large fry pan is fine.

In a large saucepan cook noodles in large amount of boiling water with 1 tsp. salt until tender — about 15 min. Drain. Melt butter in fry pan and add onion, celery, green pepper or olives and gently saute until tender — not at all brown — about five minutes. Sprinkle salt, sugar, pepper and basil over and add ham strips and can of tomatoes and simmer 20 min. Add noodles and gently stir through meat mixture and heat through until warmed. Sprinkle cheese over top, cover and cook on simmer for 2 or 3 min., until cheese is heated but not necessarily melted.

NOTE: Shortly I will give you a recipe for Pea Soup using the leftover ham bone — so that everything is utilized but the squeal.

Temper Tantrums Continue Through Life

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was shocked at your advice to the mother whose 3-year-old had temper tantrums. You suggested that the child be taught to kick the furniture and "get the anger out of his system." I always thought you were a little cuckoo. Now I'm sure.

ANN LANDERS

My younger brother used to kick the furniture when he got mad. Mother called it, "Letting off steam." Well, he's 32 years old now and still kicking the furniture — what's left of it, that is. He is also kicking his wife, the cat, the kids and anything else that gets in his way. Last October he threw the TV set out the window when his favorite football team failed to score and lost the game. (The window was open at the time.)

Why don't you tell mothers that children must be taught to control their anger? This is what separates civilized human beings from savages, Dummy. — STAR WITNESS.

DEAR STAR: You, like some others who wrote to criticize, ignored the most important part of my answer.

I did not condone destroying furniture. I suggested that a punching bag or an old chair, specifically set aside for the purpose, be the object of the child's hostility. And p.s. — the most important part of my answer went like this:

"Youngsters should be taught to vent their anger against things — not people."

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please excuse my English. I come from Europe and my ability to write is your language is limited.

I have learned a lot from your column but I must tell you that you made a poor answer lately. You remarked that sometimes the sex battery in a husband goes dead because the wife acts bashful and is not active. You said to the wife, "Turn on the heat."

I had this same problem, only upside down. My husband agreed to go with me for counseling because we were not enjoying ourselves together. The counselor said I was too active and advised me to turn down the heat and let my husband lead in our love-making. The counselor explained that men become frightened when a woman is too eager.

Since we changed our ways things are much better. So please, Ann, change your advice. — LOVE YOU ANYWAY.

DEAR LOVE: Sorry, Lamb Chop, but most men would love to be frightened like that.

Perhaps your husband prefers the shy type, but most men prefer a highly co-operative, responsive woman.

Your point is well taken, however. Married couples should be completely honest and let one another know what is pleasant and desirable. Each couple should write its own rules. There is no right or wrong in making love.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Father: "You must not use my power tools. You could cut off a finger or seriously injure yourselves if you use them wrong. When you're older, I'll teach you how to use them right."

Children may forget rules or they may be tempted to disobey. Lock your power tools away if there are small boys in the house. Don't risk the possibility of an accident.

Warnings alone may not be enough to protect a child from a hazard that is as alluring as a power drill or saw can be to a young boy.

FRANKFORD C.A. MEETING

Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle C.A.'s met on Thursday evening of last week, with vice-president Richard Patrick in charge.

The meeting opened in the usual manner followed by prayer by Lonnie Reilly, Mrs. E. Strone led the song service. Barry Reilly led in prayer.

Richard Patrick gave the announcements. A trio of Mrs. Lonnie Reilly, Keith Helm and Paul Spurrell sang. Barry Reilly led a Bible quiz on "The Cross". Choruses were sung and testimonies given.

The guest speaker was Jonathan Chapman, student of Eastern Pentecostal Bible College, Peterborough. He brought the evening message on "The Cross".

A hymn was sung, after which Mrs. Wilbert Reid closed the meeting in prayer.

Soviet Planes Fly off Coast

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet bomber flights to the fringe of North America have become so routine in recent months that U.S. fighters aren't always sent to intercept them, defence department sources say.

During the last 15 months, these sources say, there have been about three dozen incidents of Soviet planes flying near continental North America, usually Alaska or Canada.

However, the Soviets have been careful to turn back before actually flying over U.S. or Canadian territory, the sources said.

The sources are frank to admit the United States has no real basis for complaint so long as the Soviet planes remain outside NATO territory.

Furthermore, the United States could hardly protest that the flights are provocative. Strategic Air Command training missions send nuclear-capable B-52s regularly into Arctic regions near Soviet territory.

While continental defence officials occasionally may decide not to scramble interceptors, the Soviet bombers always are monitored on radar from the time they get within a few hundred miles of the North American coastline until they leave.

Only two or three of the Soviet missions have been disclosed officially by the defence department, which indicates the low key attitude the U.S. government is taking.

The most recent Soviet flight, sources report, occurred April 1 when eight to 10 TU-16 Badgers came within 65 miles of Northwest Alaska.

The Alaskan Air Command scrambled F-102 interceptors, but no nose-to-nose confrontation was necessary.

The Badger is a twin turbo-jet aircraft roughly comparable to the old American B-47 and capable of speeds up to 580 miles an hour.

Seven other Soviet flights near U.S. territory this year are recorded on a list now stamped secret in the defence department.

In addition, there were more than 25 other similar incidents in 1968 not only off Alaska but near Newfoundland, Labrador, Iceland, and around the Aleutian Island chain in the Pacific.

Usually the Soviet planes show up in groups of two or three, but on one mission this past January, seven TU-95 Bear reconnaissance bombers came within 30 nautical miles of Northwest Alaska. The Bear is a 500 m.p.h. turbo-prop capable of flying 7,800 miles without refuelling.

Six to eight Bears were intercepted by U.S. fighters last summer, again off Northwestern Alaska, in another major flight which went unpublicized.

Defence department sources say the Soviets have been careful to halt their approaches within 20 to 150 miles of North American territory during the 15-month period.

In 1963, the United States protested strongly to the Soviet Union that two reconnaissance bombers had flown 30 miles inland across the southwestern tip of Alaska. The Soviets denied any incursion.

Sources believe the Soviet have three reasons for conducting what appears to be a regular program of flights toward the United States:

—They want to keep a constant check on how long it takes U.S. radar to detect incoming planes and scramble fighters to intercept them.

—The flights provide Soviet air crews with training made highly realistic when U.S. fighters meet them.

—The Soviets collect various intelligence information from the missions. Even without flying over U.S. territory, they can take long range photographs, test radar detection systems and maintain data on American radio frequencies.

The decision whether to send U.S. jets to meet Soviet planes entering the air defence zone usually depends on the speed and angle of approach of the incoming flight.

Interceptions are designed mainly to assure the Soviets that their presence has been detected.

Belleville Firm Gets Contract For 500 Fibre Glass Boats

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Belleville Precision Mouldings is a new name on the local boat building scene and at the same time is the city's newest industry.

In actual being only since the first of March, the firm already has eight employees and before the year end is expected to have up to 30 persons on the payroll.

Initial production at the 291 Coleman Street location is an order for 500 ten foot six inch fibre glass sailing dinghies. This is expected to increase to 1,500 before the original contract is completed.

Future boat building possibilities include the construction of 23-foot craft — a decision which is pending within a week, and building of 32-foot ocean going pleasure craft for sale to the more affluent vacationers.

As a construction sideline, entirely separate from the marine division, the firm will build plastic "sand filled" vanities of which up to 1,500 will be turned out before the end of September.

President of the new Belleville firm is Peter T. Wilby, a native Britisher with nearly 18 years in the fibre glass boat building industry.

He was plant manager of the large British boat building concern — one of the largest in England or on the continent — and for some years had his own company manufacturing everything from fibre glass pipeline to components for military aircraft and civilian airliners.

A former member of the RAF with service in World War II bombing squadrons, Mr. Wilby came to Canada about two years ago and has been in Belleville since January of this year.

Prior to starting Precision Mouldings, he was briefly with Morch Manufacturing in Belleville.

The initial boat building venture of the fledging company sees the firm building a versatile craft which Mr. Wilby says can be purchased either with or without sails. Complete with sail the craft will sell for "about" $385, or with oars only around $270.

This means that the customer can buy his dinghy one year and add the sail the following year. The craft is outfitted with a transom for fitting of a three horse power outboard motor.

Extremely light, the complete dinghy weighs only 85 pounds and can be easily carried on a car top. It will be marketed all across Canada.

With "preliminary" production problems out of the way Mr. Wilby expects to turned an average of four dinghies per day with present staff.

However, with the arrival of automatic equipment for the spray application of resin, production is expected to jump to 10 or 12 craft per day.

The 32-foot ocean going pleasure craft which Mr. Wilby hopes to build will considerably lower the cost of owning this class of boat, he said.

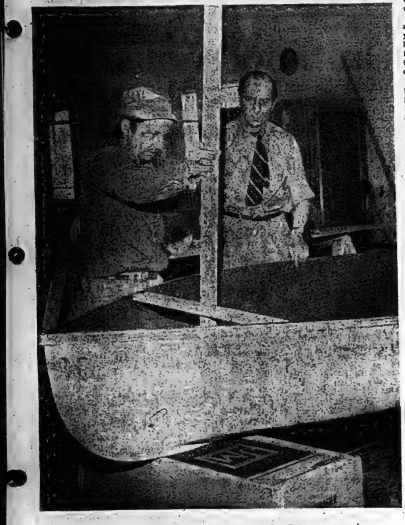
With inboard marine motor and completely fitted for sleeping four persons, Mr. Wilby expects the craft will retail for between $8,000 and $9,000.

This figure, he says will be about $2,000 lower than the cost of other comparable craft.

Also the $385 price for the fibre glass dinghies now being built will be considerably less than for a comparable craft built of aluminum.

And the fibre glass construction has definite advantages for boat construction.

It is remarkably resilient and an ordinary bump against a rock does no damage. And the 85 pound weight makes for easy handling for car top moving.



Still another prospect for the new Belleville boat building firm is the construction of boat houses with fibre glass pontoons.

The craft, capable of sleeping eight persons would be manufactured for sale in the United States.

A Versatile Craft

Centre board is a first prerequisite for any sailing boat and the craft is more versatile if the board is retractable. Here a workman cuts the slot for centre board in the hull of fibre glass dinghy at the new Belleville boat works.

Checking the Fit

Workman checks fit of 12 foot mast on fibre glass dinghy. New Belleville firm has order for 500 of the craft but expects this to be increased to 1,500.

County Teacher-Student Ratio Should Be Lowered: Report

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Unless it wants to assume an inferior position in the provincial educational system, Hastings county must improve its pupil-staff ratio.

This is the substance of a report prepared by superintendent of academic services and staff, L. F. Reid, on teacher requirements in the county.

"There is a wide variance of policy leading to lack of consistency in allotting staff throughout the county," his report says.

"The elementary schools are particularly uneven in basic teaching services, and the amount of time available for special services such as library, kindergarten and special education, is minimal," the report continues.

In addition, Hastings county is behind the provincial secondary school standard in pupil-staff ratio by nearly one staff member on the ratio. The recommended ratio is 17 pupils to one teacher; the county average is 17.9 to one.

"Overall, the number of teachers serving the students of the county is less than the provincial standard in both elementary and secondary schools," the report states.

"It has been widely published throughout the province that the department of education would like the senior secondary schools to remain at the provincial average of pupil - staff ratio, which is 17 to one. Many systems are below this ratio and the department is asking them to return to average; Hastings county's ratio is 17.9 to one."

In the elementary school the average pupil - staff ratio is now 28.9 to one. The average class size is 32.5, the maximum for the province.

"In the elementary schools the teacher spends 100 per cent of her time facing her class. This is extremely high and means that teachers have, no time for co - operative team planning or preparation of material," the report says.

To provide a minimum amount of co-operative team planning and preparation time where it is needed most, Mr. Reid recommends the provincial standard of 86 per cent of a teacher's time devoted to a class of 32.5 pupils in kindergarten through grade 6, and 82 per cent of a teacher's time spent in a class of 32.5 pupils in grades 7 and 8.

"We should attempt to provide some improvement in teacher allotment for September 1966, and continue the improvement through the next two or three years," he says.

An additional 19 elementary teachers will be needed in the county next September to cope with increased enrolment. To begin bringing the county system in line with the provincial average, Mr. Reid has recommended that a further 14 teachers in addition to those be hired.

Cost of 24 additional teachers from September to Dec. 31 of 1965 would be $60,000.

Hastings county's high pupil-teacher ratio in the secondary schools "is not disastrous, but does prejudice the educational program, particularly at a time when innovative changes are placing a heavy demand on our teachers," Mr. Reid comments.

North Hastings Secondary School in Bancroft has the highest pupil-teacher ratio in the county—18.2 to one. The average for the remaining eight high schools in the county is 17.8 to one, making an overall county average of 17.9 to one, when all nine schools are included in the calculations.

"North Hastings is unique by provincial standards," the report states. "It has 66 per cent of its enrolment in four year courses, with the largest occupational program in the county (65 pupils)."

The goal sought by Hastings administrators for secondary schools in September is a ratio of 17.5 to one.

To achieve this, 28 additional teachers would have to be hired at a cost this year of $114,000. Of these teachers, 27 will be required because of increased enrolment, and 11 would serve to improve the ratio.

"The administration recognizes that a move towards the provincially recommended ratio cannot be achieved in a single step," the report says. "The preceding is all we can afford for this year.

The amount of time a Hastings County secondary school teacher spends in front of his class is also higher than the provincial recommendations.

The province recommends between 70 to 80 per cent of a teacher's working day should be spent in actual teaching. Most systems are at 75 per cent.

At present, Hastings county high school teachers spend more than 80 per cent of their working day in front of a class. The administration is aiming for 80 per cent by September.

The report has been relegated to the 16 county trustees for study and the administrators' recommendations will be considered at a future meeting.

Red Cross Activity

At the March meeting of the Belleville Branch of the Red Cross Society, R. R. Cameron, president, received reports showing that committees are active in 1965.

Arrangements for the April 16 blood donors clinic at Club Canada were discussed. A date suitable to the students of the schools and colleges was much in the minds of the committee. The young people of this area are making an important contribution to the blood transfusion service. Across Canada this service is working at the rate of one transfusion every minute of every day.

Murray Workman, chairman of the Water Safety Committee reported that a program involving 640 individuals is nearing completion.

Mr. Workman is taking strong action to have as instructors' courses available in Belleville. His proposals received the support of the meeting. His request for pamphlets and posters to be used by Constable W. G. Willis of the O.P.P. in the safety program for schools was granted.

Increased activity in the women's work department was reported. Vietnam and 15 other countries are receiving shipments of clothing and supplies. In the Belleville district three adults and 11 children were provided with necessities after fire had destroyed their homes.

Wild Dogs Responsible For Killing Many Deer

TRENTON — Domestic dogs running wild in this area are responsible for 33 per cent of all deer which are killed in this district, reports the Tweed section of the Ontario department of lands and forests.

The report which was released late yesterday, says for the past six weeks various department offices across the province have been swamped with calls telling of dogs chasing and killing deer.

The area dealt with in the report is specifically south of Highway 7 to Lake Ontario and includes the counties of Frontenac, Lennox and Addington, and Hastings.

"Large numbers of dogs are found throughout the area. A large percentage of these are virtually never under effective control of the owners," reads the report.

The domestic dog is labelled by the report as the most "effective predator" in a semi-settled area such as the one with which the brief deals.

The dogs possess the stamina to outlast the deer in the chase as the larger animal is hampered by snow. It is this snow that eventually exhausts the deer, stated the report, and although the deer can outrun the dog for a short time the dog is able to stay atop the crusty layer of snow.

The brief estimates that a minimum of 67 deer have died as a result of the dogs which are running out of control, and adds that this is not inclusive of all that die in this manner. The report deals only with reported kills.

"The actual kill may exceed the reported kill by a possible 100 to 200 per cent," states the brief.

But of all investigated kills 93 per cent are attributed to dogs on the loose. This does not include deer killed by the hunter.

An effort is under way to make this situation known to sportsmen and dog owners throughout the area.

"Continual harassment of the deer herd is doing great damage to the level of the deer population," concludes the brief.

More Help Available For Mentally Retarded

NAPANEE — At its April meeting the Lennox and Addington County Association for the Mentally Retarded had the privilege of learning about the new help which is now available for mentally retarded children and their parents.

The speaker was Donald Corolich, social worker for the new regional centre being established at the Psychiatric Hospital in Kingston. The children's unit has a large staff, including a psychiatrist, a psychologist, a pediatrician, a biochemist, a psychogenetic and a social worker, in addition to a nurse, a secretary and volunteers to assist parents during their visits.

The region covered is a large one, from Haliburton to Northumberland, and from Grenville to Renfrew. Parents of retarded children within this large area are referred to the centre for an appointment and may bring their child to the stated time for an assessment. Only one new case is considered each day, with the rest of the time taken up with those who come back for further assessment.

The personnel at the centre are already prepared, as a questionnaire has already been sent to the home. The assessment is not only of the child, but also of his environment, and it is hoped that this scientific approach to the child and his needs will bring about the fullest training of his potential abilities. It is not a treatment centre, as the staff members work through the child's doctor, in giving advice regarding drugs for example.

Punch's Replacement Will Toe Smythe Line

by Maurice Switzer, Sports Editor

TORONTO (CP) — The new general manager of Toronto Maple Leafs wants to avoid one mistake made by his predecessor Punch Imlach.

Youthful Jim Gregory, named general manager of the National Hockey League team Sunday night after Imlach's firing, said Monday he will listen to any advice offered by team president Stafford Smythe.

"I don't think Staff wants to be general manager," said Gregory, "However, I would be a liar if I said I wouldn't tolerate any interference. He owns the building and I don't own 15 cents' worth."

Imlach, who guided the Maple Leafs to four Stanley Cups in his 11 years with the team as manager-coach, frequently was unresponsive to Smythe's suggestions.

During disagreements with Smythe, Imlach reportedly would almost dare the team president to fire him.

Smythe finally did lower the boom on Imlach Sunday night after Toronto had been eliminated by Boston Bruins in four games in the best-of-seven, Stanley Cup quarter-final series.

"The best way not to be interfered with is to be successful but I'm open to suggestions," said the 34-year-old Gregory.

Gregory already has agreed with Smythe's first suggestion —hiring Johnny McLellan as coach. McLellan is coach of Tulsa of the Central Hockey League and is involved in playoffs there.

"I'll wait until the p layoffs are over," said Gregory. "We'll get together and I hope I'll be able to hire McLellan.

"He has a vast cellar of resources and he's the guy who can help us. There's nobody better in my mind."

Gregory, a scout for Toronto this season and former coach of Vancouver in the Western Hockey League, refused to criticize Imlach's handling of the team.

"There's nobody I respect more than Punch and King Clancy (Imlach's assistant). They have helped me a lot and I think they can give me good advice. I'll be asking them for it."

Gregory was notified of his new job Sunday night while he was in Oklahoma City on a scouting trip.

"I was shocked," he said. "I'm still nervous."

He arrived here Monday afternoon, held a brief news conference and met with Smythe.

"I talked with Stafford Smythe about salary and the job to be done. I talked to Punch and he wished me luck, but I knew he would do that.

"I haven't talked to King Clancy. He has asked to be given some time to consider what to do."

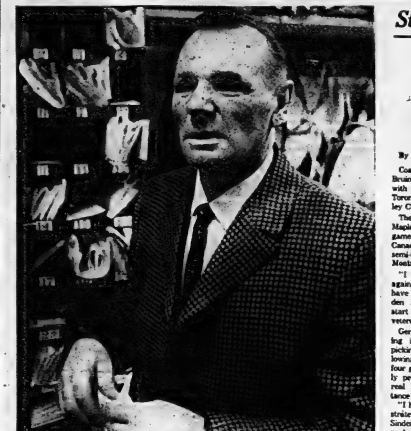
Clancy has been invited by Smythe to remain in the Toronto organization, possibly on the board of directors.

Gregory, a native of Dansville, Ont., has no contract with the Leafs "and I don't think I want a contract.

"I have worked here a long time and never had a contract."

Gregory said Smythe approached him "a few weeks ago" and asked him to accept the post and "he ready in case anything happened."

For the next few weeks he intends to scout playoff games in the NHL, CHL and American Hockey League. By the June draft meetings, he hopes to have an idea of players who might help the Leafs.



Two members of this season's Leafs, goaltender Johnny Bower and defenceman Tim Horton, said Sunday they will retire.

"This is it for me," said the 39-year-old Horton, who described Imlach as a great guy to play for.

"I'll have to tell the front office," said a tearful 45-year-old Bower. "But you can say that this is my last game. I'm very sorry for Punch. I owe him a lot. He brought me to Toronto and put money in my pocket—in a lot of pockets I guess."

But it's a long time to next September when training camp opens, and Horton especially may have a change of heart.

Boston Dates Unsettled

BOSTON (AP) —Boston Bruins are attempting to change the announced dates for the third and fourth games at home against Montreal Canadians in the National Hockey League's Eastern Division final playoff.

"The first two dates, Thursday and Sunday, are okay with us, but the other dates are undecided," general manager Milt Schmidt said Monday when informed of an NHL announcement setting the third and fourth games in Boston Thursday, April 17, and Saturday or Sunday, April 19 or 20.

"We're not in favor of that schedule," Schmidt said.

Strategy? - To Win

Bag of Tricks In Sinden Sleeve?

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Coach Harry Sinden of Boston Bruins may tamper slightly with the lineup that humiliated Toronto Maple Leafs in a Stanley Cup quarter-final series.

The Bruins eliminated the Maple Leafs in four straight games and now meet Montreal Canadiens in a best-of-seven semi-final series starting at Montreal Thursday.

"I just might pull a switch against the Canadiens—I might have some surprises," said Sinden Monday, hinting he may start National Hockey League veteran Ed Johnston in goal.

Gerry Cheevers was outstanding in goal against Toronto, picking up two shutouts and allowing only five goals in the four games. But Johnston usually performs best at the Montreal Forum, just a short distance from his home.

"I have little to say about our strategy for this series," said Sinden. "We just plan to win. If we had any strategy against Toronto, it was offensive as well as defensive.

"I don't think we'll change from that against Montreal. We can't play strictly defensive against that club. Naturally, we will try to limit the Canadiens' offence, but we still will have to score and you can't score with complete defensive thinking."

The second game of the series will be at Montreal Sunday and the third at Boston a week this Thursday. The fourth game also will be at Boston, a week from either this Saturday or Sunday.

In eight meetings with the Canadiens this season, the Bruins won four, lost two and tied two. But Montreal finished first in the Eastern Division, with 103 points compared to 100 for Boston.

"The only reason they did not finish in first place, maybe, was that they were an ordinary team on the road for the last month of the schedule," said Montreal coach Claude Ruel Monday.

The Canadiens base my optimism they have on the fact the seventh and deciding game of the series will be played at Montreal.

"That's where we have the big edge," said defenceman Serge Savard. "If we can win the first two games at home, we could finish this series a lot faster than a lot of people think we can."

The quarter-final series between Oakland Seals and Los Angeles Kings, even at 2-2, continues at Oakland Wednesday night and returns to Los Angeles Thursday night.

St. Louis Blues, who eliminated Philadelphia Flyers in four games in the other Western Division semi-final, will take on the survivor of the Oakland-Los Angeles set.

The Kings announced Monday the recall of three players from their Springfield farm team in the American Hockey League. Joining Los Angeles are centre Bryan Campbell and Skip Krake and defenceman Jacques Lemieux.

The three newcomers will report for practice today and will be available for the game Wednesday at Oakland.

Right winger Howie Hughes, who missed the last two games with a back injury, is ready to play Wednesday.

Openers Hard on Rookie Pilots

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Baseball's second century began unsuccessfully Monday for rookie major league managers Ted Williams and Clyde King.

Williams' Washington Senators were bombed 8-4 by New York Yankees in the presidential opener in Washington. King's debut was two outs from becoming a success when Atlanta Braves pushed across two runs in the bottom of the ninth and nipped his San Francisco Giants 5-4.

Cincinnati Reds, descendents of the first pro baseball team back in 1869, dropped their traditional home opener 3-2 to Los Angeles Dodgers.

The remaining 18 teams, including expansionists Montreal and San Diego in the National League and Kansas City and Seattle in the American, swing into action today.

The NL schedule finds Philadelphia at Chicago and Montreal at New York in the afternoon with Pittsburgh at St. Louis, Houston at San Diego and San Francisco at Atlanta under the lights.

In the AL, it's Cleveland at Detroit, Boston at Baltimore and Minnesota at Kansas City during the day, followed by Chicago at Oakland and Seattle at California at night.

The Senators performed before 45,113, largest opening-day crowd ever at Washington. President Richard M. Nixon attended.

The Yankees unveiled a running game in the second inning as Roy White stole two bases and Bill Robinson one and Tom Tresh and Jake Gibbs delivered them with singles. A touch of power was evident in the third when Jerry Kennedy and Bobby Murcer walloped consecutive home runs.

Four unearned runs in the fourth wrapped it up as Mel Stottlemyre staggered to a 14-hit complete game, including a two-run homer in the ninth by Frank Howard.

Trailing 3-1, the Giants routed Atlanta's Pat Jarvis in the seventh, scoring three times on a double by Bobby Etheridge, singles by Hal Lanier, pinch hitter Bob Burda and Willie Mays, a walk to Bobby Bonds and Willie McCovey's sacrifice fly.

That took 36-game winner Juan Marichal off the hook. But the Braves pulled it out against Frank Linzy when Clete Boyer opened the ninth with a single and, one out later, scored on Sonny Jackson's triple. Mike Lum then singled Jackson home with the winner. Dick Dietz homered for the Giants.

Don Drysdale withstood home runs by the first two batters he faced and settled down to pitch the Dodgers past Cincinnati.

OTTAWA (CP) — A possible reduction in the number of directors and the wooing of a young quarterback to replace Russ Jackson are keyed things busy in the front office of Ottawa Rough Riders. The defending Grey Cup champions also have changed their minds about a television blackout of home games and will allow TV cameras in their park for another season while negotiations continue on the cable television problem. Meanwhile, general manager Red O'Quinn and coach Frank Clair are hoping to sign a 22-year-old pilot man, William (Buster) O'Brien, to a contract. Regular quarterback Russ Jackson announced last year he will play one more season before retiring.

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — St. Catharines Black Hawks advanced into the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series final against Montreal Junior Canadiens Monday night, crushing Niagara Falls Flyers 12-4 in the seventh game of the semi-finals. Dancer's Son Goes Lame

TORONTO (CP) — Viceregal, Canada's Horse of the Year in 1968, has broken a bone in his left forefoot and may never race again.

Viceregal, son of Northern Dancer and winner of all eight races he entered in 1968, pulled up lame Saturday after finishing third in his first race as a three-year-old at Keeneland racetrack, Kentucky.

The chunky colt established a single season record last year for a horse racing in Canada, with earnings of $117,600.

He now will be brought back to Toronto for stud duties at E. P. Taylor's Windfield's Farms.

Viceregal had been Mr. Taylor's hope for the United States Triple Crown and the Queen's Plate here. The injury came in a $7,500 allowance race over six furlongs.

Stinsons Win Shy of Title

STAFF— Stinson's Construction finished in second place in the regular season, but now they are on the brink of capturing the big prize — the Quinte Hockey League's playoff championship.

The Construction crew took a giant step in that direction last night by edging Aluminum Stars, the regular season champions, 3-1.

The win gives Stinsons a commanding 3-1 lead in games in the best four-out-of-seven final series for the Quinte Hockey Leagues playoff championship.

Last nights win Stinson's second 2-1 victory of the final series, came on the strength of single goals by Rick Denard and Bruce Symons. Al Buttan replied for the Stars.

Stinson's advanced to the finals by defeating Belvedere Hotel four games to two with one game tied, in the semi finals, while Aluminum Stars bounced Central Taxi four games to one to earn their way into the playoff finals.

Stinson's have a chance to wrap up the series and add the Quinte Hockey League title to last year's Commercial Softball League crown when the two teams meet again Thursday night at 8.30 p.m. at the Belleville Arena.

Shrine Meet Makes $1100 For Kids

STAFF — All the boys who participated in the Belleville Shrine Club's annual peewee hockey tournament last weekend derived some benefit from the tournament, but the biggest winners — to the tune of over $1100 — were crippled children.

The proceeds of the annual tournament go to the Shrine Club's Crippled Children's Fund for distribution to Crippled Children's Hospitals.

George Muller, the chairman of the Shrine peewee tournament said "This is the third tournament we've held and I think it was the best one yet. I would estimate that the net proceeds of the tournament will exceed $1100 although we won't know for sure until all the bills are sent in."

"On behalf of myself and the Belleville Shrine Club I would like to thank all those who took part or participated in the tournament or Sports Day Parade in any way, with special thanks to Parade Marshal Angus Duffy and sponsor Richard Ellis."

Political Union of Three Maritime Provinces Would Mean Saving of Millions of Dollars

HALIFAX (CP) — Full political union of the three Maritime provinces would save millions of dollars, says an Atlantic Provinces Economic Council (APEC) report released Monday.

The recommendation favoring political union of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island was made in a submission to the Maritime Union Study, a joint project of the three provincial governments being carried out by Fred Drummie, a former New Brunswick economic adviser, under the supervision of Dr. J. J. Deutsch, principal of Queen's University at Kingston, Ont., and former chairman of the Economic Council of Canada.

APEC describes the region's economic problems as being too big and its financial resources too small for the provinces to continue as separate entities.

It contends that amalgamation of the three governments would save millions of dollars and bring about greater efficiency in public services.

The council suggests that more than 10,000 of the 34,104 provincial civil servants could be dispensed with, giving a payroll saving of almost $36,000,000.

The report is not explicit about other savings except to say that one central data bank and computer centre should be more efficient than each province using its own facilities.

The three Maritime premiers were non-committal in commenting on the APEC recommendations, having earlier agreed to reserve judgments until the union study is completed.

Premier G. I. Smith of Nova Scotia said the APEC report was simply a part of what the study is trying to find out and "I am sure the commission will give all such recommendations very close attention."

Premier Alex Campbell of Prince Edward Island said he welcomed the council's brief, but "there will be more discussion of the subject on a provincial level when the study report is in." He said it was open to question whether APEC gave a majority view of the Maritimes business world.

Premier Louis J. Robichaud of New Brunswick said: "It would be premature for a politician to comment on the report."

Charles R. MacFadden of Halifax, council president, said the APEC submission was prepared by council staff and approved by its 18-member board of governors "after several meetings."

From an economic standpoint, union would result in more efficient use of the large federal government contributions to Maritime government revenues, the report says.

Political union could alleviate the burden of provincial financing, which here, as in the rest of Canada, has been growing faster than revenue sources.

The council believes that "political union . . . must be a forerunner to administrative, judicial and economic union."

Without political union, APEC sees the Maritime provinces having to seek more and more federal money for public services, winding up as "mere colonies of Ottawa."

The report envisages a united province of about 1,500,000 souls — the fifth largest—having a louder voice in federal-provincial affairs than three voices, each speaking for less than 800,000 persons.

The council makes no reference to Newfoundland, which is not participating in the Maritime union study. Neither does it mention any disadvantages of union.

Air Canada Launches Probe of Viscount Fatality

SEPT-ILES, Que. (CP)—Air Canada has launched a full investigation of a flaming emergency landing here Monday in which one woman was killed and an Air Canada Viscount destroyed.

Six other passengers were injured in the emergency evacuation of the four-engined turboprop, forced to return to Sept-Iles with one engine afire five minutes after taking off.

The flames spread after the 48-passenger Viscount touched down, and the airliner was destroyed within minutes. Investigators said it started rolling again after the touchdown, and turned about nearly in circles while the passengers were escaping via an emergency chute.

The Viscount carried 17 passengers, all Quebecers, and four crew members including two stewardesses.

The victim, Mrs. Benoit Paulin of Port Cartier, Que., died in hospital of injuries suffered in the emergency evacuation. Airline officials said reports that she had been run over by the burning aircraft's nose wheel.

One of the survivors told of such a narrow escape when she, arrived in Montreal Monday night, Mrs. Donald Hood said she hit her head on the tarmac after jumping from the plane.

"I must have been unconscious for a few seconds and when I woke up I saw the aircraft swirling around and heading straight for me.

"I managed to crawl out of the way, but the propeller caught and gashed my thigh."

David Tennant, Air Canada vice-president in charge of operations, said the Viscount "apparently stopped and then began moving again as the passengers were evacuating, which made it more difficult coming down the emergency chute."

Mrs. Hood and Mrs. Paulin's daughter Brigitte were among the six injured, but both were released from hospital after treatment along with two others. Detained in hospital were Marguerite D'Allaire of Chicoutimi, who suffered a fractured ankle, and Susan Royer of Ste. Foy, with a fractured arm.

Another 14 U.S. Army Privates Go on Trial on Mutiny Charges

FORT ORD, Calif. (AP) — A court-martial offence in the incipient stage of demonstrations in the Bay Area.

Halliman said his defence counsel that conditions at the Presidio stockade were so bad they justified the sit-down demonstration that led to the mutiny charges.

Of the 27 who took part in the demonstration, three have escaped, eight have been convicted and sentenced, two are in hospital and the others now are on trial.

The convicted soldiers have been dealt prison terms ranging from nine months to 16 years.

The soldiers staged a sit-down and sang We Shall Overcome and America the Beautiful in protest of the fatal shooting of a stockade prisoner by a guard Oct. 11.

Tweed

TWEED — Henry Geerreuz of Alexander Street, Tweed, celebrated his 80th birthday on March 28. Mr. Geerreuz is quite active and enjoys fairly good health.

The March meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Norman Inwood, Denbigh and Mrs. Lawrence of the Lennox and Addington, Kingston Frontenac Health Unit and Mrs. Fleeir, District School nurse, were guest speakers.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Woods have returned from a vacation in Florida, where they were joined by daughters, Marion of Toronto and Jean of Sault Ste. Marie, Wytie in Florida, they visited the John Kennedy Space Centre.

Smothers Brothers Get Offer To Stage Their Show on CTV

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom and Dick Smothers said Monday they have an offer from the CTV network to produce their show in Toronto next year if they cannot place it with an American network.

Tom Smothers said he and his brother, cancelled last week by CBS, had not received offers from ABC or NBC, but said: "We're open to the other networks."

Robert D. Wood, CBS television president, said Friday the Smothers brothers had committed a "breach of contract" by not submitting the tape of last Sunday's show in time for previewing by affiliate stations over a closed circuit.

Wood said the scheduled show, which was not shown, was in "bad taste" because of a tirade against President Johnson.

Tom, who had just returned from an uncensored showing of the Smothers Brothers show Sunday on the privately-owned CTV, said:

"We have an offer from the Canadian people to come up and produce our show there if we couldn't find a place in the United States."

No-rule Schools Find Stories Bring Students But No Money

TORONTO (CP) — "Every time somebody writes about us, we get students and visitors—but no money."

This is the common complaint of three independent, no-rule schools in Toronto that are a staggering success with students, but face uncertain future because of lack of financial support.

Total freedom is the foundation of the schools, which started in 1968 for students aged 6 to 17 who wanted more than the regular school system had to offer.

Students can decide what they want to learn and when. They are free to express their feelings, smoke, swear and argue with teachers at weekly meetings to decide school policy.

One, called Superschool, has 33 students whose parents pay either $400 a year for day classes or $1,000 a year which includes room and board. It is located in a large rented house in downtown Toronto.

Another school called Everdale Place also operates full-time with 31 students. Point Blank, the third, holds evening classes for 12 students.

Connie Mungall, founder of Superschool, says it costs $20,000 a year to operate—$300 a month in rent, $900 a month for five teachers, $150 a month for 12 student boarders and other expenses.

Total income from students' fees is $30,600, providing a narrow margin between solvency and bankruptcy.

Dr. John Katz of the government-financed Ontario Institute for Studies in Education feels the schools should get financial help from the education department, the Canada Council and charitable foundations.

But their independence must be guaranteed, he says.

The idea of free schools was imported from Britain where they have been operating successfully for then 40 years.

Although there are no formal examinations and no homework or compulsion to attend classes, graduates of free schools will be accepted by York University and the University of Toronto if they prove they can handle university courses.

Everdale Place's 31 students pay $1,350 a year for room and board and education. The school offers an Ontario certificate of teacher training and pottery, Greek and political courses.

George Martel, a York University professor who founded Point Blank, says his school offers a program of creative arts to about a dozen teen-agers.

Prof. Martell says he supports the school from his own salary but complains often that publicity would "spoil the reality" of his school.

The school isn't completely happy about publicity either.

"Every time somebody writes about us, we get students and visitors—but no money," said Miss Mungall.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very satisfying improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and soon most portion of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured tissue and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment or suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Trudeau Skiing In Rockies

SPILLIMACHEEN, B.C. (CP) — A tight security net was in force Monday as Prime Minister Trudeau began a week of helicopter skiing at remote Bugaboo Lodge in the Purcell mountains of British Columbia.

Three RCMP officers are staying at the lodge with Mr. Trudeau and another three are believed to be in the area. Background of the Cabinet's $400-a-week lodge whose stays overlapped the prime minister's were checked last week.

Apparently the strict security is to ensure that Mr. Trudeau won't be bothered either by prying newspaper men or snapshots. Either overlooked or ignored were three staffers for Sports Illustrated magazine, including a photographer.

Residents here only saw the prime minister load his skis and what appeared to be several cases of beer into a waiting national parks department helicopter.

Shouldn't you know...

...about NHA research and development grants?

They are made by your Federal Government, under the National Housing Act, to individuals, municipalities, government agencies, universities or research institutions — for either a specific investigation or a continuing program. And many will affect your future!

Each year, too, a large number of NHA fellowships are awarded. With the net result that hundreds across the country are able to pursue some special interest which promises to benefit all Canadians.

Here, then, is another in the wide range of facilities available under the National Housing Act — all of them directed at helping to improve Canadian living standards.

In short, NHA is vitally concerned not only with the home you live in but the kind of environment your home lives in.

Ball Epidemic Hits Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Baseball weather and baseball fever hit Montreal Monday as thousands turned out to greet Montreal Expos and give the team a rousing sendoff to New York, where the Expos open their National League season today against the Mets.

"You're all beautiful," Gene Mauch, manager of the Expos, shouted into a microphone to almost 15,000 people who gathered on the mall at Place Ville Marie in downtown Montreal.

"We're playing pretty well now, but for the people we'll play better," he added.

Temperatures were in the mid-50s under sunny skies as the 30-man Expos squad, Mauch, general manager Jim Fanning, John McHale, president and chief executive officer of the club, and financial backers of the team gathered on a huge platform.

The biggest cheers went up when shortstop Maurry Wills, right fielder Rusty Staub and pitcher Jim (Mudcat) Grant were introduced.

Grant will be on the mound for the Expos today when they make their National League debut against the Mets in Shea Stadium.

The Expos are scheduled to play their home opener next Monday against St. Louis Cardinals, last year's National League champions who lost out to Detroit Tigers in the World Series.

Travelogue Features 'Welcome to Michigan'

The final program of the "Travel and Adventure Series" for this year, sponsored by the Belleville Kiwanis Club, will be presented this Thursday evening, April 10, in BCI auditorium at 8.15 p.m.

The narrator Robert Brouwer, who will present a travelogue on "Welcome to Michigan," hails from Grand Rapids, Michigan. His first presentation, "America — Of Thee I Sing" was awarded a Freedoms Foundations' Medal for distinguished service in promoting the American way of life.

Mr. Brouwer was commissioned by interested groups and the National Tourist Agency of the Netherlands to produce a similar travelogue on the Netherlands — an unprecedented arrangement in this particular field.

He has presented his annual presentations in some of the largest auditoriums in the country with great acclaim from his audiences.

Hawks Crush Flyers

ST CATHARINES (CP) — St. Catharines Black Hawks advanced into the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series final against Montreal Junior Canadiens Monday night, crushing Niagara Falls Flyers 12-2 in the seventh game of the semi-finals.

The Hawks won the round eight points to six on three wins, two ties and two defeats. The Flyers were defending national champions.

Bob Sheehan, the Hawks' leading scorer with 41 goals during the regular schedule, broke a lengthy slump Monday with four goals.

Sheehan had not scored in the first six games against Niagara Falls but the Boston born centre put on a dazzling display of stick-handling and skating Monday to thoroughly confuse the Flyers.

The Hawks scored three times in the first period, four in the second and five in the third.

Doug Rombough, Dennis Giannini, Al McDonough, Dexter Teal, Wayne Ego, Don Odonoghue, Dick Redmond and Dave Burrows also scored for the winners.

Bob Boyd scored the first Niagara Falls goal in the second period, after the Hawks had taken a 7-0 lead. Don Tannahill got the other goal for Flyers.

The crowd of 4,122 was the largest this season in the 3,000-seat Garden City Arena.

No date has been set for the first game of the final in Montreal.

Penguins Are Hot

Brian Kaiser was devastating and consistent last night as he scored a quintet of goals to lead the Penguins, the Eastern Division champions, to the City Peewee House League Championship with a 6-1 win over Chambers Food Club, the Western Division titlists.

Kaiser sandwiched a trio of second period goals between single markers in the first and third periods as the Penguins, who are sponsored by Dr. T. Woodley, won going away.

Stephan Duffy tallied the Penguins' other goal, while Clifford Clapp replied for Chambers' Food Club.

Expansion Rides Again

The Departmental Softball League will hold an organizational meeting tonight at 7 p.m. at the Belleville Recreation Centre with a view to expansion in the coming season.

New entries are welcome and all interested parties are invited to attend the meeting. The league appears to have five definite starters set for the coming season, but would welcome more entries.

BEDS FOR DECORATION?

Used since ancient times as a bridle for keeping on the floor, beds were also an important piece of decorative furniture, especially in Europe where they had inlaid designs and costly draperies. Bed design today is much more functional, yet still pleasing to the eye and room design.

Now that the children are grown, there may be some empty beds in your home. If you can sell them with an Intelligencer Want Ad . . . just by dialing 962-9171.

Reasons Given for 'Safeguard' Constantly Change Says Critic

WASHINGTON (AP) — A leading Senate opponent of President Nixon's missile defense program says the administration keeps changing its reasons for building the controversial Safeguard system.

"We have had a whole series of rationalizations for Safeguard from the administration," Democrat George S. McGovern of South Dakota said. "They keep changing them all the time. Now it seems to me they are escalating the terror rather than giving us any enlightenment."

McGovern commented in an interview shortly after Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird told a group of European reporters visiting the Pentagon Monday that the Soviet Union is testing a triple warhead for its big SS-9 rocket.

Laird has cited deployment of the SS-9—without extra warheads—as reason for deploying Safeguard. He said Monday that mounting triple warheads on the SS-9 would give Russia's triple the punch it is expected to have by 1972 and the capability to knock out the Minuteman missiles comprising the main U.S. defense.

"I'm not talking about intentions," Laird said, "but about capability."

At about the same time, State Secretary William P. Rogers was telling a news conference that he can't understand why the Soviets are installing the SS-9 at all. He said this will be one of the first questions to be taken up with them in any arms-limitation talks.

Senators Richard B. Russell (Dem., Ga.), a key Senate theory on military matters, and Senator Henry M. Jackson (Dem., Wash.), who turned down Nixon's offer of the defense secretaryship, both have cited the SS-9 as a prime reason for installing the anti-missile system known as Safeguard.

Jackson said the United States has no multiple-warhead missile in its arsenal. Russia said the United States is working toward development of such a weapon.

While McGovern conceded the SS-9 might be capable of a first, strike designed to wipe out U.S. land-based missiles, he said administration officials are "extremely silent" about the retaliatory power of U.S. Polaris-equipped submarines.

"It's only in the last couple of weeks that they have been talking about this first strike threat to justify Safeguard," he said. "They don't mention that we have a second strike capability in our submarines that could wipe the Russians out, and the Russians know it.

"We're all guessing about Soviet intentions. But even if they were foolish enough to try a first strike and to knock out our land-based missiles, they can't touch our submarines."

The Soviets are estimated to have 200 operational SS-9s with current deployment expected to grow then 580 by 1973. With triple warheads, they would have 1,500 warheads to the 1,000 U.S. Minutemen with a single warhead.

Aird Confirms Quitting As NATO Society Head

TORONTO (CP) — Senator John Black Aird Monday confirmed he has resigned as chairman of the Canadian NATO Parliamentary Association.

Reached at an unidentified Northern Ontario retreat by The Globe and Mail, Senator Aird, 45, of Toronto, said he resigned on "principle" and declined further elaboration.

Earlier published reports said the senator disagreed with government policy announced last Thursday that Canada would reduce its participation in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, and telephoned Prime Minister Trudeau Good Friday to tender his resignation.

The reports said his resignation applied only to his position as head of the Canadian group of the association, an advisory group of legislators from NATO countries. He is also chairman of the Senate's standing committee on foreign affairs.

Senator Aird was quoted as saying in his letter of resignation:

"I believe that the current world situation and particularly events in Europe during the last year make this the wrong time for Canada to reduce her NATO commitment; that NORAD is no longer an effective North American defence and therefore shifting resources from NATO to NORAD makes little sense; and that Canada and Canada now begin to defend her own vast borders ignores what has happened in world military technology."

Scheduled to attend the NATO assembly in Washington this week, Senator Aird was quoted as saying he resigned now because he felt "it would be inappropriate for me to attend when I so strongly disagree with the government's decision."

In announcing the Canadian policy shift Thursday, Mr. Trudeau said Canada would stay in the NATO and NORAD but shift its role and redeploy its forces.

Canada's New NATO Role Discussed by Brandt, Sharp

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's future role in NATO, slightly redefined last week by Prime Minister Trudeau, Monday dominated discussions between External Affairs Minister Sharp and Foreign Minister Willy Brandt of West Germany.

Mr. Sharp termed the talks "extremely useful."

More than mere quiet 23 ministers in Mr. Sharp's Parliament Hill office talking about NATO and East-West relations, and the Canadian external affairs minister gave Mr. Brandt a complete briefing on Canada's foreign policy review.

Mr. Brandt was reported to be especially concerned about the timing of the Canadian announcement—that its NATO forces would be reduced—just prior to this week's NATO ministerial meeting in Washington.

But Mr. Sharp said afterwards that Mr. Brandt was "very happy" that Canada had reaffirmed its membership in NATO and was "grateful" that consultations would be held with other alliance members before there was any reduction in Canada's NATO troops.

Mr. Brandt, who arrived here Sunday for a two-day visit prior to the Washington meetings, apparently was also concerned about the timing of the Canadian announcement in the light of the Soviet overtures about a possible reduction of East-West forces in Europe. Any re-briefing on NATO forces, he felt, could interfere with East-West agreement on joint reductions.

Mr. Sharp told the West German foreign minister that Canada's planned troop reduction did not reflect any desire to decrease the effectiveness of the alliance. The minister's position was unique since it was neither a super-power like the United States—nor a European country—like all other countries with NATO troops in Germany.

The two men meet again today for another two-hour session.

Picasso's Stolen From London Man

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard detectives watched airports and seaports today for thieves who stole 25 paintings—including six Picassos—from the London apartment of Sir Roland Penrose, a friend of Picasso and owner of Britain's best private collection of modern art.

The paintings, including works by Picasso, Braque, Marc Chagall and Henry Moore, were valued at more than £300,000 ($780,000).

Scotland Yard's newly formed art theft squad was recalled from Easter leave and a description was flashed to police abroad through Interpol. Police feared the thieves may have smuggled the pictures out of the country within hours of the raid, which occurred while Penrose was away for an Easter weekend vacation.

Also stolen during the weekend was a tiny masterpiece by Breughel, called Small Landscape. It vanished from the country mansion of Squerryes Court in Kent while sightseers were touring the house. It was worth £1,000.

The most famous of the stolen Picasso paintings was Harlequin Weeping, which Penrose valued at £60,000 to £80,000. Penrose said he bought it from the Spanish born artist in 1937 "while the paint was still wet."

A trustee of Britain's Tate Gallery, Penrose is an expert on modern art and was a personal friend and disciple of Picasso. Now 68, Penrose deserted his family's banking business as a young man to study art in Paris where he became a close friend of the great painter.

The missing Picassos included Negro Dancer, a 1907 painting that was one of Picasso's first cubist ventures.

Those Who Bend Survive

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Silly the things people are proud of. Recently, I had a medical examination for some extra life insurance, and in discussing my health record, I told the doctor I have worked 28 years at the same place without ever missing a day's work.

This is the kind of pride that goeth before a fall, and I knew I have hemorrhoidary men boast that they haven't had a vacation in seven years, and on the eighth they crumple up with a heart attack. The past is not too predictive of the future, but it is easy to get smug about such matters.

A person is like a tree, in that a tree that won't bend is more likely to break than one that sways with the heavy winds. People who subject themselves a little, who coddle themselves a bit when necessary, who sometimes eat a lot longer than the Spartan types who grimly plow down to the office no matter how wretched they happen to feel.

Of course, there are sickly people and healthy ones; yet it is surprising how many of the sickly ones outlive the others. Perhaps because they pay more attention to warning signs, and have learned to give in to Nature's subtle nudges, for at least its co-operate with the ebb and flow of physical resistance.

It is no accident, I think, that women generally live longer than men, by a span of several years; or that we have the excess of some eight million widows over widowers in this country.

Women tend to be sick more often than men, and suffer more from chronic ailments. But, because they are so exquisitely aware of changes in their bodies, so intimately connected to the homeostatic balances of their being, they are continually adjusting the tenor and patterns of their activities to the realities of their daily needs.

Men, on the other hand, are only grossly aware of their bodies. A man will often take a perverse masculine pride in abusing his energies, as though it were proof of virility of some sort. It is considered a shameful show of weakness to pay attention to warning signs before they fell him with a mighty blow.

It is this male arrogance, I am convinced, rather than any inherent biological weakness, that drops men out of the race years before their wives or widows from the scene. And it may be an emotional luxury our society can no longer afford — as the final sickness increases our longevity, those millions of widows merely have more years of aimless solitude to look forward to, missing those husbands who never missed a day's work.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For April 9th.

Your birthday today is: The year ahead will be a time of consolidation of profits. Reorganization of your resources takes first priority all year. Learn to let things come to you rather than pressuring too hard. Renew here your long range plans and gather up what will fit into their fulfillment. Study matters or precision workers; others turn mystical.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): The influence of today is quite mixed. Past efforts come to pay off, even advancement, with heavier responsibilities. Sentimental matters do not fare so well. Patience is equal almost at once.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Haste in replying to thoughtless remarks is not the answer today. Agreements, particularly between relatives, have to be carefully worked out! Discrepancies are to be resolved calmly.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Your tendency is to offer comment on all sorts of matters people can't help. Seek more effort for the greater benefit of today's blessings. Serious study this evening, or good music.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Make up your mind early in the day and act to it! There are as many stories as there are people involved. Your skill at avoiding rash statements will be appreciated.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Give yourself time to think about fresh activities today. Some recent efforts have drifted into unplanned directions). Corrections involve your changing views of life, developing new emotional needs. Meditate.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept 22): Bring your optimism to the problems of the day. Don't settle on others! Relax early, get extra rest for tomorrow.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Sensitivity is the common characteristic of people around you today, so take it easy. Money matters are favored; you may be able to recapitalize or earn more than usual. Positive thinking will help you turn a big corner!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Nobody is quite sure of what should be today, and this leaves you more freedom. Do what you can to get your preference recognized while this condition prevails. Differences with relatives should be kept small.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): You are apt to act first (then reflect) today — fortunately your actions are intuitively sound. Seek solutions that will please others, not just logical factors.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Home, family matters improve and may be inspiring. Casual friends and acquaintances are somewhat critical. Avoid harsh, immediate reactions and you'll probably find the chance to show itself as such. The evening can be happy, with good humor.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Matters tend to backfire now. Don't be too personal are apt to be exposed, so stay out of their schemes. Financial planning is favored, but not travel, or intervention into the affairs of others.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Today productive ideas are apt to pop into your mind. Wait for a chance to organize before trying to put them into effect. Evaluate this evening.

Melting Snows Swell U.S. Midwest Floods

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rivers fed with melting snows have flooded areas of three Upper Midwest states, taking the life of a second Minnesotan and forcing hundreds to evacuate their homes.

Students joined other volunteers at Sioux City, Iowa, to rush construction of a sandbag dike for protection against the rising Big Sioux River.

This was the flood situation today:

Minnesota counted its second flood drowning victim Tuesday when Bernard Knudson, 60, of Kinbrae, fell into Heron Lake while poling ice from the supports of a railroad trestle. Earlier, Thomas Biernagel, 18, of New Ulm, was drowned while canoeing on a flooded river.

Many highways in the state were covered with water and some were closed. Officials evacuated 35 families at Dawson on Lac Qui Parle River where water was 7¼ feet above flood stage; 14 families were taken out of Windom and another 200 were expected to leave; seven were evacuated at Jackson.

In Iowa about 350 persons were evacuated at Cherokee on the Little Sioux River and another six families at Akron. The Big Sioux River was expected to crest at a record 15 feet above flood stage at Sioux City Thursday.

The weather bureau reported a record flood crest swirling down the Big Sioux in the southeastern part of South Dakota. Most of the town of Renner and parts of Dell Rapids were evacuated Tuesday night.

Hockey Trophies Stolen

TORONTO (CP) — The Hockey Hall of Fame was broken into here overnight and some of the top trophies in the game were stolen.

Lefty Reid, former sports writer and curator of the hall, said that missing are the Calder and Conn Smythe trophies from the National Hockey League and the original Hart Trophy, which was replaced about 15 years ago.

Riot-torn Cities Will Receive Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon Tuesday ordered the use of $9,000,000 to help 20 riot-damaged cities start cleanup and repair efforts.

Nixon also called on the department of housing and urban development to accelerate more than $200,000,000 in approved or pending programs aimed at restoring facilities and services in the riot-troubled cities.

Housing Secretary George Romney also announced that he will send survey teams to 20 cities to see what can be done to help clear away rubble and assist in projects to revitalize the riot-damaged areas.

NATO to Study Canadian Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — NATO'S two-day annual ministerial meeting opens here Thursday with the glittering ceremonial to celebrate the alliance's 20th birthday in sharp contrast to underlying grave concern over its future.

Canada's new self-defined role in the organization seems bound to have a psychological effect as the ministers plot NATO's course into the next decade.

Additionally, the new Soviet preoccupation with a hostile China and simmering restlessness among some member countries of the Warsaw pact—the Communist world's version of NATO—affect the world balance of power.

In the background also are the U.S. decision to enter into bilateral arms control talks with the Soviet Union and President Nixon's emphasis on negotiation rather than confrontation.

Canada's eight-man delegation will be headed by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp and will include Defence Minister Leo Cadieux and Gen. J. V. Allard, chief of the defence staff.

This is primarily a meeting of foreign ministers with the defence chiefs who will hold their own NATO meetings in Brussels in May—in accordance with other advisers. The main allliance meeting of finance, foreign and defence ministers is held annually in December.

Prime Minister Trudeau said last week in announcing the proposed "planned and phased reduction" in Canada's 10,000-man contingent in Europe that it would be discussed in detail with NATO allies at the defence planning committee meeting in May.

However, it is certain that Sharp and Cadieux will be under some pressure here to fill in some of the detail Trudeau left blank in giving the barest outline of Canada's future NATO role.

It also was considered a good bet that Sharp would at least touch on the subject in his address to the closed conference.

Although the U.S. state department's official reaction to Canada's long awaited decision was to welcome the fact she had at least decided to stay in NATO, there has been private concern expressed that the move might set off a chain reaction among other member countries.

Only last year, before the Soviet led occupation of Czechoslovakia by her Warsaw pact partners, there was broad support in the U.S. Senate for a resolution calling for a considerable reduction in the strength of the 225,000-man U.S. forces in Europe.

The Czech affair put an end to such talk, at least for the present. But barring a new Soviet clampdown there, or a similar adventure against Yugoslavia or Romania, there could be a resurgence of such opinion in the U.S. This would be especially likely if the financial and manpower demands of the Vietnam war continues unabated, as seems probable for some time.

Also the Soviet concern over the border battles with China has, in the view of some observers, diminished the Soviet threat in Western Europe. NATO was created 20 years ago to counter this threat and many now feel the alliance is in need of fundamental review and revision.

The Canadian action, following the French decision in 1966 to withdrew militarily from the alliance, gives new emphasis to this thesis, which the European member countries will seek to counter in the two days of private talks.

Svoboda Visits Slovaks

PRAGUE (CP) — President Ludvik Svoboda visited army units in Slovakia today in an apparent move to quell discontent among young progressive soldiers over a new Soviet demand for crackdown.

The visit—the fourth by Svoboda to army units in seven days—was reported by Prague radio. It came as progressive journalists faced tough disciplinary measures resulting from the crackdown.

Although the communique indicated a stronger crackdown on the press, the Czechoslovak leaders were understood to be resisting other Soviet demands, including a government reshuffle and declaration of martial law.

Patient Dies

Artificial Heart Use Is Questioned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Heart Institute wants to know whether guidelines fixed for federally financed research were violated by the use of an artificial heart in an attempt to save the life of Haskell Karp.

Kept alive by the mechanical substitute for 65 hours, Karp, 47, of Skokie, Ill., then received a human heart from a Massachusetts woman but died Tuesday in a Houston hospital after developing pneumonia and kidney failure.

Dr. Theodore Cooper, heart institute director, summarized the guidelines this way: "If experiments are going to or carried out on man every effort must be made to ensure the experiment is safely conceived, that the procedure be done with informed consent of the patient, that scientific matters involved be reviewed by a committee of scientists and physicians at the institution not involved in the experiments themselves."

NATO

New Role In Vietnam Possible

OTTAWA (CP) — Officials here are taking a cautious, wait-and-see attitude to reports that the U.S. has developed a strategy for early reduction of the fighting in Vietnam, possibly opening the way for a political settlement.

Planning has been going on for some time to provide a Canadian contribution for any Viet Nam peacekeeping operation, should Canada be called upon, but it's still highly inconclusive despite a spate of rumors in Washington about new peace initiatives.

An informed official said Canada is "not in a rush" to give a more concrete form to its planning until there is more concrete evidence that progress towards peace is being made.

Mideast Is Said At Crossroads

From AP-Reuters

Egypt said a second artillery duel flared across the Suez Canal late Tuesday, nine hours after a United Nations ceasefire stilled Egyptian and Israeli guns along the waterway.

The first duel lasted five hours. An Egyptian communique estimated Israeli losses at 40 killed and wounded, but the Israelis said four of their soldiers were wounded.

An Egyptian communique said the Israelis began firing across the canal again at 10:45 p.m., and the duel continued for 90 minutes.

Reviewing the new flareups, the authoritative newspaper Al Ahram in Cairo warned that the clashes on the Egyptian and Jordanian frontlines brought the Middle East crisis to a "crossroad."

The newspaper said either Israel must give up its "policy of continued widespread aggression" or there would be an explosion the extent of which no one could predict.

The fighting provided a gloomy backdrop for talks between President Nixon and King Hussein of Jordan, who began a three-day visit to Washington Tuesday. Hussein spoke about the "explosive situation" and warned that time is running out.

"We can either move toward a just and honorable peace, or we might lose the opportunity to establish it," the Arab ruler told Nixon.

The Big Four's chief delegates at the United Nations hold their second weekly meeting Tuesday on the Middle East situation, and afterward Lord Caradon of Britain told reporters progress had been made.

Caradon gave no details, but informed sources said the four ambassadors set up a second-level study group to search for common ground in the stated positions of Israel, Egypt and Jordan on how to settle the Middle East conflict.

U. S. Truckers Adopt Military Methods to Combat Hijackers

NEW YORK (AP) Truckers in the United States are turning to military methods to protect themselves from hijackers and thieves who are expected to steal $500,000,000 worth of merchandise from the industry this year.

The problem is so serious that some truckers now:

—Travel in convoys of twos and threes for protection.

—Have radio cars, sometimes including armed guards, follow rigs with particularly valuable cargoes.

—Fence their terminals and install burglar alarms on trucks.

"It's getting so bad that I wouldn't be surprised if one of these days we have a 'shotgun' rider along in the cab," says one insurance executive.

Who is responsible for the upsurge?

Says Frank Mack of the New Jersey Motor Truckers Association:

"About 75 per cent of the thefts made at gunpoint are of cargoes that have been pre-selected. And there's no doubt that these selections are made by organized crime."

Adds Robert Kortenhaus, vice-president of Bilkays Express, a leading northeastern U.S. trucking company:

"Who else but the Mafia would have the money to pay the hoodlums who actually steal the cargoes, the warehouses to store the goods and the markets to get rid of it?"

The $500,000,000 estimate was made by Babco Alarms, a nationwide security company.

William Blatz, Babco vice-president, says his firm estimated that truckers lost $450,000,000 last year and $360,000,000 in 1967.

Air Service Application Here Depends on Base Terminal

By ROBERT AVERY
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — A decision is expected soon from the defence department which could give the Quinte area its first commercial air service.

Last month the sales director for Rayaire, the company seeking to operate through Canadian Forces Base Trenton, said that the stop on the Montreal-Toronto air route would be installed at Kingston this summer.

Royalair officials earlier emphasized that operation of the service hinges on facilities at Kingston and Trenton. With a Kingston base now secured, Trenton now becomes the final link in the operation.

G. W. de Malpas Finlay said his company is now waiting for the go-ahead with their Trenton facilities.

The defence department has already approved use of the runway but the area will have to pay for a terminal building and additional ramps and taxi ways.

As a result, a letter was sent to base commander Col. H. A. Cardwell, who will forward it to his Ottawa superiors.

The letter — from the mayors of Belleville and Trenton — requests permission not only for runways, but, also, to build terminal facilities at the base.

If this permission is granted the project will be taken back to both municipal councils for discussion and further action.

"As soon as terminal facilities are available in Trenton we will make our application to the department of transport," said Mr. Finlay.

Royalair schedules propose eastbound flights arriving Trenton at nine a.m. and six p.m. and westbound flights at 11 a.m. and eight p.m.

The line now flies DC-3s seating 28 passengers — and Otter aircraft.

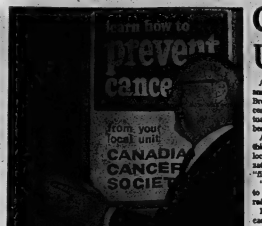
Services Now Installed; Residents Object to Cost

TRENTON — Investigation has not yet begun into a petition which had a delegation of Trentonians demanding lower taxes for recent local improvements in their area.

But, according to Mayor James MacDonald this morning, there seems to be little that can be done.

A delegation of 20 Edward Street residents stormed council Monday night saying that a petition had been circulated among them under false pretenses. And they added that many of the signatures on the petition were forged.

The petition was taken by council as an official go ahead for a sewer on the street. A water main was also put in at the same time.



Both projects were advertised before construction began in 1967 and as a result residents must now pay an average of $90 additional taxes for 15 years to pay for the local improvement services.

"I will be looking into the matter soon," said Mr. MacDonald this morning, "but I'm afraid there isn't much that can be done."

The mayor pointed out that many residents did not know who circulated the petition. The delegation said that its members believed the petition was to inform council of the need for a sewer and they thought there would be future discussions as to costs.

"Of course I feel sorry for them," said the mayor, "but they should have read the petition."

He added that the petition gave council a green light to go ahead with the sewer project.

Campaign Started

L. G. Lennox, president of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Cancer Society, organizes campaign pamphlets at the Bridge Street office.

Cancer Society Ups Its Goal

Although this is the tenth anniversary of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Cancer Society campaign the actual city organization has been in existence since 1958.

According to L. G. Lennox, this year's president of the local branch, the 1958 organization was formed and then "Exited quietly."

"There was some service to patients and some fund raising activities," he remembers.

But in 1959, there was a campaign with an objective set at $3,500 and of that total $2,425 was raised.

In 1960 the goal was set at $7,000 and $6,600 was the campaign funds for that year. In 1969 the society surpassed its objective of $22,000 with $21,684.

When the Belleville branch was formed it then included Just Belleville. Since that time it has expanded to include, Tweed, Madoc, Marmora, Deseronto and Stirling.

The society's office has changed its site a number of times. The first office was located on Bridge Street "probably about 1960".

"We've had a downtown office ever since Con," says Mrs. Lennox. "It's open two to four p.m. five days a week and serves as campaign headquarters, office and workshop."

Most of the campaign moneys raised go to research and to education of the public, but in the workshop and of things it is the service to patients that is most directly felt in the immediate area.

But, out of all the highlights of the past 10 years, Mr. Lennox feels that the recent cancer forum held at BCIVS last Thursday was the most outstanding.

"It was a terrific affair, one of the highlights in the city, conducted by an outstanding field of doctors. In my mind it's something that can carry on."

"Then there's the service to patients. It in itself is a great thing."

This year's campaign, the whole month of April, has an objective of only $23,000.

Choral Society

Festival Sings Out

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Arts Festival '69 opens tonight to the sounds of music.

The big co-operative production involving major culture groups in the Belleville area this year is spreading the third annual presentation of music, drama and the arts, over three weeks.

Raising the curtain tonight will be the Belleville Choral Society with a diversified program of music at Centennial Secondary School.

For the event, choir director Murray Irwin has arranged a repertoire of both sacred and secular music ranging through works by Mendelssohn and Bruckner to spirituals and folk songs.

Highlights of the program include the Gloria from the Alfrion Mass, arranged by Norman Luboff.

Guest artists will be S. Alec Gordon — choir accompanist and Bridge Street United Church organist — and 13-year-old Willson McAtton, of Stirling, prize - winner at the recent Rotary Club Festival.

Meantime, while the festival is being officially launched at Centennial, members of local arts and crafts groups will be setting up the second phase of the festival at the Hotel Quinte.

Opening tomorrow will be a two - day display turning the hotel's Pinnacle Room into a storehouse of the visual arts.

Ceramics, paintings, sculptures, craft work and photography will be on view from city arts and crafts groups and the Belleville Camera Club.

The festival's second week focusses on drama with the Theatre Guild production of The Diary of Anne Frank, opening April 16 at Centennial.

Directed by the Guild's resident artistic director Richard Howard, the play has won immediate acclaim for its sensitivity and craftsmanship.

The diary of the young Jewish girl in hiding from the Gestapo, proved a moving experience when dramatized for the stage. It mirrors the inner life of an adolescent human being, flourishing despite a background of stress and fear.

Music rings down the curtain on the festival the following week, April 23, with the Eastern Ontario Concert Orchestra onstage under director Stephen Chorna.

Guest artists are Haroldanne and Robert Reid and the program reflects a wide range of musical interest — with selections ranging from Schoresade, by Rimsky-Korsakov to the Broadway musical Mame.

Planning Stand Explained

Sidney reeve and Belleville and Suburban Planning Board member Jack Bush this morning eulogized upon his proposed plan for a separate Sidney planning area and gave the reasons why.

"It is the first place" said Mr. Bush, "I'm not just talking about Sidney but about Sidney township and Frankford combined.

"The whole area needs planning now, just as much as Belleville and its immediate surrounding area needs it.

"The fact is, that with the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board, Sidney is only getting planning for one small corner of the township when in reality the whole township needs planning."

To give the entire municipality adequate planning Mr. Bush feels that another board "set up on a lower tier" is necessary.

It costs Sidney $2,300 a year now to have a small portion of the township planned by the Belleville board.

"I'm not saying that this $2,300 is a waste of money," said Mr. Bush, "but rather it is not broad enough.

"We're going to have to spend a lot more money than that to get the adequate planning we require."

And, whether Sidney township ever gets its own planning board, Mr. Bush emphasized that close co-operation with the Belleville and Suburban Board would always be necessary.

"We've got to work together."

"And I'm certainly not against the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board and the job they do — it's just that all of Sidney township doesn't come under its jurisdiction."

Sugar Bush Program 'Smacking' Success

If sheer numbers are any criteria, this year's Moira River Conservation Authority sugar bush demonstration and pancake feed was a "smacking" success.

And encouraged by the public response received at this spring, sugar bush attraction, authority officials are hoping that it can be made an annual event.

Attendance figures given at last night's authority education and information advisory committee meeting showed that a total of 2200 Grade 4 school children from the Belleville area took in the maple syrup demonstration at the William Collins bush north of Roslin.

Then on the two weekends when the general public was invited 1337 adults and children gobbled more than 3,500 pancakes smothered in 23 gallons of syrup and ate 86 pounds of ham and 40 pounds of butter.

School children visiting the Collins bush were treated with two ounces of syrup each, totalling another 10 gallons.

Authority chairman Graham Bell termed the events an outstanding success and one of the best educational features ever staged by the authority.

He said that public acceptance of the event would undoubtedly demand that it be made an annual affair.

Over a night syrup demonstration cost the Moira Authority more than $1,200, with a big share of this amount being spent on the rental of the tractors and wagons necessary to transport the visitors from the main roadway to the sugar bush and back.

But the mile long wagon ride turned out to be one of the main points of interest for the sugar bush safari.

Authority fieldman John White said many of the children had never before ridden on a farm wagon behind either a tractor or team of horses and even the wagon jolts realized from the bumps and holes in the farm lane added to the excitement of the trip.

Mrs. Joyce Fisher, head of the Crescent Rebekah Lodge which catered to the pancake feed, said her members were delighted with the public response, adding that the turnout was far above expectations.

"We had some doubts when we were told to expect at least 1,000 people, but by the end of the second weekend we were almost out of pancakes."

And the syrup disappeared with alarming rapidity, with hurry up trips to the sugar bush for more having to be made.

At last night's meeting arrangements for the annual conservation school for Grade 6 school children at the Vandervaster park were discussed by Belleville public school principal Bert Frink.

Mr. Frink said that 33 schools, involving 52 class rooms and more than 1,500 pupils had already signified intention of taking part in the one day conservation school in June.

And the committee will recommend to the authority executive that the maple syrup demonstration and pancake feed be made an annual event.

Ameliasburg Experiencing Boom in Subdivision Expansion

By ELMER BONTER

AMELIASBURG — Township council's increased workload, due to subdivision development, is an added expression the township has gained a preferred reputation as the hottest piece of real estate in the Quinte area.

Councillors deliberated at their regular monthly meeting here last night and decided more than four hours to delegations seeking approval for subdividing land to build permanent homes and summer cottages.

Ontario Municipal Board approval for proposed subdivision development could mean an injection into the local economy of up to $3,000,000 in land sales, construction materials and wages. The extra assessment that would be generated could also result in a maintained tax rate for longer periods for township residents.

Proposed developments are slated for Peche Point, south of Belleville, at Weller's Bay near Consecon and Gardenville, and along the north shore of Consecon Lake, east of Highway 33. Both houses and summer cottages are involved in the various schemes.

Potential of the expansion drew comment from township clerk William Nightingale.

"You hear that outsiders are talking about high taxes in the township," he told council last night. "The way people continue to flock here to buy land tells me they can't believe those stories. It rather reflects that there's a preference for property protected by an official plan and zoning."

In addition, council last night received a request from subdivider R. S. Hiscock who is preparing to register another 35 lots included in a general plan of summer-cottage development at Smoke's Point on Weller's Bay in southwest Ameliasburg.

A change in location of land he is obliged to set aside for park purposes, met with council's favor.

Individual lots involved in all undertakings proposed by subdividers last night total more than 150 — with an estimated land market value of $200,000.

The ratio of permanent homes is 20 per cent higher than expected since one subdivider has submitted a request to the OMB for rezoning of summer cottage designations in residential, council was told.

Developments in progress are separate from normal expansion under way in the township.

Building inspector Harry Blades reported permits issued for March totalled $208,000 in new commercial and residential construction.

The total is by far the best in recent years, township clerk Nightingale noted.

One of the permits covered a commercial enterprise, a food-processing plant and warehouse at Mountain View.

The expansion council talked about is markedly visible in the township.

With the end of winter, vacant lots are under excavation as seasonal housebuilding gets under way.

The warm weather also has brought out private lot hunters, exploring the township for land bargains.

Realtors also are noticeably active in touring sites with potential clients.

Hastings Ends With Surplus

Hastings county ended the year 1968 with a surplus of $77,050.93 and, according to the county auditor, is in good shape financially.

In addition the county had a carry-over surplus from 1967 and at the end of last year had an accumulated surplus totalling $135,000.

Robert Crase, representing the auditing firm of Humpage, Taylor and McDonald, in his report this morning to county council at its April session, said county revenue last year totalled $3,358,094.-27.

Expenditures included $1,-668,127.35 in county road costs, $916,460.92 for social and family services; $252,-239.27 in general government expenditures and $223,492.91 in debenture debt charges.

Revenue included $1,659,-163.21 from county road levy and provincial road grants; $336,173.58 in county general levy, $710,650.68 in grants for social and family services and $110,544 in recoverable debt charges.

Fifty thousand dollars of the county's 1968 $77,000 surplus came from the Ontario government through underestimation of the government's share of administration of justice costs, $11,000 from under expenditure on county roads and $6,600 from general government.

The county's debenture debt at December 31 stood at $1,609,142 of which $607,619 is recoverable from other municipalities.

Arbitration Possible In Picton

PICTON (Staff) — Picton police salary negotiations are almost to the point of arbitration, said Const. George Wright, spokesman for the police department this morning.

The police returned a counter-proposal Mar. 31, Const. Wright said if this is not accepted then it will have to go before an arbitration board.

He was reluctant to say how long they would wait for the police commission's answer, but said, "it won't be very long."

Mayor H. J. MacFarland, said this morning that it would probably be two weeks before any answer would be announced.

"I'm not worried about arbitration," said the constable in regard to salary increases.

Picton police salary negotiations were started in Jan. but have been plagued by the absence of police commissioners.

Thurlow Seeks Advice On Volunteer Fire Plan

Thurlow Township has taken more steps in its bid to research the factors involved in the establishment of its own volunteer department.

At its regular monthly meeting yesterday, Thurlow council decided to request a survey from the Ontario Fire Marshall's office which would report on what equipment, manpower and location would be recruited for Thurlow to obtain its own volunteer fire department.

A fire agreement controversy between Belleville and four neighboring townships has spurred on decisions by Thurlow and Ameliasburg Townships to investigate the creation of volunteer departments of their own.

The discussion began about two months ago when Belleville announced a proposed change in the fire protection agreements between the city and its four adjacent townships which receive protection — Thurlow, Ameliasburg, Sidney and Tyendinaga.

The new proposal raised the costs of fire protection to the townships by approximately $ 400 per cent. Thurlow's costs would have jumped from $3,110 a year to $57,-000.

It sparked a series of counter proposals and discussions to create separate departments.

At yesterday's meeting Thurlow council received statistics from two other townships who already have volunteer fire departments — Smith and Pittsburg Township.

According to clerk-treasurer, E. M. Deslee, these two townships are comparable to Thurlow as far as population and nearness to urban centres are concerned.

Both townships reported that the cost factor for a department would be at least $10,000.

Oak Hills Farmer First to Seed Land

Spring cultivation is a full week behind last year and as much as a month later than the earliest spring recalled by a long time Oak Hills area farmer.

David Hollinger, at Boardman's Hill, yesterday sowed his first cut field and recalls it is exactly eight days later than last year.

"I sowed my first oats on April Fool's Day last year," he said.

The earliest sowing on record as far as the Oak Hills farmer is concerned was on March 10 about eight years ago.

Traditionally Mr. Hollinger is the first farmer of the area to commence spring cultivation and has been as much as two feet of snow fall after sowing his first field.

"But I've never had a crop failure," he says.

One big reason for this, he feels, is that every two years he buys new registered seed.

This year he is again sowing early variety Garry oats with which he has had good success for many years.

Foshay Resigns

Picton Fire Chief Quits Over Salary

By ROBERT DUNNETT
Staff Reporter

PICTON (Staff) — A refusal by Picton town council to meet Chief Duane Foshay's salary demands last night, has resulted in the community looking for a new fire chief.

Chief Duane Foshay resigned after his salary request was turned down. His demands called for a shared salary increase starting with a basic $8,000 in 1969 and rising to $9,000 by 1971. His present salary is $6,400.

Chief Foshay also asked for a car allowance of $1,000, longer holidays and extra pay for long time service.

Council unanimously agreed they could not afford to meet Chief Foshay's demands and so had no choice but to accept his resignation.

Mayor H. J. McFarland stated that he regretted having to sign the resignation because he thought the chief had done a good job for the town of Picton.

Fire committee chairman James Bird said he was sorry to see the chief leave but said he couldn't advocate the salary increases requested by the chief.

Fire chief Duane Foshay will be returning to Trenton on April 15 as a regular firefighter in the department. He had served there for seven years before coming to Picton as chief in 1965.

It was under Chief Foshay that council decided after a fire marshal's investigation to create a three-man fire department.

Chief Foshay stated he was sorry to leave Picton but reasoned that the town could not afford to pay the amounts he required to do the job.

"We couldn't come to terms on salary. I'm sorry about leaving but I'd like to think I've done a good job here and I hope the people think so."

The chief's family will remain in Picton until early summer.

Appointed as acting fire chief was firefighter Leonard Tripp. This will be for a three-month period until a new chief can be chosen.

Mr. Tripp has been a permanent firefighter on the department for the past three years and served as a volunteer for nearly five years before that.

He is a graduate of the Ontario Fire College at Gravenhurst.

Mr. Tripp has also applied for the chief's job.

During the past two weeks there have been numerous charges and counter charges between Chief Foshay and council members and members of the fire committee due to council discussions regarding the release of any policy information by the chief.

At one point Chief Foshay said he would release no information whatsoever (even about fires themselves) to the press as a result of the directive.

With the resignation of Chief Duane Foshay, hopes for a county-wide fire fighting organization appear to have been given a setback.

Although the plan was turned down almost two years ago there was still some chance for a revival due to the closing of Camp Picton.

With the fire department leaving the base this September some townships will be almost unprotected by any fire department, especially the areas in north and south Marysburg which never had much coverage and will now have even less.

Under Chief Foshay's plan, Picton would have been the only control centre between Ameliasburg and Wellington maintaining the district departments.

Five other area departments would have been formed to cover the outlying areas.

Picton PUC Explains Why Revenue Retained

PICTON (Staff)—Public Utilities Commission chairman Jack Ward explained to council last night where extra PUC revenue was being spent.

Some councillors thought any profit shown by the commission should be turned back to the council but Mr. Ward told them that the PUC should keep the money to cover unexpected expenses and capital expenditures.

He said it would just mean more, book work for the profit back to council because the council would not be able to use it as it would have to be set aside in the PUC fund.

Mr. Ward also explained the PUC's purchase of property on Spencer St. These were part of the water purification expansion program, which had been approved by previous councils.

Reeve Barney Hepburn made a motion that before any more large land purchases were made by the PUC the commission must inform council of its proposals.

The motion was passed.

Hallowell and Picton Plan Water Agreement

PICTON (Staff) — Town council gave the planning and development committee permission last night to go ahead and draw up a final water and sewage agreement with Hallowell township.

After some lively debate between Mayor H. J. McFarland and committee chairman William B. Lane, a motion was finally passed to authorize the drawing up of a final agreement.

Mayor McFarland argued that Picton was making too many concessions to Hallowell. He claimed the PUC had never been paid for nine hydrants which they service which are in the township of Hallowell.

The mayor said this would total $10,000 — two mills on the tax rate. He said he wanted to see the money collected.

The Sporting Scene

Belleville's sporting and recreational scene is showing plenty of promise these days.

For instance, there are those terrors of the minor hockey circuit, the Belleville Hinsmen bantam team, who have dominated the provincial hockey championship during the past two years, and just recently retained their OMHA "AA" crown.

And there were those intrepid young canoeists from Loyalist College who shot the rapids of the Moira River Sunday afternoon. Several crews were tossed into the water, but two of the craft made it safely to the mouth of the river at Victoria Park.

Now with summer on the way golf, tennis and swimming will come to the fore again. But looking ahead again to next winter is a local group — the Youth Centre Committee — which is exploring the possibility of another covered arena to augment ice facilities at the Belleville arena.

Land is being sought for an arena and ice surface and seating at a cost of about $264,000. A member of the committee has said a grant of $10,000 would be available for construction; and this, together with anticipated public support and monies from fund-raising projects, could help to get the venture going.

The project, which it is hoped will provide not only additional ice time for the city's young hockey players, but year-round recreational facilities for all age groups will be discussed at a public meeting in the Recreation Centre on Pinnacle Street on Thursday evening.

The project deserves support. Most of the sporting activities of the other sports-oriented countries of the Commonwealth are the result of private enterprise such as this. Recreational and sporting facilities are not just the product of thin air, but rather the interest and hard work of citizens.

Youth Show Their Mettle

Violence and dissent, and the cult of the dropout as manifested by such groups as the hippies, are very much a part of the United States scene today, not to mention other parts of the world.

The U.S., however, seems to suffer most in this regard. Yet there are counter movements among the young people of the country that illustrate a growing disgust with the hurts that are being inflicted on Americans by negative forces.

In the university city of Ann Arbor, Michigan, there is The Gilknet Gang. They roam the streets and sometimes they bypass the law. But they are a gang with a difference and they call themselves "Guerrillas for God."

Strangely enough, the idea evolved from a trip to Florida's alum area. A church youth group noted the way street gangs operate. They were impressed but decided to organize for more positive goals. What kind of activities do they engage in? A bridge, covered with obscenities, is painted one night; a condemned house popular with neighborhood children, is boarded up; downtown planters, unfilled because of debate over who should do it — business or government — are filled with flowers. And so on.

And from Miami comes word of a teenage group known as the Decency Movement. More than 35,000 teens filled the Orange Bowl at a recent rally decked for prayer and celebrities. The inspiration of one Mike Levesque, 17, a Miami student, the teen group has banded together to counter the influence of hippies and lewd performances of rock music. Among the celebrities present were Jackie Gleason, Anita Bryant and Ted Mack.

These are encouraging signs among some sections of American youth. We hope their influence spreads. They are similar to the thing Oxt grudge the one in Toronto comes to mind) based on the principles of Moral Rearmament. Society is in good hands with a rising generation that has young people such as these.

Costly Services

With the cost of living rising as it is, this land of ours is becoming less and less one of free enterprise and more and more a welfare state supported by the taxpayer.

It is as Dr. Richard Potter put it recently, the public is becoming aware that "our free services are very costly indeed . . . and it is the average taxpayer who bears the brunt not only of the cost of these services, but the tremendous cost of their administration as well."

"We pay to be provided with more and more services, which we may or may not want," the MPP for Quinte noted.

Be that as it may, there can be no turning back on those social services that we have. However, economies can be made, particularly in administration, so much the better.

International Market

Firm Does $1 Million Business in Students' Notes

TORONTO (CP) — Coles Publishing Co. has parlayed professor-written high school notes into a million-dollar business.

The firm, started in 1953, first began printing condensed notes for high school and college courses in 1962.

The notes were written by university professors and heads of high school departments, who were paid by Coles.

Selling for between 50 cents and $2.50 a set, the notes today are distributed by 30 Coles stores in Eastern and Western Canada and by other retailers. Sales are about 3,000,000 copies annually in Canada and 14 other countries.

"It wasn't until 10 years ago that we broke into the international market," says Carl Cole, 54, who began the firm by selling books on commission in a store on Toronto's Bloor Street. "Today we publish more than 500 titles covering almost every subject taught in high school and college. The notes just grew in response to student demand."

Although printed in English, the notes sell well in countries where English is a second language—in France, Greece, India, Ghana, and Norway. The Coles record licensed a United States publisher to print the notes on a royalty basis.

The firm does not subsist on high school notes alone. Last year it sold about 3,000,000 books, about a third of them paperbacks. Today such things as pencils, papers, toys, art supplies and prints make up about 30 per cent of the firm's sales.

Mr. Cole says his stores can compete successfully because of their size and outlet distribution. Their major recent expansion has been in shopping centres. For the customer, the Coles operation is largely self-service.

In past years, Coles would buy accumulations of books from personal librarians to fill the selling gap after the September student rush had subsided.

Today, says Mr. Cole, his firm's buying contacts are worldwide.

"We often send our people to buy publishers' excess inventories."

Northern Ireland's total trade in 1967 was worth £1,058 million, an increase of £28 million compared with the previous year.

Exports were valued at £506,852,000, an increase of £28,000,000 over 1966. The figure means that Northern Ireland is exporting at a rate of about £240 per head of the population.

Imports at (551,700,000 were £28,300,000 up on the previous year.

Major exports included machinery and appliances, fabrics, textile yarns, rubber goods and foodstuffs. Exports across the land boundary to the Irish republic totalled £23,100,000 or 6.5 per cent of the total exports.

Paul Takes The Plunge

Hamilton Spectator

Beatle fans (and there are still millions of them) have no bachelor bug to bang their hopes on now that Paul McCartney, the baby-faced one, has taken the hand of a wealthy divorcee in marriage. Woe is them.

The fans will survive, and so, we guess, will the Beatles. After all their grandmothers survived Rudy Vallee's marriages, and Rudy Valentino's too; and their mothers and other sisters sobbed but did not desert when Frankie's visits to the hitching post became a bit monotonous even to non-Sinatra folk, and when Elvis finally took the plunge.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Organized tennis in the Bay of Quinte district has gotten off to a fine start this year. The annual meeting of the Bay of Quinte Tennis League was held at the Quinte Skating and Tennis Club headquarters. It was under the chairmanship of Gordon Huck of Point Anne who was the president of the league for 1948.

A distinguished series of half-hour radio productions offered by the world's great operas sung and spoken in English will be broadcast to Quinte district radio listeners by Bill Delnie over radio station CJBQ commencing this Sunday.

The Belleville Golf team, furbishing in a blaze of glory not only won the championship of the Major "A" League last night, but also rolled the highest aggregate score for the season.

P.M. In Tourist Ad 'Down Under'

Toronto Star

Pierre Elliott Trudeau may go down in history as the first prime minister of Canada to rank with Niagara Falls and the Rockies.

A New Zealand travel agency has published an advertisement urging New Zealanders to "Fly to Canada and see 'Trudeaumania.'" The ad goes on:

"Trudeaumania? It's uniquely Canadian. It's a wave of wild enthusiasm for Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau. This man is really something to get excited about. At 48 he's a young, dynamic politician, an eminent scholar, and an avid sportsman. He believes Canada to be the greatest country in the world, and for this his compatriots love him."

This clearly provides a great opportunity for the Canadian Government Travel Bureau, though it is still not clear how it will be exploited. Will the Prime Minister be exhibited free, at stated hours, to the hordes of New Zealanders or will they be charged admission?

Farming Economy

Ottawa Journal

It was found that only about 15 to 20 per cent of farmers are really making incomes comparable to or better than those, of city residents, No less than 300,000 Canadian farm families suffer from inordinately low incomes, and half or more of these are below 'any defined poverty line.' The average hourly 'wage' return to the man on the land is reckoned at a little over 60 cents. Many small farms have no hope of producing a reasonable income; in 1965, one third of Canadian farms, with their owners close to the poverty line, produced only five per cent of the total sales of agriculture.

Expo Site Ideal for Recreation Centre

Mackean's Magazine

Man and his world has been reprieved. It might have been better had it died. It is devoutly to be hoped that Mayor Drapeau is not going to insist year after tattered year that his cherished brainchild be propped up and perpetuated until it is akin to Toronto's tacky CNE.

Expo's problem is that it is suffering from aftermath. In 1967, everything was going for it.

Beyond its economic usefulness as a tourist attraction it is difficult to see any reason for perpetuating Man and His World as an exhibition.

With respect, Mayor Drapeau why flog a tired concept? Let Montreal, which died the world in imagination with Expo, lead again by building the greatest citizens' centre in history.

It's proposal: turn the magnificent Expo site into a permanent recreation centre. Construct a massive swimming pool on the scale of Moscow's. Build a few dozen tennis courts. Create the most extensive marina in the world. Lay out basketball courts, baseball diamonds, football fields, hiking trails. For winter, construct hockey cushions, screwmobile trails, a skiing area.

Adapt one of the permanent buildings for use as a giant teen centre, another for square dancing. Set up arts and crafts and drama locales. And keep La Ronde for amusement.

The location is perfection. The Metro makes it all accessible to Montrealers for a subway fare.

Stop trying to duplicate that first splendid rapture, Mr. Drapeau. Dream another dream.

Need for Consumer Education

Brockville Recorder and Times

The judgment of Judge John R. Matheson, in which he registered a conviction against a firm for falsely advertising a product at a "special price", when it was the ordinary price, points to the need for vigilance in this area of merchandising by shoppers rather than the new consumer's affairs department of the federal government. This department, created by Prime Minister Trudeau, has other work cut out for it.

It was recently noted that investigators in the United States by the consumer's affairs branch of government revealed built in obsolescence in many products on the market in the U.S. Betty Furness, special presidential assistant in the department, pointed this out in a report before she quit her post. This is an area in which consumer's affairs can operate effectively.

Many stores, some in Brockville, skate on pretty thin ice in some of their in-store advertising. It is possible to find a number of goods carrying a large sign "special." This leads the customer to think he is getting a special price when the price is the regular price. Quite often too, special sale prices of goods are found to be no less than the regular price. Such tactics, we believe, constitute grounds for complaint, investigation and possible court action.

In the entire area of purchasing, the consumer is sadly lacking in education. It is gained by experience, some of it unfortunate and costly. Schools would be filling a need if they exposed students to a course along these lines because ultimately all students are going to be purchasers. An exposure to credit practices would help too.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Confederate Gen. Robert E. Lee surrendered to U.S. Gen. Ulysses S. Grant 104 years ago today—in 1865—at Appomattox Court House, and the American Civil War was over. The industry and economy of the South had been virtually destroyed. The war cost the North about $15,000,000,000 (excluding pensions and interest on war loans) and the South about $3,500,000,000. Thousands never counted properly, about 300,000 men died in battle and thousands more in prison camps.

1779—Doctor Humphrey Davy discovered that nitrous oxide—laughing gas —as an anesthetic.

1963—Sir Winston Churchill was proclaimed an honorary citizen of the United States.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1944—United States planes bombed targets near Rome; Gen. Charles de Gaulle discharged Gen. Henri Giraud by publishing his post as commander-in-chief and appointing him inspector-general of the French armed forces.

Teenage Drinking

Cobourg Sentinel-Star

There was a dance in a township hall in the County of Northumberland — a township non affiliated to us that he had five pints of beer.

Five pints, one after the other are quite a lot for one body to hold. The township son, under so-termed 'drinking age' staggered from the precincts of the hall. On his uncertain way, in the general direction of his home on foot, he was apprehended by Ontario Provincial Police and subsequently charged with impaired driving and causing an accident.

Five pints of beer, four pints of beer, three pints of beer, more or less, with hard liquor on the side, at every school and township hall dance — for witness, read the youth parade in Provincial Court. Multiply the number by 100 in the county for those who haven't been caught drinking while under age.

Five pints of beer . . . Don't come to The Cobourg Sentinel-Star and ask that you name be withheld.

Teens Lend A Big Hand

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

Cornwall teenagers are community - minded. They prove it every day, if you will just look around. Take the Heart Fund blitz for a recent instance. Some 350 students, representing four schools and the regional school of nursing, accepted the challenge of conducting the blitz and collected $3,000 in one night by knocking on city doors. As a result the Heart Fund campaign was the most successful ever; returns stand at $5,709 and are expected to hit $6,000.

The same spirit has been demonstrated through OXFAM ventures and on behalf of various other charities.

French Canadians See Management as Key To Economic Equality

This is another in a series of articles on French Canada today based on interviews with leading Quebec figures.

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

MONTREAL (CP) — Some French-Canadian regard the unromantic old term "management" as a sort of magic password to industrial power, although they recognize no single road to a better economic balance with the "Anglos."

They see modern management as one way French-speaking Quebecers can gain far greater control over their economic destiny even if industrial ownership remains heavily in the hands of Americans and English-speaking Canadians.

They feel this kind of low-key message, though it will not hit front pages like a Montreal bombing, can have a more permanent impact on society generally than any frenetic manifestations of Quebec nationalism.

"In our day the ownership of a big undertaking is not what is really important, but the management," said Raymond Primeau, 47-year-old general manager of the provincial Bank of Canada.

"The owners and the managers are no longer the same people in most corporations," was the way another source put it. "Ownership is widely spread—and money has no language."

Highly qualified managers, creators of economic growth, are the new elite of Quebec, Canada and, indeed, the Western world, said Mr. Primeau.

"Even six years ago the elite in Quebec were the professionals—doctors, lawyers, notaries—but this is no longer the case. In few years it is going to be this new productive mind which is called management.

"Because a country, a nation, a community will be self-developing—and in consequence will be free—if it has the potential for conceiving things in a bigger way, which is good management.

With engineering and law degrees from the University of Montreal, Mr. Primeau received diplomas in business administration and economics respectively from the London School of Economics and U. of M.'s Ecole des Hautes Etudes Commerciales.

This adds up to something of a new breed of cat on the French-Canadian business scene. Such new men are keenly aware of the ideas of economist Kenneth Galbraith of the United States and also Frances's J.J. Servan-Schreiber. These experts have described the technostructures of the new industrial state and the primacy of education and invention—over investment—in industrial expansion.

"We're already in a world where the second technological revolution, involving computers and so on, means that more and more the mind, in its business aspects—management—will be pre-eminent."

Are the Quebecois ready for the challenge?

"It depends on many factors," said Mr. Primeau. "I think we're heading tremendously fast that way if you compare the potential business capacity right now with 1960 or 1950. It's a completely new picture. We can already see the results from our changed educational system."

Those societies which now arrange a "marriage" between university and industrial worlds will be the ones still driving ahead in the high-to developed category in 10 or 15 years.

A series of interviews showed that virtually all sources are agreed on the need for more and more students trained in business and administration. One authority estimated Quebec's French-language institutions now have a total of approximately 2,200 such students, a few more than the province's English-language colleges.

But Dr. Alphonse Riverin, president of the new Universite de Quebec and former dean of the University of Sherbrooke's faculty of administration, put his finger on a startling finding:

"The graduates are going mostly to English-Canadian and Anglo-American companies in Ontario and Quebec because French-Canadian firms are not hiring them."

This is resulted from the French-Canadian tradition that you learn the art or science of business by working in business—not by going to college—and besides, said Dr. Riverin, some firms say they cannot afford such high-priced help.

"My feeling is the opposite — they cannot afford not to hire them."

Mr. Primeau stressed the need of the traditionally small or family-size French-Canadian firms to regroup, by merger or association, or face "not only anemia but eventual disappearance."

"Are we going to be alive and extended in 10 years or are we going to be in a position to disappear entirely? . . .

"We're absent from the large basic sectors such as steel, automobiles, metallurgical and petro-chemicals, which actually condition the economy of industrialized countries. As far as growth industries are concerned, such as electronics, we have shown little interest.

Industrialist Gerard Filion, a long-time heavyweight in a wide breadth of French-Canadian intellectual life, emphasized the ownership factor. He urged creation of some 10 large-scale firms in which management and most of the shareholders would be French-Canadian. The provincial government, he said, should take a hand with loans or even grants to bring about the merger of family firms.

Mr. Filion said his own company, Marine Industries Ltd., created from three family firms with the aid of General Investment Corp., compares in size with Canadian Vickers and Dominion Bridge.

"The group has taken on new life and is becoming one of the major concerns not only of Quebec but of Canada," he added.

The former editor of Le Devoir newspaper said that while it is true French-Canadians have advanced to leading posts in some international firms since the Second World War, this is by no means always the case.

The vast pulp and paper industry had operated in Quebec for 50 years without a French-Canadian "succeeding so far in reaching any of the top positions," with one possible exception.

"This sort of thing can lead to an extremely serious situation because French-Canadians feel they are doomed to be employees only," said Mr. Filion.

The aim was not to identify firms either as totally French or totally English, but it was necessary to have some big ones largely French-speaking or bilingual.

Fields ripe for consolidation most frequently mentioned in the interviews were furniture manufacturing, where some 75 to 100 firms now were operating, and shoe manufacturing.

Gerard Plourde, 53, is president of United Auto Parts Inc., described as one of the few French Quebec firms to penetrate Ontario—also British Columbia and the Maritimes—with annual sales in the $20,000,000 range.

A director of 12 firms, Mr. Plourde commented on statements by radical students that French-Canadian company directors can do little for their people since they are salaried.

"They have a point when they say if you're the only French-Canadian on a board, you haven't got the support you need on the assumption that the other board members are not enlightened.

"I find, however, that many of these other directors are more attuned to this than ever before, and are prepared to recognize some of these things.

Mr. Plourde, who said the French fact is rarely discussed at board meetings, gave an inside glimpse of just where the hurt comes when it gets down to "cost factors."

"I don't mean just a cost of the enterprise itself—for instance, one such cost might be the translation into French of everything that goes on.

"I'm thinking of costs to the other group, if you like, in the using of professional talent. Suppose a director suggests that a corporation place some of its insurance with a French-Canadian firm.

"At that point it's going to cost the other group something. At that point the difficulty arises . . . if you have more than one French-Canadian on the board, these things are easier."

On Quebec's general situation Mr. Plourde declared:

"I think the economic factors are going to be of more significance in the long run than the political. I'm convinced that if we go through the next 25 years on the improved basis I can observe, we'll have many more French-Canadians in positions of authority in industry and other spheres."

This would mean a shift in power on a linguistic basis but not necessarily or entirely to the detriment of English-speaking Quebecers, said Mr. Plourde.

"There has to be a shift—of that I'm convinced. If today you have 100 people in executive jobs and 80 per cent are English-speaking, it will have to change.

"But that may mean in effect less transfers from Ontario. It will not all be to the detriment of those who live here. Many of these executives have come from elsewhere and could have gone elsewhere."

Tomorrow: How French Canadians see survival today.

Assessment Questions Welcomed

TRENTON — "What will the new take-over of assessment mean to the average property-owner? Will taxes go up or down?

This is a question which affects many thousands of people in the Quinte district and they will have a chance answered this evening.

to have their questions Victor Hewson, assessment commissioner of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham, will be speaking at the Murray Township Ratepayers' meeting this evening at eight p.m. at Centennial School in Murray Township.

His topic will be the upcoming reassessment and a question period will follow.

The funeral for Gordon Langstaff was held from the George O'Brien Funeral Residence on Tuesday morning.

Rev. F. P. Sullivan conducted the service in the chapel and said the graveside prayers in St. James' cemetery.

The bearers, all members of the Northern Electric Company, were Fred Fisher, Bert Walters, Arthur Smith, Bert Guay, William Hitchion, and Howard Anderson.

THOMAS JAMES CORRIGAN Read

Prominent in the civic and community life of Tyendinaga township and a lifelong resident of the Read district, Thomas James Corrigan, died in Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston on Tuesday in his 94th year.

Mr. Corrigan was born at Read, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael Corrigan and at an early age took up farming, which he continued all his life until his retirement some years ago.

He was a member of the school board for many years and for 41 years was tax collector for Tyendinaga township.

Mr. Corrigan was a member of St. Charles' church at Read and was a member of the Holy Name Society and the League of the Sacred Heart.

Surviving are four sons, James Corrigan, Read, Wilfred of Sarnia, William of Ottawa, Charles of Edmonton, Alta, and three daughers, Mrs. Thomas (Mary) Phillips, Read Misses Bertha and Frances at home. His wife, the former Rose Conlin, died some years ago.

Also surviving are two brothers, Dennis Corrigan, Tyendinaga, John of Read and two sisters, Mrs. Lucy Egan, Napanee and Mrs. Johanna Kilbrene, Ernestville.

Mr. Corrigan is resting at his late residence. Requiem mass will be celebrated at St. Charles' church on Friday, April 11 at 10:30 a.m.

Interment will be in St. St. Charles cemetery. Funeral under direction of the O'Brien Funeral Residence.

MRS GEORGE CULBERTSON Deseronto

Mrs. Hazel Anne Culbertson died very suddenly in her Deseronto home Friday afternoon in her 56th year. She was born on the Tyendinaga Reserve, the daughter of the late Clayton Brant and his late wife, who was Alice Brant prior to her marriage. She had lived on or near the Reserve all her life, and was a member of Christ Church.

Mrs. Culbertson was twice married first to Levi Green, and then to George Culbertson who survives her. She is survived, also, by three daughters: Mrs. Carl (Olive) Brant, Mrs. David (Iva) Lewton, and Mrs. Lloyd (Geraldine) Brant, all of RR. 1, Deseronto, and by five sons, Cecil Green, Roy Green, Orval Green, Arnold Green, and Victor Green, all of Deseronto; and by her stepchildren: Gordon Green of Shannonville, John Green of Deseronto, James Green of Napanee, Mrs. Mey Akenbrack of Napanee, Mrs. Evelyn Woodcock of Belleville, and Mrs. Rose Reynolds of Newburgh; by 14 grandchildren; and by her sister, Mrs. Elda Barnhardt of Wewerley, N.Y.

The funeral service was held Monday, April 7th. in Christ church at two o'clock, Rev. A. F. Dowdell officiating.

Interment was in Deseronto Cemetery.

DAVID GORDON MARACLE

DESERONTO — David Gordon Maracle died suddenly at his home on the Bay Shore Road, on the Tyendinaga Reserve, early Saturday morning. He was in his 65th year. He had been hospitalized for several months, but had returned home the previous Monday.

He was born on the Tyendinaga Reserve, the son of Joseph Maracle and the former Mary Green, but had gone to Midland to work at an early age. He married there, and afterwards was employed in various parts of Northern Ontario, and in Rouyan, Que., where he remarried following his wife's death. For five years he was employed in Toronto, retiring five years ago to return to the Reserve.

He served overseas in World War Two for five years, and branch 280 of the Royal Canadian Legion held a service at the funeral home Sunday evening. He was buried in the Legion Cemetery in Deseronto.

He is survived by his wife, the former Luella Aubrey and by his sons, James, Aubrey, and Raymond, all of Toronto; and Alan and George, his daughter, Mrs. A. (Shirley) Gray, all of Midland.

The funeral service was held in the White and Morris Funeral home on Deseronto at 3.30 p.m., on Monday, 1968. Rev. A. F. Dowdell of St. Mark's church, Deseronto, officiating.

The bearers were: Vernon Claus, William Gray, Alfred William Maracle, and Rod Reading.

MELVIN EARL REYNOLDS

The funeral for Melvin Earl Reynolds was held from the John R. Bush Funeral Home on Tuesday afternoon.

Rev. Gordon Woodcock conducted the service in the chapel and also the committal rites at Belleville cemetery.

The bearers were David, Douglas, Beverley, Ronald, Wayne and Donald Reynolds.

MRS. ARTHUR PACKMAN.

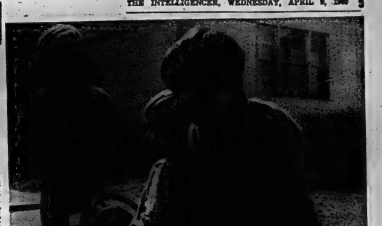
In failing health for some time, Mrs. Rose Elizabeth Packman, Albright Manor, Bensmville, died in Consecon hospital this Wednesday morning in her 77th year.

Mrs. Packman was born in England, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alvi Marsters and has been a resident of Albright Manor for nearly two years. She formerly resided in Belleville and Stirling.

She was a member of Bridge Street United church.

Surviving are one son, Rev. Paul Packman, Brantford; one daughter, Mrs. Althe Ratcliffe, Toronto and two grandchildren. Her husband, Rev. Arthur Packman died in 1964.

Mrs. Packman is resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home. Service will be conducted in Bridge Street United church chapel on April 10 at 1.30 p.m.



Interment will be in Belleville cemetery with Rev. Alfred Poulter officiating.

Talk on Mental Health Given at IODE Meet

The regular monthly meeting of the Argyll Chapter IO DE was held in the Officers' Mess in the armories on Wednesday, April 2 with the Regent Mrs. F. R. Allan in the chair.

The business meeting and reports by convenors followed the guest speaker Bert Metcalfe, president of the local Mental Health Association who spoke of the increasing number of mentally disturbed persons and the acute shortage of trained personnel to work with them. He offered some suggestions as to how local groups could assist this volunteer organization.

The guest speaker was introduced by Mrs. C. W. Bristol and thanked by Mrs. A. B. Duffy.

Mrs. L. Smith, a guest and potential member was introduced by Mrs. H. Kokesh. Mrs. C. W. Bristol reviewed the EMO publication "11 Steps to Survival". An interesting article was read by Mrs. F. M. Spragus titled "Joey's Island" — Newfoundland's 20-year celebration as Canada's 10th province.

Mrs. J. Sherry reported a Citizenship Court would be held at the Court House. A reception for approximately 25 new Canadians will be held in the Officers' Mess Belleville Armories following the court under the auspices of the Argyll and St. Julien Chapters.

A letter was received from the executive of Provincial Chapter a dvising that the Film Department will be discontinued.

The Chapter will hold a combined rummage sale with St. Julien Chapter in the Armories May 8. The members were asked to support the Arts Festival, especially the Eastern Ontario Concert Orchestra sponsored by St. Julien Chapter.

Thank-you letters were received for donations to the Hastings County Historical Society and a winner of the Rotary Music Festival — Miss Ursula Berger.

The Bemersyde Chapter, IODE, Campbellford has extended an invitation to attend its birthday tea and hat show on April 12 from 2 - 5 p.m. at the home of Mrs. F. M. Rutherford.

Delegates for the IODE convention to be held in Hamilton April 16, 17 and 18 are Mrs. F. R. Allan and Mrs. J. K. Bradford.

Mrs. Mcnship's group served lunch.

WEDDING

JOHNSTON — GORDON

TWEED — Rev. Robert C. Jones officiated at the marriage recently of Joyce Lorraine Gordon, and Frank William Johnston, both of Kingston, in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Picton.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gordon of Picton, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Johnston of Tamworth.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by Mrs. William Bates of Napanee, as matron of honor. Miss Janice Gordon of Picton, Miss Beverly Hall, Miss Emily Johnston of Kingston and Miss Georgina Johnston of Tamworth were the bridesmaids.

Sandra and Johnna Cox of Port William were flower girls.

Barry Baker of Tamworth attended the bridegroom and ushers were William Steele of Tamworth, Allen McPhee of Garden Hill, Paul Taylor of Ottawa and William Cox of Toronto.

Following a reception at the Prince Edward Yacht Club in Picton, the bride and bridegroom left on a wedding cruise to the Grand Bahama Islands.

On their return they will reside in Kingston, Ontario.

UCW MEETINGS

UCW AFTERNOON UNIT

DESERONTO — The leader of the Afternoon UCW Unit, Mrs. George Stuart opened her home for the April meeting with one guest joining the members. The most interesting feature of the meeting was the roll call, when each member gave a suggestion on how Deseronto could be improved. These varied from personal behavior, such as increased friendliness, especially to newcomers, to concern for youth. It was the general opinion that a nine o'clock curfew should be established for children and young people under 16. Everyone was concerned by the fact that groups of children are roaming the streets at a much later hour, and wondered at the parents for allowing it.

The previous meeting had featured a discussion on senior citizens, and this came up again, with the women expressing concern that Deseronto has no housing for the elderly people perhaps with a central dining room. As a beginning in improving Deseronto each member could begin at home by making her home and its surroundings as neat and attractive as possible, they agreed. At the May meeting, the question of personal discrimination will be discussed.

Mrs. Norman Davis conducted the devotional period unassisted.

The secretary - treasurer, Mrs. Merton Cummings, read the minutes and gave the financial report.

Business included plans for a rummage sale May 3, a wedding reception April 12, and a smorgasbord April 7.

Regret was expressed at losing a faithful worker, Mrs. Leita Shea, who is moving away, and she was presented with a farewell gift.

Hostesses for the social hour were Mrs. Norman Davis, and Mrs. Stuart, who was assisted by Miss Ruth Lloyd, who was her guest.

The Experts Say

Fire Insurance Should Be Carried

CALGARY (CP) — The Calgary fire department recommends that every householder carry some form of fire insurance.

"The cost is so low that people can't afford not to have it," says Deasy Craig, deputy fire chief.

Insurance agent Mike Wdziekl says potential buyers should be careful to carry the right amount of insurance.

For example, there is no point in carrying $50,000 worth of insurance if the house and contents are valued at only half as much. The company will pay only a claim for cash value.

On the other hand, the value of a house increases as construction costs go up. A home owner who took out his policy three years ago would be wise to increase his coverage.

Mr. Wdziekel recommends that a house be insured for at least 80 per cent of its replacement value to allow for depreciation. It might cost $100 to rebuild and repaint a damaged wall, but if the house was under-insured, the claimant might receive only $50.

He also warns apartment dwellers they are asking for trouble if they do not carry insurance, even though the owner has insured the building.

"It is a misconception to believe that because the building is insured that your personal furnishings and belongings are insured too. A person cannot insure something he doesn't own."

Fire Chief N. E. Harris of Moose Jaw, Sask., says careless handling of an electric blanket can create a fire hazard.

Never sit on an electric blanket or stove it where it can get crushed or the wiring may be squashed together and cause a short circuit.

The chief suggests an electric blanket should be checked periodically by an electrician for power intake.

It would be safer if the blankets were covered with slow-burning wool, but most are made of highly flammable synthetics.

Chief Harris also has a warning about hair spray: If a girl leans close to a lighted candle or cigarette lighter after spraying her hair, she may catch fire.

Another fire hazard is a steam pipe running down the centre of a wooden beam. The heat of the pipe will change the composition of the wood to something like coke, which will ignite at 250 degrees.

SOCIAL And PERSONAL

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

The engagement is announced of Miss Nancy Ann Wilson only daughter of Mr. W. Lorne Wilson of Belleville and the late Mrs. Wilson to Mr. Daryl Henry Connolly, son of Mrs. H. J. Connolly of Kingston and the late Mr. Connolly. Marriage to take place on Saturday, May 10 at 12 o'clock in St. Paul's United Church, Stirling.

Professional Type Butter Tarts Made at High School

By MARY MOORE

At the outset I want to alert you to today's column and tomorrow's. They will be in two instalments and give you a recipe for professional butter tarts the like of which you may never have tasted, not to mention made. So clip this column and snatch tomorrow's newspaper when it arrives and cut out my column.

General Brock High School in Burlington is unique, I think in Canada. Of course I was interested in the cafetorium and short order restaurant and the kitchens which supply them.

The students do all of the cooking for lunch for approximately 700 of themselves and staff. On the evening of the second day I was there they were to serve 150 at a P.Conference and Son Scout Banquet.

The place is jumping. If you need a subject or subjects they teach it. Mr. Keith Steven, principal, conducted my tour of the departments which include auto body and spray painting, auto maintenance and small engines, driver training, building and construction trades, welding, landscaping and horticulture, painting and decorating, upholstery, clothing and textiles, laundry and dry cleaning, printing, appliance repair and electricity, marketing and merchandising, beauty culture, commercial, quantity cooking, baking short order cooking, metal trades, home management, restaurant services, fine art, commercial art, music, library, guidance, gymnasia, remedial rooms, laboratories. We ended up inevitably in the cafetorium for a lunch of breaded veal cutlets, Spanish rice, carrot and peas and — guess — butter tarts.

Mr. Andy Park, head of the bakery, told me they break even for the students pay an average of 25 cents per lunch. so somebody is a financial wizard.

The idealistic purpose of the school is to prepare students to fulfil the needs of society. For instance some work and attend school and as of the middle of March of their first year of operation 20 students are either placed in jobs or working halftime and studying halftime.

As we queued up for lunch, Mr. Fred Scholl, cooking chief proudly pointed to several boys in chefs' uniforms who are engaged by summer resorts for various chefs' jobs this year. One was rolling out a huge sheet of puff pastry dough with a 3½-foot long rolling pin. Another was skillfully paring hard-cooked egg yolk mixture into hard-cooked egg whites for the above-mentioned banquet that evening.

After lunch we moved on to the bakery where the butter tart shells were being stamped out by a machine operated by a grinning young man. At a huge container alongside was a serious novice baker ladling filling into the stamped out tart shells.

Tomorrow I will give you the formula reduced for your household, so watch for it.

Ann Landers

Low Forehead Cause for Concern

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a girl 16. I have no self-respect, no confidence, no future to look forward to. Why? Because I have a low forehead.

ANN LANDERS

Three years ago a couple of my girl friends started to tell me how to wear my hair so my low forehead wouldn't be so noticeable. They suggested bangs, but it didn't help much. I still felt like the ugliest girl in town, no matter where I went. I also felt like the dumbest, because people with low foreheads, according to the reading I've done, are slow learners and have low I.Q.'s.

The first thing I notice about a person is his forehead. The grocery kids always have high foreheads. The losers have low foreheads. Like mine.

Please tell me what to do about this lousy break in life. Am I doomed? — KID SISTER OF ZORBA.

DEAR KID: It is not true that people with high foreheads are more intelligent than people with low foreheads. This myth is in the same category as the theory that closely spaced eyes are a sign of meanderess and a receding chin indicates weak character and a lack of initiative.

Since your low forehead is making you so miserable, I suggest that you discuss it with your parents and ask permission to go to a dermatologist. He might recommend a hair removal repast. It is possible to have your forehead "raised" by altering your hairline.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My mother is in her mid-50's. She is in good health and works as a registered nurse. Dad works part-time. They get behind in their bills now and then but who doesn't?

The problem is this: I am happily married to a nice guy. We are both 27. We have two pre-schoolers and only one income. There are many things we need, but we are careful and manage to get by O.K. My mother keeps telling me that according to the law, children must support their parents. Last month she handed me two bills. One was a payment on their new TV. The other was an overdue repair bill from the garage (they have two cars.)

I managed to pay the bills out of the money I put away for emergencies. My husband was mad and let me know it.

If Mom and Dad were old or sick and couldn't work, I'd happily take care of them, but they make more money than my husband and are causing trouble in our marriage. Please help me. — STRAPPED.

DEAR STRAPPED: In some states the laws say children must feed and shelter parents if they are old and sick. I know of no law, however, that says children must pay garage bills and make TV payments for parents who have an income.

Points for Parents.

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Jenny never lifts a hand to help me with dinner. I'm sick of being the server around here. And she's always as cross when I ask for help."

Father: "I'll order her to get down here and set the table."

Mother: "I'm serving easy buffet meals during these busy weeks, so I won't need much help in getting dinner on the table. Why don't you put on your housecoat and relax for half an hour before dinner?"

School routines, housework and extra-curricular activities may make a teen-ager's day working day of most adults. If possible, so you can give your teen-ager a chance to unwind when she comes home, just as you would a tired husband.

Sounds Like Phone

WINNERSH, England (CP) — Mrs. May Rise asked that anyone who finds a parrot ringing like a telephone return the bird to her. She said the sound is the only one in the escaped parrot's repertory.

Century-old Office Rules Reveal Conditions

By DORIS CLARK

The following office regulations were issued about 100 years ago by a firm in England:

1. This firm has reduced the hours of work, and the clerical staff will now only have to be present between the hours of 7 a.m. and 6 p.m. on week days.

2. A stove is provided for the benefit of the clerical staff. Coal and wood must be kept in the locker. It is recommended that each member of the clerical staff bring four pounds of coal each day during the cold weather.

3. No member of the clerical staff may leave the room without permission from Mr. Rogers. The calls of nature are permitted and clerical staff may use the garden below the second gate.

4. No talking is allowed during business hours.

5. The craving of tobacco, wines or spirits is a human weakness and, as such, is forbidden to all members of the clerical staff.

6. Now that the hours of business have been drastically reduced, the partaking of food is allowed between 11:30 and noon, but work will not, on any account, cease.

7. Members of the clerical staff will provide their own pens. A new sharpener is available, on application to Mr. Rogers.

8. Mr. Rogers will nominate a senior clerk to be responsible for the cleanliness of the main office, and all juniors will report to him 40 minutes before prayers, and will remain after closing hours for similar work.

9. The new increased weekly wages are as hereunder detailed: Junior boys (up to 11 years) 1s. 6d.; Boys (to 14 years: 2s 1d.; Juniors 4s 8d; Junior clerks 8s 7d, Clerks 10s 8d. Senior clerks (after 15 years with owners) 21s.

The owners recognize the generosity of the new labour laws, but will expect a great rise in output of work to compensate for these near Utopian conditions. — Farm and Home Almanac, Canadian edition, 1959.

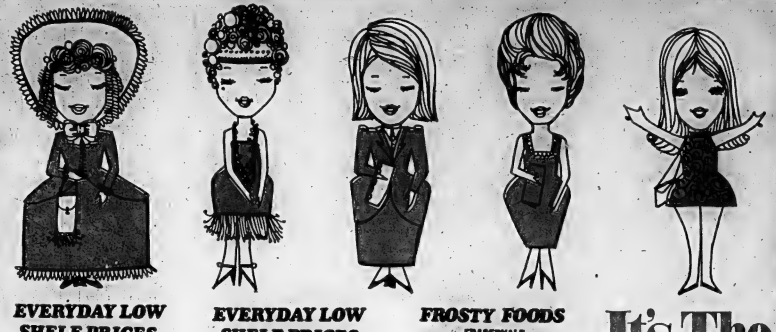
Dear Doris: Recently on a trip into the city my husband met his former girl friend (of 27 years ago) in a cafe.

She cried on his shoulder that her husband made her burn all the pictures she had of my husband, which they took while going together. She has left her husband because she said he was an alcoholic and very jealous.

Now my husband wants to give her duplicates of those pictures, which we have in our collection. I feel this is not right. Please advise, as I do not want to appear unreasonable in my husband's eyes, and yet I feel so strongly against it. — Undecided.



Dear Undecided: An ancient romance is hardly worth an argument. Give the unhappy gal her souvenirs. You can afford to be generous.

Confident'al to Your Daily Reeder: Good for you for seeking books on positive thinking. To my mind, they can change a person's entire way of thinking, cure anything from ingrown toenails to nervous breakdowns, and help you live longer. An exaggeration? Maybe, but we are such a bundle of mental, physical and satrical incredients, that Thoughts Are Things! Things to conjure with.

I'll send you a list of books I recommend if you'll send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

It's The Bottom Line That Counts

IT'S THE BOTTOM LINE THAT COUNTS!

Item lines have been creeping up in recent years. Right now the Micro-Mini is IN, and we're all for it.

But there's another line that we're just as concerned about. It's the one at the bottom of your grocery bill.

This is the line that all the folks at Food City are dedicated to keeping low.

Not all of our customers wear Minis, but they all appreciate value on quality foods, a pleasant atmosphere, and a reasonable bottom line.

If you'd like to improve your bottom line, drop in this week. We'd love to see you.

Color TV Sets Emit Radiation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A color television set and the undue increasing of a set's voltage by a homeowner—would still assure a degree of safety well within the recommended standard for X-ray emission from such sets."

Nelson said a formal report to this effect—based on a survey of the manufacturing plants of all American producers of color sets—is soon to be made public.

Ryerson Meeting No Dialogue

TORONTO (CP) — The first open meeting of the Ryerson Polytechnical Institute board of governors Tuesday attracted only 85 of the school's 5,200 students.

The schedule provided 2½ hours for routine business and 25 minutes for questions from the floor. Only a few questions had been dealt with when chairman W. M. Kelly called time.

Student Jim Smith, 24, in a leather beret and beads, stepped to the microphone:

"I've waited 2½ hours for a dialogue and now you say you've got to go. It's a waste of time."

But Mr. Kelly replied:

"This is the first time I've heard anyone suggest a dialogue. The demand was for an open meeting and that's what we did. In that format, folks, it's our job to talk and yours to listen."

NATO Must Not Falter In Unification Says Brandt

OTTAWA (CP) — Foreign Minister Willy Brandt of West Germany, obviously preoccupied with Canada's intention to reduce her North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces, completed two days of talks here Tuesday with a declaration that the alliance must not falter.

He was careful not to criticize the Canadian decision, which he said, really amounted to a vote in favor of the alliance, but at the same time he warned against certain dangerous consequences.

One was that the Canadian decision to reduce her Europe-based NATO troops might lead to a chain reaction in other member countries. Another was that the move might be misunderstood by the Communist countries and they might assume, mistakenly, that NATO was weakening.

It would be "deplorable" if such a misunderstanding occurred.

Always avoiding any direct reference to the proposed Canadian troop cutback, Mr. Brandt said "this is the time when it would be desirable to remain in a unified position." Since the Warsaw Pact countries had made overtures about a possible joint reduction in troops, it was important that the NATO alliance not weaken its position prior to such joint consultations.

The former mayor of West Berlin said he was "very happy" that Canada had decided to continue supporting the NATO alliance, and he was also happy that troop reductions would occur only after consultation with member countries.

Pending this consultation, he refused to discuss specifics of the proposed reduction. And he indicated he went lightly on the subject during his three hours of talks with External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp Monday and Tuesday.

While he was not overly-optimistic about reaching a military accord with Communist countries, Mr. Brandt said the possibility should be fully explored.

During his talks with Mr. Sharp, Mr. Brandt gave his Canadian counterpart a complete rundown on the present East-West situation from Germany's viewpoint, and he listened to a detailed explanation of Canada's defence review.

Gagnon on FLQ Trial

MONTREAL (CP) — Charles Gagnon, 30, a self-admitted leader of the terrorist Front de Libération Québecois acquitted last week of a manslaughter charge was sent to trial Tuesday in connection with a 1966 bombing death.

A 12-man jury last Wednesday found the former University of Montreal sociology professor not guilty in connection with the death of 16-year-old Jean Corbo in whose hands a home-made bomb exploded prematurely near a strikebound textile factory in July, 1966.

His new trial was set for the May session of the Court of Queen Bench, where he will face a charge of murder arising from the death of Therese Morin, a clerical employee killed in May, 1966, when a bomb exploded in the offices of a strike-bound shoe factory.

Tire Changing Tips

Ronald Lee, an advisory vocational committee member, surveyed the auto shops at Centennial Tuesday and got some tips on tires and rims from two technical students busy with the tire iron.

Physics Problem

Industrial physics engrossed two Centennial students as Ronald Lee stopped to ask them about their equipment. Vocational committee members went back to school to learn of technical directors' needs.

Vocational Training

Technical Staff Asks for More Help

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

More teachers are needed in the vocational and occupations departments of county secondary schools.

"We must have a lower pupil-teacher ratio," Douglas Graham, spokesman for county technical directors, told members of the board of education's advisory vocational committee Tuesday. The group toured Centennial Secondary School and met later to discuss their findings.

Both Mr. Graham, and Roy Fleming, occupations director at Centennial, hit at the county's relatively high pupil-teacher ratio of 17.9 to one.

"I have 32 students in some shop classes at Centre Hastings Secondary School where I should have only 16 for proper instruction," Mr. Graham told the committee.

He said the number of students in shops and occupations classes should be lower than those in academic classes because of the type of instruction given, the danger factor around machinery and the availability of equipment.

The Ontario department of education recommends that class size be limited to 20 for shop courses and 18 for the two year occupations course.

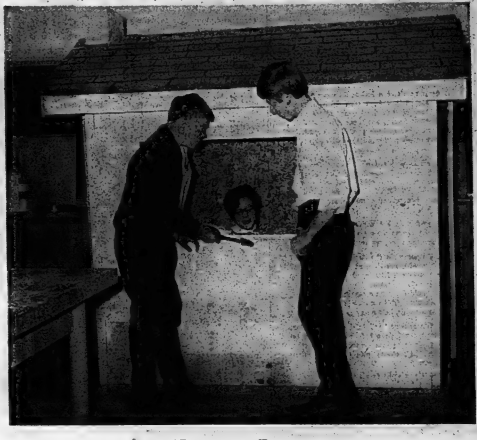
"We base teacher hiring for a school like Centre Hastings with 75 per cent of its students enrolled in vocational courses on the same ratio as that for a school like Centennial with 33 per cent enrolled in vocational," he declared.

The county ratio of 17.9 to one does not imply that each teacher has classes of only 17 or 18 pupils. Included in the calculations are teachers such as principals, vice-principals, librarians, department heads and guidance counsellors who seldom or never teach classes.

W. J. Musgrove, principal of Centennial, told the committee that enrolment in each class for academic subjects in the occupations department is 24 to 25 students.

"It's the same story — jam in the books," commented Mr. Fleming. "These kids can't survive this way. Occupations is supposed to be a special education situation; it should be dealt with from a special point of view, but it's not. With more teachers, our facilities could be used more and to better advantage for the students."

J. W. McConnell, commercial head at Centennial and a former occupations teacher, added the benefit of his experience to the discussion.



"Occupations students need individual instruction," he told the committee. "The most perfectly taught lesson given by the best teacher in the world cannot be grasped by these people without individual teaching later."

Director of education Eric Rimmers agreed with the technical teachers that "gross ratio is completely unsophisticated."

Next September, he said, the administration hopes to allot teachers to different schools in terms of their differing needs.

"We hope to set the limit in class size at the upper level of the recommendations of the department of education," he said.

A report by L. F. Reid, superintendent of academic services, recommends lowering the pupils - teacher ratio in secondary schools to 17.5 to one by September. The report is now before the county board for consideration at a future meeting.

Housing Project

Two occupational students show off the garden house they built to a student guide who conducted members of the advisory vocational committee on a tour of Centennial Secondary School Tuesday.

Shared Joke

Learning can be fun, trustee F. John Follis, Bancroft, learned as he shared a quip with a student in the electronics shop at Centennial.

Higher Education Not Only Route To Attain Goals

A city teacher yesterday challenged the modern concept that higher education is essential to success in life.

"I'm tired of the public being told no one can be successful without education — preferably university education," said Roy Fleming, occupations director at Centennial Secondary School.

"Many fine, successful citizens never had and never will have a Grade 12," he told members of the county board's vocational advisory committee Tuesday.

Mr. Fleming made his remarks during a discussion of occupations and services courses at a committee meeting at Centennial.

"Our elementary schools transfer these children to occupations courses with the hope they will meet someone as sympathetic as you," trustee Everett Fairman, a former public school principal said.

The committee briefly discussed setting up a services course to give job training to students whose formal academic learning stopped at the Grade 3 or 4 level.

The two - year services course is offered now only at Centre Hastings Secondary School in Madoc. It consists of 20 per cent academic learning and 80 per cent shop training.

The two-year occupations course enrols students who have been transferred from grade 8, and offers a program of 50 per cent vocational training and 50 per cent academic subjects.

Mr. Fleming told the committee his occupations courses now include students better fitted for the services course. He asked that consideration be given to establishing a services program in Belleville.

"It's funny that Madoc is the only place that needs a services course," commented Douglas Graham, technical director at Centre Hastings Secondary School.

J. W. J. Musgrove, principal of Centennial explained his school policy in allowing two-year students to transfer to the four year courses.

"Although we know that some who request transfers can't handle the work, we take the attitude that they are entitled to try," he said.

"They never feel the school did them wrong, or the public didn't give them a chance to succeed.".

County Digs in Heels Over Education, Assessment Changes

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

The possible effect of county school board levies on municipalities with a low provincial assessment equalization factor, will be one of the more important issues to be discussed at the April session of Hastings county council. Another will be a uniform or twice - yearly collection of taxes.

This was stated this morning by Donald Rodgers in his warden's address at the opening of the session here.

Also to receive consideration by council members is the provincial take-over next year of all assessment responsibilities, which Warden Rodgers says the county will vigorously oppose.

This evening, in a special caucus session, council will meet with local legislative members, Clarke T. Rollins and Dr. Richard Potter and Federal M.P. Lee Grills, to discuss items of local interest and concern.

In reference to the coming of regional government and the provincial take-over of assessment responsibilities, Warden Rodgers said that counties and regions would have to see that they were provided with additional irrevocable rights to other forms of income than the present property tax.

This was absolutely necessary, he said, if local municipalities were to realistically plan for future development.

Warden Rodgers said the provincial take-over of assessment responsibilities would have "serious implications" for member municipalities, as well as for the county.

He said a resolution opposing the take-over would be proposed to go to the Association of Ontario Counties.

"We are seeking assurance for the right of local government to continue to exist and a guarantee for additional financial assistance," he said.

The warden said he felt that local governments were the only contact and involvement for local people and should be continued.

Reference specifically to the aspect of regional government, Warden Rodgers paid tribute to neighboring municipalities in their willingness to co-operate and to assist in the development of items of mutual concern.

Council was advised by railway authorities of the outcome of a special hearing at Belleville following which a number of stations in this part of Ontario were closed.

Marmora village reeve William Shannon said he accepted the verdict but still didn't agree that the station at Marmora should have been closed.

Considerable discussion resulted from a Perth county resolution asking that the residential property tax rebate be appealed and that persons employed to administer it be dismissed.

Mixed opinion on the worth of the rebate was evident, with two members showing marked opposition to the rebate.

Reeve Shannon felt the rebate was of great benefit to tenants and to many smaller home owners.

Thurlow Reeve Horace Casey termed the act a "ridiculous" piece of legislation and William McCrea, deputy reeve of Hungerford, called it "nutty".

A big bone of contention about the rebate was that many cottage owners, including a number from the United States, were refunded all their property taxes.

The general feeling was that full taxes should be collected on such luxury items.

Warden Rodgers pointed out that recent amendment to the act would result in no more than 50 per cent of taxes being refunded on any property.

Several of the councillors said the tax rebate had given rise to more criticism in their local municipalities than any other legislation.

"If we don't object the government will be bringing in more nasty legislation," said Huntingdon reeve Russell Silk.

In the end council, by a majority vote, decided to take no action on the Perth resolution.

Glover Says Seals' Performance 'Spasmodic'

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fred Glover is unhappy with his Oakland Seals, currently tied 2-2 with Los Angeles Kings in the National Hockey League's Western Division semi-finals.

The two teams meet tonight at Oakland in the fifth game of the best-of-seven series. Winner of the series meets St. Louis Blues, who disposed of Philadelphia Flyers in four straight games.

Glover said Tuesday his club has been giving a "spasmodic effort" and expressed hope it could put together a consistent game.

"We're not a fancy club," the coach said. "We have to work hard and work hard all the time."

He didn't name names but added: "It hasn't been a case of all our men letting down subconsciously, but some do."

Montreal Canadiens were pleased with centre Henri Richard during Montreal's four game rout of New York Rangers in the Eastern Division semi-finals.

Oddsmakers have installed Montreal as 7½ to 5 favorites over Boston Bruins who took four games to defeat Toronto Maple Leafs in their semi-final. The Montreal-Boston Eastern Division final opens in Montreal Thursday.

Richard and Dick Duff are Montreal's top scorers in the playoffs, both with five points.

"I don't know what's making the difference," Richard said. "All I know is that I felt better in the last two games against the Rangers than I had all season."

Meanwhile, Montreal coach Claude Ruel saw two veteran Stanley Cup performers, Jump Worsley and Claude Provost, return to the ice for a Tuesday practice.

Worsley left the fourth New York game Sunday with a sore knee. He was in the nets for the first three wins over New York.

Provost pulled a thigh muscle in the first game of the Rangers series and had been out of action since.

During regular season play, the Bruins held a 4-3-3 edge over Montreal and Ruel said his team is up against a "well-balanced" club.

He said he likely will start centre Ralph Backstrom against high-scoring Boston centre Phil Esposito, with left winger John Ferguson watching Ken Hodge and Provost on Ron Murphy.

Boston coach Harry Sinden is looking for a little revenge.

"We have plenty to motivate us," he said. "Don't think our guys forgot about the way we were embarrassed last year when the Canadiens took us four straight."

Sinden said he was disappointed with the schedule which has the second game scheduled for Sunday afternoon in Montreal and the next games Thursday, April 17, and Sunday, April 20, in Boston.

"I don't like the idea of sitting around two and three days between games, but I suppose it works the same for both teams.

In another development, Jack Riley, general manager of Pittsburgh Penguins, said he would talk with George (Punch) Imlach. Toronto manager-coach who was fired Sunday, about the Penguins' coaching job.

Coach Red Sullivan was fired March 31 after Pittsburgh finished in a tie for fifth place with Minnesota North Stars in the Western Division.

However, Riley said Imlach was not the only prospect he was considering.

"We'll have to consider Rudy Migay seriously," he said.

Migay is coach of the Penguins' Amarillo, Tex., farm club in the Central Hockey League.

Eventually, because all things must come to an end, the people in a position to arrange a Russia-NHL hockey series will come talking about it and DO something about it.

As in so many other areas of contention, public opinion may be a vital factor in the decision-makers' solution to the question of how to determine a true world hockey champion.

Intelligencer subscribers and anyone else in the Quinte area who can lay their hands on the upcoming issue of WEEKEND MAGAZINE got first crack at airing the vox pop-ult.

As a result of a huddle between WEEKEND sports editor Andy O'Brien, NHL president Clarence Campbell, and International Ice Hockey Federation large cheddar J. F. "Bunny" Ahearne, the fahkuhl is conducting an opinion poll: "Should the NHL play Russia?"

Space is provided on a clippable coupon for response to six questions, to be submitted not later than June 30. Results will be published in WEEKEND and forwarded to Messrs. Ahearne and Campbell for their consideration.

If you're as hot under the collar about the Soviet tussle as most people I've met, these are the questions you'll answer:

1. Do you want the NHL to play Russia?
2. Should the NHL send its all-star team?
3. Should the NHL send the Stanley Cup winners?
4. Should there be a single game?
5. Should there be a series?
6. If a series, how many games?

If you answer "Yes" to the first question, do not pass go, do not collect $200, and involve yourself in less controversial spotting questions like cherry pit-spitting, or mumblety-peg.

But if you want to play a role in calling the second humiliation we Canadians endure when we see the Soviets get World Championship billing, take your silk in hand and snip your submission along the dotted line.

The Campbell and Ahearne combo — not to be confused with the famous vaudeville juggling act — have already agreed rules, referees, and other areas of pre-"amateur" variance can be overcome with a minimum of haggling. They realize — although probably later than everyone else from Goose Bay to Nanaimo — that unless they get NOW, Toronto and Montreal may be supplanted as hockey hubs by Moscow and Vladivostok.

Canadian should not feel unique.

Picture the avid U.S. baseball bleacherwarmer who, in the last decade, has seen the Japanese successfully adapt the sport to the point where Japanese now occasionally read: Yokahama 7, Cards 4.

Or the British soccer buffs, who only rarely gets the opportunity to see an old country side beat the Brazilians by whom they taught the game. (The South Americans have even offered United Kingdom soccer fans some leisure in full appreciation of their sport, such as how to conduct a successful stampede, or how to draw a bead on the nearest referee.)

Until seven years ago, we were content to believe that the Stanley Cup went to the best hockey team in the world — like the World Series in baseball, or the NFL title in football — and that there was no reason to worry about what happened in the world "amateur" tournament because Canadian teams would win ad infinitum anyway.

A bushel of Firsers, Alexandrovs, and Tarasovs, and seven consecutive Soviet world titles later, we are finally gnawing anxious about our self-declared skinny superiority.

Incidentally, one of the submitted WEEKEND poll opinions will be drawn for an all-expense paid trip for two for the first NHL-Russia game played on Soviet soil — when and if. Wonder how vodka and popcorn would hit the spot as a between-period munch?

Participation in WEEKEND's poll could have a bearing on how soon a Russia-NHL encounter will take place, if for no other reason than it should show the Ukraine that Canadians do care enough to send the very best.

Expos Can Beat at Least One Team!

Use Three Homers To Outlast Mets

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

THROUGH THE HOLE FOR A SINGLE — Montreal Expos' shortstop Maury Wills dives for ball off the bat of New York Mets' Ed Kranepool in second inning of season opener at New York's Shea Stadium Tuesday. The ball went through the second base hole into centre field for a single. (AP Wirephoto)

Montreal Expos and San Diego Padres wasted little time striking a blow for the National League's expansion clubs—for and against them.

The Expos and Padres made their debuts Tuesday in the league's latest expansion with victories, but the victims were the league's first expansion teams—New York Mets and Houston Astros.

The Expos swung first in the afternoon, flooring New York 11-10, leaving the Mets the only expansion club still looking for an opening day victory. The Padres followed at night with a 2-1 decision over the Astros.

In other games Chicago Cubs and Ernie Banks defeated Philadelphia Phillies 7-6 in 11 innings, Felix Millan slugged his first grand slam homer as Atlanta Braves whomped San Francisco Giants 10-2, and Pittsburgh Pirates struggled 14 innings to subdue St. Louis Cardinals 6-2.

Montreal unloaded against the Mets' Tom Seaver, Cal Koonce, Al Jackson and Ron Taylor of Toronto as pitcher Dan McGinn, Rusty Staub and finally Jose Laboy walloped homers.

Laboy, a minor league player for 10 years, unloaded with two traded two-run homers in the 10th. It was Coreglian's first since Aug. 8, 1967, 10 days before he was beaned by a pitch that threatened to end his career. Mark Belanger also homered for the Orioles.

The Mets made it close with four runs in the ninth, three on rookie Duffy Dyer's pinch homer. New York outhit Montreal, 15-13, and to add to the insult, the winning pitcher was former Met Don Shaw.

The Mets also supplied San Diego with a winning pitcher—Dick Selma, who hurled a five-hitter, struck out 13 and had two of the Padres' four hits.

San Diego didn't have a hit until Ed Spiezio homered with one out in the fifth to tie the game 1-1. The following inning, Roberto Pena was hit with a pitch and one out later Ollie Brown doubled him home before Chicago's first five runs, ostchoeling rookie Don Money of the Phillies, who hit his first two homers for four runs, the second with two on in the ninth. It was Money who doubled in another run to put the Phillies briefly ahead in the 11th.

In the eighth inning for a decisive 11-6 lead before a disappointed crowd of 44,541 in New York.

In Chicago, Willie Smith's three-run pinch homer brought the Cubs victory in the 11th inning, but it was Ernie Banks who got them that far. Banks, 38, stroked the 475th and 476th homers of his 17-year career for Chicago's first five runs, outchoeling rookie Don Money of the Phillies, who hit his first two homers for four runs, the second with two on in the ninth. It was Money who doubled in another run to put the Phillies briefly ahead in the 11th.

Pilots Justify AL Expansion

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Early or late, expansion is great and the American League's two new clubs used opposing formulas Tuesday to win their opening games by identical scores.

Seattle Pilots struck early, erupting for four runs in the first inning, and held off California Angels 4-3 in a night game at Anaheim. Kansas City Royals nipped Minnesota Twins 4-3 in 12 innings.

In another night contest, Oakland Athletics whipped Chicago White Sox 5-2, while world-champion Detroit Tigers trimmed Cleveland Indians 4-3 and Boston Red Sox edged Baltimore Orioles 3-4 in 12 innings during the afternoon.

Seattle's Tommy Harper led off against Jim McGlothlin with a double and Mike Hegan homered. Tommy Davis' single, a hit batsman, a walk and Gerry McCertney's single added two more runs.

The Angels scored in the second on three singles, on Jim Fregosi's homer in the fifth and on two walks, a sacrifice and an infield out in the ninth.

Hegan crashed into the right field wall and was knocked cold trying to catch Bobby Knoop's drive in the second inning. He suffered a sprained left wrist and bruised hip.

Harmon Killebrew's error opened the door for two unearned runs in the sixth. Joe Foy began the winning rally in the 12th with a one-out infield hit and a passed ball and two intentional walks around a wild pitch filled the bases.

Denny McLain held Cleveland to three hits and Al Kaline walloped a two-run homer as Detroit opened defence of its 1968 pennant. McLain, who was treated Monday for an inflamed pitching shoulder, blanked the Indians over the last seven innings after yielding a homer to Larry Brown in the first and another run in the second.

A Western Division in the NHL; a National Baseball League team in Montreal; so why not lacrosse in Belleville?

This is the attitude of former Senior "A" lacrosse goaltenders Ray Mortimer and Bob Carriere who are in the midst of negotiations to bring an Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior "A" team to this city.

"We expect final confirmation on a Senior "A" lacrosse team for Belleville by Saturday morning," Ray said.

"We've outside Port Hope and Hamilton for the Peterborough Senior "A" lacrosse franchise and we hope to have the club practise in Peterborough and play all of its games at the Belleville Arena."

The situation in Peterborough is muddled at the present because there are three teams vying for the support —the professional Lakers, and the Junior "A" club and senior "A" franchises.

The Belleville team would compete in the Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior "A" League with teams from Brampton, Brantford, Brooklin and Huntsville. A sixth franchise is expected to be announced to balance the league.

"Thursday is the proposed night for home games," Bob Carriere commented, "and the Belleville Arena Commission has okayed our use of the local Arena."

"The league schedule calls for 24 games, 12 home and 12 away," added Bob Carriere," and we hope to bring a professional lacrosse team to Belleville to play an exhibition game before the season starts."

"Players contacted expressed a willingness to play in Belleville instead of on the proposed Hastings or Port Hope teams." Ray Mortimer said.

Mortimer mentioned Greg Marchen, a defencemen with Belleville's Senior "A" hockey Mo-Hawks as a possible player on the Belleville team.

Speaking from Peterborough by telephone, Marchen commented: "I'd heard that they were trying to find a place for Peterborough's franchise, but I hadn't heard anything definite yet."

Marchen, who played last year with the professional Peterborough Lakers, added "I'd definitely be interested in playing in Belleville if I didn't play pro this year."

Trenton Girls Have Balance

STAFF — The girls' gymnastics squad of the host Trenton High School will be out to add the COSSA crown to their Bay of Quinte title Saturday at the COSSA Girls' Gymnastics Championships at Trenton High School.

Betty Lynne Peterson paced the Trenton girls to the Bay of Quinte crown, Saturday, March 29, at the Bay of Quinte meet at Trenton High School.

She won the All-Round title in the advanced class by capturing firsts in the floor exercises, balance beam and vaulting, and will be out to try and repeat that performance in Saturday's COSSA meet.

The competition will be divided into three classifications: novice for those who have never competed before, intermediate for those who have competed before but never won, and experienced for those who have won a previous competition.

Girls from 29 schools will compete in six events in each exercise, tumbling, uneven parallel bars, balance beam and trampoline.

There will be nine competitors in each event. Each of the three competing districts, Bay of Quinte, Lake Ontario and Kawartha District — will send their top three performers in every event.

Spectators are welcome at Saturday's meet which starts at 9.30 a.m. and will conclude at approximately 2.30 p.m.

Sharon Takes Skating Seriously

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Sportswriter

TRENTON — Sharon Poole is a happy girl these spring days. The reason? Her childhood dreams will be fulfilled in the near future.

The 17-year-old Middleton Park resident has signed a two-year contract to go on tour with the "Ice Follies", the touring group of professional figure skaters who perform across North America for ten months of each year.

"It's always been my dream to travel and see the world," Sharon says, "and I love to skate, so this is a wonderful opportunity for both."

San Francisco will be Sharon's first stop on the tour. She will spend July and August there practising from four to six hours daily to learn the routines and intricacies of professional figure skating.

The tour itself will start in September, eight months after Sharon's successful audition in Toronto for the "Ice Follies" tour.

Figure skating first attracted the five - foot, three-inch brunette at the age of seven, and has been her first love since that time.

Skating was primarily a hobby for Sharon until this past winter when she turned professional and acted as the sole instructress at the fledgling 125-member Marmora Figure Skating Club.

Sharon was enthused about her weekly four - hour instructing venture in Marmora: "It was great — I enjoyed the company of the kids. I love children."

The daughter of Warrant Officer First Class W. O. Poole summed up her situation. "It's a great opportunity for me." "I'll miss Trenton and my friends here, but I'll be home for Christmas at least."

Mulroney's Are A Gas!

Mulroney's Smoco re-asserted their dominance of the Gas House Hockey League last night by defeating the Wings 7-3 in the third game of their best of five final series for the league's playoff championship.

The win gives Mulroney's a 2-1 edge in games and follows a 4-3 loss to the Wings, their first defeat of the season, in the opening game of the series and a 4-3 Mulroney's victory in the series' second game.

Reid Mallery, Paul Ford and Wayne Waite tallied two goals each for the Smoco squad last night while Doug Reid added a single goal for the winners.

Bob Lloyd's hat trick and Perry Soules' goal and three assists sparked the Wings' attack last night. Harold Babcock netted the Wings' other goal.

The series resumes Thursday at 8:15 at the Belleville Arena.

Departmental Loop Draws 6 Sure Entries

STAFF — The Departmental Softball League took a definite shape for the coming season at last night's organizational meeting at the Belleville Recreation Centre.

There will be six definite starters and a possible seventh entry in the Departmental League this season.

The definite starters are CNR Combines, CNR Turbos, The Intelligencer, Post Offices, Union Carbide and Belleville Tweeders.

Union Carbide and Belleville Tweeders are new entries in the Departmental League this season while the other four teams are holdovers from last season.

The league executive passed a motion which may result in a seventh team for the coming season.

The motion reads "Any player, who has played in the Departmental League before and whose team is no longer in the league, and who wants to play ball in this league is eligible."

If enough interest is generated a seventh entry could be formed. Anyone interested should contact Bill Cooney at 962-2890 or "Aus" Watkin at 968-6503.

Bell Canada Increase Proposal Musters Strong Opposition

OTTAWA (CP) — A proposal by Bell Canada to boost telephone rates will be put before the Canadian transport commission at a hearing opening May 20.

If approved, the increase will have its heaviest impact in Quebec and Ontario, the two provinces almost blanketed by Bell telephone service. But it is expected that some other provincial telephone companies will take similar action if the Bell bid goes through.

A three-member panel of the transport commission, under Pierre Taschereau, made a decision on the opening date of the hearing after a session Tuesday with lawyers from interested parties. This "pre-hearing hearing" was called to seek agreement on some ground rules for the main bout.

Ranged against Bell in that contest, expected to last at least a month, are the Quebec and Ontario governments and municipal governments in the two provinces, as well as other commercial interests such as Telephone Answering Service, the T. Eaton Co. and the Hotel Association of Canada.

Bell is seeking a rate increase that will mean about 40 to 70 cents more a month for a residence phone and $1.30 to $2.95 a month more for individual-line business rates.

Long-distance calls requiring operator assistance also would go up. There would be no increase for direct-dialed calls of more than 25 miles.

Bell provides telephone service throughout Ontario, for most of Quebec, except for the Baie Comeau, Rimouski and Gaspe areas, and has scattered exchanges in Labrador and the Northwest Territories.

The last over-all rates for Bell were set in 1958 under the board of transport commissioners, predecessor regulatory body to the present commission. But rates for various individual communities have been changed since then as new types of services were added.

Opposition lawyers served notice Tuesday that they intend to take a searching look into various Bell activities.

Robin Scott, counsel for the Ontario attorney-general's department, said the transport commission should set an allowable range of return on total Bell Canada investments.

After this, the actual earnings of the company could be established and compared with the allowable range. This would show whether rate increases are needed.

Ontario wants the commission to take another over-all look at Bell's earnings base, Mr. Scott said. Bell was involved in many other communications activities where rates were not under jurisdiction of the commission. All activities should be considered in deciding whether Bell should be allowed to increase telephone rates.

Mr. Scott's position was endorsed by Paul Martineau, counsel for the Quebec government.

Lovell C. Carroll, counsel for the municipalities, said the status of the national economy and questions of vertical and lateral growth by Bell should be examined. Because general rates had not been changed since 1958, it was fair to go into activities from that date to the present.

Ernest E. Saunders, Bell counsel, said the board of transport commissioners had a lengthy hearing on the propriety of Bell rates four years ago.

This hearing went into detail on such matters as Bell's service agreement with American Telephone and Telegraph Co., its relationship with Northern Electric Co., an equipment producer which is a Bell subsidiary, and even into such things as the pension plan for Bell employees.

Mr. Saunders said anyone wanting to raise these matters this time should be restricted to doing so only for the years that had elapsed since that hearing.

Commissioner Taschereau said the panel had decided that evidence from prior hearings could be set out by each interested party in a memorandum on its case.

He said it is hoped that pre-1965 evidence concerning such things as the Bell-Northern Electric relationship can be

On the question of when the hearing on the new rates should open, Mr. Saunders plumped for April 29, three weeks away. He said Bell filed notice of intention to apply for the rate increases last Dec. 6 and opposed parties had thus already had four months to prepare.

The opponent lawyers all sought a date in the fall.

Mr. Carroll said Bell's case for increased revenue was due in part to inflation, which had been affecting the economy for months. But anti-inflation measures, adopted some time ago, "are just beginning to bite."

Mr. Scott and Mr. Martineau said they needed time to prepare cases for their respective governments. Mr. Martineau said although Bell announced its rate increase intentions last December, the company had been working on them for many months before that time.

In announcing the May 20 start date, Commissioner Taschereau said it is intended that the hearing continue without any delays until it is completed.

This would apply even if it is run through the usual summer vacation period.

Davis Says Costs Were Anticipated

TORONTO (CP) — Education Minister William Davis said Tuesday several provincial school boards anticipate a shortage of money due to increased education costs.

But he denied a published report that the cabinet—and Conservative caucus—had asked him to act quickly to prevent a financial crisis facing high schools.

"There is no basis for the report," he said in an interview. "Many of the boards are still in the process of preparing their budgets, so the education department is still waiting to see what their needs might be."

The report also said that while provincial grants to school boards rose by six per cent this year, many boards had complained that costs had risen by 10 to 15 per cent, forcing them to make up the difference through increased property taxes.

Mr. Davis repeated a statement made in the legislature last Thursday that the problem was anticipated when the province laid plans for country-size boards.

The government abolished about 1,000 elementary and secondary school boards Jan. 1 and replaced them with larger boards based on country boundaries.

Car Dealers Are Warned About Ads

TORONTO (CP) — Companies using misleading advertising for car and appliance leasing are inviting trouble from the Ontario department of financial and commercial affairs, a department official said Tuesday.

Reginald G. MacCormac, registrar for used-car dealers, told the annual meeting of the Toronto Automobile Dealers Association that a continuation of vague advertising may force Ontario to tighten its Consumer Protection Act.

Mr. MacCormac said the department study shows some advertisements run under the heading "lease to own" and yet dealers often can legally keep a substantial security deposit if the leaser decides not to buy.

The Automotive Dealers Association of Ontario called for legislation which would make it illegal to tamper with a car's odometer.

David Brownless of St. Catharines, legislative committee chairman, said mileages are often turned down to prolong car warranties or improve resale values.

New Brunswick Legislature Moves on Language Bill

FREDERICTON (CP) — A major languages bill, giving English and French equal status, rights and privileges, was given first reading in the New Brunswick legislature Tuesday.

The bill, introduced by Premier Louis J. Robichaud, will allow all New Brunswickers "where they live in sufficient numbers" to be educated in the language of their choice and will permit them to use either language during court proceedings, in the legislature or in municipal government assemblies.

The legislation also makes provincial acts, regulations and proceedings available in both languages.

"Much of what is proposed in the bill has been already in effect traditionally, in some cases, for generations," the premier said. "However, it is the aim of the bill to give clear, unequivocal effect to provincial

The bill follows guidelines set government has already been forth in the government white paper tabled during a fall legislature sitting and legalizes principles spelled out in a resolution adopted by the house last spring.

The bill is expected to have a significant but not immediate effect on the courts.

Premier Robichaud told a news conference it would take some time to prepare in general to handle all proceedings in either language.

He said his government would work closely with the federal government in the application of the legislation.

held and agreement to share costs of implementing the act has been reached, he said.

In education, the premier said the government purposely avoided establishment of bilingual districts proposed for Canada by the federal royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism.

"We feel the whole province can be declared a bilingual district."

Premier Robichaud said he anticipated little adverse reaction to the bill "although it is possible that we will not have

These are the only wigs in the world that do all the things you wish your own hair would do. R&M makes them out of a fine, silky fiber, with one of built-in advantages that Nature never thought of. Like: they will wash through a hot, sudsy day with out wilting; get rained on or brushed — and stay-dry into shape; come in over 30 colors that won't run or fade; never need re-setting or bothersome pin-ups. And only weigh a few ounces — so keep a cool head. The hair you were born with can't do all that. For can other people's wigs made of ordinary human hair. Truly the living wig, available in Belleville exclusively at Hotel Quinte

SHRUBS AND FLOWERS EAT TOO!

Let's not forget that it takes nutriment to produce all that garden growth every summer. Every plant takes its' toll of nature's supply of nitrogen (top growth), phosphorous (root development), and Potash (fruit, flower and quality) as well as trace elements normally present in the soil. In many cases we forget to replenish this supply. The farmer who neglected his land this way let his mortgage lapse years ago.

For a planting of shrubs and evergreen apply a balanced garden fertilizer plus bone meal. For annual and perennial flower beds use a straight chemical formulation such as 4-12-10 or 7-14-7. If your soil is poor and either too light (sandy) or too heavy (clay) then work in plenty of peat moss or sheep manure. In many cases you should consider removing poor soil altogether and replacing it with fresh new loam.

Stay away from "Odd Ball" recommendations. Follow the manufacturer's suggestions and apply the complete formula so that you will not create a nutritional imbalance. Apply fertilizer early and mix it in thoroughly to a depth of 2½-3 inches before setting annuals and planting seeds.

Quebec Longshoremen Vote Today on New Three-year Contract

MONTREAL (CP) — About 4,000 longshoremen in three Quebec province ports vote today on a new contract proposal that would increase job security.

The new three-year contract would apply to 2,200 dock workers in Montreal and about 1,600 others in Quebec City and Trois-Rivieres.

Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey said in announcing the agreement in principle Tuesday that it provides for additional pension benefits and wage increases as well a greater job security.

But negotiators for the International Longshoremen's Association had agreed that no restrictions be placed on handling of container cargo.

The Shipping Federation of Canada agreed in return to establish a displacement fund to protect longshoremen against technological innovations—such as containerization—in the handling of cargo.

Brian Mulroney, counsel for the shipping federation, said agreement on container clauses may enable the port of Montreal to attract new business.

Louis Laberge, Quebec vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress and union nominee on the conciliation board, said the job-security provisions of the proposed contract are the best longshoremen have ever had.

The agreement was reached after negotiations involving the union, the shipping federation, Mr. Mackasey and Associate Chief Justice Alan Gold of Quebec provincial court mediator.

There were reports that the average wage increase is 85 cents over the three-year term of the contract. This would bring the hourly rate to $4.80 in the third year.

The technological displacement fund is to be built on management contributions based on tonnage of cargo handled at the three affected ports.

Montreal is the first port on the Atlantic seaboard at which the ILA had agreed not to restrict containerization.

LIGHT AS A FEATHER — and so Robbie Kornblum is to his teammates, on the teenage team of Belleville's Apollo Bar-Bell Club, who hoist Robbie over their heads in a Tuesday night practice session at coach Ken Carr-Brain's Bonwell Street clubhouse. The Apollo lifters captured the Ontario Teenage Weightlifting team title Saturday in Woodstock for the second consecutive year.

Apollo Club Lifts Title

STAFF — Repetition can be either good or bad, depending on the level of performance which one repeats, but for Bob Wahl and Belleville's Apollo Bar-Bell Club it was nothing but the very best.

Bob won the best lifter award for the second year in a row Saturday at the Ontario Teenage weightlifting championships in Woodstock as the Apollo Club successfully defended its Ontario team title.

A total lift of 720 pounds and a rating of 858.31 points were more than enough to hoist Bob, a middle weight, head and shoulders above all other competitors at the Woodstock competition.

Teammate Paul Barrett captured the light heavyweight crown with a total of 740 pounds the highest individual total by a lifter in any weight class.

Depth and youth were bitter keys to Belleville's team title, for of the five second and three third place finishers, three were achieved by 13-year-old lifters.

Roger Harris with a second and Jim Stapley with a third in the 114 pound class, and Larry Wilks with a third in the 99 pound class were the 13-year-old youngsters who came through for Belleville.

Jim Travers' third place performance in the 132 pound class brought the final medal to Ken-Carr-Brain's Apollo Club and Belleville.

The eleven member teenage team which represented the Apollo Bar-Bell Club in Woodstock is composed of Bob Wahl, Paul Barrett, Brian Rosebush, Mike McMahon, Jim Travers, Fred Sly, José Carr-Brain, Larry Wilks, Jim Stapley, Roger Harris, Robert Kornblum.

Chalmers Sparks Aces' Outburst

John Chalmers, a 6' 5" left-handed centre, threw in 20 points in the second half last night to spark the Belleville Aces to a 51 point second half outburst and an 86-77 win over the Belleville Teachers in the opening game of the Bay of Quinte Men's Basketball League playoff finals.

The score was knotted at 25-25 at halftime before Chalmers cut loose in the second half to lead the Aces to victory.

Chalmers topped the game's scorers with 34 points, while forward Tom Lorrie hooped 20 points for the Aces and guards Gary Swan and Mark Sheridan contributed 15 and 12 points each.

Bruce Fields with 22 points, Brian McKenzie with 21 and Doug Irvine with 19 paced the Teachers' attack last night.

Ask Uncle Ed

DEAR UNCLE ED:

Is it true that the great artist, Van Gogh, cut of his ear and gave it to his girl friend to prove he loved her. Wouldn't that be a great dramatic moment?

Yours truly,
ART BUFF

Dear Art Buff:

Yes, I believe that is true. I understand the scene went something like this:

Van Gogh (cutting of ear): "Here my darling, for you. To prove I love you with all my heart!"

She: "Oh, thank you, my darling."

Van Gogh: "What?"

Yours tenderly,
UNCLE ED

BEDS FOR DECORATION?

Used since ancient times as a substitute for sleeping on the floor, beds were also an important piece of decorative furniture, especially in Europe where they had inlaid designs and costly draperies. Bed design today is much more functional, yet still pleasing to the eye and room design.

Now the children are grown, there may be some empty beds at your house. If you can sell them with an Intelligencer Want Ad . . . just by dialing 962-9171.

Canada May Soon Make Claim Arctic Seas Internal Waters

OTTAWA (CP) — A major question now before the Trudeau Cabinet is whether to declare the seas in Canada's Arctic archipelago Canadian internal waters.

If it is done, there may be a row with the United States.

Canada's Arctic waters include the Northwest Passage — that is, the wide Parry Channel comprising Lancaster Sound, Barrow Strait, Viscount Melville Sound and McClure Strait.

Canada claims a territorial limit of only three miles, which in a channel or strait means six miles by counting three miles from either shore. But Parry Channel is much wider than six miles and is in effect a high seas route between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans.

A declaration that this channel and similar seas in the archipelago are internal waters would bring them under Canadian jurisdiction.

Though the Manhattan project is forging ahead with a legal opinion by the Canadian government, the project will not be affected, officials said Tuesday.

Whether waters are international, territorial or internal, there is still right of innocent passage for foreign ships.

The Manhattan is a 143,000-ton oil tanker now being built in the U.S. It will make an experimental voyage, probably in August, from the new oilfield at Prudhoe Bay on the north Alaskan coast to Europe through the Northwest Passage.

Canada is co-operating in the project—mainly to make sure that it asserts its Arctic presence.

The Manhattan will be accompanied through the Northwest Passage by the Canadian coast guard ship John A. Macdonald and the American coast guard's Westwind.

Officials said Tuesday the exact route will depend on ice conditions at the time. The Northwest Passage is open normally no more than two months in the year, but sometimes four months.

If the Manhattan project is successful, regular use of the Northwest Passage for cargo moving between the Atlantic and Pacific may be in the offing.

So far, Canada has maintained its dealings with other countries, particularly the U.S., that the Northwest Passage is in effect Canadian because it has never been used as a commercial high seas route.

The Manhattan project likely will change all this, thus forcing the government to take a definite position, as Prime Minister Trudeau has promised it will soon.

An indication of the government's action may have been given Saturday when Fisheries Minister Leonard Davis presented further government plans for defining Canada's 13-mile fishing zone.

Mr. Davis said the Gulf of St. Lawrence, 65 miles wide at its Newfoundland-Cape Breton mouth, may be enclosed as an exclusive Canadian fishing zone.

But he said it might not be desirable in close off the gulf as internal waters.

Presumably, if Canada did not declare a gulf internal waters, it would not so declare the Northwest Passage.

Prof. Donat Pharand of the University of Ottawa, an expert in this field, says that closing off the Northwest Passage would be contrary to international law.

Prof. Pharand has discussed the issue in a 69-page article entitled Innocent Passage in the Arctic in the 1980 Canadian Yearbook of International Law.

The article is believed part of the government's consideration of the issue.

Prof. Jacques-Ivan Morin of the University of Montreal has also made a detailed study of the subject. He says Canada could probably claim exclusive possession of the Northwest Passage but should be satisfied with the traditional territorial waters.

In 1967, Canada began defining new territorial limits and fishing zones on the straight baseline system. The territorial sea is three miles, the fishing zone an additional nine miles.

The straight baseline system involves drawing straight lines from headland to headland and measuring the territorial and fishing limits seaward from those lines.

Under the old system, the measuring line followed the windings of the coastline.

The U.S. has objected to Canada's use of the straight baseline system, particularly where large bays are enclosed as internal waters.

By use of the same system, Canada could draw baselines around the Arctic archipelago and declare all seas within these lines to be Canadian internal waters.

Prof. Ivan Head, when he was a member of the external affairs department in 1963, suggested that the water among the Arctic islands be declared internal waters and that foreign ships be required to obtain special permission to traverse them.

Prof. Head now is a special assistant to Mr. Trudeau, though not specifically on the subject of law of the sea.

Prof. Pharand said in an interview that his objection to a declaration making the Northwest Passage internal waters is based strictly on the legal viewpoint.

He also said that he wrote his article before he knew about the Manhattan project.

Lake Ontario Study Will Begin on Schedule

HAMILTON (CP) — Canadian and United States specialists were told Tuesday that a 1971 study of Lake Ontario's freshwater potential will begin on schedule.

The study, called the International Field Year on the Great Lakes, is part of the International Hydrological Decade—a cooperative program begun in 1965 and involving more than 100 countries.

T. L. Richards, a Canadian co-chairman of the Great Lakes project, told a joint U.S.-Canadian committee meeting that the Lake Ontario research will deal with "physical problems associated with the lake and its drainage basin."

Nearly 50 North American scientists and engineers attended Tuesday's meeting. There were observers also from Paris and Mexico.

Mr. Richards said the Lake Ontario project also could help oceanographers and meteorologists understand water and weather problems of global importance because the lake will be considered a model ocean.

Beauty Is Therapeutic

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I was sitting in the car, letting the engine warm up, waiting for my mate. We were late for a dinner party, the weather was wretched, the laundry had put too much starch in my collar, and I could find only an unmatched set of studs to put in my dress shirt. My mood, in short, was foul, and I was ready to growl at the moment.

I switched on the car radio, turned to my favorite FM station and was inundated by the flow of a Shubert trio — within two bars, I had relaxed in my seat, starch and studs forgotten, all the irritations and inconveniences of high pressure urban living washed away by the eternal melody of Opus 99.

Whatever is petty and provoking and transitory shrinks down to ineligible size under the impact of great music. Its beauty is more than esthetic, in a narrow sense; it is therapeutic in the broadest human sense because it restores to us a sane perspective about ourselves, our brief lives, our giddy little egos, and our fantastic oblivion within the cosmos.

This is what great art of any kind is meant for: to make us see more clearly the stature of man and his insignificance; to draw sharply the contrast between our noblest dreams and our vain concerns with status and comfort and the satisfaction of childish needs.

Art is not understood (or is dismissed as a toy) in our material-oriented society, because it is considered as just another product to cater to our boredom or to make the culture's vultures feel superior. Like religion, it is paid tribute by those who have not the slightest intention of taking its message seriously.

Indeed, music especially has taken on the exact opposite of its proper role in our society. We are exposed to "background" music everywhere we turn — in dentists' offices, elevators, restaurants. This is so pervasive, we narrowly hear it in any more; it is meant to pacify us, to neuterize us, to make us believe like robots under a kind of melodic anesthesia.

But the true role of music is to make us more human, not less; to be heard not merely by the ears, but by the soul; to interpret the personality, not to deaden it; to give us a more powerful awareness of our wasted potentialities for loving, not to lose itself in a humming of voice and a tapping of foot.

Music, like all the arts, is a process, not a product. But we have turned it into a product, and in so doing have sacrificed its essential worth — in fact have removed ourselves almost incapable of hearing it as it was meant to be heard. For, as our whole environment becomes "packaged" in music, the message expires within the medium.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For April 10th,

Your birthday today: Prepare for improvements in your social activity this coming year. Old friends bring new people into your life and you meet them on better terms than you had expected. The temptation will be to scatter your energy: Try to finish one project before moving on. Today's natives may penetrate the deepest mysteries in their chosen vocations. They often serve far beyond their expected duty.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): The stress is split between your ambitions and your search for a better social life. You will be proud of how smoothly you balance the two! Put in a reasonable day's work, as early as you can.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Today brings the impetus for change. If you feel you have earned an improvement in your earnings or working conditions, ask. Flips of circumstances are normal for this time. Find a very small group tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 — Jun 20): Mental pursuits occupy your faculties today and tonight. For once people may leave you time and space, to attend your meditations. Correspondence from distant places is useful. Study, write, strive for higher skills.

CANCER (Jun 21 — July 22): Meditation, in odd moments, holds insights during this routine day. Give industrious attention to details. Do something nice for loved ones this evening.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Partnership and competition seems to impel you into adventurous action, perhaps travel. Some brighter, more enjoyable view of life and what it means to you is ahead.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): A good day for solid efforts on your part. A steady drive will produce results far better than your estimates. Cooperation is at hand where you ask for it. Put your quarters into shape this evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Creative work and the necessary personal effort is readily available for the inventive idea, and much progress can be made. Your money will sprout wings if you neglect it even for a moment.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Now you can settle a lot with a social get-together. Make it a mixed gathering with all shades of opinion. (The evening will be more than your usual stopping point.)

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Yesterday's undercurrent of excitement carries on with considerable vigor. Keep the ideas going. Of course the new projects will produce results beyond those expected.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Careful checking of the stories you heard yesterday is worthwhile, but rely on your own observations alone. Wait for confirmations before moving ahead with money deals.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Your interest rises today and gives you the knack for organizing, influencing. You can have powerful help by just asking for it (in the right places). Be sure that what you ask does really fit into your plans.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Expansion, experimentation, enterprise is promised. Get some trusted help. Take the plunge and do the unusual!

Bertrand May Call Referendum on Constitution

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand says the Union Nationale government would use a referendum against Ottawa, if necessary, to try to make Quebec's constitutional views triumph.

In a tape-recorded interview with The Canadian Press, the premier expressed his party's fundamental disagreement with Prime Minister Trudeau's one-Canada views, saying:

"I don't see how we can maintain Canada if we don't accept the idea of two nations."

Mr. Bertrand, away from the provincial capital on an Easter vacation, said the government is studying referendum legislation "across the world."

He said the study is not completed, but referendum legislation may be introduced during the present or next session of the national assembly.

Asked how such legislation would be applied, he said:

"The referendum can be used in two ways:

"Either to approve what we are doing, if we agree with Ottawa, or to ratify or confirm or approve our position if Ottawa does not agree with us."

He said a referendum could also be used to obtain the people's views on the work of the assembly's constitutional committee, supposing it "draws up a new constitution" with major changes for Quebec."

The committee is working toward establishing an internal constitution for Quebec, whose government would like Canada to become a 10-state, two-nation republic.

The premier said the next provincial general election, which "normally" should be held in 1970, "will permit Quebecers to choose between independence and the new federalism sought by parties like his own.

"The next election will be a good method of consultation. The referendum itself may come later, but not in a year."

Mr. Bertrand, candidate for his party's permanent leadership at a June convention, said the Union Nationale advocates a stronger, more pronounced and more virile form of autonomy than the Opposition Liberals.

During the interview, the 52-year-old lawyer said the government may emerge from a political dilemma, the dilemma of the late premier Maurice Duplessis, to enter the federal medical care health insurance program.

The premier said the federal government legislated in a provincial field "to place us in the position where, perhaps, we are going to be one of the last provinces to sign."

"Either we sign and go against the constitution and become accomplice to an act we find absolutely derogatory or we don't sign and deprive our people of the tax money they are paying.

"We are confronted by a dilemma. What should we do in the circumstances? Shouldn't we be realistic and try to make the best of a situation, that is bein with Ottawa, saying it's the last time?

"But how long have we been saying, 'It's the last time!'"

Mr. Bertrand said the Union Nationale founder, Maurice Duplessis, was forced to face this dilemma and said no to Ottawa because the federalists practised "systematic centralization."

The leadership candidate accused Mr. Trudeau of introducing "galloping centralization."

"Ottawa must stop invading fields of provincial jurisdiction. Or else the central government is going to become the direct agent of the separatist cause in Quebec."

Mr. Bertrand was asked how he reconciled his new federalism with his party's declared policy of making Quebec the "national state" of French-Canadians.

He said Canadians seem to forget "the fundamental reality" that Quebec has a political role to play because the vast majority of Canada's French-speaking citizens live in the province.

"We say the federation is not only a 10-partner federation. It is also a two-partner federation. Two nations. Why be afraid of words especially when they correspond to a reality?"

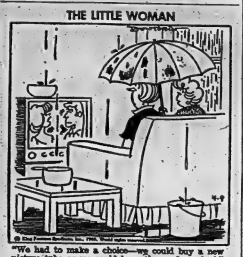
NDP Regains Comox-Alberni

PORT ALBERNI, B.C. (CP) —The Comox-Alberni seat in the House of Commons was returned to the New Democratic Party Tuesday, as last year's Liberal winner lost out in a close by-election battle.

New Democrat Tom Barnett held off a late surge by Liberal Richard Durante to win back the seat he had lost by only nine votes in last June's general election.

With 214 of 217 polls reported, Mr. Barnett had 12,588 votes for a lead of 226 over Mr. Durante's 12,362. Progressive Conservative Blair McLean, the only other candidate, had 2,349.

There are only 78 eligible voters in the three outstanding polls, all located in remote West Coast communities of the sprawling Vancouver Island constituency. Returning officer Colin Wilson said it might take a day or two to obtain final results.



The constituency went to the Conservatives in the 1958 Diefenbaker sweep, but Mr. Barnett regained it in 1963 and held it until edged-by Mr. Durante last June.

The NDP successfully challenged the June result under the Controverted Elections Act. The B.C. Supreme Court voided the election by ruling invalid the ballots of 12 servicemen who voted at a civilian poll rather than at their base in Comox.

It was the second straight by-election victory for the NDP. T. C. Douglas, the party's national leader, won Feb. 10 in neighboring Nanaimo-Cowichan-the Islands.

Standing in the 264-seat Commons now is Liberals 154, Conservatives 72, NDP 33, Creditistes 14, independent one.

Mr. Barnett, 59, a native of Red Deer, Alta., who moved to British Columbia at the age of 10, first won the seat in 1953.

"We had to make a choice—we could buy a new picture tube or we could have the roof repaired."

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: Is there a certain date we have to take studded tires off in Ontario?

ANSWER: Studded tires must be removed from cars using Ontario roads by April 30, 1969.

QUESTION: What is the best time to go to Jack Miner's famous bird sanctuary in Kingsville Ont., and how would I get there?

ANSWER: Jack Miner's Bird Sanctuary covers an area of 300 acres. During the migratory seasons, thousands of wild geese, swans and ducks may be seen. From now until mid-April is the best time for the Canadian geese and other water fowl. The sanctuary is not open on Sundays.

Route:

Take 401 west to exit No. 7, which is about 25 miles east of Windsor, No. 7 south to Leamington. No. 18 west to Kingsville. Mileage 335 miles. For a different route back take No. 3 to Jarvis, No. 6. to Hamilton, Queen Elizabeth and 401 home. Just south of Tilbonburg on No. 59 on Lake Erie is Long Point, where you could stop off on your way back and see the gathering of whistling swans.

QUESTION: When are the cherry blossoms in bloom in Washington and could I drive there in one day?

ANSWER: Washington is a one-day drive from Belleville which makes it a favorite spot for Canadians at Cherry Blossom time. This year's festival will be held from April 8 to April 13, and will feature parades, marching bands, fashion shows etc. But the real attraction are the 2,000 Japanese cherry trees which line the banks of Washington's tidal basin and circle the Jefferson Memorial.

It is best to avoid Washington on weekends in favor of a mid-week visit at Cherry Blossom time. Traffic is bumper to bumper on weekends but during the week you can take your time and enjoy the beauty. Washington's Cherry Blossom show is second only to that in Japan itself. The first trees blossoms 57 years ago.

This is the time of year when it pays handsomely to take a good look at the car's underpinnings when it is up on a lift for an oil change. Check for cuts or bubbles on the tire walls facing the car. Look over the exhaust system carefully. You may find that that sounds like a bad muffler is a loose connection at the muffler or resonator. Your inspection will show that the finish along the lower edge of the body is in poor condition. Next time you have a favorable day clean this area with body polish and then wax heavily. It will help forestall deterioration of the lower area of the rocker panels.

When we remove studded snow tires it is important to mark them so that next season they can be installed to rotate the same way, otherwise soda may be loosened. Since many cars use anti-freeze for two seasons, keeping it in the cooling system all summer you an addition of rust inhibitor should be made. Also a little later, add a can of sealer. Additives need to be replaced. Incidentally, whenever it's you the engine's water pump replaced it is a good idea to add a can of rust inhibitor to the coolant. If this is the preferred soluble oil type it will help lubricate the new pump internally.

NATO Parley May Avoid Debating Canada's Role

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada's new NATO role was not expected to be discussed formally at the ministerial meeting opening here today although Secretary-General Manlio Brosio has said any reduction of NATO forces now is "highly inadvisable."

"The force of example is always possible," he acknowledged in referring to Canada's intention to start a phased withdrawal of its 10,000-man NATO force next year and whether that might lead to other NATO force cuts.

"We will see how it works this time," Brosio said at a news conference Wednesday on the eve of the two-day meeting of NATO foreign and defence ministers.

With emphasis on the political rather than the military nature of the 20-year-old alliance, there seemed little likelihood of formal discussion of Canada's decision, announced last week by Prime Minister Trudeau.

But her proposed reduction of her European contingent remained a lively topic in corridors outside the closed meetings in the U.S. state department building.

Although stating that increasing rather than cutting NATO's armed strength to him was "highly desirable and, I think, necessary," Brosio chose to look at the bright side of the Canadian decision.

"I would rather stress the positive side," he said in following the line of the U.S. state department and other NATO spokesmen in playing down the negative angle of the Canadian decision.

'Safeguard' Called Incredible Mistake

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Ralph E. Lapp, a key scientific adviser to Senate opponents of the Safeguard defence program, says the Nixon administration's decision to build the anti-ballistic missile system is an incredible mistake.

"Security just can't be achieved that way," physicist Lapp said in an interview amplifying on his challenge to the proposed Safeguard ABM system. "It seems to me that this whole business is incredible.

"What we're doing is building up forces that will provoke the Russians into building up unlimited forces."

Lapp, 51, is a long-time critic of the defence department and the Atomic Energy Commission who has had a way of turning out to be right.

Sioux Falls Dike Fight Fails

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Flood fighters surrendered an 18-square-block area of Sioux Falls, S.D., to the surging Big Sioux river today after a night-long battle to plug a 100-foot break in a dike in the city's Riverside district.

"We dumped in more than 100 tons of rock, we threw in car bodies and anything else we could lay our hands on," said Joe Vanderloo, Minnehaha County civil defence director, shortly before daybreak. "But it was undermining faster than we could fill it up.

"After eight hours we finally gave up."

The entire area, which contains a meat-packing plant, the Sioux Falls stockyards and about 50 homes, was evacuated and sealed off by roadblocks. Weirs are expected to reach a depth of 25 to 30 feet before cresting.

Some 90 miles downstream, the Big Sioux lapped at levees where it flows into the Missouri at Sioux City, Iowa, and residents of the Iowa community of Cherokee waited in emergency shelters for the Little Sioux to crest.

Twenty miles upstream from the mouth of the Big Sioux airfoot waves threatened to topple a dike at the little Iowa town of Hawarden.

Ninety families were evacuated from Cherokee on the Little Sioux but the worst was over there, officials said.

At Spencer, Iowa, about 50 miles upstream from Cherokee, seven families were evacuated, but the river there was also receding.

Serious flooding also occurred along the Des Moines River in Minnesota and northern Iowa.

More than 400 policemen swept 250 protesters out of Harvard's University Hall today in a bloody clash that left 30 persons hurt and about 200 under arrest.

The helmeted police, some swinging clubs, stormed through a mass of students to get inside the hall which had been seized Wednesday by youths protesting Harvard's Reserve Officer Training Corps program.

Many of those arrested were carried bodily from the hall and thrust into police wagons.

In California, a mass sit in continued at a Stanford University laboratory to protest classified military research on campus.

Student protesters at the New Orleans campus of Southern University forced the closing of the school Wednesday after a clash with police. The college dean locked himself in an office to escape rampaging students.

China Agrees to Talks On Recognition Terms

OTTAWA (CP) — Communist China has agreed to full-scale negotiations with Canada over the question of diplomatic recognition, informants said Wednesday.

Talks could begin next month, they said. Stockholm, where the preliminary contacts were made, is considered the likely site of the main discussions. Cairo was also reported to be under consideration.

The informants said the talks could go on for months, probably with long pauses for periodic instructions from the capitals of the two countries.

The previous contact between the two governments was on Feb. 21 in Stockholm when officials of the Chinese Embassy-after being phoned by Canadian officials—said they would seek instructions from Peking regarding a time and site for the main talks. The Chinese are believed to have replied that they are willing to begin talking without delay.

There was no indication of who would be the chief Canadian negotiator at the talks.

Municipalities Still Responsible

By Roy Peacock, Staff Reporter

The question of responsibility for uncollected county school board taxes is an item of concern for members of Hastings county council. Municipalities could find themselves facing a king-size headache.

Present understanding regarding collection of school taxes under the new county school board system is that the onus is on the individual municipalities which will be expected to make interim payments and pay all school taxes to boards by December 15.

This could lead to additional borrowing by the municipality and county councillors would like to know who picks up the additional costs.

One councillor even saw the school board requirement as limiting borrowing for other municipal expenditures.

Rawdon Reeve Burton Morton raised the question after a Lambton county resolution was presented calling for legislation to provide approval of school board capital expenditures by city and county councils.

Reeve Morton wanted to know what happens in case of uncollected taxes.

"Is the municipality responsible?" he asked.

Tweed Reeve Barbara Allen accused the Ontario department of education of switching on its original promise that county boards would collect their own taxes under the new system.

She felt there should be a firm decision from Queen's Park on the matter.

Warden Donald Rodgers agreed that despite expectations he could see absolutely no difference in the procedure of collecting school taxes under the new system.

"The only change is that the municipalities have less to say," he said.

But the Tweed reeve was adamant in her view and claimed that the burden of school taxation had to be put where it belonged on the department of education.

"I don't agree with the argument that the municipality already has the tax collection machinery."

Sidney Reeve Jack M. Bush showed definite concern over the problem and foresaw the township with a lot of extra land on its hands as the result of tax sales.

Madoc Village Reeve Thomas Burnside said that the promise of separate tax bills from the county boards had been one of the selling points for the new school board system.

Czech Soldiers Oppose Soviet

PRAGUE (Reuters) — Czechoslovak leaders moved today to squash opposition to government policy among troops, some of whom are accused of taking part in recent anti-Soviet demonstrations.

The defence ministry, which Wednesday night disclosed the participation by troops in anti-Soviet activities, said those involved will face tough disciplinary action.

There have been constant reports here recently of unrest in army ranks, swollen by young reformers opposed to the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia in August.

Russians Reject Plan

GENEVA (Reuters) — The Soviet Union today rejected American proposals for an internationally controlled cut-off in the production of fissionable material—the essential ingredient in a nuclear bomb.

Chief Soviet negotiator Alexei Rochabin said the United States plan would not reduce existing nuclear arsenals.

He told the 17-nation disarmament conference the plan was prompted "mainly by the overproduction of nuclear materials designed for military uses in the U.S."

Ron Vandervelde and Lifetime Project

Sculptor Has Difficulty Convincing His Models

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Ronald Vandervelde is a young sculptor suffering an age-old problem with a new twist.

It is almost axiomatic that artists have difficulty being recognized.

In Mr. Vandervelde's case the lack of response comes from famous Canadians who are apparently reluctant to be immortalized — for free.

Just how splendid a bargain he is offering the nation's public personalities can be seen at the Festival '68 visual arts display which opens at Hotel Quinte tonight.

Highlight of his exhibition is his Face of Canada collection relief portraits in wood of four famous — and thus far, responsive — Canadians: Lester Pearson, Cardinal Leger, Paul Martin and actress Genevieve Bujold.

"It's a project for my lifetime," explains Mr. Vandervelde. "The idea is to have a collection of people who make up the personality of the Canadian scene."

Eventually he hopes to find the means for the completed gallery through "some organization or benefactor" — when it is finally assembled.

The portraits, finely chiselled in a variety of woods, are based on profile photographs.

It's the photographs which are frustrating the project. Cross-country requests for them have activated sparse response.

"There's a problem," says Mr. Vandervelde, "I find when I contact individuals, organizations, political parties and such, they never answer. It's very disheartening.

"I suppose, in so many cases people are too busy and it's hard to explain something new to them. And maybe I'm not getting it across properly."

Among unresponsive sources to date have been the Progressive Conservative Party — for a portrait of John Diefenbaker, and Nancy Greene's public relations company.

But the collection, eventually will not be confined to public figures.

Canadians have a multitude of racial backgrounds and the mixture of racial features of "fascinates" the young artist.

With photographs as models, he estimates he can finish four portraits a year.

The work is its own satisfaction. Relief sculpturing is almost a "lost art" in Canada, says Mr. Vandervelde.

His enterprise stems from his craft — he makes fine jewelry models for Avon Jewellery — and it's a skill fast disappearing.

"The old craftsmen are dying out — and the younger people aren't interested," explains the artist.

His obvious talent has been self-disciplined. Mr. Vandervelde has had no formal artistic training.

The jewelry craft he learned from his father. His art is self - taught, much of it gleaned from the shelves of Belleville's public library.

Today, one of his sculptures in the Ottawa head office of a leading architectural firm.

Despite the cool response to his Face of Canada project he has no doubts he will finish it.

"I think everything will come eventually — because I am a very persistent person," says Mr. Vandervelde. "After all, this is how I learned."

The visual arts display opened in the Hotel Quinte's Pinnacle Room this afternoon and will close tomorrow night. Its displays are a co-operative presentation of city arts, crafts and camera groups.

Property Sale Value Said More Equitable

By ROBERT AVERY
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — When the provincial government assumes over the job of assessment, property will be appraised for its selling value on the market and it is this figure upon which taxation will be based.

Victor Hewson, assessment commissioner for the united counties of Durham and Northumberland, last night told a meeting of the Murray Township ratepayers that beginning in 1970, homes across the province will be assessed for 100 per cent of their market value.

"This new means of assessment will require a total reassessment of the whole province," said Mr. Hewson.

The job of reassessment will begin next January and is expected to take five years. But according to the assessment commissioner the time and effort will show large rewards for many taxpayers.

"It is known there are many inadequacies in the present setup and we hope that the new system will take care of many of these," he stated.

He pointed out that many identical properties across the province are radically different in their assessment rates. With the provincial takeover and a new universal system there would be more equality of assessment among similar properties, claims Mr. Hewson.

"Assessment reform is sorely needed," said Mr. Hewson. "It is long overdue and something must be done."

Next year an individual's property will come under the eye of an assessment official who will look at property through the eyes of someone trying to sell it. If a house is worth $20,000 on the market then it will be assessed for $30,000, explained Mr. Hewson.

"And then the mill rate will be lowered respectively to maintain the same previous level of taxes," he continued.

Various outside forces will be taken into consideration as being detrimental to the sale value of a house but Mr. Houston said many nuisance values, such as dust, will have no effect on the assessed value.

Just when all of this will come into effect neither Mr. Hewson nor higher ranking officials are able to say.

"We do not know if the plan will be introduced after the province has been totally reassessed in 1975 or if we will put individual areas on the 100 per cent basis as we complete each one."

Either way he looks on the task as a "big job but one which will really hold some fits for the taxpayer."

Rawdon Area Farmer Loses Barn, Tractor

A fire yesterday afternoon in a large building on the line between Rawdon and Seymour township resulted in an estimated $10,000 damage.

The blaze was reported at 2:15 p.m. and sent the Rawdon Volunteer Fire Department to the building owned by Robert C. Heard who lives at the scene.

Firemen managed to save the residence and a nearby barn, but the shed and its contents were a total loss.

The large shed contained a new tractor, combine and corn planter. A supply of fertilizer is to be used for this coming year's planting was also lost in the blaze.

Mr. Heard said his family were in the negro hour at the time of the fire and nearby neighbors turned in the alarm.

No cause of the blaze has been reported as yet. There were no injuries.

PE Board, Teachers At Impasse

PICTON (Staff) — The Secondary School teachers salary negotiating committee and the personnel committee of the Prince Edward County Board of Education have, by mutual agreement, called on a third party to act in settling their current salary negotiations.

The salary negotiations have been continuing for some weeks without success. A mediation means an outside party would be brought in to arbitrate the negotiations.

The demands of the teachers and the counter-offers of the board have not been released.

Find Loot On Road Near Madoc

MADOC — Loot from a month-old robbery has been found scattered along a highway, 22 miles northeast of here.

A man walking along Highway 41 at Kaledar Township found jewelry valued at $500 and a $500 bond strewn along the road shoulder.

The valuables have been identified as part of a $4,000 haul in cash, jewelry and bonds taken March 11 from the apartment safe of Madoc restaurant operator John Mah.

Police unsuccessfully sought a U.S.-registered car with two men and a woman following the robbery.

Arts Festival

Choral Group Makes Fine Start

By EUGENE LANG

A well attended crowd was evident at the opening of the Arts Festival '68 in the auditorium at Centennial Secondary School as the first of these attractions got under way, this initial presentation featuring the Belleville Orchestral Society under the direction of Murray Irwin.

Now celebrating its tenth anniversary, this group of approximately 40 voices has enriched the local music scene on many an occasion, both under its founder, Miss Phyllis May and again with the present Director Murray Irwin.

Last evening's program was as varied as it was interesting, bringing a sample of many different schools of vocal writing. Four sacred selections provided the most ample opportunity to demonstrate its ability in many guises. The Donna Nobis Pacem was softly textured with carefully approached phrasings while those Alleluia from William Boyce was arrived at with a lilting linearity offset by harmonic shadings. Healey Willan's Rise up my love, My Fair one was voiced plaintively with subdued sounds, this not being the case with the Bruckner Ave Maria which triumphed tonally although the antiphonal male voices was intermittingly washed away by waves of tone from the fairer sex. A cappella singing was the keynote of the foregoing numbers.

Four excerpts from Mendelssohn's Elijah comprised the second group with a touching rendition of Lift Up Thine Eyes by the Ladies Choir. Loretta Zofel carried conviction in the lovely O rest in the Lord regardless of the tremolos that encroached at times in her serene handling of the aria. Sonorous upon the Behold, God the Lord passed by were forcefully attacked and the female voices of the Holy, Holy, Holy involved expressive coloring against the chorus' vocal fullness.

The Kyrie of Norman Luboff's African Mass featuring Rodney Robertson as vocal soloist and Robert Maybee at the tom-tom was novel and interesting but even though these two musicians with the chorus did admirably, the final effect seemed like a vocal version of Ravel's Bolero — variety, vocal splendor and thematic monotony.

Eight selections followed intermission, each with its own appeal. In some of these numbers the few tenors and basses began to assert their singing sufficiently for the balance of the female voices such as in the sombre Black is the colour of my true love's hair and the female soloists were one of the finest offerings of the evening with a woven tonal fabric of subtle changes, undulating movement and tuneful melodious content. The Hush-a-bye, Baby Nurse done even though Mozart did not write this song which was not called Twinkle Twinkle Little Star — was Bernhard Flies from Berlin wrote this after Mozart's death). The Sadowsen from The Sound of Music was vested with April freshness. The Ladies Choir with Diane Duffy put Christopher Robin to bed once again — in a blanket of charm.

Appropriate apparel in two styles added to the program along with a plentitude of lighting effects, at times a little overdone. But the total result was enticing to all.

Youthful Bill McArton from Stirling was the recent winner of the Choral Society's purse given at the Rotary Music Festival in February in the category of Boys' Solo — Unchanged Voices." Bill's clear soprano voice projected with radiance in the homespun quartas of The Trees in England, then gave Malotte's hackneyed The Lord's Prayer an air of core, this a trifle on the slow side.

Ever faithful S. Alec Gordon provided accompaniments throughout the evening when required, and then added more feathers to his musical cap by playing four works on the Conn Chord Organ. Concerto F Major Air and Variations were given a delicate performance with fragile registration. From only a four note motive Handel built quite an edifice in his Organ Concerto F Major from which we heard one movement with Mr. Gordon scurrying here and there with agility and brilliance. Rimsky-Korsakoff's Bumble Bee was heard flitting about before we were entertained by Mr. Gordon's own satirical scampers in his Canadienette — a clever juxtaposition of this and that from that old tune cast of the brother Alouette. Mr. Gordon as composer is just as witty as Mr. Gordon the person — we wouldn't want it otherwise. As organist we know hi-a for what he is — and that is tops in our book.

So the first of this year's Arts Festival '69 events has got off to a splendid start. Mr. Irwin is to be congratulated for his excellent choir and their fine performance last evening. The only mar was the usual few who must applaud at every entrance — even when the program said to refrain from.

The Festival was opened by Mayor J. Russell Scott who brought greetings from the City of Belleville and Lou Carroll. Mayor Scott was introduced by Mrs. Diane Aitken.

Obituaries

WILLIAM JOSEPH LYNCH

A member of the volunteer and Belleville Fire Department and a former chief for 18 years, William Joseph Lynch, 153 Church Street, died at his home on Wednesday afternoon in his 83rd year. In the death of Mr. Lynch a link in the history of fire fighting in the community has been severed.

Mr. Lynch was born in Belleville, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Lynch and had lived his entire life in the community.

In the year 1916 he joined the volunteer fire department, when the equipment was horse drawn. When the department was re-organized on a municipal basis Mr. Lynch continued and rose to be chief in 1930 and continued in that capacity until 1948 when he retired after nearly 35 years of service.

He was a member of St. Michael's church. He was made an honorary member of the Kiwanis Club and fraternally was made an honorary member of the Knights of Columbus.

Surviving are three sons, Thomas, William and James Lynch, all of Belleville, and four daughters, Miss Marjorie and Miss June Lynch at home, Mrs. Roy (Celina) Johnson, Belleville and Miss Hilda Lynch of Smiths Falls.

Also surviving are one sister, Mrs. Charles Bly, Toronto. His wife, the former Delphina Frechette, and one daughter, Mrs. Irene Coughlin, predeceased.

Mr. Lynch is resting at the George O'Brien Funeral Residence. Requiem mass will be celebrated at St. Michael's church on April 12 at 10 a.m.

Interment will be in St. James cemetery.

WILLIAM COULBY

Stricken with a heart attack at his home, 250 Victoria Avenue, Wednesday morning, William Coulby was rushed to hospital and died suddenly shortly after admittance.

Mr. Coulby was born in Nottingham, England, 72 years ago, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Coulby and came to this country as a young man. Shortly after his arrival he joined the Ontario Hydro and was employed by and about Belleville for 47 years, where he rose to be maintenance superintendent of this region. He retired in 1961 after serving over 40 years with the utility.

Mr. Coulby was prominent in Masonic circles in the Prince Edward district. He was a life member and past master of Moira Lodge, A.F. and A.M. No. 11 and was honored by being appointed District Deputy Grand Master of Prince Edward District. He was also a life member and past First Principal of Moira Chapter, No. 7 Royal Arch Masons. He was an active bridge player and a member of the Belleville Bridge Club for many years.

He was a member of Bridge Street United Church.

Surviving is his wife, the former Evelyn Cross; one son, William Coulby, Oshawa; one daughter, Mrs. James (Margaret) Whitridge, Ottawa, one brother, Thomas Coulby, Toronto and six grandchildren.

Mr. Coulby is resting at the Pinkston and Luscombe Funeral Home. Service will be held in the chapel on April 11 at two o'clock.

Interment will be in Belleville cemetery with Dr. H. M. Davis officiating.

VERDUN CHARLES WHITMARSH

Verdun Charles Whitmarsh, R.R. 7 Belleville, died in hospital on Wednesday in his 68th year. He had been ill a short time.

Mr. Whitmarsh was born in Belleville, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harold Whitmarsh and had resided in the community all his life. He carried on a painting and decorating business in the district for some years.

Surviving are his wife, the former Hazel Bailey; one son, Verdun (Skip) Whitmarsh, Corbyville, one daughter, Mrs. Jackie Whitmarsh at home and one granddaughter, Leslie Karen Whitmarsh.

Also surviving are three brothers Clifford, Syracuse, Harry and Lyle, Belleville and one sister, Mrs. Walter (Phyllis) Halliday, Chicago.

Mr. Whitmarsh is resting at the Thompson Funeral Chapel. Service will be held in the chapel on April 11 at two o'clock.

Interment in Belleville cemetery with Canon R. B. Wright officiating.

JAMES ALBERT WAY
Hillier

In ill health for six weeks, James Albert Way, RR 1, Hillier died in hospital on Wednesday in his 88th year.

Mr. Way was born at Belleville, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Way but lived most of his life in Prince Edward County, where he farmed until his retirement some years ago.

He was a member of Wellington United Church, which absorbed the Bowerman Church charge.

Surviving are his wife, the former Minnie Burmas; two sons, Seldon Way, Rochester, Gerald, Belleville and five daughters, Mrs. Jay (Mildred) Sprague, Mountain View, Mrs. Warren (Audrey) Chase, Cobourg, Mrs. Sherman (Bessie) Weir, Hillier, Mrs. David (Vera) Bowen, Belleville and Mrs. Edwin (Laura) Lott, Belleville.

Mr. Way is resting at the Ainsworth Funeral Home, Wellington. Service will be held in the chapel on April 11 at 2:30 p.m.

Interment will be in Wellington cemetery with Rev. Norman J. Truax officiating.

MRS. FORBES MACLEAN

The funeral for Mrs. Edna Maclean was held from the Grant Funeral Home on Wednesday afternoon.

Rev. Alfred Poulter conducted the service in the chapel and also said the graveside prayers in Belleville cemetery.

The bearers were Kenneth Johnston, Allen, Ian and Donald McCaw, Allen Maclean and John Boyd.

MRS. ELIAS SPRY
RR 2 Bonarlaw

MADOC — The funeral of Mrs. Sarah Euretta Spry, lifelong resident of the Bonarlaw area, was held on Wednesday afternoon from the MacKenzie Funeral Home at Madoc to the Bonarlaw United Church where service was conducted by Rev. W. C. Cox.

Bearers were William Barlow, Harold McCann, Blake Williams, Joseph Roy, Melbourne Martin and Walter Acker.

Interment was in Mount Nebo Cemetery, Springbrook.

County Hikes Grants For Rural Fairs

Members of the Hastings county council ARDA committee have accepted the fact of increased costs for rural fairs and have recommended increased grants for their operation.

Presenting the committee report at yesterday's council meeting, chairman Edward Cunningham said he was recommending grants for small rural fairs be increased by by $50 to $250.

However, the grants for Belleville Fair and the Otaka Winter Fair are to remain unchanged.

An additional grant recommended calls for the Bancroft Gembore to receive $250.

Also $400 is being allotted for a bus trip by councillors to Ottawa, where they will be the guests of Hastings member Lee Grills.

Total grants recommended amount to $5,950.

On the same theme, the county finance and public property committee is recommending a grant of $1,500 to the Hastings County Tourist Association; $1,000 to the Madawaska Valley, and $200 to the Land of Lakes.

Other grants recommended included $600 for the Belleville Salvation Army correctional services and $400 to the Tweed Salvation Army; the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, $1,200; St. John Ambulance $100; Belleville and District United Community Services $700 and winter employment campaign committee, $250.

No action was taken on grant requests from the Lake Ontario Regional Development Council, and four other national organizations.

Public Library grants of $120 for county libraries were recommended as was a grant of $1,200 to the county historical society and $1,000 for the Associations of Counties and Regions of Ontario which is to hold its convention in Hastings.

A grant of $2,000 per year for five years to the Trenton Memorial Hospital is recommended.

The county's share of the annual budget for the local children's aid society this year is $43,872 which will be included in the over-all county budget. An additional request of $3,750 for a therapy home will also be placed in the budget.

The report given by finance committee chairman Reeve Burton Morton said a subcommittee would meet with city representatives to discuss the establishment of a new county museum. A recommendation on this item will be made at a later date.

Walkathon Refurbishes Money

ANELIASBURG — The Wesleyan United Church at Mountain View is being refurbished from the money raised by a walkathon with members of the congregation participating.

Of the 128 entrants who started the endurance test on Good Friday all but 24 finished. A total of $2,950 was collected through the walkers' efforts.

The course, in the likeness of a circuit rider's route, began at the Wesleyan church in the village of Mountain View, wound around Roblin Lake passed Centre Corners to Massassaga and Huff's Island in returning to the church. First to finish the 13 mile discance were Dave McMaster and Steve Crozier. The time they took to walk the route was just over four hours. Those bringing up the rear were still straggling in at 5 p.m. after more than eight hours on the road.

The project was undertaken when church officials decided the premises should be redecorated to receive the new minister called from a charge at Gagetown, N.B. to replace the Rev. Walter Von Voetticker who left at the end of the year.

The new minister, the Rev. James Cullen, has notified the church board he will be arriving to assume his duties sometime in July.

City Bus Deficits Show Growth Pattern

If present loss patterns prevail the Belleville Transit Commission could mark up a whopping $100,000 deficit by 1975.

The warning came today from BTC chairman Marylea Burtt in a review of city-owned bus operations — already running $52,000 in the red on 1968 operations.

While the loss was $2,500 less than estimated it was up $7,500 from 1967 deficits.

Each BTC bus on Belleville streets is losing 8.3 cents a mile, noted Mrs. Burtt.

"If our present conditions continue as they have in the past — with the deficit increasing approximately $8,000 a year — by 1975 the deficit will be over $100,000."

There are only two possible solutions: Increase passengers or increase fares.

Mrs. Burtt hopes for the painless solution — more passengers.

"It is the hope of the present commission that more people will try the buses" and present fares will be maintained, she said.

(BTC travel now costs adults 30 cents, students 15 cents and children 10 cents.)

"After all," ad-d-d Mrs. Burtt's statement, "it costs more in parking and gas for you to drive downtown yourself."

The BTC annual report, now filed at city hall for city council consideration, reveals a familiar dilemma — increased revenue offset by mounting operating costs.

Fares subscribed $143,200 to commission income in 1968 — up $8,500. Charter services brought in nearly $11,000 — up almost $2,000.

Wages and benefits cost $134,100 — an increase of $12,400 while fuel costs were up nearly $3,000 at $24,150. These are the expenses causing a major part of the deficit increase.

Already, salary increases are expected to be up $6,000 over 1968, estimates Mrs. Burtt — and the present BTC workers' contract runs out at the end of this year.

In total, Belleivilians used their public transport system 807,886 times during 1968. This was an increase of 3,329 over the 1967 passenger list.

But, warns Mrs. Burtt, this marginal increase — 0.3 per cent — is insufficient.

The financial summary was released at a BTC meeting at city hall which also marked a happier event — recognition of bus-driver's service to the public.

Gwilym Post, city bus driver since 1952 was presented a cheque for servicing the BTC since its 1963 inception without an accident.

Safe-driving awards for 1968 went to 15 other drivers: Percy Lewington, Earl Phillips, Leslie Shambo, Angus Hannah, J. Cecil Harry, St. Clair Post, James Buckley, Everett Boldrick, Russell Roach, David Taylor, Thomas Taylor, Ernest Hunter, Walter Lewington, Hugh Kerr and Freeman Holgate.

A plaque also was presented retiring commissioner E. G. Sumner who served on the BTC in 1963-65 and 1967-68.

Tax Arrears Feared

There was also some concern that the March 31 date limitation for appeals against school tax levies was already past and there was still no sign of school budgets being set.

Clerk Treasurer Carl Bateman said the expectation was that the school budget would be set by the end of April.

Warden Rodgers said the requirement of interim payments by municipalities to school boards was one of the reasons that earlier in the day he had suggested tax payments instead of the present single payment as was the case with most municipalities.

Marmora Village Reeve William Shannon agreed that school boards should collect their own taxes. Board members were elected people and should accept the responsibility, he said.

In the end council concurred in the Lambton county resolution asking that it already be given the right to approve of capital expenditures by county school boards.

But despite their questioning of the new county school board system, county councillors have no bone to pick with the Hastings county school board.

Indicative of this is the fact that they went along with a school board request for the use of the county council chambers for board meetings.

However there would be two stipulations — no desks are to be moved and no smoking would be allowed.

Council was told that the school board would decide on acceptance of their offer at their next board meeting.

Citizens' Committee

Desperate situations, it has been said, require desperate remedies and while Belleville's economic status may not be exactly desperate it is such that people locally have reached the point of trying to help things along.

They have reached the point moreover of realizing that the average citizen with no particular political affiliation and no axe to grind — yet with a desire to see the city progress — should play a much more active role in community affairs.

The Citizens' of Belleville Committee, established originally to protest an Ontario Municipal Board ban on the north end plaza project, is an example of this kind of civic awareness. And particularly now that the group may play a continuing part in civic affairs.

The committee's status will be more precisely defined when a constitution is drawn up, but the idea is that its purpose will resemble closely that of an ombudsman. This office, of Scandinavian origin and a part of the governmental scene in New Zealand and — closer to home — Alberta, protects citizen rights against bureaucratic encroachment.

A significant factor in this situation is the support the committee has attracted to itself.

Meanwhile, the petition against the plaza decision of the OMB is almost ready for presentation to Attorney-General Wishart. Some 11,000 signatures have been obtained. That is about one-third of the population of the city.

The fact must be faced of course that the petition may draw a blank at Queen's Park. Nevertheless the point will have been made that a significant number of people feel that Belleville cannot afford to have economic prospects of this magnitude turned down.

He Does It Again

One man in Ottawa who is earning his Minister's salary is Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey. His practice of personal involvement in seeking solutions to labor disputes has had its critics, but with Mr. Mackasey it has brought one success after another.

The Labor Minister's penchant for all-night bargaining sessions has become legend. Lesser man would be inclined to say, to heck with it, and leave it to deputies. But not Mr. Mackasey, and his persistence has paid off once again with the success of negotiations in Montreal between the International Longshoremen's Association and port employers. Also paying a big part was Associate Chief Judge Alan B. Gold who stays on as arbitrator under the new agreement.

Agreement reached, Mr. Mackasey was able to leave the same evening for a ten-day vacation in Madeira, the Portuguese island some 360 miles off the northwest coast of Africa. When you put in this kind of marathon work session such a vacation is well-deserved.

The Passing Scene

"Sitting on the corner watching all the world go by." That is the heading over a Globe and Mail picture caption showing the mainly younger set getting into the Spring swing of things at a sidewalk cafe in Yorkville the other day.

"The thermometer," the caption says, "edged refreshingly close to 65 yesterday in Toronto," and the crowds flocked back to Yorkville village in a long-awaited toast to spring. Long, wild colors, short skirts and weird outfits were in abundance. "Penny Farthing' customers seemed content to sip coffee, chat with friends and let the rest of the world go by."

Ah yes, it was a pleasant enough scene and one forgot for a moment that Yorkville also is synonymous with drugs, hippies, kids who have run away from home, and that one night (a summer or two ago) a man was attacked and killed by a gang of young ruffians in a sidewalk confrontation. . .

And there comes to mind also the recent police warning that Toronto streets are becoming increasingly unsafe for women after dark.

There is nothing wrong with sitting at a sidewalk cafe and watching the world go by and the young people in the picture certainly are a clean-cut lot, but there big cities are also places to get away from — particularly when later the temperature soars to 90 or so — to the beach and the rural parts where the air is cleaner and the mind can run free and dream of other faraway places.

Civil Service Payroll Budget Reaches for the Stars

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA. — How would you like to work for an organization that budgets for a "main" payroll increase of nearly 12,000,000, then, to cover what are called "contingencies," provides an additional $105,000,000?

Nice, eh! Makes for a warm feeling of security, doesn't it?

Then join the federal government where salary increases are built in, and even the cheese de la creme, the self-proclaimed civil service aristocracy, the Striped Pasta Set of the mandarin affairs department, has its own civil service union.

Yes, that is correct, a union of the members of the Exalted Order of the Attache Case, the self-anointed Deep Thinkers of diplomacy whose salaries run high into the $20,000 - a - year brackets plus living allowances, "hardship" benefits, tax free privileges and other fringe benefits of embassy and chancery life.

Last year the federal payroll for the "regular" civil service, those employed in the government departments — as apart from the crown corporations, commissions, boards and other special agencies ran $1,319,-078,408. That is about a billion and a third dollars.

This year the payroll stands at $1,447,016,732.

Not far short of a billion and a half dollars.

Figure it out and the increase in just a year runs $127,940,325.

And this while Bank of Canada Governor Louis Rasminsky, Finance Minister Ben Benson and other keepers of the treasury keys are preaching wage and salary restraint.

That is their word for it. "restraint."

But on top of that, $127,940,-325 increase, it now turns out, is another $105,000,000 tucked away in the Supplementary — as apart from the "main" — Finance Department Estimates.

How has the "restraint" the government urges for everyone else been working out for itself?

Well, allows Treasury Board President Bud Drury, with some "restraint" of his own, "in the civil service where new collective bargaining power is exerted, there has been quite a rapid acceleration of salaries."

While the cabinet may be accepting this acceleration with remarkable calm, over in the Senate, that chamber of "sober second thought," as it likes to call itself, things are not quite that tranquil.

Some of the senators have been working up quite a head of steam.

The other day they were questioning Treasury Board Secretary S. S. Reisman, former assistant deputy finance minister, about that extra $105,000,000 which has been budgeted in the Supplementary Estimates for those salary "contingencies" expected over and above the $127,-940,325 increase in the payroll.

The $105,000,000, explained Mr. Reisman, had been budgeted in the one extra lump sum, and not departments by department, so that no single civil service union would know "just how much to shoot for."

If the $105,000,000 had been apportioned to the different departments, he said on, it would have provided "a ready-made target" for the civil service unions, from the lowly clerks and stenos to the haughty diplomatists.

This kind of thinking baffled Senator David Walker, a former (Conservative) cabinet minister himself, and currently a hugely successful enterpriser in the law courts and financial markets.

If with $127,940,325 already provided for "regular" salary increases, that extra lump sum $105,000,000 wasn't a "ready-made target," then what was it he wondered.

$40,325 increase in the payroll.

The $105,000,000, explained Mr. Reisman, had been budgeted in the one extra lump sum, and not departments by department, so that no single civil service union would know "just how much to shoot for."

If with $127,940,325 already provided for "regular" salary increases, that extra lump sum $105,000,000 wasn't a "ready-made target," then what was it he wondered.

It was financial nonsense, said the senator, to claim that the $105,000,000 could be so disguised as a "lump sum," that the civil service unions, as Mr. Reisman claimed so hopefully, wouldn't know "just how much to shoot for."

The "target" was not only "ready-made," but a financial bull's-eye, "inviting all the sharpshooters to take a dead aim."

Each of the 60 or more civil service "groups," as the federal staff terms its unions, would be shooting for the "works," warned Senator Walker.

"Each will be aiming for the bull's-eye, trying to blast the biggest hole possible in that $105,000,000 target for itself."

Makes for nice "shooting," doesn't it? With that $127,940,-325 in "regular" salary increases already bagged, and now another $105,000,000 targeted for the unions with the fastest guns on the Hill.

Tobacco and the Grower

Windsor Star

Ontario tobacco growers will feel better knowing the United Kingdom tobacco industry plans to buy from 53,000,000 to 58,000,000 pounds of Canadian weed in 1970. That is an assured market for next year's crop.

This year the United Kingdom plans to take 62,000,000 pounds of Canadian tobacco.

Giving a forecast of needs for next year as well as this year means the tobacco growers can plan their acreage and seeding to meet the market. They can do so with the knowledge their product will be sold.

It is not so many years ago that Ontario tobacco farming was confined to a part of Essex County. But, assistance in quality, tobacco has extended the acreage and tobacco farms and barns are a familiar sight along the shore of Lake Erie.

Tobacco and the Smoker

German Features

Smoking has been implicated as a possible strong contributor to heart attacks among people under 44 in a study conducted here.

In the study, undertaken at Hamburg University's Heart Clinic 1, 253 heart attack victims — 218 men and 35 women — were investigated. The youngest male patient was 19, the youngest female 27.

Of the group, 151 died as a result of the attacks and autopsies were performed in these cases.

Several different factors were considered as possible contributors to heart attacks among the group: high blood pressure, high blood levels of fat or cholesterine, diabetes, overweight and smoking.

It was found that pathologic degrees of the first four categories were practically non-existent among the 218 victims. Smoking was the only factor that stood out starkly as a prime candidate. Even more convincing was the finding that the group was composed of people who practically without exception were chain-smokers.

In the autopsies, arteriosclerosis of the heart vessels belonging closely related to smoking, was found in nearly every case.

Potato Market

Summerside, P.E.I., Journal-Pioneer

Reading, as we do, the weekly Ward report on potato markets, it is difficult not to feel a good price in one area depends on misfortune somewhere else. A crop failure in Canada, particularly in New Brunswick, is good news in California, Idaho or Maine. The simple fact is that when all potato growing areas have a good crop there are just too many potatoes for the market to absorb and the price becomes depressed. While we are no defender of the status quo, nor a believer that private enterprise is somehow sacred, we are at a loss to understand how central marketing in this province, for instance could improve the price situation.

Communist Threat

Other Vietnams Feared

Ottawa Journal

Prime Minister Gorton of Australia had nothing much new to say in his public statements during his welcome visit to Ottawa but he had one welcome opinion of which North America requires reminding. It is that if aggression succeeds in South Vietnam it would likely march on elsewhere. It might take a long time to reach Australia but Laos and Cambodia would soon be threatened and Thailand would have cause for concern. Gorton feels that the communist march would continue, if permitted.

Australia has troops helping the United States and South Vietnam check aggression because, as Gorton said here last week, his country remembered the bit-by-bit dismemberment of Europe organized by other aggressors 25 years ago. Australia believes in the "domino theory," that aggressors would topple one country after another; this theory has been much questioned but when there is glib criticism of U.S. involvement in South Vietnam it remains an impressive rebuttal.

The Cuban Scene

Castro Still Rules—But the Early Fervor Is Gone

(Michael Frayn in The Observer, London)

Perhaps the astonishing thing is that Castro has avoided so many of the corruptions of power. All the same, one's heart sinks slightly when one turns from his famous "History Will Absolve Me" speech, made at his trial after the abortive attack on the Moncada barracks in Santiago in 1953, with its magnificently passionate account of the sufferings of the Cuban people, to his speech last year justifying the invasion of Czechoslovakia, or to some of the speeches bouncing the rest of Latin America on how to achieve the revolution, which sound a little like those books on how to succeed in life written by self-made millionaires.

I saw Castro speak one night on television.

In the middle of it he threw out one of those astonishing radical ideas that time and again in Cuba force one to stop and think deeply about all one's presuppositions.

This time it was the suggestion that the development of the universities in Cuba would lead to their disappearance, because eventually the numbers coming forward for higher education would be so vast that the universities would have as it were to dissolve into the life of the community. Educate all school - leavers as they went about their jobs.

After an hour or so the television set — it was in the lobby of a hotel in Holguin — abruptly ceased to function.

About 20 people had been watching it, with passing interest but no sign of reverence. Some of them made vague attempts to call the breakdown to the attention of the management, but no one troubled to get out of his armchair to fix it.

I wandered out into the town's central square, where the speech was being relayed over a loud speaker. It was Sunday night, and the square was full of people. They were not there to listen to Fidel, however: they were performing the ritual Sunday evening passeo, strolling round and round in their best clothes.

It was a beautiful night; they are such a beautiful people, and in warm winter night, beneath the lamps of the square, they looked well dressed, prosperous and relaxed. It might have been any other Latin country, except that there was nowhere to get a drink, or even a cup of coffee.

In the background the rather high, familiar voice lectured on, as unheeded as it would have been anywhere else.

But the mythology remains; the story, above all, of the two years that Castro and his companions spent in the Sierra Maestra.

Castro has always deprecated the religious characteristics of communism. It's said that he also discouraged naively enthusiastic portrayals in the early days of the revolution who attempted to depict him as Christ and who has progressively hidden icons of himself, in the Stalinist manner, in the offices of government organizations.

What Is the Price of Being French in North America?

This is another in a series on the Quebec of today and the future, based on interviews with prominent figures in French Canada.

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

MONTREAL (CP) — The future of Canada, it is said, put in terms of whether the English- and French-speaking citizens of the country are willing to pay the price of getting along together.

But informed French-Canadians also ask themselves a perhaps deeper and more heart-touching question, transcending the issue of separatism and federalism:

Are we really willing and able to pay for having the French in North America? What is it?

This, in a way, involves thinking the unthinkable because survival has always been the essence of the French-Canadian culture. Claude Bachand, 24-year-old lawyer who is soon to graduate as a master of business administration from the University of Western Ontario, spoke of outside-Quebec attitudes:

"There are people who understand Quebec aspirations and there are people who do not. With the people who do not understand, you can have very little discussion because they consider French-Quebecers as just another minority.

"They ask, especially people from the West, why should Quebecois be treated any differently from the Ukrainians or Germans. They don't see the historical factors behind the aspirations of the Quebecois."

Romanticized popular songs use lists to dwell on how the Quebecois survived in days long past—how cans lovingly copied by candlelight the few available French textbooks for survival of the language.

How habitants toiled down the centuries to support large families, manifested in "la survivance" under the guidance of Mother Church, which remained faithful in the days when mother France forgot.

But now the power of the Roman Catholic Church has changed and the age of a cut-off rural mystique has been replaced by the age of "information" — computer science and man on the moon.

Industrialist Charles Perrault probably respects the old values as much as any French-Canadian but his views on survival in the modern day involve drastic economic and educational drive.

The outlook has unexpected angles. No longer can the French-Canadian businessman "make his fortune, happiness," as one official put it. He must no longer make the traditional option for a small business, which can be handed down intact to his son, but enter the North American "battle for bigness" to survive. This is part of the price.

"Somebody the other day said the French-Canadian has broken out of a protective environment in which he lived a very sheltered, second - class type of life," said Mr. Perrault. "Now he wants the good things of life like everybody else."

But at the same time he wanted to keep the cultural cocoon in which he existed before.

"Is this possible? That's the riddle on the sphinx. Can the French-Canadian participate fully in the economic life of the North American continent and preserve the culture of 6,000,000 or 6,000,000 people? I'm not sure it can be done. This is a hell of a challenge. . . . I don't know what sacrifices French-Canadians are prepared to make to save their culture. I could be very cynical and say I suspect it is not very much. . . ."

Dr. Roger Gaudry, rector of the University of Montreal who in the past has worked as a scientific research director in New York, also saw the North American challenge in stark terms, though he did feel the renewal of association with France would replenish the old culture from the roots.

But, as Dr. Gaudry said, "there is a but."

"While we love France, the fact remains our mentality is not as all that of the French. We are North Americans. That is definite. Our methods are North American. . . .

"I don't believe the French-Canadian should expect at the same time to enjoy all the benefits of the French culture and all the benefits of living in North America with exactly the same standard of living. It's quite clear the French-Canadians have a price to pay.

"To me it's not compatible with having exactly the same standard of living and exactly the same aspirations as the rest of the country. Because then you'd have that plus something else."

A French-Canadian businessman, for instance, has to be bilingual to be highly successful while an English-Canadian businessman does not.

"But while we study another language we don't devote so much time to economics and the more material things of life. It seems some of our more radical leaders have ignored too easily that a price has to be paid."

Roger Charbonneau, dean of Montreal's Ecole des Hautes Etudes Commerciales who moves easily in the life and literature of both cultures, regarded all this as a difficult question because you had to consider what—and whether —the group is willing to pay.

"Clearly there are people who say yes. Ten years from now they may not. People don't know the price, even those who say they are ready to pay. I don't know either.

"For me culture is getting more international and less nationalistic. I think French Canada can participate in both types of culture. If there is a price, it is the price all societies have to pay for culture.

"Culture is a way of looking at life. You can see that France and other countries are changing their views. Everybody is asking the same questions everywhere. . . . National cultures are perishing one another and you're getting a worldwide culture to solve world problems."

Company president Gerard Pisserie, one-time classmate of Mr. Charbonneau, had a terse answer to the question of what Quebecois have to do that other Canadians do not: "We've got to work harder."

Socialism and separatism, mixed together, produce a siren song that amounts to a prelude of disaster for individual freedoms said Mr. Pisserie.

Most if not all separatists were adherents of the "almighty state" whose method of protecting the French fact would be to legislate on everything from investment to immigration, violating traditional freedoms. Besides, many activists were using separatism as a cover for their real aims of wrecking present society without giving a clear idea of what they intend to put in its place.

But insidiative and hard work were the real road-savers to French-Canadian survival, not the almighty state, said this no-nonsense business leader.

Some travelled Quebecois say that what they once regarded as French-Canadian culture they now see as regionalism. The whole topic led to an interesting cross-culture exchange at University of Sherbrooke between Michel Cloutier, vice-dean of the faculty of administration, and Lewis Rosenbloom, lecturer and retired retailer.

Mr. Rosenbloom said it is apparent in the Jewish and English communities that—with exceptions—people do lose their old cultures as they strive for economic advancement. This could be seen throughout the United States and Canada.

"If you put your emphasis on making money and being successful financially—and this is important—the culture suffers," said Mr. Rosenbloom.

"When I lived outside Quebec and met another French-Canadian, he was automatically a brother," said Mr. Cloutier. "If he's a neighbor here, you treat him like that. If you meet him outside, you want to kis him.

"This is part of Quebec society. To me this is Quebec culture, the language, the stories you tell, the way you think, the reactions you have —very emotional. The Quebec you feel, the way you're different but when you go around the world you see there are many ways of living."

Dr. Philippe Garigue, dean of social sciences at the University of Montreal, said it is true that only 10 years ago the church was the sole large institution preserving French. Now there were such institutions as U. of M. itself, greatly expanded, Hydro-Quebec and a whole "core of communications" to ensure use of the language.

Claude Bachand summed up with the directness of youth by saying that unquestionably there is a price for remaining French. But this does not close the French-Canadian any more than English-Canadians are daunted by the price of keeping a lower standard of living rather than joining the United States.

Tomorrow: Dualism of heart and mind seen at root of separatism.

Speaking Out

Claude Bachand (left), 24-year-old lawyer, believes Quebecois must be treated differently from other ethnic groups because of historical factors behind aspirations of Quebec. Dr. Philippe Garigue, right, dean of social sciences at the University of Montreal, recalls the time just 10 years ago when the church was the sole large institution preserving French in the province.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market advanced fractionally in mid-morning trading today after opening with a small loss. Trading was moderate.

Revenue, the most active trader, rose 1¼ to 19¼. A spokesman for Revenue said the company is "negotiating a number of acquisitions."

Home Oil B was up 1¼ to 53¼ and Home A ¼ to 54. The company began drilling its first well in the Alaska North Slope area on lands farmed out by Atlantic Richfield.

Défasco, another active trader, slipped ¼ to 24½. The company said it will start construction of a $20,000,000 mill in June as part of its $60,000,000 expansion program. The new mill is expected to increase Défasco's hot rolling capacity by 25 per cent.

Dome Pete gained 1¼ to 97. Dome has arranged a $25,000,000 bank loan to finance its share of costs for two gas processing plants to be built in Alberta.

Canadian Industrial Gas picked up ¼ to 31¼. Shareholders recently approved a 2-for-1 stock split and an increase in authorized capitalization.

Cominco gained ¼ to 37¼. Trans Canada Pipe Lines ¼ to 43¼, Bethlehem ¾ to 17¾, Asamera ¾ to 3¾ and Ranger ¼ to 14½. International Utilities lost ½ to 43. Silknit ¾ to 29, CPR ¼ to 84, Falcon ¼ to 20 and Canadian Southern Pete 25 cents to 16.65.

On index, industrials were up .19 to 191.35, base metals .33 to 112.89 and western oils 1.25 to 249.75. Golds lost .02 to 245.58. Volume by 11 a.m. was 1,207,000 shares compared with 954,000 at the same time Wednesday.

The market increased a small opening gain and posted a sharp advance in light trading Wednesday.

Golds were fractionally off after dropping more than three points. European bullion prices were higher with London gold up 2⅛ cents to $43.40. At Toronto, Dome slipped 1 to 77 and Campbell Red Lake gained ¼ to 34½.

Home Oil B rose 1¼ to 53½ and Home A 1⅛ to 53¼. Home began drilling its first well in the Alaska North Slope area on lands farmed out by Atlantic Richfield.

Silknit jumped 2 to 29½ after reporting 1968 earnings of $2.63 a share compared with $1.27 for the similar 1967 period.

Revenue, up ¾ to 18, was among the active traders. Harry Rubin, executive vice-president, said the company is "negotiating a number of acquisitions."

Cominco, Canada's major lead producer, gained 1 to 37. The company said it has raised its domestic lead price one-half cent to 15 cents a pound. This follows similar increases by most U.S. lead producers.

Falconbridge was up ¾ to 115¼. The company said it will increase its exploration efforts this year.

Volcan was up ¼ to 6¾. Shareholders approved a 2-for-1 stock split and authorized an increase in common shares to 3,000,000 from $1,000,000.

Stuart House gained 1¾ to 19¾. Great West Saddlery 1 to 11¾, Canadian Gridoil 1¼ to 19 and Hudson Bay Mining 1 to 88¼.

MR. AND MRS. LYLE HARRY McKEE

McKee — Davies

Rev. A. McDowell officiated at the double-ring candlelight ceremony in Eastminster United Church on Saturday, April 5, when Carolyn Joy Davies, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Albert Davies of Belleville became the bride of Lyle Harry McKee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry McKee, also of Belleville. G. E. Templer presided at the organ and accompanied the soloist Mrs. Gordon Smith of Ottawa, cousin of the bride in various nuptial selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white delustred silk A-line gown, with matching coat sweeping into a full train at back. An elbow length veil was caught to a wedding ring headband of rhinestones and seed pearls. She carried a triangular bouquet of red roses centred with a solitaire white orchid and interspersed with ivy.

Mrs. Kathy Davies as matron of honor wore a powder blue brocade ensemble of matching coat and dress and carried a cascade bouquet of blue 'mums and sparkle pom poms. She wore a floral headdress of matching flowers. The bridesmaids Miss Carol Lane, cousin of the bridegroom and Miss Marilyn Townsend of Belleville were dressed identically to the matron of honor. The little flower girl Miss Vickey McKee, niece of the bridegroom wore a floor-length Alice gown of white brocade and carried a basket of red poms with white streamers.

Attending the bridegroom was Dwight Rathwell of Belleville while the ushers were Francis Russell, cousin of the bridegroom from Peterborough, and Jim Mortimore of Belleville. Ring-bearer was Philip Slous, cousin of the bride, who was dressed in white dinner jacket identical to the other male attendants.

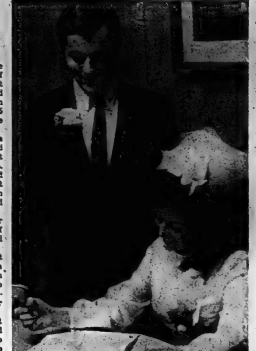
At the reception in the Tops Motor Hotel, the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a two-piece knitted dress suit of green and silver crimplene with matching accessories and a corsage of yellow 'mums with silver sparkle. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a three-piece mauve suit with black and white accessories and a corsage of purple 'mums and silver sparkles.

For the honeymoon trip the bride chose a coat and dress ensemble of navy, tan and white plaid with matching navy and tan accessories and a white orchid corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. McKee will reside at 86a Front Street E., Belleville.

Lions Club Members Gather For Charter Night

TWEED — Recently the Land O' Lakes Lions Club of Cloyne held its Charter Night in the beautifully decorated gym of North Addington High School. Approximately 225 Lions and their wives were in attendance.



The program included a supper, draws, singing and presentations. Clubs present were from Southern Ontario.

The charter was presented by Lion Ron Wisner, District Governor to Lion Weldon Bahm, president of the Land O' Lakes Club.

The guest speaker, Walter C. Fisher, past president of Lions International was well received by those present.

He emphasized the fact that everybody should be given a chance to prove his worth and that we shouldn't be too anxious to criticize or condemn the actions of our neighbors.

This is an idea of what Lionism is all about, said Mr. Fisher, and went on to say that one should do things that should be done regardless of who gets the credit.

Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Chambers, Peterborough, sign the register following their marriage Thursday, April 3, at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church in Peterborough. Mrs. Chambers is the former Jacqueline Vance, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Vance, Belleville and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Chambers, also of Belleville. Attendants at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Switzer of Belleville.

Computers Help

VANCOUVER (CP) — When technological progress creates visions of 1984 for many people it merely excites Dr. Lewis Perelet, an associate professor in the department of professional foundations at Simon Fraser University, who returned from a UNESCO conference on higher education in Paris she said: "Technology is far in advance of education at the moment. We will have to define for the machines exactly what teaching is."

Canadian Club Lists Officers

The annual general meeting of the Canadian Club of Belleville was held recently at Sir Winston Churchill School with Mrs. R. C. Ellis presiding.

The secretary and treasurer gave their annual reports followed by Mrs. J. G. Demers who presented the nominating committee's slate of officers for next season. Those were as follows: immediate past president, Dr. R. S. Burt; president, Mrs. R. C. Ellis; 1st vice-president, Mrs. A. C. Campbell; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. A. J. Clare; 3rd vice president, R. J. Ord; treasurer, J. W. Hepburn; secretary, Mrs. C. R. Whittemore; asst. secretary, Mrs. P. W. Kitcher.

Executive members are: Mrs. T. J. Lally, Miss A. Haarsman, J. E. McKinney, Mrs. B. M. Kerr, R. Temple, Dr. J. S. Kelleher, R. H. Browne, A. Quickert, and W. J. Sleeth.

This slate was accepted by members present.

Following this business meeting J. Connell introduced the film for the evening — a documentary entitled "A few notes on our food problems". This was filmed in 1968 for the "Files for Millions" section of Canada's International Development Program and has just been released for public presentation. It contained recent, up-to-date information on problems of food production in various countries around the world.

The moderator in the discussion which followed the film was Mrs. D. I. McKinnon, also a panel members were M. J. Dawson from Mysore Province, India, now teaching at Quinte Secondary School ed W. J. Tipper, head of Hastings County Agricultural Department.

The gentlemen commented on the film and explained the problems of food production in their own areas.

The meeting was adjourned.

WEDDINGS

ROBERTS — BURKITT

Rev. E. D. Jacques officiated at the recent wedding ceremony in Christ Anglican Church, Campbellford when Shirley Darlene Burkitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Burkitt of Bonarlaw was united in marriage to David Francis Roberts, son of Mrs. Charles Roberts of Campbellford and the late C. E. Roberts.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white brocade satin in princess style and featuring three-quarter length sleeves and a round neckline. She carried a bouquet of white gardenias with stephanotis and trailing ivy. Her headdress was a band of matching brocaded satin.

The bride's only attendant was Mrs. Gary Beaudoin who wore a gown of gold satin in Empire style with the waist outlined with matching colored lace with the back of the dress accented with a flowing panel extending from back at waist. She carried a bouquet of bronze and contrasting 'mums with matching flowers in her hair.

Gary Beaudoin of Campbellford extended the bridegroom while Donald Burkitt of Guelph and Grant Roberts of Oshawa were the ushers.

A wedding dinner was held at George's Restaurant after which a reception was held at the home of the bride where her mother received the guests wearing a two-piece ensemble of mint green with navy accessories and a corsage of white 'mums. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a brown lace dress with beige and brown accessories and a corsage of yellow 'mums.

For the wedding trip to the United States and other points, the bride chose a navy dress with white trim, white and navy accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Roberts will reside at 38 Front Street North in Campbellford.

ADAMSON — KEECH

DESERONTO — Rev. William Hendry officiated at the recent wedding of Sandra Jane Keech of Kingston and Lieut. George Herbert Adamson of the Canadian Forces Base, Gimli, Manitoba. The marriage was solemnized in Deseronto United Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl N. Keech of Deseronto. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Adamson of Ottawa.

The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Mrs. Earl Steckley of Windsor was matron-of-honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Carol Zalma of Plymouth, Michigan and Miss Pamela Adamson of Ottawa.

Karen Steckley of Windsor and Jo Ann Drew of Ottawa were the flower girls.

The bridegroom was attended by David McIntosh of Ottawa as best man. Ushers were Robert Drew of Ottawa and Wayne Keech of Deseronto.

Following a reception held in Deseronto Legion Hall, the couple left for the west where they will reside in Gimli, Manitoba.

A REMINDER

Wedding forms for write-ups are available at The Intelligencer and should be completed and returned BEFORE the ceremony so a report can be published immediately after the wedding.

Pictures may be submitted by your photographer up to three days after the wedding. We cannot publish wedding write-ups submitted later than six days after the date of the ceremony.

Accounts of showers and entertainments in honor of the bride do not belong with a wedding write-up and should be sent in immediately after they are held, for publication separately.

Ann Landers

After Illness Mom Insists on Smoking

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently Mom got out of the hospital after a serious case of pneumonia. She was hospitalized last year for a heart attack. Mom is coughing her head off this very minute and she smokes like a chimney — against doctor's orders.

I'm a boy 17 and I will never smoke as long as I live. My sister, 15, has also made the decision. Seeing Mom cough herself purple in the face and nearly go into convulsions is lesson enough for us. But it hasn't made her stop.

The day Mom got out of hospital she said she would quit smoking if Dad did. Dad told her, "No deal." He enjoys smoking and is in good health. He refuses to give it up.

If Mom doesn't quit smoking pretty soon, Ann, she's going to cough herself into the cemetery. Should we beg Dad to stop? — A SON.

ANN LANDERS

* * *

DEAR SON: Your Mom is playing a game called, "It's All Your Fault — Look What You Made Me Do."

Yes, I believe your dad should quit smoking. First, it would be good for him and help him stay in good health. Second, your mother would then be forced to accept full responsibility for her smoking (no scapegoat to blame it on.) And third — if your mother does cough herself into her grave, your dad won't be tortured by guilt.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You seem to understand the convictions of the warped mind. Will you please explain why some folks who are downright rich insist on crying poor mouth and talk as if they don't have a dime?

This seems utterly ridiculous — especially when they live in a mansion, drive two expensive cars, keep hired help on the place and travel all over the world. What's with these kooks? — FREE-A-BOO.

* * *

DEAR BOO: Some well-to-do folks have the crazy notion that people of means are supposed to behave in a special way and they don't feel equal to it. So, they try to disavow the label. Of course it's phony, but not as bad as the newly rich who attempt to overwhelm, impress and knock everybody's eyes out.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What do you think about a woman (divorced) who sends flowers to herself every few weeks and makes up tender and romantic cards which she displays by the flowers for her friends to see?

When asked who sent the lovely flowers, she demurely says, "A secret admirer."

The girl who does the billing for the florist told us about this so we aren't guessing. May we have an opinion? — THE BRIDGE CLUB.

* * *

DEAR CLUB: I think the woman is pitiable. I also think the florist's bookkeeper has a very big mouth.

Successful Living

Pup Wins Affection of Disturbed Child

By DORIS CLARK

Billy, age 10, was fearful and withdrawn when he learned that his mother would be staying in the hospital and had been taken to; for a while. An aunt would take Mary, but no one would take on Billy, a "difficult and disturbed boy".

At the mention of a foster home he flew to the bathroom and locked himself in. With the help of his sister, the worker persuaded him to come out, but then he rushed to his bedroom and hid under the bed.

Then the worker mentioned the presence of his dog in his car. He goes on:

"Very slowly, his head appeared first, he looked at me with the hint of a smile in his eyes and asked if he could see the dog; then got up, put on his coat and rushed outside. Mary thought we had really lost him this time.

"But there he was, waiting near the car. On the way to the foster home, he held Pixie son close to him, petting the dog, who was most receptive to his compassionate mood.

"In time of crisis, as when children have to be separated from their parents and natural surroundings, I believe that the presence of a pet can play an important role in a social worker's effort to help.

"Who knows? My dog may consider full-time employment with our emergency staff!" — Paid Tease, in The Journal, Ontario Association of Children's Aid Societies.

Dear Doris: My daughter, 18 has been going with a boy 11 years older than she is. Now she wants to buy him a $40 ring for his birthday.

I think it is too expensive. She cannot afford it and I think the boy will be embarrassed by such a gift. She is not engaged to him. — Please Help.

Dear Please: Expensive jewellery is just not, between two people who are not married or engaged. If it doesn't embarrass him it should. How expensive are the things he buys her?

* * *

Dear Doris: I am writing about the letter from Puzzled. She did not specify as to which hand her son printed with. If he is left-handed (as I am) she has absolutely nothing to worry about.

When I was a pre-schooler I printed backwards too, but the habit was corrected as soon as I started school. A left - handed person has a natural tendency to slant toward the left. I have known many south paws who used to do this. When her son starts school the habit will be corrected. — B. F.

Dear B. F.: I passed your message on to Puzzled, who replied that her son prefers to use his right hand. She adds: "Since going to school, he has learned at which side of the paper to start reading and printing. I think his problem was just inexperience; he's only 4½ years old. He has no behaviour difficulty that is apparent."

So much for our concern. How nice that we were wrong this time! But your information may well be a help to some other mother who is trying to identify a reversal tendency for what it means.

High School Recipe for Tasty Butter Tarts

By MARY MOORE

Yesterday I promised to give you the professional recipe for General Brock High School butter tarts.

Any reader of this column who does not clip this recipe is missing the chance of a lifetime to be a super butter tart baker.

GENERAL BROCK HIGH SCHOOL BUTTER TARTS
(2 doz. 2¾" diameter)

Pastry: ("Tart Dough")
½ cup plus 2 tbsps. shortening
¼ cup plus 2 tbsps. lard
1½ cups plus 1 tbsp. unsifted (½ lb.) all-purpose or pastry flour
2 cups less 1 tbsp. (¼ lb.) unsifted cake flour
1-3 cup plus 1 tbsp. (¼ oz.) skim milk powder
¾ tsp. salt
½ cup less 1 tbsp. (3½ oz.) light brown sugar
1 large egg
½ cup less 1 tbsp. (3½ oz.) water
Count ½ tsp. vanilla
4 drops yellow food coloring (optional)

Filling:
2¼ cups (1 lb.) light brown
¼ cup (2 oz.) soft shortening
2 tbsps. soft butter
¼ tsp. salt
1½ tbsps. golden corn syrup
4 eggs
¾ tsp. vanilla
Approx. 1 cup raisins or walnuts

To make Pastry, combine in large mixing bowl the shortening, lard, flours, milk powder and salt and mix well. Combine in a small bowl the brown sugar, egg, water, vanilla and coloring (if used) and add to mixed dry ingredients and mix to a smooth dough, by hand if necessary. Now you can roll and cut out tart shells to fit 2¾" tart pans but I found it much faster to break off a piece of dough, roll into a 1¼" diameter ball between my palms and press it into the tart pans — it is soft and pliable and will shape up exactly as you press it. Line twenty-four 2¾" tart tins with this pastry. (If you have a little leftover it freezes perfectly.)

Measure one tsp. raisins or nuts into each shell.

Combine all filling ingredients and beat until blended. Neatly spoon 2 tbsps. into each unbaked shell to fill to brim. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 18 to 20 min. until risen and golden. Let stand in pans 5 min. before carefully removing to rack to cool.

Professional Butter Tarts par excellence.

NOTE: We will make extra copies of this for those who want to write enclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope and 10 cents.

Berndt – Hebden

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE BERNDT

Christ Church, Belleville, was the scene when Judith Ann Hebden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Hebden, of Belleville became the bride of George Berndt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Berndt. They were united in marriage by Canon R. B. Wright. Appropriate nuptial selections were rendered by organist John Withers, who accompanied several choir boys.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of peau de sole, with lace and seed pearl accent at the neckline, bodice and front panel. Long pointed sleeves of chantilly lace were complemented by a long flow ing train with a headpiece of stephanotis. Her bouquet was of white giamelias and pale pink roses.

Maid of honor, Miss Susan Kilpatrick was attired in a gown of turquoise blue satin, with an over-skirt of georgette. She wore a matching headpiece, enhanced by the bouquet of yellow 'mums and roses which she carried.

Bridesmaids, the Misses Carold Kilpatrick, Sharon Brownlee, Marjorie McAfee and Mrs. Don Philps all were gowns identical to that of the maid of honor. Their bouquets were of yellow 'mums and roses. Flower girl, Miss Brenda Weitz was outfitted in a turquoise blue satin peau de soie gown with a lace trim and matching headband. She carried a basket of pink carnations, roses and daisies.

Attending the bridegroom, was his brother, Roy Berndt. The ushers were Ron Hebden, brother of the bride; John Inwood; Brian Pollach; and Calvin Gainforth. The ring bearer was Johnny Weitz.

The wedding reception was held at Club Canara, where the mother of the bride received the guests wearing a dress and coat ensemble in a champagne shade featuring a jewelled neckline on the dress and jewelled cuffs on the coat. Pale pink accessories, with a matching corsage of pale pink roses completed her ensemble. Assisting her, the mother of the bridegroom chose a pink and rose brocade suit with white fur trim at sleeves, completed by white accessories and a corsage of white roses.

For the wedding trip to Cape Cod and the New England States, the bride donned a mauve dress and coat ensemble with white and black accessories. Adding a finishing touch to her outfit was a corsage of yellow roses. Upon their return, the couple will reside in Denbigh.

Senior Citizens Plan Visit To Peterborough

MARMORA — Mrs. Eva Post, president, conducted business at last Wednesday's meeting of Marmora Senior Citizens Club, with 21 members present.

The quarterly audit of the books by the trustees showed a good balance. Members agreed that meetings should be held at 1.30 p.m. instead of 2.00 p.m. on the first Wednesday of each month. It was also decided to remove the "Nine Quilt" from storage and hang it in the club room for the summer.

On April 23, members will visit the Retirees Association of Peterborough U.E., and the bus will leave in the morning so that there will be shopping time.

This month afternoon entertainment was enjoyed in the club rooms on April 9 with Mrs. Art Reynolds in charge, on April 16 with rooms to be opened by Mrs. Percy Gordon, and Mrs. Albert Burridge on April 30.

The secretary was instructed to forward a $3. fee to the United Senior Citizens' Organization.

Program included a contest by Mrs. Don Bailey won by Mrs. Harold Gunter, a reading by Mrs. Gordon, one by Mrs. Robert Southworth and another by Mrs. Gunter.

Lunch was served by those in charge.

RULED UNMATCHABLE

DUBLIN AP — Trying out a new computer, Ireland's National niversity set it to work on "Operation Cupid," a mock matching of 4,000 male and female students. At least half a dozen girls each got more than one mate. One girl, assigned theoretical 56-36-36 vital statistics, got none.

IODE Members Presented With 25-year Pins

The St. Julien Chapter IODE paid tribute to two of their members at their April meeting by presenting them with 25-year pins.

Honorary Regent, Mrs. George Hume, who first joined the Order in Red Deer, Alberta, and later was a member in Calgary and Brantford before joining this chapter, has held many offices through the years. In presenting Mrs. Hume with a corsage and pin, Mrs. R. C. Ellis, a Past Regent, mentioned the various offices she had filled and commended her particularly for convening the International Fairs and the celebration of the St. Julien Chapter's 50th anniversary in 1965.

Mrs. W. D. Gilbert, the only Chapter member to have a 50-year pin, presented Mrs. F. M. Carscallen with her 25-year pin and corsage, praising her for the staunch support she has given the Chapter as Regent, secretary, Echoes' secretary, film convener, and organizer of many tag days. For 22 years Mrs. Carscallen has never missed a meeting.

Mrs. G. Hume, acting Regent, presided for the meeting and told of the forthcoming annual meeting of the Provincial Chapter in Hamilton later this month, which is to take place in the form of an imaginary trip around the world, ending with Expo '70 in Japan. Mrs. M. Kerr and Mrs. G. Hume were appointed delegates from the chapter.

Reports were given on the Citizenship Court held April 2, and on the plans for the presentation of the Eastern Ontario Concert Orchestra at the Arts Festival on April 23. Letters from the Fare Nursing Station at Hall Beach in the Far North told of the joy of the Eskimo children on receipt of the skates shipped to them, and the pleasure of the patients and the school children in the colorful magazines, books and decorations sent to them.

Members were reminded of the blood donors' clinic to be held at the Club Canara on Thursday, and volunteer workers were obtained. It was decided to accept the invitation of the Hastings County Historical Society to hold the next meeting of the Chapter at the Museum in May.

At the close of the business period, the members enjoyed the colorful pictures of Honolulu and Hawaii that Mrs. J. Parrod showed of her recent trip there.

Mrs. R. Bailey and Mrs. J. Mann served lunch.

PANASONIC

RE 767C The Ridgewood $179.95* with optional record changer RD 7673C $64.95*

Sound so real, you feel as if you're eavesdropping.

That's the kind of brilliant high fidelity you get from The Ridgewood—our 3-band AM/FM/MULTIPLEX (FM stereo) radio. And to make the most of it, we give you two full-range 6½" speakers in separate walnut cabinets. What else great about this complete modular stereo system? Try 34 solid state devices, AFC on FM to prevent station drifting, an exclusive lighted stereo eye system that pin-points stations with uncanny accuracy, and a special FM selector that has delusions of grandeur—it only tunes FM stations broadcasting in stereo. Add the fact that you can plug in a perfectly matched record changer (Model RD 7673C) and 8-track stereo tape deck (Model RS 800AS) at any time, and it's easy to see why catching the component bug from Panasonic is reaching epidemic proportions.

But then, what do you expect from a company that designs, engineers and manufactures all its own components? Just the best. And best is what you get. Even in our more compact hi-fi radios. Like The Hamson—our exciting new concept for an AM/FM table radio with twin speakers and a hand-rubbed Walnut cabinet. And The Astrosound—our new look-of-tomorrow AM/FM radio with digital clock, sleep switch, music or buzzer alarm, built-in AM/FM antennas and illuminated slide rule tuning. But rather than us tell you how we play things your way, just do a little eavesdropping at your Panasonic dealer's showroom. You'll like what you hear!

Officials Meet Next Week

Franco-Quebec Co-operation Will be Subject of Paris Talks

PARIS (CP) — A review of Franco-Quebec co-operation and plans for more such projects in future will be discussed here next week by representatives of both governments.

The officials, consisting of civil servants involved in the co-operation work, will meet against a background of pledges by Quebec and France that joint activities will be stepped up in such fields as education, culture and technology.

Meanwhile, federal officials in Paris are preparing for Ottawa-backed projects scheduled for France, which include a $250,000 Canadian participation in next month's Paris Air Show.

Canada's display is expected to feature an array of space and electronic equipment.

Canadian planes designed for use in fighting forest fires already are well known in Europe.

Tonight's appearance on French television by President de Gaulle will be watched closely by representatives of both Ottawa and Quebec.

Any pronouncements by the general, whether or not they are likely to focus on French domestic issues, are given the keenest attention by Canadians here.

There is some doubt expressed in federal circles that planned reduction of Canadian troop commitments in Europe will affect de Gaulle's attitude to Ottawa—although the president is a longtime advocate of greater independence on the part of medium-sized countries from the world's two big power blocs.

Next week's Franco-Quebec talks will establish the basis for what is termed the plenary meeting in June of the agency which administers co-operation between Paris and Quebec City.

One of the participants in this month's consultations is expected to be Guy Fregault, Quebec's commissioner-general for co-operation with other governments.

On April 12, Fregault will be presented with a literary prize for a work called Le dix-huitieme Siecle Canadien—The Canadian 18th Century.

The prize is named for the Marquis de Montcalm, French military commander in Canada in that century.

It is awarded by an organization of French journalists and writers—Le Syndicat des Journalistes et Ecrivains Francais—with the aim of improving Franco-Canadian relations.

Paris-Quebec discussions on general co-operation will be supplemented by a meeting here April 17-18 of the council in charge of the office Franco-Quebecois pour la Jeunesse.

Since its establishment early last year, the office has scheduled an increasing number of youth exchanges between France and Quebec.

The scene at Quebec House here this week has been one of unbroken but sustained activity.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, APRIL 18, 1968

'All or Nothing for Kings Tonight'--Kelly

OAKLAND (AP) — Oakland coach Fred Glover says it will be all over tonight if his Seals play the way they did in the last game against Los Angeles Kings.

The Seals meet the Kings tonight in Los Angeles in the sixth game of their National Hockey League Western Division semi-final playoff.

The Seals, who will be taking a 3-2 edge in the best-of-seven series, scored a 4-1 victory over the Kings Wednesday night on the strength of two goals by Bob Dillabough and excellent goal-tending by Gary Smith.

Mike Laughton and Norm Ferguson also scored for Oakland while Gary Croteau replied for Los Angeles.

If the Seals win tonight, they meet St. Louis Blues for the championship in the West. If the Kings win, the seventh game will be played Sunday in Oakland.

In the Eastern Division tonight, Boston Bruins play the Canadiens in Montreal in the first game of their divisional championship set.

"This was the best forechecking effort of the series for us," Glover said after Wednesday's game.

"It was a more consistent effort than we have had in a long time, not just spotty. They can win if they play the way they're capable of playing."

Los Angeles coach Red Kelly said: "The next one now is all or nothing. It's at home at least. They beat us at our own game. I had some guys who played their hearts out and some who played half heartedly."

Kings' forward Bob Wall suffered a back injury in the second period and his participation in tonight's game was termed doubtful by Kelly, who will replace him with Bryan Campbell.

Dillabough broke open a goal-tenders' battle with a 13-foot backhand shot at 8:42 of the second period to give the Seals the win. He also scored at 2:44 of the final period when he shot his rebound past goalie Gerry Desjardins. The goal was set up by defencemen Carol Vadnais who raced past two Kings to get the puck and make the pass to Dillabough.

Ferguson got his goal—his first of the series—at 16.42 of the third period when he stickhandled through at least four Los Angeles players for a shot which hit both goal pipes before entering the net.

Laughton scored the first goal for the Seals with only 1:06 gone in the first period and Croteau tied it for the Kings at 15:51.

Sharing down the pitchers' mound and shrinking the strike zone may be moves acclaimed loudest in Montreal than in any other major league baseball city.

If misery enjoys company, the Expos should be ecstatic about the fact that theirs will not be the only pitching staff labored under the current swing towards giving the game back to the hitters.

The Expo ballpen is not, shall we say, the cradle of manager Gene Mauch's pennant hopes. "If we can pitch, we'll win," maps the fiery man on the chart end of odds an high as 300-1 for a National League flag.

"And I don't know if we CAN pitch."

Mauch is entitled to his reservations. The Expos' 16-man hurling brigade managed to compile an aggregate of 25 complete games between them in minor and major leagues last year, last summer. That's about as many as the Tigers' Denny McLain managed all by his lonesome. (We hasten to add, Detroit wouldn't benefit by a 16-for-1 swap.)

Only three of the Expos pitchers — Jim "Mudcat" Grant (Dodgers), Larry Jaster (Cards), and Bill Stoneman (Cubs) — saw any big time action last year.

As one Montreal writer quipped: "The Jarry Park ballpen baggy may need new tires by the all-star game break-in."

Half of the pitching staff got into the Expos' opening act Monday in New York, escaping with an 11-10 win and their lives in the face of a 15-hit attack by the Mets.

Monsieur Le Mudcat, as Mr. Grant is no doubt referred to in downtown Montreal sporting circles, single-handedly showed why he is regarded as the leading Expos veteran light by surviving exactly one and one-third innings.

Dugout scuttlebutt had it that ballpen coach Bob Oldis was negotiating for the services of Jean Drapeau after he detected a dip in the Montreal mayor's official game-opening toss-in.

No, the Expos definitely have no contenders for this year's Cy Young award, barring acts of God in 25 other North American cities of their choice.

But, as long as the Expos can get one more fellow on outing across the plate than their opponents, they're not going to lose any sleep over astronomic earned run averages.

If their nemesis — and Hottine — Schat was any indication, individual zeniths with the hickory-may keep Mr. Mauch from collecting the booby-prize at the annual manager's ball.

The folks back home in Canada — many of whom think a sacrifice fly is a disposable nipper — suddenly grasped the import of all that "Coming Expos" kind of talk when the four seconds it took Daniel J. Staub to plant an Al Jackson delivery behind a left field fence about 378 feet from his intended resting place — the catcher's mitt.

It was Canada's second major league home run. The precedent setting first came courtesy of another Daniel, this time McGinn, who was temporarily standing in for the departed Mr. Grant as the Montreal bat-baiter.

McGinn's 298-foot clout off Shea Stadium's right field wall would be enough to convince the layman that he should be moved into a regular on the grass from his pitcher's mound, where he can do less harm and more good.

And if first impressions are worth anything, Maury Wills stands to at least match his .378 output for last year's Pirates. Monday's three hits, (on which, and a walk that (yes, he's still at it) and a tight performance afield angured well for Wills' Montreal baseball career.

If anyone can mould something resembling a major league baseball team out of the motley collection of rejects that the Quebec expansionists unearthed, it's Gene Mauch.

In only three of 17 seasons did a Mauch-led team fail to win more games than it lost. Mauch, who 26 years ago was a teen-aged shortstop for the Montreal Royals, led the Phillies to the brink of a pennant in 1964. The Phils, you remember, had upheld a tradition of hopelessness only surpassed by the Mets.

Anyone who can part those waters can build a baseball team from scratch.

Expos Lose First

Comeback Is Podres' Biggest Thrill

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Johnny Podres pitched Brooklyn Dodgers to baseball's world championship in 1955 but got the thrill of his career Wednesday night.

"I knew in spring training that I could pitch in the big leagues but I still had to prove it—and I think I did," Johnny Podres said after coming back from a year of semi-pro baseball and barking the expansion San Diego Padres to a 2-0 victory over Houston Astros.

Elsewhere in the National League, Atlanta Braves made it three in a row over San Francisco Giants 4-1, Pittsburgh sent defending champion St. Louis Cardinals to their second straight setback 6-1, Cincinnati Reds edged Los Angeles Dodgers 3-1 on Bobby Tolan's two-run homer, Billy Williams tied a major league record with four in-a-row and Philadelphia Phillies 11-3 and New York Mets drubbed Montreal Expos 9-5.

Podres was released by Detroit following the 1967 season after 11 years with the Dodgers and two with the Tigers. He sat out 1968, pitching semi-pro ball around his home town of Witherbee, N.Y.

The 36-year-old left hander gave the Astros only a second-inning single by Curt Blefary and Joe Morgan's bloop single in the third in the seven innings he worked. He also knocked in a run with a sacrifice fly.

"Winning this game was probably the biggest thrill of my career," he said. "I couldn't get a job in baseball last year." I called the Angels, the Dodgers and a lot of clubs, but nobody wanted me. They know my age and they thought my arm must have been broken when Detroit released me. . . .

"I think I could have gone nine innings, but Manager Preston Gomez told me at the end of the sixth that all he wanted me to do was go one more inning."

Podres scheduled to make his next start Tuesday night — against the Dodgers in Los Angeles.

The Mets sent Montreal to its first defeat with a four-run first inning and Tug McGraw's strong 4 2-3 innings of relief. Ken Boswell homered for the Mets and Rusty Staub hit one for the Expos.

Milt Pappas retired 14 San Francisco batters in order after allowing a first-inning run, but needed relief help from Cecil Upshaw as the Braves trimmed the Giants and swept their opening three-game series.

Bob Veale scattered six hits as Pittsburgh downed St. Louis. The Pirates scored twice in the fourth on Julian Javier's two-base error, a single by Roberto Clemente, Willie Stargell's double and Bob Robertson's single.

They added three more in the fifth on Fred Patek's bunt, another Javier error, Matty Alou's double and a single by Clemente. Jerry May homered in the sixth.

Tolan's two-run homer in the seventh against Don Sutton of Los Angeles snapped a tie and gave the Reds' reliever relief pitcher Wayne Granger, who was on base with a walk when Tolan connected off Sutton. Then the Cincinnati starter, left the game when he pulled a hamstring muscle.

Bill Hands spaced seven hits as the Cubs trampled the Phillies and Williams' four doubles matched a record shared by 29 other players. The Cubs broke a 2-2 tie with two unearned runs in the fourth inning and exploded for seven in the seventh.

Rookie Boosts Royals Into First

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was a draw for 17 moves until Lou Piniella, the chess enthusiast, check-mated Minnesota Twins.

Piniella, who had four hits in Kansas City's 13-inning opening game victory over the Twins, managed only one in Wednesday night's 17-inning affair but it gave the expansion Royals a 4-3 victory over the Twins.

It was the rookie outfielder's two-out single in the 17th that chased Jack Hernandez home with the winning run.

Outfielder Steve White ker made two errors on the same play in a four-run California rally that helped the Angels to a 7-3 victory over Seattle Pilots.

In other American League action, Chicago White Sox shut out Oakland Athletics 3-0 and Washington Senators dropped New York Yankees 6-4.

Piniella—who joted his chess board in such diverse locations as Selma, Peninsula, Aberdeen, Baltimore, El Paso, Portland and Cleveland during six minor league seasons—seems to have found a home in Kansas City.

He became an instant favorite with his four-hit debut and Wednesday's winning hit didn't hurt his standing with Kansas City fans.

The Royals had tied the game in the eighth inning on a two-out single by Joe Foy after Rod Carew's daring steal of home had given Minnesota a 3-2 edge in the fifth.

The victory left the Royals all alone in first place in the Western Division.

Whitaker was the goat in the Pilots' loss at California.

Seattle was leading 3-1 when Jim Fregosi opened the fifth inning with a single. Jay Johnstone doubled and when Whitaker first bobbled the ball and then threw wild, both runners scored, tying the game.

A walk and three straight singles by Leo Rodriguez, Tom Satriano and Bobby Knopp gave the Angeles two more runs and the lead they never surrendered.

Don Mincher homered for the Pilots.

The Senators used home runs by Frank Howard, Paul Casanova and Ken McMullen to beat the Yankees and give Ted Williams his first victory as manager.

Howard and Casanova both had two-run shots in the third inning, wiping out an early 2-0 New York edge. McMullen had a solo shot and drove in another run with a ninth inning single. Bobby Murcer and Roy White homered for the Yankees.

Carlos May blasted a pair of homers and a single, driving in all three Chicago runs as Tommy John blanked the Athletics. John scattered four hits and struck out four.

May homered in the third and sixth and singled home the White Sox' other run in the eighth.

Ruel's Habs Eye Another Cup

MONTREAL (CP) — The "hungry" Montreal Canadiens, under freshman coach Claude Ruel, set their sights on a ninth Stanley Cup in 14 seasons tonight in the opener of an East Division final against Boston Bruins.

The two clubs start their best-of-seven series under a dogged-out playoff schedule which the Bruins' general manager, Milt Schmidt, says will be detrimental to his players.

Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, Wednesday turned a deaf ear to Schmidt's request that the series be telescoped.

Schmidt complained that the long layoff between games was dragging out the series unnecessarily, a view shared by his Montreal counterparts.

The second game is slated for Montreal Sunday afternoon with the series moving to Boston for Thursday and Sunday games if needed.

Campbell explained that he was "endeavoring to make sure that by next Sunday (April 20), the final series in the East and the one in the West will have reached their fourth games."

The West Division final can't start earlier that next Saturday, but Louis Blues have already won their western semi-final by dropping Philadelphia Flyers in four games. Oakland Seals have a 3-2 edge in their best-of-seven semi-finals against Los Angeles Kings.

Montreal centre Jean Beliveau, meanwhile, is convinced that this season's edition of Montreal Canadiens is as "hungry for the cup" as the ones of other years.

They have won the cup a record eight times since 1955-56 under the guidance of coach Toe Blake who retired last year.

Beliveau said the club can count on both its older and younger players but admitted the series with Boston will be "a close one."

He said goaltending may prove to be the key of the series and the Bruins "have the best goaltending they have had in years" in Gerry Cheevers.

In Boston Wednesday, coach Harry Sinden confirmed that he will start Cheevers in tonight's game.

PRE-SEASON PREPARATION — Jack Jeffrey, the president of the Quinte Riding and Driving Club, discusses track improvements at the Fairgrounds with Al Vance, a harness horse owner and driver, who is using a tractor to drag the track. The local club is widening the Fairground's track to 50 feet to meet the standards of the Canadian Trotting Association.

Wide Track for Trotters

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Sportswriter

Local harness racing fans will see a noticeable improvement in the Belleville Fairgrounds half-mile track when the season officially opens Saturday, May 24.

Jack Jeffrey, the president of the Quinte Riding and Driving Club, commented "We plan 21 meets this year, therefore our track has to conform to the standards of the Canadian Trotting Association for an extended meet, which is any meet over ten days duration.

"We've widened the track from 35 feet to 50 feet to meet the Trotting Association's standards and we'll also recondition the surface of the track for the coming season," Jack added.

Work has been progressing at the Fairground's track since last week and will likely conclude next week. The outside fences have been removed and earth and fill are being added to the outside and then banked properly to give the track the required 30 foot width.

The Quinte Riding and Driving Club, which last year had to get a specific permit for every meet after the tenth one, is financing the cost of the improvements, and hopes that they will attract more and better horses to Belleville and also bring about an attendance increase.

Jack noted that the calibre of racing should be improved this season because of the greater number of horses in the district and a probable increase in the purses of the Belleville meets.

The Quinte Riding and Driving Club will also achieve another first this year — a stakes race which will be held on August 30th.

The stakes race will be for colts who have never raced before and will be sponsored by Corby Distillery of Cobourg.

Speaking on the prospects for the coming season President Jeffrey said "I'd say that things look very bright at the present for our season will be expanded from 19 meets to 21, our track will be better, are purses are likely to increase and we'll have our first stakes race."

"These improvements plus the increased enthusiasm for harness racing in this district should add up to another increase in attendance which rose to an average of over 800 per meet last season," Jack concluded.

Trophy Search Continues

TORONTO (CP) — Police continued their search today for three National Hockey League trophies stolen from the Hockey Hall of Fame in the Canadian National Exhibition grounds.

The thefts were discovered early Wednesday when Lefty Reid, curator, arrived at work. He reported the Calder, Conn Smythe and original Hart trophies were missing as well as two sets of medals from the Sports Hall of Fame, located in the same building.

In Montreal, NHL president Clarence Campbell said:

"There is no way in which we would consider co-operating if asked to pay ransom for the return of the trophies.

"We could be prepared to pay a reasonable reward, but only through the police."

Campbell, surprised over the theft, since the trophies would be almost impossible to sell and their melted-down value would not justify the risks taken, added:

"If anybody really wanted them that badly, we would gladly supply them with miniatures of each of them."

However, if the trophies are not found, winners of the individual trophies will have to accept the miniatures which Mr. Campbell says are available.

Entrance to the building was gained by taking the cylinder lock out of one of the main doors. The thief, or thieves, also tried to take the Lou Marsh trophy presented annually to the outstanding Canadian athlete. They apparently were thwarted by the weight of the solid marble pillar.

Reid said he could not place a value on the missing articles.

"Unofficially, I'd have to say they were worth a total of about $10,000. But how can you put a value on trophies like that?"

All were made of silver.

The Hart Trophy was first presented in 1923 and retired in 1960 because it looked shoddy. It is for the NHL's most valuable player.

The Calder Trophy goes to the league's outstanding rookie and the Smythe Trophy for the best player in Stanley Cup playoffs.

Also stolen were about 100 medals won by Fred J. Robson of Toronto in the late 1880s and early 1900s for speedskating and another, 40 presented to Dan Bain, Manitoba's outstanding athlete during the same time and captain of two Stanley Cup teams.

Reid said: "Whoever it is has to be a hook. None of these trophies is marketable. It's like stealing a Rembrandt. What would they ever do with them?"

Softball Convention Attracts Local Buffs

Four Belleville area men will travel to Sudbury Friday for the 45th annual convention of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association, and a pair of them have been nominated for positions on the Association's executive for the coming year.

Clifford Reich of Belleville has been nominated for another term as the Association's Secretary, while Jim Tebworth of Belleville has been nominated for the positions of third vice president and executive committee member.

Ted Spracklett, the President of the Belleville Minor Softball Association, and Bruce Nicks, a special convener representing Prince Edward County, are the other local representatives at the meeting which will be held Friday and Saturday at Sudbury's President Motor Hotel.

Imlach Honored

TORONTO (CP) — George Punch Imlach may be gone from Maple Leaf Gardens but he's not forgoten at city hall.

City council voted Wednesday to hold a reception and dinner in honor of Imlach, fired Sunday as manager-coach of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League.

Controller Allan Lamport suggested the idea.

"We should do something for Punch so that the city of Toronto will remain a great city instead of being a sourpuss just because he lost one Stanley Cup series."

Handguns

The following scores are the results of the Club's regular weekly "shoot" at the Belleville Police Department handgun range:

The highest scores of the National Course: Don Wilson 266; Louis Kuizsar 264; Tim Boisvert 262; Joe Heinbach 256; Jo Ann Boisvert 248.

The highest individual targets of the "shoot": Slow Fire: Don Wilson 88; Rapid Fire: Tim Boisvert 92; Timed Fire: Louis Kuizsar 87.

Case of the Missing Trophies

Lefty Reid (left), curator of the Hockey Hall of Fame and attendant Frank Murray survey the damage after it was discovered Wednesday the hall was broken into and some of the trophies in the game were stolen. Missing are the Calder and Conn Smythe trophies from the NHL and the original Hart trophy which was replaced about 15 years ago. (CP Photo)

Knudson Looks to Putter In Bid for Masters Title

AUGUSTA, Ga. (CP) — George Knudson of Toronto, only Canadian in the Masters golf tournament starting today, is leaning heavily on his putter.

"If I can drop a few good putts early, it'll sure boost my confidence," said the five-time Masters' entry who admits he has been putting "horribly."

Knudson, 31, is one of 36 foreign players in the field of 83 competing in the 33rd annual Masters.

"The greens are the best I've seen in five years," said Knudson. "It's a wider open course and the long-ball hitter should have an advantage."

He made the remarks before setting out on today's first round on the hot, 6,980-yard, par-72 Augusta National Course.

Gary Player, the South African who has won all the world's major golf titles singled out Roberto de Vicenzo of Argentina, whose mathematics cost him a share of last year's title, as the major threat.

De Vicenzo, 45, shot a final-round 65 last year, putting him in a tie for the top spot with Bob Goalby. But Roberto inadvertently signed a scorecard showing a 66 and was stuck with the higher figure.

Jack Nicklaus, who has won the title f ive times, insisted that only a proven player can be counted on to win because of the pressure and the intricacies of the course.

"The more you plan on this course the better your chances are," Nicklaus said. "A proven player—and I think a lot of players in the tournament fit that description—will win it."

Tigers Too Much for Galt?

VICTORIAVILLE, Que. (CP) — Victoriaville is looking to a veteran club to carry it to its second successive Allan Cup in as many tries.

The Tigers, who rocketed to fame last year—their first in the Quebec Senior Hockey League—by winning the Canadian title, meet Galt Hornets in a best-of-seven series to decide Eastern Canada's representative in the Canadian final.

The series opens with the first two games at the home of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior series winners Saturday and Sunday with the next three games scheduled for here April 16, 18 and 20 if necessary.

The remainder of the playoff schedule has not been decided.

Victoriaville advanced to the Eastern Canada final by eliminating Sherbrook Beavers and Chicoutimi Saguenees in QSHL playoffs. Galt won the OHA series then eliminated Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and Gander, Nfld., en route.

Coach Jean-Guy Charbonneau is using a veteran squad to defend the national title, including several reinstated professionals like 32-year-old Jean-Guy Morissette in goals and centre Michel Labrosse.

Defenceman Andre Aubry is one of the few younger players to crack the Victoriaville lineup which has right-winger Bruce Cline, a 15-year veteran of minor pro ranks, and holdovers from the 1968 cup team. Clement Boudreau, Jean-Claude Morcotte, Gaston Marois, Norman Pepin, Jacques Michel, Pierre Potvin, Andre Bessette, Larroy Drouin and captain John Menutis.

Local Duffers Open Bay of Quinte Course Saturday

Local duffers will be pulling their clubs out of the closet and shaking the dust off them because the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club will open Saturday.

Club pro George Balazs said "We anticipate that the course will be ready for play Saturday and we're holding an opening day for club members and limited guests."

"We should have a good turnout barring a heavy siege of rain before Saturday," Balazs added. "The spring runoff is over and I expect that all the holes should be playable unless we get heavy rains in the next few days."

Linda Inks Pro Contract

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Linda Carbonetto of Toronto, Canadian figure skating champion, has signed a professional contract with Ice Capades, the show's president, George Eby, announced today.

Eby refused to disclose terms of the pact but said miss Carbonetto, who celebrates her 20th birthday in two days, will have a "starring role" in the 1970 production.

"Linda's style typifies the spectacular advances made by younger skaters today," Eby said. "Of all the amateur skaters, she became the No. 1 choice of the major ice shows because of her tremendous showmanship."

Howell Faces Spinal Operation

NEW YORK (AP) — Veteran defenceman Harry Howell will undergo spinal fusion surgery on April 29, New York Rangers announced Wednesday.

Howell, 36, was bothered by a bad back for most of the second half of the recent National Hockey League season.

The Rangers said they hope Howell will return to action in December. Recuperation from a spinal fusion usually takes six or seven months.

Rod Selling, another defenceman, will undergo surgery Monday for removal of damaged cartilage from his right knee, the Rangers also announced.

Discontented Students

Unrest among university students now is as symbolic of those institutions as the traditional graduation scroll. This montage consists of Sir George Williams University riot scenes. Damage in the riots was estimated at $2,000,000. Some students claim the wrecking helped better understanding of youthful problems. (CP Photo)

Turner, on Tour of North, Is Greeted By Dispenser of 'Unpalatable' Justice

HAY RIVER, N.W.T. (CP) — Despite a ruling two years ago that his philosophy of justice was "no longer palatable," Rudy Steiner is still a justice of the peace in this community 800 miles north of Edmonton on the southern shore of Great Slave Lake.

Mr. Justice W. G. Morrow, judge of the territorial court in Yellowknife, conducted an inquiry in 1967 into allegations of unequal courtroom treatment and use of influence by Mr. Steiner.

Justice Morrow said that although Mr. Steiner's judicial philosophy was unpalatable and it was recommended he be removed from his post, he had acted selflessly while justice of the peace and had done well for a businessman with little judicial training.

Mr. Steiner, however, was in court Wednesday to greet Justice Minister John Turner, touring the North to see how the 74 recommendations of the Morrow report have been dealt with.

Earlier in Whitehorse, Mr. Turner became the 12th member of the Yukon Bar since the first was sworn in 1898.

Opening a seven day tour that will take him deep into the eastern Arctic later this week with Mr. Justice Morrow's spring circuit, the minister chatted with Yukon officials and heard their views en justice.

One of the changes implemented since the Morrow report is that justice in this community of 2,800 is no longer dispensed in the RCMP barracks.

A former liquor store is being converted into a courthouse several miles from the police post.

"Poetic justice, isn't it?" an RCMP officer said.

About 1,200 of the community's population are Metis—of mixed Indian and white heritage—while about 250 are Indian and the rest white.

In his report, Mr. Justice Morrow dismissed suggestions of use of influence by Mr. Steiner to avoid prosecution involving a bizarre graveside ritual in Hay River.

Mr. Steiner and several others were requested, in the will of a Joe Vachon, to perform a graveside ritual involving the drinking of liquor to send the deceased "on his way" in a fitting manner.

He decided, quite correctly, that a little larceny was called for; accordingly, he was the King of hearts on the board, and led his singleton diamond, putting in the nine! West put yourself in your West's spot, you can quickly see his problem. Returning a diamond is the one thing you probably would not do. A heart continuation would give up a trick in that suit.

So West tried a low spade, ducked in the ten. Now when South played Ace and another heart, West found himself on the lead again. This time he tried the club suit, and this was equally disastrous, allowing South to pick up the Queen without a guess, as well as the entire club suit.

A fourth round of hearts set up the last card in that suit, so the outcome was that South made four notrump, for an excellent score. The moral? Larceny sometimes pays — at the bridge table, anyway.

Mr. Steiner's judicial training consisted of a correspondence course and two years as a justice of the peace.

He decided, quite correctly, that a little larceny was called for; accordingly, he was the King of hearts on the board, and led his singleton diamond, putting in the nine! Then put yourself in your West's spot, you can quickly see his problem. Returning a diamond is the one thing you probably would not do. A heart continuation would give up a trick in that suit.

So West tried a low spade, ducked in the ten. Now when South played Ace and another heart, West found himself on the lead again. This time he tried the club suit, and this was equally disastrous, allowing South to pick up the Queen without a guess, as well as the entire club suit.

A fourth round of hearts set up the last card in that suit, so the outcome was that South made four notrump, for an excellent score. The moral? Larceny sometimes pays — at the bridge table, anyway.

Contract Bridge

By A. D. Heron

The week of April 14 saw the Royal York Hotel in Toronto act as host to Canada's annual National Bridge Tournament. People came from as far west as Californ-ia, and Vancouver to as far east as Newfoundland to play in this week-long event, which this year say all attendance records broken. A total of more than 1,800 tables took part.

A Belleville pair managed to win top prize in the Intermediate Pairs; and this writer, playing with Ken Carey of Kingston, was fortunate to lead the field after the first session of the team Canadian National Men's Pairs, to win our section in the final round, and take third place over-all in the event.

The following hand from the Nationals, played by Malcolm Ewashkiw and Bob Rewbotham of Belleville, illustrates how a little larceny is sometime indicated, when it looks as though all else will fail.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 H	P	2 N	P
3 C	P	3 N

Opening Lead: Queen of Hearts.

West found himself on lead, and with an unattractive hand to lead from, failed to find the killing diamond. He chose the Queen of hearts, and South, Ewashkiw, saw that his chances looked bleak, as hearts didn't seem to be splitting, and a diamond shift was staring him in the face. He decided, quite correctly, that a little larceny was called for; accordingly, he won the King of hearts on the board, and led his singleton diamond, putting in the nine! Then put yourself in your West's spot, you can quickly see his problem. Returning a diamond is the one thing you probably would not do. A heart continuation would give up a trick in that suit.

So West tried a low spade, ducked in the ten. Now when South played Ace and another heart, West found himself on the lead again. This time he tried the club suit, and this was equally disastrous, allowing South to pick up the Queen without a guess, as well as the entire club suit.

A fourth round of hearts set up the last card in that suit, so the outcome was that South made four notrump, for an excellent score. The moral? Larceny sometimes pays — at the bridge table, anyway.

Conference to be Held On North's Development

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP) — A conference will be held at Lakehead University next Aug. 18-22 to examine the advisability of establishing a nationwide policy and plan for the development of Canada's mid-North.

In giving the dates of the third Northern Resources Conference, Richard Rohmer, a Toronto lawyer involved in land development who will be the conference chairman, said delegates will consider the problems and challenges related to the urbanization, industrialization and creation of a policy and plan for the mid-North.

Mr. Rohmer, the originator of the idea of a mid-Canada development corridor, said the August conference in Port Arthur will be the first of two. The second will be held in August, 1970, at a place and on dates yet to be determined.

Mr. Rohmer's corridor runs from Newfoundland and Labrador on the east across northern Quebec, south of James Bay with an extension into Moosonee, then northwest across the Ontario clay belt with another extension into Churchill, Man.

From Churchill, the corridor runs west into the Athabasca-Great Slave Lake-Yellowknife region. There it forks into three directions-southerly to Prince Rupert in British Columbia, northwesterly to Whitehorse in the Yukon and up the Mackenzie River to its mouth at Inuvik and Tuktoyaktuk on the Arctic Ocean.

Mr. Rohmer said:

"It is within the competence and the capability of the people of Canada to open over the next 10, 25 and 50 years the entire development corridor-open it up for more than the extraction of wood products, communities which will last only so long as the particular resource lasts which the community has established to create."

The conference is being sponsored by the Ontario government and the universities of British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Lakehead, Laurentian, Guelph, Montreal, McGill, Laval and Memorial of Newfoundland.
